LOST HAT; THEN LIFE

LOSES BALANCE WHILE ENDEAVORING TO RECOVER HIS HEAD GEAR

BODY TAKEN FROM RIVER AT SPOONER—MANY WITNESS TRAGIS END

From Friday's Daily—

Snatching for his hat when it blew from his head while he was crossing the international bridge of the Canadian and Northern railroad at Spooner cost Robert Gurlick his life yesterday In reaching for the hat he lost his balance and plunged head-long over the edge of the bridge.

A number of people including F. B. Harris formerly of this city and now a homesteader at Graceton, saw the accident, and had there been no witnesses, it is probable that the suicide theory would have been advanced to account for the drownng.

Witnesses say that a sudden puff of wind carried off Gurlick's hat. The man evdently forgot the danger of his position for a moment; made a lunge to save the head covering; lost his balance and fell. His head struck an iron bar before his body plunged into the river and was lost to sight.

The blow from the bar probably rendered the man unconscious and prevented any struggle to save himself.

Many boats were soon at the scene of the accident but Gurlick's body did not reappear. Later the corpse was recovered 200 feet below the spot where the man fell.

Gurlick was an employe at the E. A. Peterson hardwarre store n Rainy River, Ont. He is survived by a widow and five children. Coroner McCrimmore was notified and the body was taken to Rainy River.

STEENERSON'S BODY FOUND

CONGRESSMAN STEENERSON TO BRING BODY TO CROOKSTON TUESDAY

BODY FOUND BY FISHERMAN OFF NEWPORT NEAR PROVIDENCE ISLAND

From Friday's Daily—

The body of Private Benjamin G. Steenerson, U. S. marine corps who, with Private John M. McIntosh, was drowned in Narragansett's bay on Feb. 16 last was recovered late yesterday afternoon near Providence Island off Newport, Rhode Island.

Like that of McIntosh whose body was found on last Monday, as announced exclusively by the Journal, Steenerson's body was in a bad state of decomposition on account of being in the water so long, and the identification was made only by the uniform of the marine corps.

McIntosh's body was buried there yesterday with full naval honors.

Chas. Loring, law partner of Halvor Steenerson received a telegram from the Minnesota congressman today stating that he would arrive here with his son's body next Tuesday. The services over the remains will probably be conducted by Reverend Herman P. Fisher.

Newport, R. I., May 28—The body of Harry McIntosh a private of the United States marine corps who was drowned on Feb. 16, was found last night by a fisherman and was shipped today to Turtle Creek, Pa. where McIntosh's mother lives. McIntosh and Private Benjamin G. Steenerson, a son of Congressman Halvor Steenerson of Minnesota, were drowned while bound out on a tug to one of the harbor forts.

From the investigation by a naval board following the mysterious double drowning, it appeared that McIntosh fell overboard and that his chum, Steenerson, jumped after him. An autopsy will be held on the body of McIntosh tomorrow. A superficial examination tonight showed no marks of violence.

INSTANT RELIEF OF ITCHING HUMOR

Limbs Below the Knees Were Raw —Feet Too Swollen to Get Shoes On—Sleep Completely Broken by Intense Itching and Burning—Well in Two Days and Says That

CUTICURA IS AMONG HIS HOUSEHOLD GODS

"God bless the man who first compounded Cuticura. Some two months ago I had a humor break out on my limbs below my knees. They came to look like raw beefsteak, all red, and no one knows how they itched and burned. They were so swollen that I had to split my drawers open to get them on and could not get my shoes on for a week or more. I used five or six different remedies and got no help, only when applying them the burning was worse and the itching less. One morning I remembered that I had a bit of Cuticura and tried it. From the moment it touched me the itching was gone and I have not felt a bit of it since. The swelling went down and in two days I had my shoes on and was about as usual. I only wish I had used the Cuticura Remedies in the first of my troubles. They would have saved me two or three weeks of intense suffering. During that time I did not sleep an hour at a time, but was up applying such remedies as I had. Henceforth the Cuticura Remedies will be among my household gods, rest assured. George B. Farley, 50 South State St., Concord, N. H., May 14, 1907."

BEN STEENERSON IS BURIED AMID HONORS

WELL KNOWN CROOKSTON BOY STOPPED WHILE ASCENDING LADDER IN FOOTSTEPS OF HIS FATHER — WAS BORN IN THIS CITY, WAS EDUCATED HERE AND CENTERED HIS INTERESTS HERE—MEN IN ARMY SERVICE SHARE GRIEF WITH THE STRICKEN PARENTS—SERVICES CONDUCTED BY REVEREND HERMAN P. FISHER OF THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Congressman Halvor Steenerson with Sergeant Bertram Pierce, naval attache, arrived in the city this morning with the body of Benjamin Steenerson, who was drowned in Narragansett Bay off Newport, Rhode Island, February 16th last and whose body was recovered off Elizabeth Island by a fisherman May 26th last.

With the going of Ben Steenerson passes one of the best known and most promising of Crookston's rising generation. His popularity as well as the advance he had made in the legal profession gave his star much impetus and he was on the first rounds of the ladder in the footsteps of his father, the Ninth District Congressman.

Crookston Born

Benjamin Gilbert Steenerson was born in Crookston, Minnesota February 21, 1884 and was educated in the Crookston Public Schools. He attended the Crookston High School for two years and then was sent to the Shattuck Military Academy at Faribault, Minnesota. In the fall of 1902 he entered the University of Minnesota and the next year he entered the collegiate department of the George Washington University at Washington D. C. In 1905 he commenced the study of law in the legal schools of the George Washington University and graduated a year ago, June 3, 1907 as bachelor of law with degree from that institution.

He entered the marine corps of the government October 25, 1907 as a private, expecting to go with the fleet around Cape Horn to the Pacific but was sent to the station at Newport, R. I., where he was acting clerk for the Quartermaster Sargeant of that station.

At the end of the year he would have had the right to quit the service by payment of a small sum as a bonus for the unexpired term and he had agreed with his father that he would resign next October and enter the legal profession as his life avocation.

Added to Hero List

The reports as to the death of Ben Steenerson as they reached here are practically as given in the Journal. The men of the service are well acquainted with the manner in which he died as they were aboard the tug from which he plunged to the rescue of his companion. A copy of a letter written to Mr. Steenerson at Washington, D. C., concerning the death of his son is secured today.

Extracts from a letter written by Sergeant W. C. Barnaby, U. S. Marine Corps, to Mr. Steenerson the day after the drowning:

Newport, R. I., Feb. 17, 1908: I respectfully return your letter of the 12th inst. to your son. So intimately were we associated in our work and such was his character and ability that we were friends and comrades.

Just last week he was telling me his plans for the future. He told me he was going to put in a year with us, that it would not hurt him, as he was learning things every day. Then he said he was going in with you in your law business and was going to try and follow you in your profession, and he had made a good start in the way already.

Believe me your grief is shared by every service man who knew your son and we fully believe that the manner of his going has added one more name to the list of our heroes, and well we know "that greater love hath no man than this,—that he lays down his life for his friends."

—W. C. Barnaby,
Sergeant U. S. Marin Corps.

The funeral of Ben Steenerson was attended today by Company I, by the Crookston band and the Crookston bar of which the Congressman and son were members. The procession proceeded from the home and tho the weather was slightly drizzling it was very long.

The Crookston Band played a funeral march from the home to the church The pedestrians attended walking along the sidewalks.

Mrs. Steenerson was not able to reach the city to attend the funeral. Her prostrated condition prevents her travel at this time and she rests in Washington. In a short time she will accompany Mr. Steenerson to some watering place and recruit as far as she is able from the grievous blow following the loss of her son.

The pall bearers are Messrs. Claude Carpenter, Elmer Ellington, James Montague, Arthur Fournet, Jack Fournet and Marcus Stephens.

POLITICS IN ROSEAU CO.

ROGER BELL THROWS FEW SIDELIGHTS ON RECENT DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

GOLDBUG DEMOCRATS ARE ONE IN MAJORITY ON FLOOR

From Tuesday's Daily—

The Roseau Times says that it has just leaked out how the Bryan cohorts failed to carry Roseau county. It was all due to the failure of John Howe of Badger to arrive in time. Howe was delayed by an automobile accident.

Altho 789 votes were cast for Johnson in Roseau county two years ago there were only seven Democrats at the county convention and only eleven avowed Democrats in the county. The Times adds:

The failure of Mr. Howe to arrive in time to take part in the convention left the Bryan forces without an active and fearless leader and the news that Johnson had swept the state took the starch water out of the four Bryan men present and they allowed the Johnson resolutions to pass in the interest of harmony. Had Mr. Howe been present the result would have been different and Messrs. Holdahl and Holmes would have had no occasion to get a free ride to St. Paul and return. Such is the game of politics but in this case it was not well played Johnson republicans were not in evidence and the governor was represented by Messrs. Holdahl, Muir and Holmes, Goldbug Democrats.

CORN NOW A VALLEY CROP

POLK COUNTY REPORTS SHOW LARGE ACREAGE OF TASSELED CORN

FORMERLY RAISED FOR FODDER NOW RAISED FOR COMMERCIAL USE

From Tuesday's Daily—

In many localities of the valley and especially in Polk county corn will be this year a settled crop. For many years it has been raised somewhat carelessly for fodder purposes, but as if all at once the majority of the corn raisers of this part of the valley have planted their corn this year from best known field corn seed and for purposes of sale in the fall to the markets.

A great deal of corn is planted this year about Fosston and thru other parts of the east county. Commissioner Eklund has a large field of regular Illinois corn that he will cultivate this season. The corn tassels will also wave about Fertile's broad stretches and also near Climax and East Grand Forks. The acreage of the maizey grain this year in Polk county has largely increased and with good results this year will undoubtedly double. Much of the corn is yet being planted in the old fodder way but in the fertile neighborhood and near East Grand Forks large quantities have been noticed planted in the regulation Illinois hills.

NORTH DAKOTA OFFICIALS CLAIM CANADA RETURNING DISEASED HORSES

DELEGATION VISITS BOUNDARY ON VETERINARY MISSION TO INVESTIGATE

From Tuesday's Daily—

A startling condition of affairs among horses along the Canadian border was revealed by a visit of Dr. W. F. Crewe, state veterinarian of North Dakota; Dr. McCauley federal inspector of the bureau of animal industry, and who have returned to Grand Forks. who have returned the Grand Forks. They went there to look up complaints in regard to the sale of glandered horses that had been rejected by the Canadian authorities. The horses had been rejected because they had failed to stand the mallein test.

The investigation by the three officials resulted in their ascertaining that the Canadian government will not admit horses either belonging to emigrants or persons who plan to sell the animals, without what is known as the mallein test.

Emigrants reaching the line and not aware of the fact usually find themselves in hard circumstances, as they are held up until the animals are mallein tested and should they react as many of them do, they are condemned and branded on the foot with the brand "E. R." As the settlers cannot take them into Canada they are stranded at the line. They usually dispose of the horses for whatever they can get for them. The horses show no clinical symptoms of glanders and quite a number of unscrupulous dealers in this class of stock have become rather numerous.

Three horses were killed by the officials and sufficient evidence has been secured by State Veterinarian Crewe and Federal Inspector McCauley to point to the guilt of certain dealers. Arrests are probable at an early date The officials do not propose to make Northern North Dakota the dumping ground for glandered horses.

CARIBOU ISOLATED BY BIG DITCH

JERRY SHERWOODS STATE DITCH DITCH ON LOWER ROSEAU CUTS OFF

V. C. Bailey and Wm. Pierce came down from Caribou on Thursday to attend to business at the county seat, says the Hallock News. They report that operations are being pushed rapidly in the big Roseau ditch but lament the fact that the ditch will cut them off from communication to the south and leave them on an island formed by the old Roseau River on the north and the new channel cut on the south of them. The legislature should provide for the building of a bridge or two across the new cut off in the Roseau river.

A Grand Forks gentleman arrived in the city yesterday and has been conferring with the police regarding the issuance of a warrant for certain persons of this city he charges with wrecking his sister-in-law to whom a child was born a few days ago. Last summer the Grand Forks girl stayed in the city for some time and while under the surveillance of the police she was not arrested. The police however were well aware with whom she was staying and have the names for the reference of the gentleman who has been in the city.

The Grand Forks resident returned to that city this morning and will wait until the woman is able to be about when he will bring her to this city and swear out a warrant for the arrest of the persons he alleges to be here.

MRS. SULLIVAN HURT IN ACCIDENT

IS THROWN FROM THE BUGGY WHEN THE TEAM RUNS INTO IT

Yesterday as Ole Norgard a farmer living north of East Grand Forks was driving into East Grand Forks his his horses frightened by an automobile, made a sudden dash to run away. One wheel of the wagon struck the rear of a milk wagon just ahead. Mrs. Edward Sullivan residing on North Third street and J. T. Sullivan who were just driving into the city were thrown violently to the pavement and Mrs. Sullivan had a very narrow escape from being crushed by the heavy farm wagon of Mr. Norgard. She escaped with nothing more serious than a numbre of severe bruises. The run away horses were stopped by Mr. Norgard before any further damage was done except that Mr. Sullivan's load of cream and milk was a total loss.

DEEPENING GRAND MARIAS

STEAM DREDGE STARTED ON WORK NORTH OF E. GRAND FORKS

16 BY 20 FEET BOTTOM WITH 40 FOOT TO DIMENSIONS

From Tuesday's Daily—

The drainage department of the state of Minnesota has on hand a large undertaking in deepening and enlarging the channel of the Grand Marais, some miles to the north and east of East Grand Forks, recently inspected by George A. Ralph state drainage engineer. A steam dredge has been started on the work and will probably be kept busy night and day during the entire season in deepening and widening the channel of this sluggish stream, for a distance of ten or twelve miles. The channel is to be excavated to a depth of sixteen feet with a width of at least twenty feet at the bottom and forty feet at the top. It appears that the county ditches in carrying off the surplus water distributed the sediment along the channel of Marais so that it does not perform satisfactorily its expected service as a natural drainage channel, and the state will endeavor to afford some relief for the farmers of the country affected.

James McIlraith of East Grand Forks Saturday moved the iron bridge across the Marais at a point six miles north of East Grand Forks so that the dredge can get thru. The bridge is a substantial structure 140 feet long, and will have to be taken down piece by piece, piled upon the bank and after the passage of the dredge again put together.

WHY JOHNSON IS TO BE FEARED

REPUBLICANS SEE THAT HE IS A STRONG MAN OF SOUND JUDGMENT

The President, according to the impressions of the latest callers at the White House, views with concern the possibility that Governor Johnson, of Minnesota may defeat Mr. Bryan for the Democratic nomination.

He is said to feel that the nomination of Mr. Johnson might upset all his plans for making Mr. Taft his successor.

The President has doubtless received reminders of the difficulties—well known to him as a historian—under which a political party labors which has had a panic under its administration.

He has also been informed by observers of proved sagacity that if nominated Mr. Johnson is likely to carry at least two states in the Middle West that ordinarily are counted as certainly Republican.

Why does this uneasiness exist? Why is this concern felt? Why does the shadow of the Hon. John A. Johnson cast this chill upon the confidence which felt no doubts that Mr. Taft could and would defeat Mr. Bryan?

Simply because Gov. Johnson has been going about the country of late and making speeches that were not mere echoes of Mr. Bryan's. He has not gone about playing the tin whistle to Mr. Bryan's loud bassoon. He has instead talked some plain American common sense.

We might disagree with some of Mr. Johnson's ideas. Many of us do disagree with some of them. Nevertheless he has impressed all who heard him or read his speeches as a straightforward American man looking at things as they are, trying to see them clearly, trying to think about them straight, and uttering the sober judgment of a practical man trained in the school of experience.

That is why the Hon. John A. Johnson is regarded with uneasiness at the White House.

That is why concern is felt about him that is not felt about Mr. Bryan.

SOO TO EXTEND IN N. BAKOTA

DECISION GRANTING ENTRANCE INTO DULUTH IS OF MUCH IMPORTANCE

ENGINEERS ARE STARTED TO EXTEND A ROUTE SOUTHWEST FROM KENMARE TO PALERMO

From Monday's Daily—

The late supreme court decision granting the right of the Sault Ste. Marie railroad company to build into the city of Duluth on grade level will be the cause of some vast railroad developments in North Dakota and Minnesota within next eighteen months. The decision assures a convenient terminal point in one of the great grain markets and now the project of build- a distinctive grain line from the Miscouri river to Duluth will be carried out. All things were planned pending the decision and immediately engineers were started surveying for a route southwest from Kenmare to terminate the Plaza branch at Palermo and extending to the river to be made finally the main line of the Soo system in North Dakota will later be extended to meet the Flaxton branch on the Montana line. This will give the Soo two parallel lines running northwesterly through the best part of western North Dakota, with branches east and west taking up the tributary.

Minot's first market day sale Saturday was a great success. The sales ran up approximately $6,000. There were several hundred farmers in the city and all were well pleased with the outcome of the sale.

Considering that this was the first market day sale in Minot, the result is most gratifying to the farmers and the merchants, and the permanency of the project is assured.

The next sale will be held June 30. J H. and A. P. Scofield will be in charge of arrangements. Persons wishing to list stuff for sale should communicate with these gentlemen.—Minot Optic.

SAYS LIFE W[illegible] THREATENED

MEMBER OF RED LAKE FALLS BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS WAS NERVOUS

RED LAKE FALLS PEOPLE CLAIM THE WHOLE AFFAIR IS A BLUFF

A special to the Minneapolis Tribune from Red Lake Falls says:

Charges of questionable methods being used in the county seat fight in order to remove the county seat to Thief River Falls are made at Red Lake Falls. A prominent member of the removal committee at the latter city last week went to see Chairman Lindquist of the board of county commissioners who has favored Red Lake Falls, and told him it is alleged, that a plot was on foot at Red Lake Falls to kill Lindquist or put him out of the way because he obstructed the removal of the county seat and that certain tough characters were willing to do the job for money, and advised Lindquist to change his mind or keep away from Thief River Falls as his life was not safe.

He also reported that the offer to kill Lindquist had been made to him personally by a man he knew to be tough. Lindquist immediately made a complaint to a magistrate of the county with the result that the committee man from Thief River Falls was compelled to come into court yesterday to repeat under oath what he had stated.

He utterly failed on the witness stand to identify anyone with the alleged threat or misdoing and his sworn statements under cross examination were so hazy that the people there are convinced that the whole matter is a bluff to frighten the county commissioner.

JOHNSON WILL NOT RUN FOR GOVERNOR

Frank Day Says That Party Must Find Another Standard Bearer. P.M. Ringdahl Of Crookston

Is Mentioned As One Of The Number Who Would Make Good Gubernatorial Timber.

Minneapolis, June 10. — John A. Johnson will not run for governor again. He has made this declaration several times but his official family has not joined in it. Today, for the first time Frank A. Day declared his conviction that the party must seek another standard bearer.

"I cannot imagine any circumstance or conditions," he said "under which Governor Johnson would consent to run for a third term as governor. He would have everything to lose and nothing to gain even tho he could be elected and I believe he could be.

"We have another candidate when the time comes and he will be a winner."

Mr. Day would not make any prediction about the nominee. He has been mentioned himself and others talked of are Judge F. V. Brown and Mayor J. C. Haynes of Minneapolis, Mayor D. W. Lawler and T. D. O'Brien of St. Paul; P. M. Ringdahl of Crookston, and William Gausewitz of Owatonna.

E. A. Nelson of Hallock passed thru the city last evening on the Flyer for the Twin Cities.

"TEN CENT SHEET" CAN'T RUN THE CITY COUNCIL

The calculating request of the Twenty Five Thousand Club for one of the famous free phones presented to the city council at their meeting last evening created all the excitement that was anticipated—and then some

It was Alderman Wright of the 8th ward who championed for a time the cause of the 25,000 club of which he is a member and he said he understood that some of the aldermen who had no use for a phone had one and should give it up.

Then arose Tom Harris, alderman of the Fourth ward. "I have one of those free phones and have repeatedly been called up thruout the day on business relative to street and bridge work of which committee I am the chairman and therefore have as much use for it as any other city department.

Did not Like Criticism

"But there is a great deal of criticism—" said Alderman Wright.

"It makes no difference to me what that ten cent sheet on Second Street says. We expect that of them," referring in this connection to the repeated threats of the Times a local paper, to get even with the city council for past history when the city council refused to jibe with said paper.

Aldermen Hussey and Leahy supported the contention of the chairmen of the different departments of the city's administration that they should have phones. The request of the 25,000 club was laid on the table.

Skidoo Number Attend Fire

Earlier in the evening's meeting the bill of 23 firemen for pay for attending the second fire of the Clark hardware store on Third street May 3rd. The bill was turned down by the finance committee. When the bill was brought before the council by the city clerk, Alderman Leahy rose and turning asked Tom Morris, chief of the fire department, if every one of those 23 men actually attended the fire for which they were asking pay."

The fire chief rose and gave the fire works another touch. "I would say to Mr. Leahy that we call the roll here in the fire hall. The boys worked and they will get their pay for it, too."

"That is not the point," smiled Leahy. "Were these men all actually at the fire."

"I don't know. I call the roll here."

"Well, they were not," continued Leahy. "I was standing at the door of the fire department on the night of that very fire and while I was there a fireman rushed up with his wife and asked the firemen who were returning from the fire, "Where is the fire, boys." He went in later and answered the roll. All the firemen are entitled to more than they receive when they work, but, if they don't work they shouldn't get anything," added the alderman as he sat down.

Ghost Walks

It was near the eleventh hour when the ghost walked. Alderman Leahy had already withdrawn his resignation of a few weeks before from the council and backed himself up for battle. Then came the reading of the petition for the removal of Leahy from the Fifth ward.

The report of the city clerk in his certificate accompanying the petition indicates that there are only eight signers of this petition that are really bona fide citizens of the Fifth ward. They are not included on the poll lists as required by the city charter. The petition was therefore referred back again to the petitioners.

This is probably the end of the fight against Leahy.

Site of the New Bridge

Committee reported at the meeting last night on the proposed bridge into Sampsons addition. The plat of the site was submitted. A committee of Snyder, Wright and Sargent was appointed to determine the price of the balance of Munch's grove which will contain the west approach of the proposed bridge. It is the intention to make a city park out of this.

City health officer Dr. Dampier reported on the city sanitary conditions as being generally in fine shape except between Broadway and Ash St. south of the city hall.

Odds and Ends

The guarantee check of Rasmussen & Co., for sidewalk construction not made was returned.

The citizens on south Main St., to retain their old grade as the present grade is too high.

Petition was granted to gravel Broadway near Stearns and 7th St. from Broadway to Elm street.

The council ordered the removal of the barn of John Darkow in the Second ward.

City Attorney O'Brien informed the council that interest fund should be kept with the city treasurer instead of with the sunking fund and such a change was ordered by the council.

Joe Barrett and J. F. Anaker were granted licenses to sell liquor.

Residents of Jeromes brought up raising of grade for Bridge Street and an ordinance covering such an elevation was given first reading at last night's meeting of the council.

The clerk was ordered to advertise for bids for roof of city hall and for sprinkling the streets of the city.

A light was established at the intersection of Fletcher and Maple streets. The council adjourned until the 26th next.

DROWNED IN RED LAKE

EDWARD MILETTE FELL OFF THE GREAT NORTHERN BRIDGE INTO RIVER

WORKING AT RED LAKE FALLS—BODY WILL BE BROUGHT TONIGHT

From Wednesday's Daily—

Last night during the call for supper Edward J. Milette of Crookston fell from the top of the Great Northern bridge across the Red Lake River at Red Lake Falls and was drowned. His body was recovered at 7:30 from the waters of the Red Lake river.

There was no one with him on the top of the structure when he fell and reason of his fall is not clear, but it is presumed that he missed his footing.

The body will arrive in this city this evening on the Greenbush train. The funeral will be held from the St. Annes Church at 10 o'clock Friday morning, Father Taapin officiating.

The tragic death of the young man who was but 24 years of age has caused widespread sorrow in Crookston. He grew to manhood here and was an honest, steady, progressive young man with a bright future ahead of him in his line of work as a bridge builder, and was steadily climbing toward the top of the ladder.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Milette reside at 408 North Main St., and three sisters, and one brother, Wm. J. survive him. His sisters are Emily and Leah H., who reside at home, and Minnie who is in the Benedictine convent at Duluth and will arrive this evening.

MURDER OR SUICIDE ?

RESIDENTS OF EAST THIRD STREET WERE HORRIBLY SHOCKED

CORPSE DISCOVERED DANGLING FROM A BRANCH OF A TREE

From Monday's Daily—

Either case of murder or suicide occurred in Crookston recently. Ernest Moeckel and others Saturday were horrified to see a corpse dangling from a tree between the Congregational church rectory and the residence of E. Moeckel.

Dangling from a limb half way up the tree was the lifeless body of a robin, hanging by a slender thread which encircled its neck. The case is said to be one of the strangest on record and is absolutely true. A few feet above the dead bird was a half finished nest, and the supposition is that the bird had partly woven the thread in the nest when in some way the thread became looped about its neck and that in the struggle to free itself from the thread the bird was hanged.

The hearts of those who witnessed the tragedy were deeply touched and tho but a little bird it did not pass away unwept. No bird student could be found in the city who ever heard of a similar incident.

The Discovery of Pharaoh's Mummy

THE BEMIDJI PIONEER BOOSTS FRANK JEFFERS

Frank Jeffers who now resides at Red Lake Falls came down this morning from Blackduck where he has spent several days looking after some private business affairs. Mr. Jeffers suffered the loss of both his feet in an accident at Blackduck, last winter, and was confined to the hospital at that place for several weeks, during which time he made many friends by his genial disposition despite great personal suffering. Mr. Jeffers is being urged by his many friends in Red Lake county as a candidate for one of the county offices and is promised that in case he runs there will be no opposition. He deserves all the good things the people of Red Lake county may give him.—Bemidji Pioneer.

COMPLAINING THAT THE VALUATIONS ARE HIGH

Farmers living in this vicinity are making complaint of the big increase in the assessed valuation that assessors are making this year, and claim that values in Red Lake county are about twice as high as in Marshall county. Under instructions of the state tax commission, Red Lake county assessors are assessing everything at 50 per cent of the actual value and in Marshall county the assessors should be doing the same. One farmfrom the town of Norden says that his cows were assessed at $20 each while his neighbor living just north in the town of New Solum, Marshall county, is assessed just half as much—Thief River Falls Press.

SAYS PEOPLE PAY A FANCY PRICE FOR TRASH

Stock foods both medicated and plain, are sold in large quantities, but it is a fact but few who buy and use them know what they are made of. J. P. Jensen of this city, has been working for several months in a factory near St. Paul that is turning out material for the stock food mixers, and what do you suppose it is made of? This factory turns out hundreds of tons monthly of what it calls flax bran It is made from the coarse, woody parts of flax straw, and the heads of chaff. The fibre is turned into twine and other fabrics and the residue is ground up, sifted and bolted and sold as a bulk material for stock food. We had an idea that medicated stook food was made mostly from bran, but now find that they don't use such expensive material but get along with ground flax straw, in which there is as much nuttriment as in sawdust. Jensen informs us there is a big demand for this stuff , and the factory is continually behind in its orders.—Litchfield Independent.

NORMAN COUNTY RYE IS WELL HEADED OUT

We are accustomed to surprises in the way of remarkable vegetation up here in the Red River Valley but we must admit that we were a bit surprised when Lars Aamoth stepped in to our office the latter part of last week with a sample of rye nearly four feet high and well headed out. The sample was taken from a 20-acre field of winter rye owned by Olaus Nordby in Fossum. Such an advanced stage of maturity is quite unusual for t he latter part of May. Judging from the sample it will not be surprising to find the field ready for the binder by the first of next month.—Twin Valley Times.

MOTHER RISKED LIFE TO SAVE CHILDREN

Great Heroism Is Displayed By A Farmer's Wife Residing North Of Argyle, Who Leaped Into River And Rescued Her Drowning Little Ones,

The two little children of Louis Miller, living in French town, just north of Argyle had a narrow escape from drowning on Friday. The elder one of the two was riding the little one of but 2 years of age in a go-cart and had ventured too close to the bank of the river. The cart descended at a rapid rate and both children were precipitated into the river in about five feet of water. Mrs. Miller heard the children scream and running to the river she leaped in and the water being clear she saw the smaller one of the two on the bottom of the river. The little ones were rescued with some difficulty, but it was some time before they could be revived. It was a very close call and Mrs. Miller is to be congratulated on her activity and good fortune in hearing the cries.

PATENT ON GRAIN THRESHER CLEANER

Lars M. Anderson Is Awarded A Patent By Patent Office On A New Grain Cleaner.

Lars M. Anderson, formerly superintendent of the Maplebay Windstacker Company, has been awarded a patent on an invention of his to clean grains while being threshed in the regulation threshing machine. Heretofore it has been necessary to have a separate cleaning and fanning mill for the grain to run thru before it could be turned out clean. This balance will be placed on the top of the thresher and will not take up any more room than occupied by the machine.

DESERTED BY HUSBAND NERVOUS WRECK

MRS. FRANK ROBINSON OF TURTLE RIVER HAS A HARD LOT

A sad case of desertion came to light this morning when Mrs. Frank Robinson and her father, Robert Bowes, arrived in Bemidji from Banon, Ontario.

The Reive (corresponds to our chairman of county commissioners) of Ontario had advised Mr. Bowes to take his daughter to Turtle River and there swear out a warrant for the arrest of Frank Robinson on a charge of non-support and desertion of his wife, thus forcing the county officials to look him up.

Accordingly, they went to County Attorney Funkley at Bemidji and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Frank Robinson.

Elizabeth Bowes was married to Frank Robinson at Turtle River four years ago last August. A baby girl was born to them a year later (and is now being kindly cared for by some people in Bemidji.) Soon after their house burned, and Mr. Robinson put his wife in the county poor house and left her four months.

He then took her out for a short time and last year placed her in the poor house again. After four months he paid the county $15 for her board and took her to the home of her father who lives on a homestead in Ontario. On the 9th of last September he left for the harvest fields in North Dakota. About November 1st he showed up in Turtle River with nearly $200, and spent all of it within a few days. He wrote last to his wife on February 27th and since that time they have heard nothing from him.

Mrs. Robinson is nearly prostrated with grief and nervous hysteria.

PENNED AND PILFERED

There is some good in everyone. Because a person is behind prison bars it does not mean that he is all bad as the following story from the Minneapolis Journal will show:

"Two hungry children and the grieving wife of a prisoner in the Hennepin county jail have brought out the best side of every prisoner in the cells When the three called to tell the jailer of their destitute condition, every man awaiting trial who had anything to contribute helped to relieve the destitute family. The father of three children is in the jail, awaiting trial. His arrest left the family without food or money, and the mother went to the jail where she told Jailer Nels Clausen her story. The younger daughter loked up at the jailer. "I'm hungry," she said. "Ain't had nothin' to eat for two whole days."

A prisoner in his cell overheard the remark, called a trusty, and the relief fund was started.

"Here's my last quarter," he said. "Show it to the other prisoners and make them shell out."

From cell to cell passed the trusty repeating the story over and over again. Pickpockets, thieves, shoplifters, men convicted of, or awaiting trial for all manner of crimes—every one brought out his contribution. When the trusty finished his rounds his hand held, mostly in pennies, nickels and dimes, $4.60, which he passed over to the wife. Matron Woodbun took charge of the mother and children a little later and furnished them with the first solid meal they had eaten in ten days.'

No more will the merry minstrel band torture the strains of "Way Down South in Dixie" from the wheezy horns in front of the theatres in Duluth.

No more will a trombone and a bass drum do violence to the strains of "The Good Old Summer Time" as an advertisement for a summer excursion or a dance at the Armory.

No more will the merry circus parade wend its way thru town to the strains of "Cheer, Cheer, the Gang's All Here."

Capt. A. G. Fiskett as acting chief of the police department issued an order prohibiting band music on the streets except in cases of funerals or religious services.

Music may have charms for savages but for civilized beings the captain thinks the quality of the music extracted by longwinded bandsmen from brass instruments isn't edifying nor entertaining so it must be hushed.

The blow is aimed at the parading of bands for advertising purposes. Circus and minstrel parades will come under the ban, and in the future, the band wagon will be as silent as the wildcat's cage. The order doesn't say anything about steam calliopes, so they probably do not come under the order.

The following wonderfully worded advertisement appears in the last issue of the Thief River Falls News:

"The ladies new store across the street west from the Golden Rule. Four thousand dollars in all season's garments, underwear, dress-cloths by the yard, millinery, notions, etc. The owner, Mr. A. M. Graves, former superintendent of Indian schools and owner of 800 acres 15 miles west of this city having his right arm and elbow broken in four places and having bought his home here deserves his share of trade."

Now while we wish Mr. Graves well and are very sorry that he broke his elbow, on the other hand any man who owns 800 acres of land in the Red River Valley we believe to be pretty well hooked up. His bumped elbow will soon be all right and he can live high the rest of his life if he only sells a pair of socks or a paper of pins a week in his new store.

Under the caption "Democratic Institutions visited," "A. J. R." in the Minneapolis Journal has the following comment to make regarding the heavy weight editor of western Polk:

Editor W. R. Stoughton, the heavy weight of the Valley View, of East Grand Forks, visited St. Paul as a delegate to the democratic state convention. His description of the trip as it appears in the paper is a masterpiece, dealing as it does with convention scenes and with those great democratic institutions, Dick O'Connor, the brewery and the pen at Stillwater upon all of which our civilization is founded."

There seems to have been some trouble at Stephen over the burial of the man that was killed on the railroad right-of-way last week. The accident happened on Wednesday and on Saturday evening the body was still unburied. The question was over the expense of burial. Unless a man pays for his funeral in advance no can never feel quite sure of burial now days.

IN THE PROSECUTIONS OF THE WISCONSIN GRAIN AND STOCK COMPANY OFFICERS

SCORES IN THIS SECTION WERE NIPPED AS RESULT OF OPERATIONS

From Saturday's Daily—

The federal grand jury at St. Paul made its final report to Judge Morris yesterday in the United States circuit court and was discharged. As there are several hundred people here and in this vicinity tied up in the concern it will be read with interest that in addition to that indictments were found against L. A. Wood, George A. Wood and F. B. Wood who are charged with conspiracy to use the mails for fraudulent purposes. Charges of using the mails to defraud are contained in indictments against George A. Wood, Paul Foss, A. W. Brown, Bruce Tuttle, Martin P. Quigley and Clinton Phelps, all of whom, with the exception of Wood, admit having been connected in some manner with the Wisconsin Grain & Stock Company. Charles T. Kelly who was indicted last fall, is not indicted this time. Kelly and Stewart, both testified before the grand jury this week. Quigley who was cashier of the company is charged with perjury in an indictment, which was returned on Wednesday. This charge grows out of testimony given by Quigley at the trial last winter, L. C. Wood, father of three of the defendants is not indicted this time. The defendants will be arraigned before Judge Marris tomorrow to plead to the indictment.

Allegations of Government

It is charged that the defendants as officers of the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company operated at Superior, Wis., held themselves out as commission dealers in stocks and grains and in that way obtained money from would-be customers which they converted to their own use.

This is the second batch of indictments found against these defendants The first indictment charging conspiracy and using the mails to defraud, were returned last October. The trial began before Judge Morris in December and after continuing over a month came to a sensational end when charges were made against Sherman Smith a prominent Minneapolis politician and two of the jurors who were trying the case. The charges against the jurors were dismissed but Smith was adjudged in contempt by Judge Morris who convicted him of making improper overtures to George Hammond, of Nelson, B. C., Attorney C. C. Haupt, counsel for the government agreed that it would be unwise to go on with the case in view of the turn affairs had taken. New complaints making the same charges were immediately made from which the second indictments resulted.

TROUBLE ON WILD RICE

ROADBED OF THE NORTHERN PACIFIC CAUSING TROUBLE NEAR HEIBERG

SINKS ABOUT AN INCH EVERY TIME A TRAIN PASSES ALONG RIVER BANK

From Saturday's Daily—

The N. P. track has been the source of much concern to Section Foreman Brevik of Twin Valley for the past ten days. At a bend of the Wild Rice River sweeping well up to the bluffs on the south side of the valley near Heiberg the railway track runs directly along the steep bank of the river and during a season of much rain in 1905 the track came near slipping bodily into the stream.

By driving piles on the side of the track next the river and by considerable filling the track was again raised to grade where it remained permanently until a week ago when Mr. Brevik noted that it was again sinking. Since that time he has been camped right on the spot both night and day.

Every time a train passes he finds it necessary to raise the track nearly an inch. The place is one of danger and it is hoped that the railway company may find a remedy for the slipping in the near future. An accident at that place would seem certain of being a serious one.

He has been a resident of the county for 29 years, and has been a resident of Crookston for the past 15 years, and during all that time he has been a steadfast republican, never faltering when the populistic wave struck Polk County and at that time in the precinct where he resided he, with his father and brother were the only republicans left for several years.

Mr. Sandberg is well educated, and has held positions of trust with Mossefin and Lindell and N. S. Gervais in the clothing business in the early days and later was with the Ruettell Clothing company. For the past year he has been a commercial traveller.

There is no question as to his ability, and he stands high in the estimation of his friends for honesty, integrity and business ability and there is no question as to the service Polk county would receive from Mr. Sandberg as county auditor.

A Timely Investigation

No doubt the telegraph trust will be very much put out about it and inclined to heap bitter reproach upon the "trust" senators who should have been more wide awake, but in some way Senator LaFollette induced the senate to adopt a resolution directing the department of commerce and labor to make an investigation into the affairs of all the interstate telegraph and telephone companies says the Duluth Herald. The investigation is to cover their methods of handling the public's business and the facts as to wages and working hours of telegraph ersr, telephone operators and other employes of these public service corporations which are handling business that the government ought to be handling for the people Also there must be a statement of the receipts of such companies for the past five years.

Senator La Follette says that it is a matter of common knowledge that telegraph operators are poorly paid and his main object is to find out if the companies could not afford to give better wages than they do.

There can't be the slightest doubt about the truth of his proposition as to the pay of telegraphers. Also, there is no doubt that the telegraph companies make a good deal of money It would not be surprising indeed, if the investigation developed the facts that the telegraph companies make a good deal of money. It would not be surprising, indeed, if the investigation developed the facts that the telegraph companies could pay their men better, give better service and charge lower prices than they do and still make fair dividends upon the value of their properties.

The recent telegraphers' strike developed considerable information about the pay of telegraphers. It was shown that they are paid very little in view of the importance of their work and the amount of it they do. The companies retorted to this that it does not take very much work to learn telegraphy and that it is always easy to fill places at the going rate. The strike was a failure and it could hardly have been otherwise. The men struck without system and without any concerted action and they were utterly unprepared to carry on a prolonged fight against corporations so well supplied with funds as the telegraph companies. It became a question of endurance, and there could have been but one outcome of such an unequal contest.

Commercial telegraphers continually complain of their treatment, and the investigation that is to be made is timely. It will provide the public with full knowledge of the facts, and that knowledge will enable the public to know where its sympathies belong; it may even point the way to improve the situation. Less is heard of the grievances of telephone employes,, but it is just as well that the investigation includes them, in case there should be trouble later between them and their employers

The investigation cannot fail to be of real value and therefore it is all the more astonishing that Senator La Follette was able to slip the resolution providing for it thru the senate.

Jurymen Are Underpaid

Judge Kenesaw M. Landis of Standard Oil fame, has started another lively discussion as a result of an attack he recently made on congress in regard to the jury system. The remarks which caused the trouble were made in the course of a talk to a federal grand jury, and were not reported at the time, but later some congressmen who were in Chicago in connection with the national convention heard of the affair and now it is being discussed very liberally, to the annoyance of the various campaign managers, who are trying to hold down the political lid until after the convention.

The judge was trying to instil a little wholesome patriotism into the jury "It is obvious," he said, "that you gentlemen will be insufficiently paid for your expenses your time and your worry. The fees allowed are not enough, but I desire to relieve myself of blame for that. I am not to blame. Congress is to blame for giving you only three dollars a day out of which to pay your expenses, besides remunerating yourselves for your trouble. However, you have each of you the satisfaction of performing a duty as a public officer at a financial sacrifice of your own personal liberty."

The present pay of jurymen was fixed at a time when salaries and the cost of living were much lower and has remained stationary during all the years in which the pay of regular government employees has been very materially increased. Attention has been called to the injustice from time to time, but until now no serious steps have been taken to remedy it.

.:. POLITICS .:.

Princeton Union: "If the enemies of J. F. Jacobson think they can force him into talking for their benefit they are mistaken. Mr. Jacobson cannot be driven."

We are obliged to differ with Mr. Dunn in regard to his plan of campaign for Mr. Jacobson. The great strength and power of the gentleman from Lac qui Parle in the past has been because he was a talking and a fighting man. The people could see him and hear him and they flocked around his standard and backed him up in his fights. We have just as much confidence in him as ever but a strange condition has arisen. The men and interests which he has always fought are now shouting loudly for him. Their interests have not changed. We don't believe Mr. Jacobson's views have changed. It is therefore hard for many to understand why those who have been the means of defeating him in the past when the great mass of people were behind him demanding his leadership are for him so strongly and loudly now. The most rational explanation is that they hope to kill off Young with Jacobson and then slaughter Jacobson thus throwing into the dump two men who have served the people well. The men who betrayed and beat Jacobson before are the loudest in their support of him now. We must confess that we would like to hear the "alarm clock" which has always been so effective and faithful in the past go off just a few times just to let the people know that the thing is working.—Fergus Falls Journal.

The Minneapolis Journal is authority for the statement that if Mr. Jacobson is elected governor Hon R. C. Dunn, who, it says "is assuming all the perogatives of campaign manager" will occupy a prominent position at the State capitol, probably on the board of tax commissioners. It was assumed when provision was made for this body that it would be permanent and its composition was made up with that end in view. The term of Prof. McVey is the first to expire, and if the Journal's information is correct Mr. Dunn will be given his position.—Northfield News And if this all came true the position would go to a very capable man.

The Fertile Journal is responsible for the statement that A. F. Cronquist of Erskine is being urged to file for the republican nomination for representative. We have heard of no such move on the part of Mr. Cronquist or his friends and think that at best it would be ill-advised at this time. With Holton and Saugstad in the running it is hardly possible that such a move could prove a success and it might prove disastrous. Personally we esteem Mr. Cronquist highly and have aught but the best of wishes for his political aspirations and future but we consider the coming campaign a very unfavorable one for the launching of unseasoned legislative timber—McIntosh Times.

STATE PRESS

Disregard for Law

It is generally admitted that in this land there is a deplorable disregard for the law. This is seen in the reluctance and often times positive refusal of some official to enforce laws which they have sworn to enforce; in the readiness with which many people violate law, and in the facilities too often afforded law breaakers to escape with a nominal punishment or with no punishment at all. It would be instructive to discover, if it were possible, to what extent this disregard for law is attributable to the lax discipline so frequently seen in American homes. It is evident that when parental authority is not firmly and wisely exercised there will be but little respect for parents' wishes and positions. The home is the foundation of the state. If, therefor discipline and authority are lacking in the home its evil effects are bound to extend to the state also. As the interests of the home and the state are so interwoven it is clear that the remedy for lawlessness is to be found mainly in a more wholesome exercise of parental power and a corresponding obedience and honor on the part of the children. —Badger Herald-Rustler.

Welcome to Him

The Crookston Times wants M. W. Savage for governor. Let the Times have him, they are welcome.—Badger Herald-Rustler.

Mayor In Fact

D. W. Lawler on the occasion of his installation as mayor of St. Paul Monday delivered a characteristically felicitous address in which was foreshadowed both the disposition to exercise to the full the powers with which he is invested by law and to exercise them in the public interest. ..In St. Paul the message is taken to mean that Mr. Lawler intends to be mayor in fact as well as in name, and that he will prove untractable if any attempt is made to fasten a collar on him. Anyway he has shown a happy faculty in saying the right thing in the right way at the right time, and if he follows this up by doing what he says he will do St. Paul will have reason to congratulate itself on his election.—Northfield News.

Name Your Farms

It has been frequently suggested and the suggestion is a good one, for every farmer to place his name and the name of his farm on his road gate or mail box. Not only would persons driving to the place more easily find it, but it would add more pleasure and interest to people driving from place to place, this last result would have special effort with regard to well kept and pretty houses. An observing person will seldom pass a beautiful farm without desiring to know who is the enterprising owner.—Gary Graphic.

GOOD NEWS

Many Crookston Readers Have Heard It and Profited Thereby.

'Good news travels fast," and the thousands of bad back sufferers in Crookston are glad to learn that prompt relief is witin their reach. Many a lame, weak and aching back is bad no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Our citizens are telling the good news of their experience with the Old Quaker Remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

Joseph Gundlach, cigar maker, living at 319 Broadway, N. Crookston, Minn., says: "I endorse Doan's Kidney Pills as a sure cure for kidney trouble. For a considerable time I suffered from pains in my back and through the loins. To this was added a weakness of the kidneys. I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and resolved to try them, getting a box at Wallace's drug store. They proved to be just what my case needed and soon the backache was eradicated and the kidney secretions were regular and normal. I advise any sufferer from these troubles to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

TWO DROWN IN RICE

Attempted to Rescue a Woman When Thrown Into the Water.

Brainerd, Minn., June 10.—August Schultz and David W. Wayt were drowned in Rice lake. Schultz had gone into the water to rescue Mrs. G. Y. Woerner, who fell from a steamboat. The railing gave way with the men trying to help Schultz aboard. Several fell in and Schultz and Wayt were drowned.

The boat carried no life preservers or row boats, and according to reports was unlicensed. It had not been in commission, but went across the lake for a picnic party caught in the rain.

TANNERY IS BURNED.

Part of Insurance Had Been Allowed to Lapse and Loss Is Heavy.

Owatonna, Minn., June 10. — The sheepskin tannery operated by Mr. Adolph Uber and one of the smaller but prosperous industries of this place was practically destroyed by fire. The loss is a heavy one, as a policy for $2,000 was allowed to lapse but a week ago. The total insurance amounted to but $2,500, while the building and contents were valued at $10,000. The cause of the fire is a mystery. The building will be rebuilt.

MAKES HOBOES PULL WEEDS.

Mayor Fights Dandelion Pest by Putting "Vag" Prisoners at Work.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, June 10. — The unique spectacle of a battle between the hobo and the dandelion has been presented in this city the past few weeks as a result of Mayor Bryson's crusade against the weed pest. In hope of ridding the parks and streets of the dandelions he decreed that all bums or hoboes who were under fine should work out those fines under police guard by digging dandelion roots. As a result there has been a splendid harvest of the weeds.

Saving money is very useful for the fellow who gets it away from you.

BAD FIRE GUTTED A BADGER RESIDENCE

Last Wednesday evening about 10 o'clock members of H. C. Reed's family at Badger discovered fire in an inner room where two incubators were sitting. All the members of the family were in a room some distance off from where the fire originated except the hired man who was asleep upstairs. Some difficulty was experienced in arousing him. When awake and realizing his peril he grabbed his clothes and made a dash for the stairway which by this time was enveloped in flames. He escaped with no damage to his person except a singeing of his hair. About this time the neighbors were aroused and a general fire alarm rung. The fire department responded promptly as usual. By the time the fire apparatus arrived the whole house appeared to be doomed the fire having spread very rapidly owing to the inflammable material on the walls. But fortunately the fire was soon gotten under control and in about an hour was all put out. The main building was completely gutted as was the kitchen in the addition. Mr. Reed saved the piano and the organ and a few articles of clothing. What clothing and bedding was not destroyed by fire was damaged by smoke and water and the loss is considerable. Mr. Reed carried no insurance on this building or on household effects. The family now live in another building owned by Mr. Reed and which has been occupied by tenants.

MANY LAND BUYERS ON THE RESERVATION

The Review editor returned last night, from a several days' trip to the reservation. Quite a number of land buyers are coming in there every day now, in spite of the fact that very little advertising of the country is yet being done. The biggest part of the land held by spectators is not on the market yet, for the reason that the owners expect the price to go to a much higher level. The highest price paid so far is $18.50 for wild land two miles from the village and without improvements, and this was brought by a resident there and was a cash deal. $15 per acre seems to be about the standard price at present for fairly good land within five miles. This is an advance of about fifty percent since last year.—Hendrum Review.

PIONEER OF ROSEAU COUNTY PASSES AWAY

The death of Mrs. Gudrun Olafson occurred at the residence of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Oie, on Monday morning, May 25 1908. The deceased was born in Iceland and had she lived would have been 83 years old July 4th.

It was 27 years ago that Mrs. Olafson and her husband and children left Iceland and settled in Winnipeg. Later the family moved to Pembina County where her husband, Olafur Olafson died in 1896 since which time the deceased has lived with her daughter, Mrs. O. E. Oie, in Dieter and in Roseau, having been an invalid for several years. Surviving the death of this kindly old lady are three children, Mrs. Ole E. Oie of Roseau, Olafus Olafson of Iceland, and Grimur Olafson of Ross.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Norwegian church and was attended by a large number of friends of the family and the departed. Rev. Odeland preached the funeral sermon. The interment occurred in the Ridge cemetery west of town.—Roseau Times.

FARM SOLD FOR $45 PER ACRE FLAT

Thos. Semple has bought J. E. Johnson's farm, in Elm River a mile west of Hendrum consisting of 203 acres at $45 per acre. This makes another high mark for land prices in this neighborhood, but it is undoubtedly worth it. Mr. Semple is to take possession at once. We do not know what Joe's plans are, but he will probably seek employment in the banking business in which he was engaged some years ago.—Hendrum Review.

HENDRUM FARMER WILL SPRAY FIELDS

Henry Marsden near Hendrum has ordered a sprayer and 4,000 pounds of sulphate of iron to be used in sprinkling the fields to kill mustard, dandelion and other weeds of that kind. It has proven very successful in the tests and there is no reason why it should not be equally effective in practice.

Men would be just wild to pay their taxes if it was against the law.

It developed during the visit that it will not be possible to proceed under the old plans for the old advertisement, but that advertising for bids must be made again. This will be done, beginning about July 1, and it is planned to open bids and award the contract about Aug. 5, which will enable the work of construction to be taken up this year.

This morning shortly before six o'clock a Great Northern west bound freight train was wrecked just east of McIntosh and 10 cars of rails scattered in all directions. The track was torn up for twelve rail lengths and the main line blocked for about ten hours. Saturday afternoon the passengers on the St. Vincent train south bound, were treated to a novel sight just north of Shirley. Two magnificent specimens of moose were lying down and the engine crew saw them leap to their feet and head for the west as the train approached. They ran like the wind for about 80 rods and then turned around and faced the train, watching it as long as they could be seen by the passengers.

In the early days deer were commonly seen headed west for the Red river and occasionally a moose was seen, but of late years a moose is very rarely seen on the prairies.

PEDESTAL FOR STATUE

FRANK HAMEL RETURNS FROM LAYING PEDESTAL AT FARGO

FOR STATUE OF HENRIK WERGELAND PRESENT BY NORWAY KING

From Wednesday's Daily—

Manager Frank R. Hamel of the Northwestern Marble Works returned this morning from Fargo where he has been for the past three days supervising the laying of a pedestal for the bronze statue of Henrik Wergeland the great patriot and poet of Norway, presented by King Haakon of Norway to the Norwegians of the United States.

Notwithstanding that many cities competed in the bids for the contract to lay the immense pedestal the Crookston firm secured it. The blocks were made up here and shipped to the North Dakota metropolis. The pedestal exactly matches the bronze statue and unbiased comment at Fargo speaks of the rapidity and excellence with which the pedestal was mounted and the matchless beauty of its appearance.

ALLEGED FIRE BUG IS UNDER ARREST

ANTON NELSON WHO IS CHARGED WITH SETTING FIRE TO FOXHOLM SALOON NABBED AT FERGUS FALLS AND TAKEN TO BRECKENRIDGE—SAYS HE CAN PROVE AN ALIBI AND WILL SUMMON THREE WITNESSES TO PROVE HE WAS IN FERGUS WHEN THE FIRE OCCURRED

Anton Nelson who was arrested in Fergus Falls Wednesday on charge of setting fire to the Zuehlsdorf saloon building in Foxhome was taken to Breckenridge by Chief Burton on the afternoon train. The building is understood to have been insured for $1,800. Mr. Nelson claims he can prove an alibi and gave Mr. Burton the names of three witnesses who could testify that he was in Fergus Falls at 9 o'clock on the evening of the fire requesting him to ask them to attend his hearing. The Foxhome Hustler gives the particulars of the fire as follows:

'About 2 o'clock yesterday morning the Zuehlsdorf building in which the saloon has been was seen to be afire but the boys got ont promptly when the alarm was sounded and soon had the fire under control. The damage will amount to about $200. There are a number of suspicious looking things about the affair. There was no one in the building at the time the fire was discovered but it was learned just after the fire was extinguished that someone was seen to leave the barn back of the building with a horse and buggy at about the time the fire alarm was sounded. A search was made and tracks in the soft mud showed that a horse hitched to a buggy had been driven in from the east and then driven back along the railroad track toward Fergus Falls. The chief of police at Fergus was notified and several men took the handcar and went to French, but did not overtake anyone. A search was made of the house and it was found that in the garret over the kitchen a pile of rags had been saturated with kerosene and set on fire. Another pile of saturated rags were found in the garret upstairs but they had not been set on fire. The principal fire was in a partition in about the center of the house where it is supposed a lot of rags were piled and saturated with kerosene. Several quart bottles of kerosene were found in different places about the building. The plans were well laid to burn the building and had the fire not been discovered just when it was they probably would have been carried out."

GRAND SPORT AHEAD FOR TRUE SPORTSMEN

The prospects for the hunting of big game in the Northwest was never brighter than at present. Minnesota which almost was the extermination of deer and caribou, on account of the reckless methods of hunters, has been invaded by several herds of these animals who are trekking into the forest districts of the north from Canada. Owing to the provisions of the new game laws, which are being stringently enforced these herds will be given immunity from molestation, so that in a few years time Minnesota will be once more the home of the deer and the caribou.

The same desire which prevails in Minnesota for the protection of wild animals also has spread to Montana. In view of the fact that the range districts are being rapidly settled up in that state arrangements are being made to secure preserves for hunters. This news will be gladly received by all lovers of the chase. In this direction the Western Montana Sportmen's club of which there are many ardent supporters in Minnesota are doing a great work.

The work will no doubt be distasteful to the class of people who think that they have a right to hunt how they like, where they like, and when they like. But if animals for the chase are to be preserved, they will have to be located and protected. Game laws, and game regulations are peculiarly distasteful to the Anglo-Saxon mind. They were imposed on England by William the Conqueror who preserved the deer and other animals of the chase in royal domains and made hunting of them without license a capital offence. These laws are abhorrent in England today, but the fact remains that, without them, there would not be a bird flying in the air or any animal running on the ground that affords a pretext for sport in the United Kingdom.

The sale and removal to Canada of the Publo-Allard herd of bison was greatly regretted in the Northwest and the efforts to turn the Flathead reservation into a range and restock it with these aimals is being pushed to the front, but, from the latest information the whole scheme is likely to fall thru unless the government is willing to secure and fence the land. It is not generally known that a herd of the aboriginal cattle of the British Isles is still carefully preserved in an absolutely wild state. They are an object of curiosity to all lovers of wild animals and experiments have recently been made in crossing them with the American bison. The results have not been known.

YOUNG PHEASANTS IN NORTH DAKOTA

W. H. Williams the taxidermist, sent to Oregon for a sitting of fifteen Chinese Pheasants' eggs. He got them from a man who makes a business of raising these birds, and the fifteen eggs were laid on the same day. Mr. Provost has a quiet steady old hen which will set on anything from door knobs to marbles if her attention is properly attracted. She took kindly to the small pheasant eggs and for twenty-four days covered them diligently and carefully. On Sunday morning, May 31 she again resumed her place in society, followed by 12 pretty little pheasants. They are as handsome as a joy hat in a millinery store window and as active as a house fly with the sugar bowl uncovered.—Walsh County Record.

About 500 eggs will be set in Polk County this summer and hens are already covering some of them.

SAYS SLEEP IS A HABIT

EDISON CONDUCTS TEST LIMITING MEN TO FOUR HOURS SLUMBER

NOTED INVENTOR SAYS HIS EXPERIMENTS PROVE THIS TO BE A FACT

After all, sleep is only a habit, there is nothing to prove that men really need it," Thomas A. Edison said a few days ago in New York. "Men first learned to sleep because when darkness came they had nothing else to do. Thru the ages their descendants, doing likewise, made sleep a custom—a matter of course. But if men had always lived in a land of perpetual light and sunshine, I don't suppose we would sleep at all."

The inventor backed up the idea by telling of a practical test. It was not his own ability to live with little sleep As is well known, Mr. Edison limits himself to four or five hours' sleep in the twenty-four. Nor was it the case of his wife, which he mentioned incidentally. Mrs. Edison, he said, sleeps only five hours in a night, and the habit seems to agree with her. The test he described involved nearly one hundred men of average physique in the laboratory.

"The test was made," Mr. Edison said, "while I was experimenting with my assistants at Menlo Park. I limited each man to four hours' sleep in the twenty-four. They kept it up for two years. It did not seem to hurt them."

"Were they aided by special diet or treatment to make up for the loss of sleep?" was asked.

'No, except there were four meals a day, instead of three. We had breakfast dinner and supper in the daytime, as usual, and an extra supper at midnight. There was nothing peculiar about the food. The meal consisted of the meats, vegetables, bread and the rest that ordinary people eat."

CARIBOU HEAD FOR LAKES

GAME WARDENS ARE INSTRUCTED TO GUARD LARGE MIGRATING DROVES

INDIANS WERE DISPOSED TO SLAUGHTER THE INCOMING GAME

The local game wardens of the counties drained by the streams running into the Red Lakes and into the Rainy river have received instructions to guard carefully the large droves of caribou that are moving southeast across the Roseau river in Northern Minnesota and are, apparently, heading for the heavy woods lying around the lakes named above.

Red Lake Indians learned of this movement in the early summer or spring and at once began their usual tactics of indiscriminate slaughter. when the wardens put a stop to it, but not until they succeeded in cleaning out three droves. The caribou are not alarmed at the presence of settler's shacks that they have come across in their travels, and they have a definite route that nothing will cause them to deviate from. If they can be protected from the poachers and Indians for a few years as well as the moose have been they soon will again fill their old haunts. At one time not long ago they were as common in the wilds of Northern Minnesota as are the deer now. This was their habitat and exclusive feeding ground.

Friendship may have the true ring but the ring of courtship is more expensive.

GRAND JURY ADJOURNS

RETURNS A BATCH OF INDICTMENTS AND CONCLUDES ITS LABORS

REPORTS SOME MUCH NEEDED IMPROVEMENTS AT COUNTY JAIL

From Thursday's Daily—

The grand jury returned eight indictments this morning and adjourned this afternoon. Four were on counts against E. A. Dunham, charged with uttering forged instruments. One each against William Webber, Carl Schuler and Robert Johnson, James Murphy and Albert Johnson.

At the time of making their report on these indictments the grand jury confronted Judge Watts with a fire of hypothetical questions on which the jurymen had been divided, foreman J. W. Wheeler being the spokesman.

The grand jury posed in the grand jury room yesterday and today while Louis Gonyea, Jr., took their picture.

Grand Jury Reports

Before being officially discharged by Judge Watts, who thanked them for their service, the grand jury submitted the official report signed by J. W. Wheeler foreman, and J. E. O'Brien clerk.

The report resites that all matters brought before the jury had been disposed of, and the court house, jail and public grounds had been visited and found neat, tidy and in good condition with the following exceptions:

The roof of the jail residence leaks and should be repaired at once. The jail bathtubs are unsanitary and should be replaced immediately. Each cell in the jail should be provided with a separate toilet in order that the present unsanitary conditions may be over come.

The accommodations for female and boy prisoners are inadequate and provision should be made to correct this condition forthwith with the end in view that female prisoners be kept apart from jailor's quarters and boys apart from men prisoners.

Eight parties appeared before Judge Watts in the district court room this morning at eleven o'clock and all pled "not guilty" to the indictments except E. A. Dunham who entered no plea.

Those pleading not guilty are Carl Schuler, Robert Johnson, Albert Johnson, William Murphy and William Webber.

W. P. Murphy was appointed attorney for Dunham and E. D. Clough for Albert Johnson by Judge Watts.

No definite action was taken in any cases today to a late hour.

AL KITTSON'S BODY FOUND

MISSING MAN WAS DROWNED WITH NORTH HIS COMPANION

BODY POSITIVELY IDENTIFIED AS SON OF COMMODORE KITTSON

From Thursday's Daily—

Cass Lake, Minn., June 4—The body of Alex Kittson was found by an Indian near Star island late yesterday afternoon. Kittson and Joe North embarked on the lake five weeks ago and North's body was found three weeks later. Kittson had claimed to be a son of Commodore Kittson, but the relationship is denied by the commodore's descendants. He had lived around here about twenty years. Sportsmen of the community, as a token of love for a friend, subscribed a sum of money to give him a proper burial. Kittson left an Indian wife.

A well known resident of Cass Lake who arrived here this morning viewed the body and said the dead man was the son of Commodore Kittson.

IRON NEAR NIELSVILLE

ANALYSIS OF ORE FOUND IN ARTESIAN WELL BEING SUNK NEAR THAT PLACE

SHOWS THAT ORE OF HIGH GRADE IS LOCATED 240 FEET DOWN—SURFACE ORE

From Friday's Daily—

The people in the vicinity of Neilsville are greatly excited over the discovery of iron ore north of that place Hans Berg of Climax a well digger in sinking a shaft for an artesian well when down a distance of 240 feet he struck something his drill would not penetrate. After working vainly for a few days samples were taken from the end of the drill and onwarded to the North Dakota Agricultural College for analysis and it was pronounced a high grade of iron ore.

Parties from Fargo have secured options on some of the land very quietly and will begin the sinking of shafts at once in several localities in the hope of finding ore nearer the surface as it would cost a fortune to mine the ore at the depth it was found by Mr. Berg.

Mr. Berg was in Crookston yesterday and several parties from here will at once investigate and secure options on land in the vicinity of where the ore was struck.

FOLLOW UP VICTORY

ATTENTION TO NET FISHING BY STATE GAME AND FISH COMMISSION

INTENDS TO WIPE OUT PRACTICE OF ILLEGAL FISH CATCHING

From Friday's Daily—

The recent victory obtained by the State Game and Fish commission is obtaining a favorite judgment wherein fish that were being shipped were seized, because they had been netted has caused considerable satisfaction to the commission; and Carlos Avery says of the case and the stand the commission will hereafter take:

'The outcome of this case is important for the reason that it will have a bearing upon the future policy of the commission," said Mr. Avery. "For years there has been illegal fishing thruout the northern part of the state largely by Indians who use nets, and sell their catch to local dealers. An average of a ton a day of fish has been shipped to Minneapolis.

"It is practically impossible to get at the trouble by arresting the fishermen and so we have adopted the course of seizing the fish. Of course we must be certain that the fish so seized were caught with nets.

"We propose to follow up this victory in the court, for if net fishing is not stopped the lakes will be depleted They cannot stand the drain to which they have been subjected."

GREAT WORK IS DONE BY SPLIT LOG DRAG

Sam Olson drove out to his farm in Hegne and Anthony Sunday and had occasion to view some work done by the split log drag. Anton Holm had been out with the drag and covered a three mile stretch of road and Chas. Blagey, who is on the Helland farm, had also done some work with the split log drag. In both plaaces the road was in excellent condition while the balance of the road was rough and badly cut up. The supervisor of every township should provide a number of these drags for the farmers. The split log is an efficient and easy method of working the road.—Norman County Herald.

Clams' Eggs.

The clam's eggs are carried by the mother on her gills. When there are fish in the water with them the mother clams discharge the eggs which soon hatch, but if there are no fish they carry the eggs until they decay. The reason of this strange behavior is this: When the eggs are set free in the water they soon hatch and the little ones swim about until they find some fish to which to attach themselves. They live for a time on the mucus of the fish and then drop off, sink to the bottom and form burrows for themselves. This curious semiparasitic life is no doubt a reversion to the habit of some ancient ancestor.

HE DID NOT HAVE $1000

WELL KNOWN RED LAKE COUNTY FARMER WAS A LITTLE SHORT

AS A RESULT HE IS NOW LIVING HAPPILY ON HIS FARM IN NORDEN

From Friday's Daily—

Halvord Strandvold a well known farmer living in the town of Norden Red Lake Falls is congratulating himself upon the fact that he did not have $1,000 in cash a short time ago. Halvord has long wanted a wife to share his joys and sorrows and seeing the advertisement of Mrs. Gunnes, the La Porte, Indiana, woman that murdered so many of her husbands, he commenced to correspond with her. A few love letters were exchanged and Mrs. Gunnes made the usual demand that he come to LaPorte and bring with his $1,000 in cash. Halvor did not have the cash, he had a good farm in the town of Norden worth much more than $1,000, but this would not do. At the time Halvor greatly regretted the fact that he did not have the $1,000 in cash, but since he has read of the number the LaPorte woman murdered he is glad that he did not have that amount.

BABY TORTURED FOR 6 MONTHS

By Terrible Itching Eczema—Face and Head a Solid Sore—Spread to His Hand and Legs—Would Scratch Until He Bled—Tiny Sufferer Immediately Relieved and

ENTIRELY CURED IN 2 MONTHS BY CUTICURA

"When my son Walter was three weeks old, eczema appeared on his face. We did not know what it was so went to a doctor who treated him for three months. Then he was so bad that his face and head were nothing but one sore and his ears looked as if they were going to fall off, so we tried another doctor. He said he could cure him and we doctored there four months, the baby never getting any better. His hand and legs then had big sores on them and as for his sleeping, we could not think of it, the poor little fellow suffered so terribly. First I tied his hands to the crib to keep him from scratching, but when it got so bad I tied him in a shawl or he would scratch himself all bloody. When he was seven months old we tried a set of the Cuticura Remedies. The first application of Cuticura let him sleep and rest well, in one week the sores were gone but it stayed red and sometimes it would itch so we used Cuticura for two months, then he had a clear and white face. Now he is two years and seven months old and has never had eczema again. I hope this letter will help some who are suffering from skin disease. Every mother who has a baby suffering with skin disease should just try Cuticura; there is nothing better. Mrs. Louis Beck, R. F. D. 3, San Antonio, Tex., Apr. 15, '07."

ADOPT A GREAT SLOGAN

"FOSSTON THE DAIRY CENTER" ADOPTED BY THRIVING EAST LINE CITY

TONS OF BUTTER ARE BEING SHIPPED THIS SUMMER—PASTURAGE FINE

From Saturday's Daily—

Fosston, a city on the Great Northern 50 miles east of Crookston, has adopted a slogan with more appropriateness than most of the northwestern cities. Secretary Brager of the Citizens League of that city announces "Fosston, the Dairy Center." No less than two car loads of butter have been shipped from that community of but little over one thousand inhabitants and more will be loaded during the next week.

One car loaded Monday contained 12,220 pounds or 2,220 over the ordinary carload. This is considered the largest single shipment ever made from a community of like size in the northwest. The city is the center of one of the richest dairying fields in the world.

Broad pasturages surround it on every side and the farmers have gone in strong for dairying. The creameries from which butter is received are those at Fosston, Olga, Weme, Meadows, Trail and Pine Lake. The car shipped Monday goes straight thru to New York City by way of St. Paul.

Origin of Ascot Races.

When did Ascot races begin? They are mentioned in the first "Racing Calendar," published in 1727, and the usual statement is that they were founded by the Duke of Cumberland, uncle of George III. But an entry in the accounts of the master of the horse in 1712 suggests that they were founded by Queen Anne on Aug. 6, 1711. The truth, no doubt, is that Ascot races, like many other august institutions, gradually developed from a germ, so that it is difficult to say when they really began. At any rate, they were quite the sort of thing that enthusiast of the turf, Queen Anne, would have founded. She was a thorough Stuart in this passion. It was her great-grandfather, James I., who encouraged, if he did not establish, horse racing in Scotland and popularized it in England.—London Chronicle.

Keen Sense of Humor.

"There is nothing like a sense of humor," said a naval officer, according to the Philadelphia Bulletin. "In a woman, in a soldier, in a sailor, in a clerk, a sense of humor is a help and a blessing through life. At the same time even a sense of humor may exist in excess. I, for my part, shouldn't care to have so great a sense of humor as a British soldier I once heard about. This soldier was ordered to be flogged. During the flogging he laughed continually. The lash was laid on all the harder, but under the rain of blows the soldier laughed.

"'What are you laughing at?' the sergeant finally asked.

"'Why,' the soldier chuckled, 'I'm the wrong man.'"

The Perverse Golf Ball.

A collector of evidence on the subject maintains learnedly that the golf ball is the most perverse of human institutions. Here is a list of strange lies noted by a follower of the ancient game: In another player's pocket, where it had dropped after traveling 200 yards; in a cow's mouth; on the roof of a clubhouse; behind the glass protecting a painting hanging on a cottage wall; in a clump of daisies, which it so resembled that it was not found for an hour. When it fell in the cow's mouth the frightened animal galloped 276 yards nearer the hole and then restored the ball to its owner. He promptly claimed to have driven it 897 yards and the right to play it from where it lay.

FOR STATE GOOD ROADS

GEORGE COOLEY OF MINNESOTA HIGHWAY COMMISSION PASSES THRU

SPEAKS ON BENEFIT OF GOOD ROADS TO THE FARMING COMMUNITIES

From Friday's Daily—

Engineer George Cooley of the Minnesota state highway commission was the guest of City Engineer Carroll night before last while enroute to Minneapolis after a visit to Larimore, N. D., on business connected with the organization of a North Dakota state good roads association at that point. Mr. Coley believes coming five years will experience greatest highway development this country has ever seen.

One of the most interesting speakers of the day says the Grand Forks Herald, was George W. Cooley secretary of the Highway Commission of St. Paul, Minn., a man who has made a study of the road and drainage question for many years and who gave forth much valuable information on the subject. It is with regret his full speech cannot be given. Mr. Cooley's idea is that at present there is something more important than the engineering of roads, and that is the establishment of a system whereby good roads can be built economically, with an idea of permanence and this can only be done by legislation and organization.

Increased Price of Products

He compared the western system with that of some of the older states and showed what they had accomplished with legislation and their good road organizations. The great benefit to the farmer, in the increased price for his produce, was also emphasized, how by having good roads he could market it at will, when the price suited him best. The great trouble he believed in the west, was that the farmer alone could not afford to built good roads and that the matter thru proper legislation must be brought under the contral of the government. He believed education on the subject was doing a great deal and the people are coming to realize more and more the great importance of good roads from many different standpoints. He dwelt then on what constituted good roads and said the essentials were drainage and foundation.

Mr. Cooley believes we are too prone to lag behind and follow in the footsteps of our forefathers or to follow as he expressed it with the reading of a short piece of poetry, "In the Path the Calf had Made."

Didn't Belong to Colorado.

In the early days of Leadville there was a singular character living by the name of Major Martin McGinnis. The major was the important man of the camp, and when any distinguished parties came to the city they were received by Major Martin McGinnis and presented with the freedom of the camp on a gold plate. The French government sent three mining engineers over to examine and to report upon the mineral deposits of this locality. They were received by Major Martin McGinnis, who put them in carriages and took them around the camp. As they were going up California gulch the Frenchmen suddenly jumped out of the carriage and commenced to hammer and chisel upon a large black bowlder that lay alongside the road. The major watched them gesticulating to one another, and he finally said to the interpreter: "What do they mean? What are they talking about?" The interpreter said, "They say that rock don't belong here." The major said: "The deuce it don't! You say to those foreigners that I won't stand for them coming over here and running down our country. Tell them that they can find anything anywhere in Colorado."

The Frenchmen were right, however, for this black rock was a meteor and had fallen from the skies.—Leadville Herald-Democrat.

Reason Enough.

"I am going to quit my place," said the man of all work.

"What's the matter?" asked the sympathetic friend. "Don't you like the brand of cigars the boss smokes?"

"Yes, but he keeps them locked."

Clear Waste.

"Why is Chester moping about so?"

"Disappointed in love."

"Thinks the girl he can't get is the only one in the world, I suppose?"

"No; it isn't that so much, but he spent $4 on her in ice cream sodas."

Ready to Please.

"When are you going to pay that bill?"

"Tomorrow."

"I am afraid tomorrow will never come."

"Then call around yesterday."

Couldn't Fill the Bill.

"Are you the man who advertised for a dog?"

"Yes."

"What kind of a dog did you want?"

"No use going into that. You wouldn't do."

GOOD HAUL OF JEWELRY

BURGLARS BREAK INTO THE M. H. CALL JEWELRY STORE AT FERGUS FALLS

LOSS IS ESTIMATED AT NEARLY FOUR HUNDRED DOLLARS—A POSSIBLE CLUE

A daring and very successful burglary occurred in Fergus Falls Thursday evening, the M. H. Call jewelry store being entered and nearly $400 worth of jewelry stolen. The burglars gained entrance by prying open the storm door in the rear and smashing the glass panel of the door inside, and then reaching in and turning the key. Once inside, they lost no time in opening one of the show cases and seizing a tray of rings. Among these were some diamond rings, and the wholesale price of the tray must have been fully $200. They also gathered up five ladies' gold watches and eleven other watches.

They opened the safe, which was not locked and were evidently frightened out at about this time, as they did not make a very thorough investigation of its contents. There was nothing of value in sight but several diamonds and three or four gold watches were lying underneath some paper in one corner, and had they raised this, they could easily have found them. They failed to do so, and obtained nothing from the safe. The watches and rings taken are valued at about $400. There were a number of other valuable rings in the show case which they opened, but in their hurry they did not take them.

BOY CONFESSES TO HORRIBLE MURDER

James Flood, 16 Years Old, Tells of Killing A. P. Camden in Minneapolis Street.

WORK OF DISORDERED MIND

Youth Talks Happily of Putting to Death an Utter Stranger—Has Woman's Wardrobe.

Minneapolis, June 6. — Curtains of mystery have been pulled aside and in the flood of truth which illumines the strangely horrible case of James Flood, the boy murderer who shot and instantly killed A. P. Camden, a total stranger to the slayer, on Nicollet avenue at midnight Wednesday, a story is disclosed that possesses peculiar psychological interest.

By his own confession, confirmed by police officers, the lad now locked up in the Minneapolis' police headquarters is not James Montague, as he first said, but James Flood, whose relatives live in the vicinity of Austin, Minn. Flood, who is sixteen years old, was born at Dexter, Minn.

Through Sweating Process.

Yesterday Flood was put through a severe sweating process and late in the afternoon he gave out the first authentic information regarding himself and the crime.

That the boy murderer is deplorably weak mentally the police have no doubt, but whether his mind is sufficiently diseased to save him from the gallows is a question open to dispute. Through all the horror of his crime the youth passes his time pleasantly in his cell frequently commenting upon his own cleverness as a female impersonator and the beauty of the feminine garments which he had spread out in his room at the Hans hotel.

Had Woman's Wardrobe.

In this collecton of woman's raiment he had a dainty blue frock, white underskirt, straight front corset, open-work hose and low shoes. The cunning of his peculiar mentality had apparently told him that there would be safety in such a disguise. He was thwarted in attempting such an escape by being captured before he reached his room.

There is no motive, either real or imaginative, for the murder of Camden.

"I shot Camden because he came along just when I though there ought to be something doing," is all the explanation the boy would give. "I am not sorry that he is dead, for he had to die some time and the quicker the sooner. It didn't fease me to look upon his bloody face at the morgue. It's up to all of us to croak some time."

BRAVE STEAM TO ESCAPE.

Two Men Are Terribly Burned While Escaping From Boiler.

Spooner, Minn., June 5.—Two employes at the Rainy River Lumber company's sawmill at Rainy River, Ont., David Bell and Quimby, met with a serious accident while they were repairing an elbow of a steam pipe leading from the boiler to the mill. The elbow broke and the men's only escape was by passing through the steam pouring out at a great pressure. Both men were terribly scalded and are in a critical condition.

DREYFUS SHOT AT ZOLA CELEBRATION

Fanatic, Zealous for French Army, Wounds Hero During Ceremony at Pantheon.

IS ONLY SLIGHTLY WOUNDED

Violence Follows Campaign by Newspapers Against Defender of Accused Soldier.

Paris, June 6. — The canonization yesterday of Emile Zola at the Pantheon was marred by a dastardly, though unsuccessful, attempt upon the life of Maj. Alfred Dreyfus. Paris was thrown into a state of panic, for it was at first thought that the president of the republic was wounded in the hand and his assailant is a prisoner.

The attempt upon the life of Maj. Dreyfus was made by Louis Anthene Gregori, a member of the staff of La France Militaire, a journal devoted to military progress and the military future of the republic. Maj. Dreyfus was present at the ceremonies to do final honor to the great leader of his cause.

Press Incited Violence.

Gregori's act undoubtedly was inspired by the campaign which the reactionary press has been conducting against Zola as an "insulter of the army" and "a traducer of his country."

The incident occurred at the foot of the catafaque directly in front of the tribune from which Mr. Doumergue, the minister of public institutions, delivered a eulogy on M. Zola's matchless courage in arousing the conscience of the nation to the necessity of doing justice to Dreyfus. As the last refrain of the orchestra's playing of the "Chant du Pepart" was floating away two sharp reports startled the assemblage.

For the instant every one believed that President Fallieres had been shot. A scene of indescribable confusion followed and many women present shrieked and fainted.

Assailant Struck Down.

The major's assailant was struck down. A fierce knot of soldiers and civilians were struggling over Maj. Dreyfus and his fallen assailant.

Maj. Dreyfus, accompanied by his brother Matthew, who was the first to strike the assailant after he fired, and Dr. Pozzi and several other friends, was led away to the mayor's office, opposite the Pantheon, where his wound was dressed. The doctors found that the bullet had entered his wrist.

BUSINESS MEN AND FARMERS TO HAVE WEEKLY HOLIDAY

A petition or agreement is in circulation for the closing of the business places for discontinuance of farm work on Saturday afternoons, during the summer months, the half holidays to be devoted to social events, such as picnics, political and other speeches ball games, etc. Some of the farmers are at the head of the movement and the business men appear to be willing to agree to it, if the farmers will. PAUL B. HAGEN KILLED BY TRAIN AT E.G. FORKS

WELL KNOWN RESIDENT OF EAST GRAND FORKS CRUSHED UNDER CAR WHEELS—LIVES LESS THAN THREE HOURS AFTER BOTH HIS LEGS ARE CRUSHED OFF—DECEASED HAD BEEN VISITING FRIENDS SOUTH OF THE GREAT NORTHERN DEPOT AND WAS ON HIS RETURN WHEN CAUGHT UNDER WHEELS — HE LEAVES WIFE AND FOUR CHILDREN — ONE OF SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS MEN OF EAST SIDE—A PROMINENT WESTERN POLK COUNTY REPUBLICAN

From Monday's Daily—

Paul Hagen a pioneer resident of East Grand Forks, was fatally injured Saturday night at 10:30 while seeking to cross under a Great Northern boxcar in the Grand Forks yards. The accident happened about straight south of the Great Northern passenger depot One of Mr. Hagen's legs was cut off close to the hip and the other at the knee. He was conscious and his cries for help attracted the attention of a passerby who notified a car repairer. Physicians were summoned and as soon as possible Mr. Hagen was removed to St. Michaels hospital where he died at 1 o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. Hagen had been talking to a friend shortly after 10 o'clock and told him he was going over on the south side for a few minutes. He asked his friend to go over to Kittleson's and wait for him there. It was on his return from the south side that he was hurt.

Crushed by Wheels

There is no regular crossing at the point where Mr. Hagen was injured. He had gone around the end of two cars and found a string of cars in front of him. The switch engine was a long distance away and he evidently thought that there was no danger. He did not notice that by going two cars lengths there was a way clear for him to cross. Just as he was under the car the switch engine shunted cars against the one Mr. Hagen was going underneath. The car only moved about four feet and only the wheels of one truck passed over Mr. Hagen. When found he was able to tell about the accident.

Mr. Hagen was one of the successful business men of East Grand Forks Recently he let a contract for a fine two story brick block on DeMers avenue to replace the frame buildings burned in East Grand Forks several months ago. He leaves a wife and four children, two boys and two girls.

He was also prominent in Western Polk County politics and attended the last republican convention held in this city.

RINGLINGS GREAT AGGREGATION JUNE 29

AN ARMY OF NEARLY 2,000 PEOPLE A HERD OF 40 ELEPHANTS, 14 ACRES OF CANVAS AND A 108 CAGE ZOO WILL BE HERE ON THAT DATE—THE DAY WILL BE REGARDED AS A GENERAL HOLIDAY AND OLD AND YOUNG WILL FLOCK TO SEE GREATEST CIRCUS THE WORLD HAS EVER KNOWN

Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows are to exhibit in this city on Monday June 29. In all its entirety from the 1280 people employed, the wonderful herd of 40 elephants, the 14 acres of canvas, 108 cage zoo to the pink lemonade man, the circus will be transported to this city from Wadena in fire sections, requiring 85 double length cars.

The first brigade of "billers" made Crookston last week in one of the largest and most modernly equipped advertising cars ever constructed. The interior is handsomely finished in oak and has "all the comforts of a home." It contains the private office of the manager, a gentlemen's smoking compartment and the berths are so arranged that each person has practically a private section. It is from this car that the first billing matter is distributed and posted. Wagons loaded with paper and billposters, were dispatched into the country where, as press agent Charles A. White would say: "Every barn, fence and bill board within 40 miles will be clothed with posters which serve to elicit the mastadonic marvels in store for those who come to town on show day. The car went to Winnipeg Sunday afternoon on the N. P.

No Stake Driving

"The old time method of driving stakes with sledges has been eliminated owing to the enormous size of the tents employed by Ringling Brothers this season. The new invention is in the form of a driving machine which is mounted on a heavy wagon and operated by gasoline engines. Stake after stake is fed into the machine and driven deep and straight, doing away with the hard work of former days, also assuring rapid erection of a gigantic canvas city which could not be handled otherwise. This wonderful invention and the 'full plate' service of the 'Hotel Ringling' has been instrumental in causing working men to flock to the show for employment, while other shows were unable to secure help at any price.

The Circus Cook

"The cook tent is on important factor in the estimation of both performer and working man, and the 26,880 hungry mouths fed each week, crave every article served in hotels of standing; ice cream, cakes and delicacies of the season are always to be found on a Ringling menu. Figuring the meals served by this firm to their army of employees, in one season, the amount aggregates that of the President's salary for a period of over eight years. In one short season, the combined population of Minneapolis, Milwaukee and Cincinnati have figurative ly dined under the Ringling roof.

A Great Aggregation

"For this season's tour, Ringling Brothers have gathered together the flower of the acrobatic, aerial and equestrian world. Their exhibitions of strength and dexterity on the numerous stages, in the rings, upon the backs of mettlesome horses, and far up in the aerial enclave, 'midst a network of trapeze and horizontal bars, justly brings them the title of the physical marvels of two hemispheres.

"In the big new 108 cage zoo are many rare and odd creatures nowhere else to be seen. A family of full grown giraffes, the only rhinoceros in captivity; the almost extinct gnu or horned horse, and 40 elephants, the largest company ever shown under canvas and more than twice as many as are with any other show in America. The big menagerie tent is the largest ever made for a circus, and so big that an army of 5000 men could be easily maneuvered within its walls."

And the Tall Giraffe

Speaking of giraffes, the agent continued, "Why, the family of long necked beauties, which Ringling Brothers are exhibiting this season, represent an outlay of money sufficient to erect a brownstone mansion. These delicate animals are cared for like the children of royalty, and could not be bought at any price. They have special cars for traveling and live in wagons thickly padded with curled hair, backed by fine brass springs and covered with a rich and serviceable fabric. They are nervous and timid creatures and must be watched every minute by a trained keeper, who alone is allowed to feed them. Their food is prepared and steamed according to scientific rules. A giraffe has seldom been known to touch water. Codliver oil and milk are a part of their diet."

Railroad Bridge Wrecked.

Guthrie, Okla., June 9.—Two spans of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe bridge across the Canadian river at Purcell, Okla., went out last night and traffic between Oklahoma City and Texas has been suspended over that line.

Two Killed by Tornado.

Mauston, Wis., June 9.—A tornado struck the farm of John Dalton, a well-to-do farmer living about four miles south of Mauston, yesterday, demolishing his fine farm house and barns and killing Mr. Dalton and his twelve-year-old son Philip.

NEW LINE TO BOUNDARY

THIEF RIVER FALLS, BEAUDETTE AND OTHER TOWNS ARE INTERESTED

PLANNED TO CONSTRUCT AN AIR LINE TO CANADIAN BOUNDARY — INCORPORATE

Minnesota Air Line Railway company is the name of a company which filed articles of incorporation Saturday with Secretary of State Schmahl, with a capital of $500,000. The purpose of the company as expressed in the articles, is to build a railroad line from Thief River Falls to Roosevelt and ultimately to Zipple Bay, on the Lake of the Woods. It is rumored that the Soo road is back of the organization.

Soo May Be Promoting

Thief River Falls is a junction point on the Soo and the Great Northern lines in Red Lake county. It is located on that branch of the Great Northern which is headed in the direction of Warroad on the Lake of the Woods but has been completed only to Greenbush, and it is thought that the organization of this new company to run a line parallel to but some distance east of the Great Northern line may have the effect of hastening the completion of the Great Northern line to Warroad. The grading on this line has been completed to Warroad for several years, but the rails have not been laid and the residents of Warroad are anxiously awaiting the completion of the road.

The new line will run from Thief River Falls to Roosevelt which is on the Canadian Northern line running east from Winnipeg and through Warroad. The articles also state that the line will continue thru Roosevelt to Zipple bay on the Lake of the Woods and will be built "on an air line as near as practicable with such branch lines of railway as the company deems advisable."

New Port

The completion of the new line as contemplated will make a new port on the Lake of the Woods with connections at Roosevelt with the Canadian Northern and at Thief River Falls with the Soo for the Twin Cities. The principal place of transacting business will be at Thief River Falls until the board of directors decides to transfer it to Roosevelt. The charter is perpetual.

The officers of the new company are: William F. Hunt of Roosevelt, president; T. R. Hasler of Iowa Falls Iowa, vice president; E. E. Rambusch Roosevelt, secretary. The other incorporators are Homer B. Leavitt and L. R. Hedberg, Roosevelt, and Ralph H. Rockwood, Waterville, Me. The capital stock is $500,000 and this is also the limit of indebtedness which the company is authorized to contract.

ENTIRE OUTPUT SOLD IN SPOKANE

MANAGER WHIRRY OF CREAMERY DISPOSES OF PRODUCT AT A BIG PRICE

Manager F. S. Whirry of the Crookston creamery has just contracted with a firm in Spokane for the entire output of the local creamery during the coming year at New York prices with the entire output to be classed as "Extras".

This is a recognition out of the ordinary and is but another instance in which the importance of the creamery industry in northern Minnesota. The amount of the butter produced in this section and sold locally is insignificant Two years ago practically all the creamery butter made was absorbed here, but now there are a large number of creameries which are contracting their entire output in the large centers and make no effort to sell locally. In some instances they get a premium over the New York market and that, in effect is the deal closed by Manager Whirry.

BACK FROM BIG MISSION MEET

The string orchestra of the Swedish Mission church of Crookston returned last evening from Kennedy, Minn., north of here where they have been attending a big mission meeting since last Friday. The members of the party were Mrs. Braff, Mr. and Mrs. Engstrom, Rev. and Mrs. Moberg, Misses Ella and Annie Nyvall, Augusta Turnquist, Ethel Peterson, Shogren and Niama Dahlquist. They report a very active meeting of the mission workers at the north line city.

MOSQUITOES NUMEROUS

PRERDICTED THEY WILL BE UNUSUALLY ACTIVE THIS SEASON

DUE TO HEAVY RAINS—WOODTICKS ARE OUT IN FORCE

Mosquitoes will be exceptionally numerous this year in Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin, say the vacation experts.

The usually rainy weather of the last three or four weeks has filled all the swamps and holes in the low stretches of land with the stagnant water that is necessary for the growth of the larvae. As it takes only six days for a mosquito to hatch out, it may be easily seen how rapidly the little pests are multiplying. It is a little early in the season for mosquitoes in the immediate vicinity of Crookston but as the weather grows warmer they are beginning to appear in large numbers.

All this means a disagreeable time of it for the summer campers, unless they seek the sandy regions where the water sinks into the ground as soon as it falls. But if they go there they will be pursued by woodticks. These pernicious little pests are already out after their prey in several of the resorts which are popular. Perhaps pernicious is pretty strong to use in connection with the name of woodtick, but those who have had experience with the things search about in their minds for the strongest expressions at their command in speak of them.

Early campers say that they never before saw woodticks so numerous as they are this summer. They are found greatest numbers in a sandy scrub oak country. People who returned to the city Sunday night and Monday from a few days spent at some of the popular resorts within easy distance of Crookston have been picking off woodticks ever since.

One particularly attractive girl has the record of seven ticks in two days since getting back to town. Woodticks are not found in the immediate vicinity of the lake. The season for them will be over within three or four weeks for they seem to be shorter lived than the mosquitoes which generally manage to stick on te job until very late in the summer.

THREE INCHES OF RAIN AT FERGUS

The heavy rains of the past few weeks seemed to culminate in two terrific downpours Saturday night and Sunday evening. Saturday's storm broke over the city about 8 o'clock in the evening following a close hot day. The rain continued at intervals until nearly midnight and the precipitation was 1.59 inches.

Sunday was another close day and it was evident that a further downpour was necessary to clear the atmosphere. The clouds obscured the sun during the greater part of the day and toward evening the storm gathered and swept down from the north. The fall yas not quite as heavy as that of the previous evening, being 1.26 inches. This makes the total rain fall Saturday and Sunday evenings 2.85—or very nearly three inches. The total for May was 6.08 inches making a fall of 10.67 for the past five weeks. It seems that the weather man is now making up for the long drouth of last fall and the early spring. — Fergus Falls Journal.

DETROIT HOTEL HAS ITS LICENSE REVOKED

The liquor license of the Hotel Minnesota at Detroit has finally been revoked. Charges of law violations were filed during the winter but the district court restrained the council from revoking, and a long delay followed. The restraining order has finally been dissolved and the license is revoked by a vote of six to one. The hotel was run by a stock company of the leading business men and capitalists of Detroit. Chief of Police Edward Larsen brought the matter before the council and the company was cited to appear and show cause why its license should not be canceled and revoked. The case was bitterly contested on both sides and the council revoked the license at the conclusion of the testimony and argument by counsel. The hotel company will again bring the matter before the district court on a writ of certiorari.

There would be less trouble if nobody ever gave anybody advice.

SATURDAY'S CLOUDBURST COST A HUMAN LIFE

P. E. SOLOMONSON A VETERINARY OF TWIN VALLEY DROWNED SUNDAY AFTERNOON IN RAGING CREEK IN STRAND TOWNSHIP, EAST OF GARY AND NORTH O FHEIBERG — TIED ROPE ABOUT BODY AND FASTENED OTHER END TO TREE TO RESCUE PROPERTY AND WAS DRAWN UNDER BY THE SWIFT CURRENT—CROPS WASHED OUT IN MANY PLACES ABOUT TWIN VALLEY

The veritable cloudburst which occurred in the vicinity of Gary Heiberg Twin Valley and the country east of those places Saturday has claimed one victim at least in the person of P. E. Solomonson a veterinary who has made his home at Twin Valley for the past two years. He was in the town of Strand east of Gary and north of Heiberg yesterday afternoon and meager reports are to the effect that he was in swimming with a party of friends. Some portion of the paraphernalia was lost and caught on some obstacle in the middle of a creek which empties into the Wild Rive River..

The cloudburst of Saturday evening had turned the creek into a raging torrent and the bathers were in a protected place. To regain the clothing or other property lost, Solomonson tied a rope about his body and tied the other end to a tree. He plunged into the stream as far up creek as the rope would allow, and swam for the middle.

The rope became entangled in some brush and drift wood and striking a floating tree Solomonson was carried under and could not be extricated till life was extinct. The body was recovered and turned over to Undertaker Sethney of Twin Valley. It will probably be shipped to his old home near St. Peter for interment. He was 32 years of age and single.

Crops Were Damaged

Reports this afternoon stated that in many sections north and east of Twin Valley and Heiberg the crops were badly damaged by the flood some fields being completely washed out. The rain fell in sheets and every creek leading to the Wild Rice is a raging torrent.

BROKE ANKLE IN FARGO

REV. E. S. SHAW SUFFERS PAINFUL ACCIDENT IN FARGO YESTERDAY

FORMER CROOKSTON PASTOR SHOWS GRIT AFTER HIS MISFORTUNE

While walking along First Avenue north yesterday morning about 9:15 at Fargo Rev. E. S. Shaw a prominent clergyman in North Dakota Congregational circles turned his ankle breaking a bone and causing a pain and swelling that was excruciating. Rev. Shaw, who is now located in Minot, is a member of the board of trustees of the Fargo college, which met in annual session yesterday. The clergyman was bent on attending the meeting and a broken ankle was not sufficient to dampen his ardor. Every effort was made yesterday to take down the swelling so that a cast could be placed this morning.

Rev. Shaw was formerly pastor of the Congregational church in Crookston and prior to that was for some time connected with Fargo college in the capacity of field secretary.

A WONDERFUL GROWTH OF CORN

The most wonderful growth of corn ever seen in this section was noted during the past week. On Monday of last week the conditions being ideal for corn planting, considerable was sown, and yesterday, just one week later it was from an inch and a half to two inches above the ground. The conditions happened to be as near ideal as possible. The ground was warm when the seed was planted and there were several warm showers followed by hot weather and the seed germinated and came up in record time. If the present cold wave does not last long the corn crop this year with the start it has got will be one of the best ever raised in this section.

HEAVY RAINS IN NORTH

HAIL FALLS AT RED LAKE FALLS AND OTHER POINTS UP NORTH

CROP PROSPECTS CONTINUE GOOD—RIVERS ARE AT FLOOD TIDE

From Tuesday's Daily—

Hail was reported yesterday and Sunday at Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls with heavy local showers and much high wind. East and south of Crookston local showers have spotted the country tho there are no reports of hail.

From all indications at hand the storm center of the north valley seemed to be at or near Red Lake Falls where the worst storm was experienced. Crookston has received very little rain for the past three days but the heavens on all sides denoted that other points were getting much rain fall. A windstorm passed over the city Saturday night but did not gain full headway until it reached Warren, Red Lake, Thief River and other points north.

Notwithstanding the fall of hail and rain and blowing of wind crops are not damaged except in low places along the banks of flooded rivers. The grain is too short to be affected by the wind, too young to be affected by the hail and too dry to be much affected by the fall of rain.

INJUNCTION CAUSES ROW

TAFT FORCES CLAIM INJUNCTION PLANK WILL BE INSERTED

SOME OBJECTION TO SAVINGS BANK, TRUST AND RAILROAD PLANKS

SUB-COMMITTEE CONSIDER PLATFORM TILL LONG AFTER MIDNIGHT

Chicago, June 17—The Taft forces claim to have the advantage in the struggle over the injunction plank of the platform. They assert that the appointment of the sub-committee of thirteen to consider the various controverted planks was a distinct success for them and point with much satisfaction to t he fact that Chairman Hopkins had appointed on this committee nine men who favored the injunction plank and four who are opposed to it.

The Taft managers predict favorable result in the full committee and in the convention but admit that the fight will be desperate.

The opposition still under the leadership of Speaker Cannon claiming 30 votes to 22 in the full committee and expressing confidence that when the platform goes to the convention the objectionable plank will be missing.

THE INJUNCTION PLANK GOES IN PLATFORM

Chicago, June 17—The biggest problem before the resolution committee was disposed of at 2 a. m., when by a vote of 35 to 16 with one state (South Carolina) not recorded, the full committee agreed to the injunction plank. It was predicted after the vote that there would be no fight on the matter on the floor of the convention when the full report is made today.

GOV. C'MMINS STRENGTH GROWS

SENTIMENT IN IOWA DELEGATION UNDERGOING A BIG CHANGE

ROOSEVELT SAID TO BE FAVORABLE TO THE IOWA MAN

Chicago, Ill. June 17—The boom of Governor Cummins of Iowa for the vice presidential nomination was the distinctive feature of the day in the contest for second place on the ticket and it received much favorable consideration. Senator Borah of Idaho who early yesterday morning started the agitation on behalf of the Iowa governor spent much of the day sounding western delegations in his behalf and at the close of the day announced that he found much encouragement. The mention of Gov. Cummin's name was received with varying emotions by the members of the Iowa delegation, and it soon became evident that in the event that the governor's candidacy should be more energetically pressed, his Iowa support would not be confined to the so-called Cummin's faction. Several Allison-Dolliver adherents promptly announced that as a matter of state pride, if for no other reason they should support the governor's candidacy

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM

Chicago, June 16—The exact text of the plan of the republican platform prepared by Wade Ellis and approved by President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft relating to railroads follows: We approve the enactment of a rail road rate law and the vigorous enforcement of the present administration of the statutes against rebates and discrimination. In this connection we recommend an appropriation of $350,000 by the present congress in order to enable the interstate commerce commission to thoroly investigate and give publicity to the accounts of railroads.

We believe in maintaining always the principle of competition between naturally competing lines and avoiding the common control of such lines by any means whatsoever and federal restriction against an overissue of stocks and bonds by interstate carriers."

The Tariff Plank

More or less serious inaccuracy has characterized the reputed textual publications of the plank relating to tariff. The exact text of the plank as well as of the plank concerning the anti-injunction legislations follows:

"The republican party declares unequivocally for revision of tariff by special session of congress immediately followed the inauguration of the next president.

Principle of Protection

In all tariff legislation the true principle of protection is best maintained by the imposition of such duties as will equal differences between cost of production at home and abroad, together with a reasonable profit to American industries and benefits that follow are best secured by the establishment of maximum and minimum rates which shall be applied automatically to the trade of other countries in accordance with their treatment of our trade.

The aim and purpose of the republican policy is not only to preserve without excessive duties that security against foreign competition to which American manufacturers farmers and producers are entitled but also to maintain the high standard of living of the protective system.

Fight on the Injunction

The compromise measure which its opponents will urge, if it becomes evident that a pronouncement on the subject is to be included in the platform, has been determined upon. It will be a simple statement that the party believes the federal court procdure should be so amended as to provide against arbitrary orders being made by courts but at the same time that nothing be done to interfere with the authority of a court over its own orders.

Currency Plank

The currency plank contains this language: "The republican party approves the Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill but only as an emergency measure. We declare for a thoro and new system of currency laws that will be in accordance with the need of the times and which will be made more adaptable to the demands of business and more elastic in its character as an accumulating medium."

TO LOOK AFTER THE WELFARE OF CHILDREN

Movement is Started Toward Co-operative Effort at Big Meeting Held in St. Paul,

Which Was Attended By Hon. P. M. Ringdahl Of State Board Of Control.

A state conference on child helping benevolence with the object in view of effecting a basis of co-operation between all agencies interested in the promotion of the welfare of children was given a start at a meeting held in the rooms of the state board of control in the new capitol. A temporary organization was effected, and a committee was appointed to formulate a plan of organization and the basis of membership or representation in the organization. The next meeting will be held when this committee is ready to make its report.

The idea of forming such an organization was suggested to the board of control some time ago by C. E. Faulkner, superintendent of the Washburn Memorial Orphan asylum in Minneapolis. The board consulted with the superintendents of the various state institutions interested in this work, as well as representatives of organizations taking an active interest in the promotion of the interests of the children. The Juvenile Protective league of Hennepin county passed resolutions asking the board to arrange for a conference on the subject and the meeting yesterday was the result.

Mr. Leavett, Chairman

S. W. Leavett, chairman of board of control was elected chairman of the meeting and Henry F. Burt of the Pillsbury settlement house in Minneapolis secretary. The others present at the meeting were: Judge Grier M. Orr of Ramsey county district and pjuvenile court; Mr. Falkner; P. M. Ringdal of the board of control; A. W. Gutridge of the St. Paul Associated Charities; A. L. Graves, St. Paul probation officer; Frank Lewis of the state public school at Owatonna; Dr. L. A. Crandall of Minneapolis and Miss Lydia Weinzerel of the St. Paul Protestant orphan asylum.

The organization will probably hold several meetings this summer and fall and will decide upon some legislation which will be urged upon the legislature next winter. The committee which will formulate the plan of organization and suggest the legislation which it is thought ought to be passed consists of the following members: Judge Orr, chairman; G. A. Merrill of the state public school at Owatonna, C. E. Falkner, Judge John Day Smith of the Hennepin county juvenile court of Minneapolis and F. A. Whitier superintendent of the training school at Red Wing.

General Plan Outlined

Mr. Faulkner is outlining a general plan for the work of organization, and made the following suggestions:

Outline a comprehensive policy of state supervision whereby the various agencies may be brought into helpful and well co-ordinated relationship to each other. Worthy of discussion in this connection is the propriety of organizing a state board of children's guardians to include the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general superintendent of public instruction and members of the state board of control, each county to be represented by a resident member of the board performing volunteer service and the paid secretary of the board to have a desk in the office of the state board of control and report to said board subject to direction by the officers of the general board. Worthy of careful consideration is the policy of drawing a distinct line of demarkation between the penal and educational establishments to the end that if the institutions dealing with children classed as delinquent may be properly grouped with the educational institutions reliance may be rested upon the effectiveness of compulsory education laws in all dealings with non-criminal children, rather than upon penal statutes. Safeguard the methods of intelligent diagnosis by definite classifications, so that the general terms which describe conditions, such as "dependent," "neglected" and "delinquent" may each have their proper significance in court findings and institution records.

Recast the laws dealing with children to conform to the policy adopted Separate the service of the juvenile courts in Hennepin and Ramsey counties from the general service of the district courts so that one judge may give exclusive time to the growing service imposed upon the juvenile courts in those counties. Extend the operation of the juvenile court law in such manner as to secure its benefits to other counties.

Devise plans whereby uniformity of tary contributions, to the end that ing children to the ways of early self support and useful living. The grow probation officers supported by volun action the increase of efficient paid the public interest in the cause of will demand a corresponding increase plan in proceedures and the use of of friends to look after them. blanks and records may be secured. Encourage by some appropriate joint good citizenship may be kept alive and the homes of good citizens be thrown open for a share of the work of educating, training and encouraging roster of juvenile court children

BUM BRANDY FROM EAST

FAKE CINCINNATI CO., CAUSE OF PURE FOOD PROSECUTIONS

From Thursday's Daily—

The reason of the presence of so much blackberry brandy thruout the north country of such condition as violates the pure food laws of Minnesota is found to be the operations of a fake manufacturing concern thruout this region last fall.

September and October last a drummer of pleasing manner arrived in the valley and met with the wholesalers of this region and showed them fine samples of blackberry brandy. He had a card with him with a spacious likeness of a gigantic manufacturing concern which he denoted as the immense factory that he represented and passed it about. He offered the goods at a very favorable price and some of the wholesalers thruout the Valley and the Dakotas ordered large quantities for future delivery.

The brandy was received and sold thruout the various retailers that patronize wholesalers.

Now comes the quiet Inspector Heiberg of pure food fame and shoots samples of this suspicious stuff from many a country retailer's store back into the retorts and crucibles of the state chemist in St. Paul. They declared a gross adulteration.

Then follows the many arrests that were made thruout the north country by the Inspector Heiberg at Greenbush, Hallock, Warren, Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, Ada, Crookston, East Grand Forks and other points for the illegal sale of blackberry brandy.

The retailers got back on their wholesalers for the fines they had to pay. The wholesalers then started after the manufacturing concern only to find no evidence of it in Cincinnati Ohio. As a result they are out some thousands of dollars and have a lot of bum blackberry juice on their hands.

WELLS MAKES SHORTAGE GOOD

FORMER CROOKSTON MAN WILL RETURN TO SARGENT COUNTY SOON

WILL AGAIN BE AGENT FOR FIRM IT WAS CLAIMED HE HAD VICTIMIZED

From Friday's Daily—

F. B. Wells the Sargent county real estate dealer who was reported to have left a defalcation in his accounts with the firm of Adams & Freeze of Lisbon, of which he was the trusted agent has made good all the shortage and will return to his home at Cogswell.

The first stories sent out concerning the defalcation of Wells, placed the amount which he was short at between $30,000 and $40,000 but the next day H. K. Adams cashier of the Lisbon National bank, and a member of the firm of Adams & Freeze made a statement to the effect that the shortage would only amount to about $15,000 and that this was all secured, so that they would lose nothing.

The first information of a shortage in Well's accounts and an apparent deliberate defalcation was made public two weeks ago yesterday.

Wells is Located

A few days after that Mr. Adams learned of the whereabouts of Wells and he made a trip to the east where he met the latter and a full and complete settlement was made. Wells will return to his home at Cogswell at once and will re-engage in the real estate business as the agent for Adams & Freeze.

It appears that Wells was a victim of the panic. He had large sums of money invested for Adams & Freeze and about two months ago he believed that there was going to be a tightening of the money market and he was afraid that he would be badly pinched and driven by fear he thought he would get from under a bad crash.

Wells was a former resident of Crookston and later of Grand Forks. Friends will be pleased to learn that he is to return and that he is not a defaulter.

MACHINE IS PRACTICAL

BEN CLEMENTS INVENTED DITCH MACHINE PROVES MORE THAN CLAIMED FOR IT

LEAVE CLEAN DITCH AND PILES DIRT READY FOR GRADING ROAD

From Thursday's Daily—

The new ditching machine upon which a patent has been secured by Ben Clements of Crookston township member of the board of county commissioners, has been in practical work on the road about a quarter of a mile across the high bridge across the Northern Pacific on 8th street for the past few days.

A representative of the Journal visited the construction on which it is at present engaged. The machine from the front has much the appearance of the spokes of a large wheel 18 feet in diameter. Upon the ends of the spokes buckets are set with a series of knives of different depths set ahead of the buckets on separate spokes about 6 inches. The whole wheel is revolved by a 35 horse power gasoline engine set on a moving platform behind. The whole machine is pulled forward by a capstan set ahead of the machine and worked up to.

During the presence of the Journal at the construction the machine moved rapidly thru the ground digging a clean smooth ditch about 2 1-2 feet deep and dumping the earth several feet free of the ditch and in pulverized form most favorable for grading. The dirt is conveyed from the buckets by an endless belt running at right angles to the direction of the ditch receiving the excavated earth after it is dumped from the buckets and carrying it free of the ditch itself. By elevation of the conveyor the dirt may be loaded into wagons or directed anywhere desired.

The machine tho Mr. Clements has not yet perfected it, proves in every way to be practical, even as it is now and ditches much better than commonly dug by horse power are now being built along the east road into the country where the machine is now located.

THOUGHT HE HAD SMALLPOX

PASSENGER ON CLARKE'S TRAIN MISTOOK THE MOSQUITO BITES

Conductor Billy Clarke has been the object of a great deal of good natured chaffing by his friends ever since his fishing expedition between runs at Cass Lake.

He does not often take a trip out into the woods and he was, therefore, a juicy morsel for the big mosquitoes that are lying in wait for the unsuspecting towns people.

When he returned to take his run he was unable to even estimate the number of mosquito bites he possessed and, by the following day, when the "pizen" had an opportunity of getting in its work his face and hands were a sight to behold. It is currently reported that his best friend would not have recognized him.

It is claimed that when Conductor Clarke went thru the train the passengers looked nervous even his brakeman failing to recognize him on account of the disfiguring spots where the mosquitoes had left their marks.

One passenger after riding a few miles glancing uneasily at Clarke's face edged away. He finally got up and took a seat in the extreme front end of the car. As he went forward he was heard to remark about the carlessness of the health department in not stopping smallpox patients from running trains.

DRAINING THE SWAMPS

CAPT. JAS. A. BEARD TAKES MACHINERY THRU TO THE NORTH

BIG WINDOM DREDGE ON ROSEAU SEVEN MILES IN THE SWAMP

From Friday's Daily—

Capt, Jas. A. Beard of the Standard Drainage Company of Windom, Minnesota and in charge of the big steam dredge on the lower Roseau river in Roseau county came down to Crookston from Thief River Falls last evening for the purpose of transferring heavy parts of machinery from the freight yards here to express to Greenbush whence he will take it into the interior where it is needed for the repair of the dredge.

The big floating dredge is at present in the middle of the immense swamps thru which bows the lower Roseau River. The dredge is seven miles from the first dry spot and is surrounded by the conditions that go to make this the best dredging year for a long time.

From Roseau Lake to Duxby on the Roseau River the big machine kept generally along the line and direction of the Roseau river, but the construction this year pays no attention to the river and pursues its way as the crow flies from Duxby into these rapids near Caribou postoffice in Kittson county and the project will make of the fertile soils of the Roseau Valley a garden of Eden.

The floating steam dredge has already cut thru 35 miles of the state engineer's plans and has 20 more to go before the construction is complete The digging is now much harder than on the first part of the ditch as the ditch construction is practically a new river which when built will take the place of the Roseau which will cease to run.

Capt. Beard who is the oldest dredger in the northwest considers this the best dredging year of the last ten. The only difficulty has been the presence of frost in ground and swamps until a late date this spring. One of the main matters that have made this year so good for dredging men is the activity and service of the state drainage department who let the most of their contracts early in the winter piled the engineers over the work rapidly and enabled contracting dredge men to get all their supplies and machinery to the points of construction before the spring thaws set in.

On account of this condition Capt. Beard who for the last two years has had literally scratched the country to get enough wood to run his engines, was enabled to get timbermen at work early and he now has 1300 cords of wood along the banks of the Rosean enough to last him this year.

POLITICS ARE BADLY MIXED

WM. E. YOUNG OF RAILWAY AND WAREHOUSE COMMISSION IN CROOKSTON

VALLEY LAND LOOKS GOOD TO HIM — WILL PROBABLY INVEST

From Thursday's Daily—

Hon. Wm. E. Young, member of the State Railroad and Warehouse commission arrived in the city this morning to look over some land which he contemplated purchasing southeast of the city, and incidentally look after some official business in this city to which his attention has been called. Mr. Young is very much pleased with the appearance of the crops which he viewed during a drive tis morning, but says every acre of land should be under cultivation, excepting what is being pastured. He was shown about the city by Senator Stephens and met many of the business and professional men of Crookston. Asked as to the political situation Mr. Young said:

"The sentiment in Hennipen and Ramsey counties is very mixed. Had the primaries been held two weeks ago Jacobson would undoubtedly have gotten the delegation. Now there is a fight on between Jacobson, Snider, Young and Savage all have their quota of friends and it is pretty hard to size the situation up.

"In Duluth there is a strong Young faction and a strong anti-Young faction. Both are working hard. If Jacobson or Young do not land the nomination on the first two or three ballots I would not be surprised to see the plum go to some man whom has not yet been an avowed candidate.

"In the southern part of the state the political situation is also very mixed, and it will be very hard to predict the outcome till after the primaries are held, and then I look to see many delegations go to the state convention uninstructed."

Mr. Young will return to St. Paul this evening.

BIG DREDGING MACHINES EDUCATE MINN. YOUTH

$92,415 Divided Among The Educational Institutions Of This State. Comes From Sale Of Swamp Lands.

From Friday's Daily—

The huge dredging machines of the north, working in the almost unknown interior surrounded by those scores of difficulties that a highly perfected machinery naturally suffers when far from transportation and base of supplies, have become one of the most effective means of the education of the boys and girls of the state. the rapid reclamation of land under the laws of Minnesota is made the basis for an increasing effectiveness and equipment of the public schols.

The work of the state drainage com mission has placed hundreds of thousands of acres in to a salable condition during the past three years and under favorable laws this work will continue to grow until the visitor of Minnesota gazes on no stretches of submerged and useless land belonging to the state and its children.

Accumulated interest on state swamp land funds which now amounts ong the state educational, penal and to $62,144.72, is being apportioned amcustodial institutions for the first time under chapter 385 of the general laws of 1907. This law provides a method for distribution of money that has been accumulating for years in the state treasury.

Under a state law of 1865 some swamp lands were set aside to be sold for the benefit of state institutions and in 1881 a constitutional amendment was adopted which operated to repeal the law of 1865 and provided that all swamp lands owned by the state should be apportioned equally between the common school fund and the fund for maintenance of all state institutions and the principal of all money received from the sale of such lands should remain intact forever, and only the interest used.

All Interest Money

The money that is being divided now is interest on the proceeds from the sale of the swamp lands set aside under the law of 1865. At the close of the fiscal year of 1906, the principal received from the sale of these lands had reached $780,556.25, and the interest, $57,341.01 and following the intent of the constitutional amendment of 1881 the legislature in 1907 enacted a law providing that half the accumulated interest should go to the common school fund for apportionment in the regular manner, and the other half divided among all state institutions pro rata on the basis of their cost of maintenance for the year preceding the apportionment.

Where Money Goes

Under this law the state auditor has distributed to the state institutions as follows: University, $16,542.92; Anoka asylum, $1,205.61; Hastings asylum $1,441.76; Fergus Falls hospital for the insane, $6,935.35; Rochester hospital $5.972.11; St. Peter hospital, $5,611.67; school for blind $783.02; school for the deaf, $1,895.41; school for the feeble minded $5,648.96; state public school at Owatonna $1,503.90; state training school at Red Wing $2,193.71; St. Cloud reformatory $2,628.72 Stillwater prison $3,958.62; Duluth normal school, $950.82; Mankato normal, $1,230.46; Moorhead Normal $1,168.32; St. Cloud normal $1,211.82; Winona normal $1,261.54.

Under the provisions of the new law the interest will be apportioned annually on the same basis.

PENNED AND PILFERED

Conveyance of Illinois land including the site of Chicago and other lands in the wilderness over 200 years ago by the French explorer Checalier de La Salle in his will just discovered—the first will that conveyed lands in "New France"—recites the property conveyed thus: "All my rights in the country of the Miamis, Illinois and others to the south, together with the establishment which is in the country of the Miamis, in the condition which it shall be at the time of my death, of the Niagara and all the others which I may have founded there, together with all barges, boats and great boats movables and immovables, rights and privileges, rents, lands, buildings and other things belonging to me which shall be found there." The will identifies the testator as "Robert Cavalier Esquire, Sieur de La Salle, Seigneur and Gouvenor of Ft. Frontenac in New France." This daring explorer launched the first vessel except Indian canoes, that ever floated in the Great Lakes and he, thru his rights of discovery, claimed the Illinois land including the present site of Chicago which was also disposed of in the will. The document has been forwarded to Niagara Falls by its finder Representative Porter of New York. M. Francois Piet the cousin of La-Salle was named in the will as the beneficiary. It was thru the services which this cousin rendered to La Salle during the times of pressing need which caused La Salle to give to him these valuable possessions. "Wishing to acknowledge as much as possible the great obligations which I owe to M. Francois Piet, my cousin," he said in the will, "for the signal services which he has rendered me in my most pressing necessities and because it is through his assistance that I have preserved to this time Fort Frontenac I give, grant and transfer to said M. Francois Piet, these presents in case of my death." The will was written in French in Montreal and is dated August 11th, 1681.

Impaired eyesight of the children is the penalty Chicago pays for its failure to keep its streets clean according to Health Commissioner Evans who has just started an examination of the school children. "Five out of ten," said Dr. Evans in speaking about the result of the examination "is rather a startling proportion. "Of course we don't expect that this will be maintained, but as a starter, that examination is impressive to say the least." As a result of the startling out come of the first of the examinations there will be twenty-five more physicians detailed to examine the pupils in twenty five different schools all over the city. Among the ten pupils whose eyesight was found to be defective thru causes attributed to dust laden winds the physician, who had charge of the examination found one pupil who could not read letters one inch high at a distance of six feet. Most of the inspectors reported that the eye troubles among the school children were due to the excessive dust which rises from the macadam streets common in Chicago and which is carried thru the air by high winds which often prevail and gave rise to Chicago's reputation as the "Windy City." Inspectors reported that eye troubles due to the excessive Chicago wind and dust, are found to exist in Chicago in greater proportion than in almost any other city.

MRS. A.A. JUST IS HONORED

CROOKSTON LADY IS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF REBEKAH GRAND LODGE

SECRETARY OF ODD FELLOWS GETS $300 INCREASE IN SALARY

From Friday's Daily—

With the installation and the election of officers of the grand lodges of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Rebekahs finished the second day's session which closes the state convention at Minneapolis the latter holding its session at the Elks' hall an dthe former at the A. O. U. W. hall

The Minnesota Rebekahs elected the following officers.

Mrs. A. A. Just, Crookston, president; Mrs. C. T. Cummings of Minneapolis, vice president; Mrs. Runick Melville of Minneapolis, re-elected secretary; Mrs. Lulu A. Baker of Caston, re-elected treasurer; Mrs. Whittamore of Detroit, re-elected chairman of executive board.

During the session a committee from the Odd Fellows visited the Rebekahs and extended to them greetings. The members of the committee were: Past Grand Master Coville; Past Grand Master Frank Powers and Grand Secretary C. M. Sprague.

The committee from the Northfield home for orphans and elderly Odd Fellows reported that during the year they had received many donations which had kept the home supplied. They urged upon the members of the organization to continue donations.

The mascot of the convention was elected this morning with a unanimous vote. The little daughter of Mrs. Hotaling who was former president was given the honor.

Business matters occupied all of the morning's session of the Odd Fellows The report showed that the cost of the two days' convention has been $3,327, which has been used for the expenses of the representatives which come from different parts of the state.

The officers of the lodge had their salaries raised $200 each. Grand secretary A. L. Bolton, who has been secretary for the past twenty years, was raised from $1,500 to $1,800.

One of the important business transactions during the morning was an increase made in fees. This met with the approval of all and was presented by grand warden.

The election of officers was held at the afternoon session.

Myriad reports constituted the bulk of yesterday's business by both the grand lodge and the Rebekah essembly of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the former meeting in Elks' hall, the latter in A. O. U. W. hall. Today will see the end of the two days' annual session of both bodies, the afternoon meeting closing the conventions, unless as had been anticipated it is found necessary to hold an extra session tonight to dispose of the volume of unexpected business.

The reports submitted before the grand lodge yesterday showed in the main that the lodges over which the grand lodge has jurisdiction are prosperous and growing. New members to the number of 2,156 were added during the year. This was offset by the unfortunate report of the Rebekah assembly that their membership had decreased by 30 during the year, this fact, however having some explanation in the 95 deaths which occurred.

ESTATE VALUED AT $65,000

PROPERTY OF PAUL HAGEN SCATTERED ALL OVER THE CONTINENT

LANDS THRUOUT CANADA AND FAR WEST SWELL THE INVENTORY

From Friday's Daily—

Today there is not a living man that knows the value of the immense property interests of Paul Hagen who died as result of accident in Grand Forks Great Northern yards at ten o'clock in the evening of June 6th last while crawling under a freight car.

Yesterday afternoon Attorney F. C. Massee, August Nelson and Mrs. Lena Hagen, widow of the deceased, all of East Grand Forks gathered in the room of the probate court here and the widow was appointed special administrator of the estate.

On account of the suddenness of his death, Paul Hagen was not able to impart to his wife the condition of the immense property interests that he left behind him.

Popular as this well known resident of East Grand Forks was he was the most quiet and unobtrusive business man of the valley and never intrusted his business to any one man and most of it he never intrusted to anyone at all. Thus may be imagined the difficulties of probating his estate.

The estimate yesterday was at $48,000. Those men most intimate with his business state that he was worth $65,000 when he died.

The list of known property he holds is listed as follows:

Homestead, $3500; other lands $14-500; household goods $300; capital stock $1,000; notes bonds etc., $5100; cash $7655.

The heirs are Lena Hagen, widow; children, Thorvald 16 years; Clara, 14 years; Mabel 12 years and Alfred 7 years.

A WILD RACE WITH TRAIN

TRAVELING MAN COMES FROM FORKS IN 1 HOUR 20 MINUTES BY AUTO

A traveling man was rushed over the highways between Grand Forks and Crookston in some fast time this morning in order that he might catch the Duluth train before it left the Crookston station. He made it—just. The call boy at Hotel Northern in in Grand Forks forgot to call him for the train when it left the Forks and he arose very much indignant and ordered an auto with orders to fly some —which was did. They covered the ground at the rate of a mile every 2 1-2 minutes and there were no boulevards at that.

CAUGHT ON OLD GAME

R. V. ROSENQUIST OF FERTILE DIVORCED FROM $35 IN MINNEAPOLIS

FELL IN AMONG A GANG OF BIG MITT MEN AND BET ON SURE THING

From Friday's Daily—

R. V. Rosenquist of Fertile knows one little story that he is not shouting from the housetops, and it is a real interesting little tale too according to the Minneapolis Journal, which publishes the following account of Mr. Rosenquist's big time in the big cities:

"R. V. Rosenquist, Fertile, thought he was swindled yesterday. He wasn't sure, for the game looked square to him, so he called at police headquarters today to tell Police Superintendent Corriston about a lock scheme in which he lost $35.

"While seeing the sights yesterday he met a young man who took him to Minnehaha Falls. There they found an old lock in the gutter. The stranger discovered a secret spring in the lock which would cause it to open without the use of a key. Up came another stranger who asked to see the lock and incidentally bet $35 that it couldn't be opened.

Rosenquist was overjoyed at this. He covered the money, offering to open the lock in ten seconds. While one man counted the seconds Rosenquist worked. The lock wouldn't open. The stranger claimed the money but while the game was on a third stranger had stepped up. He was a detective, he said, and he threatened to arrest all of them for gambling in the park. Then the three who were in the game separated agreeing to meet at the Milwaukee railway station an hour later.

Rosenquist was the only one who kept the appointment and that fact, he said, caused him to suspect that the game was not entirely on the square. When he left police headquarters to take his train he was convinced that he was swindled but he refused to stay and help the police catch the men.

HER FEET WERE SORE AND CRACKED

Soles Seemed as Though Covered with Knife Cuts—Could Not Bear Weight of Feet Even on Pillow—Was Long Unable to Walk—Many Remedies Failed—Now Cured.

WILL PRAISE CUTICURA AS LONG AS SHE LIVES

"Some four years ago I had the misfortune to have my feet get sore. The doctors could not tell me what it was. I used everything I could hear or think of but all to no avail. The feet were all cracked across the bottom as if you had taken a knife and cut them every whichway. They would peel up, and, oh, my! how they did hurt when I would try to walk — which I was not able to do for a long time. One day one of our neighbors came to our house and asked what was the matter. I showed him my feet and he said he had some Cuticura Ointment which would heal them up. There was only enough to apply once, but I found it helped me so much that I sent for a set of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills, costing one dollar, and to my great joy, my feet were cured and have never troubled me since. I shall praise Cuticura as long as I live for the great help it has been. Mrs. Margaret Primmer, Plattin, Mo., June 30 and July 21, 1907."

Ideal Clover Land

Great changes in the livestock business of the country are foreseen by the packing interests in consequence of the discovery of soil experts of the Department of Agriculture that some 8,000,000 acres of light, sandy soil in the jack pine region of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota can be turned into great clover ranches for cattle, sheep and hogs. The Agricultural Department has issued a bulletin which gives in detail experiments made in the new ways of raising clover on the sandy soils of those states, which will eventually result in adding greatly to their agricultural wealth.

C. Beaman Smith, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, has demonstrated a new manner of planting and cropping clover. Climatic conditions and the abundance of water make the soils, he says, ideal for the purpose of clover growing, a fact which promises to transform in time the cut-over pine lands which now are put to little use for the better grade of live stock can be raised and fattened on these lands. A vast annual saving in transportation cost would be made as well as still greater saving in the losses suffered from exposure and starvation, which at times is severe on the western ranges.

The clover ranch territory of these three states seems likely, in the near future, to have a marked effect on the prices of meat and meat products and in another generation develope new great dairying sections.

Killing by Electricity More Humane Than Hanging.

By Dr. E. C. SPITZKA, Brain Specialist.

THE method employed in electrocution is already generally well known. What is not so much a matter of popular knowledge is the fact that ONLY FROM SIXTY TO SEVENTY SECONDS elapse from the time the prisoner enters the room until he is pronounced dead.

More than this, in every case with which I am familiar the prisoner slept soundly on the night previous, entered the execution room calmly and often smiling, kept a decent silence or broke it only to murmur a prayer or say a pleasant farewell, walked mostly unaided seated himself in the chair and watched with curiosity the strapping of his body thereto.

* * *

Much has been said about life surviving the first contact, but IT DOES NOT SURVIVE. The current is now turned on when the signaling doctors see that the lungs hold the minimum amount of air, for after death what air was in the lungs rushes out and gives the effect, to the layman, of a sigh, which, if any mucus is present, changes to a deceptive gurgle. In only two instances did I notice even any such sign of a respiratory effort. Death was ALWAYS PAINLESS AND INSTANTANEOUS, and consciousness had ceased in a flash.

* * *

For the purpose of comparison, by courtesy of Sheriff Brown, I attended five hangings in Moyamensing prison, and the results, in my mind, are best expressed by that stanza in "The Ballad of Reading Gaol:"

'Tis sweet to dance to violins
When life and love are fair;
To dance to lutes, to dance to flutes,
Is beautiful and rare,
But it is not sweet with nimble feet
To dance upon the air.

THE PREPARATIONS WERE AS SPEEDY AS IN THE ELECTROCUTIONS OF WHICH I HAVE SPOKEN, BUT AFTER THE DROP FELL THEN FOLLOWED A PERIOD OF STRUGGLING AGONY WHICH CAN BE BETTER IMAGINED THAN DESCRIBED.

* * *

In nearly every instance the heart continued to beat for thirteen minutes, and in only one—that of Mok Kung, who really died of a sort of apoplexy—was there no movement after the drop. In all other cases there were CONSCIOUS EFFORTS TO BREATHE, struggles of the manacled hands to free themselves and reach the strangling neck, bitter contortions of the feet, tied though they were, in an endeavor to find support. The men literally "danced upon the air."

These struggles continued for a minute. Sometimes they kept up for a minute and a half. Often the sight was such that SPECTATORS FAINTED.

FINALLY I PERFORMED AUTOPSIES ON THE BODIES OF FIVE MEN EXECUTED BY HANGING. THE BODIES WERE SENT TO THE JEFFERSON HOSPITAL, AND I HAD EVERY OPPORTUNITY FOR THOROUGH INVESTIGATION. IN NOT ONE CASE WAS THERE A BROKEN NECK, AND IN ALL DEATH HAD BEEN DIRECTLY DUE TO STRANGULATION.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF W.C.T.U.

SPLENDID PROGRAM CARRIED OUT AT THE DISTRICT MEETING AT ADA

OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE GATHERING WITH INTERESTING DETAILS

From Wednesday's Daily—

The Journal on Saturday last published a brief report of the District convention of the W. C. T. U. held at Ada, giving the officers elected etc., the detailed report not being available at that time. It is with pleasure that the Journal gives space to the official report of the convention which is published below in full:

The Twentieth Annual convention of the Fourteenth District Woman's Christian Temperance Union met in Ada Thursday and Friday June eleventh and twelfth.

The district is composed of Roseau Kittson, Marshall, Polk, Norman, Beltrami, Red Lake and Clearwater counties, but only Marshall, Polk and Norman counties have unions organized.

Miss Rosette Hendrix of Minneapolis was convention speaker. At the first meeting of the session she urged "a creating of public sentiment this year as there is a greater interest in temperance now than ever before. Work with the children and young people as many will listen to the children who would not to the older people. The saloons are putting up a hard fight, and we must fight too. It is true 'the wicked flee where no man pursueth' but it is also true they run a great deal faster when some one is after them, so let us be everlastingly after them."

Thursday Afternoon

The roll call of Unions was responded to by "victory notes" the keynote of the convention being "victory." Reports of Unions had many encouraging accounts of the work done during the past year. Rev. Hinderlie of Ada spoke on "How can the Church Best Enlist its Membership in an Aggressive Warfare against the Liquor Traffic." He said: "It meant something to belong to Christ's church and as church members we should do the work Christ would have us do in lifting up the fallen."

Miss Hinderlie in speaking for our national paper the Union Signal said one man told her the Washington letter, printed every week during the session of congress was alone worth the price of the paper. Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Bayrell spoke on "What it Means to be a Reader of the Union Signal" and "What it Means to Deprive Myself of the Union Signal." and both decided if we were to do effectual work we must have our paper.

Thursday Evening

The delegates and visitors were made very welcome by the city, the school board, the local W. C. T. U., the clergy, high school and medical fraternity. Miss Hendrix gave an address on "The Cost and Results of Liquor Traffic."

Friday Morning

The following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. Lucy Chapin Euclid.

Vice Pres.—Mrs. Ellen Crawford, Ada.

Sec.—Mrs. Gertrude Le Due, Fertile.

Treas.—Mrs. Mary Andrews, Ada.

The Superintendents appointed were: Medal Contest, Miss Esther Ballard, Warren; L. T. L., Miss Rose Sorenson, Fertile; Evangelistic and Sabbath Observance, Mrs. Gertrude Le Due, Fertile; Scientific Temperance Instruction, Mrs. Nellie Boyce, Argyle.

Friday Afternoon

The topic for discussion was Opportunities in the temperance work and excellent papers were given on The Home, Mrs. Tenny, Ada; The Sunday School, Mrs. Bayrell, Argyle; The School, Miss Esther Ballard, Warren; The Church, Rev. Symons, Ada.

In behalf of the Fourteenth District Mrs. Crawford presented Mrs. Bayrell and Mrs. Bailey each a Bible as a small token of remembrance.

Mrs. Bayrell until last year had served the district sixteen years as their president. She leaves for Minneapolis Friday evening. Mrs. Bailey who has been our president the past year, expects to leave in a few weeks for Montana. The Fourteenth District will lose two loyal faithful workers.

The drill on state minutes gave all a chance to have a good laugh. Miss Hendrix asked Mrs. Bayrell and Mrs. Crawford to "chose sides" and it did not take her long to "spell them all down." Mrs. Bayrell won the right to enter the contest at State Convention by "standing" the longest.

The evening program consisted of recitations by Mrs. Le Due and Mrs. Bayrell and a short address by Miss Hendrix. Most excellent music was furnished by the High School Chorus and the Lutheran choir with a duet by Misses Fulton and Patterson.

The Ada Union royally entertained the delegates and visitors at the beautiful home of Senator Hanson, Friday evening. It is needless to say all enjoyed the hospitality so generously bestowed and left with the kindliest of feeling for the Ada ladies and their husbands. Yes and the children too.

Seventeen delegates were present.

RINGDAHL MAY LEAD THE DEMS

MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL REFERS TO HIM AS GUBERNATORIAL TIMBER

PROMINENT AND ABLE CROOKSTON RESIDENT RESIDENT MAY HEAD THE TICKET

From Monday's Daily—

Governor Johnson's flat declaration that he will not be a candidate for a third term and that he would not accept the nomination for the office of governor if it were unanimously offered, has inspired new activity among the democrats of the state and there are strong indications of a lively primary campaign.

In forecasting this declaration from Governor Johnson several days ago Frank Day secretary to the governor and chairman of the state democratic committee, declared that in proper time the democrats would put forward a candidate in some quarters as indicating that possibly the leaders already have a man in mind; but if such be the case they have not communicated their selection to the rank and file of the party and in two days that have intervened since Governor Johnson declared his position, many names have been mentioned.

Two Minneapolis Men

Prominent among those who have been mentioned as timber is Judge F. V. Brown of the Hennepin county district court, whose strength as a vote getter was demonstrated in the last general election and who is well known among the democrats of the state. Mayor J. C. Haynes also is receiving favorable consideration, and has many friends in the state organization.

There has been considerable talk about Thomas D. O'Brien of St. Paul not only in the last few days, but even before Governor Johnson issued his statement. Mr. O'Brien's administration of the state insurance commissioner's office and his prominence in the railroad rate litigation earned him a reputation for doing things and many of his fellow democrats feel that he would make a strong candidate. Since the election in St. Paul this spring when Daniel W. Lawler was elected mayor of that city by a large majority. Mr. Lawler has attracted some attention as a gubernatorial possibility.

Some Outside Men

Regarding other candidates the Minneapaolis Journal says.

"Men outside the Twin Cities who are being considered are Frank A. Day of Fairmont who as secretary to Governor Johnson has taken a prominent part in the present administration; W. S. Hammond of St. James now congressman from the second Minnesota district; William Gausewitz of Owatonna former state senator and P. M. Ringdal of Crookston a member of the state board of control. Mr. Ringdal's name was mentioned early in the campaign and at that time he said that he was not in any sense a candidate but it is considerered possible that the uncertainty of the democrats of the state at that time as to Governor Johnson's course may have had something to do with Mr. Ringdal's position, and that now he may feel differently about entering the contest. It is not at all clear that the governorship would have any inducements for Mr. Hammond but many of his friends are trying to start a boom for him."

Mr. Ringdal has long been considered one of the most able men in the state, and is also well posted on affairs political. He has never been an office seeker, however, and it is not known whether or not he would resign as a member of the State Board of Control to head the state Democratic ticket.

TIME IS THE TEST

The Testimony of Crookston People Stands the Test

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public soon finds out when misrepresentations are made, and merit alone will stand the test of time.

Crookston people appreciate merit and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just a srepresented? A cure that lasts is the kind that every sufferer from kidney ills is looking for.

Mrs. Benj. Champagne of 322 Spendley St. Crookston, Minn., says: "I can just as enthusiastically endorse Doan's Kidney Pills today as I did six years ago. At that time they proved of great benefit to me in banishing a dull, annoying baokache which clung to me despite my earnest endeavors to get rid of it. When Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention I procured a box at the Wallace drug store. I found relief from the first dose or two and soon the pains in my back were entirely removed. The difficulty with the kidneys was also ended and I was improved in every way. Up to date the relief has remained permanent."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Sensitive Plants

Did you know that there are plants so sensitive that if, when standing by them, you should suddenly put up your umbrella or sunshade, it would be quite sufficient to cause them to instantly close together their leaflets and turn down their leaf-stalks, just as if they were startled or alarmed by the movement? Did you know that a pure malt tonic such as golden grain belt beer is essential to perfect health? Serve this delicious liquid bread at mealtime and pure health and strength into your system. COUNTERFEIT COIN AFLOAT

MANY SPURIOUS DOLLARS ARE PASSED ON CROOKSTON BUSINESS HOUSES

SPLENDID IMITATIONS, WEIGHT CORRECT AND THEY HAVE PROPER RING

From Wednesday's Daily—

Thus far 15 counterfeit silver dollars have turned up among the business houses of Crokston since yesterday morning. As to who is passing them there is not the slightest clue as yet, as none of those who have been caught by the crooks have the least idea who duped them. The police is working on the case however and there will be no more of it passed in Crookston as all the business men have been notified to watch the money taken in carefully.

The counterfeit is a very clever piece of work, far above the ordinary. The coin is exactly the proper weight, and has a ring so nearly true that none but an expert could detect it.

MARKS NEW ERA IN DAIRY DEVELOPEMENT IN VALLEY

Over 125,00 pounds of butter was shipped from Crookston yesterday to the big industrial centers.

Two solid carloads are sent to Chicago in special cars. Twin cities, Alexandria, and Duluth get shipments.

Yesterday marked a new era in the development of the dairy industry in Northern Minnesota in-as-much as a new high mark was set in the shipment of butter from this point to the big markets, there having been a total of 125,000 pounds chipped from this city in one day. Two solid carloads were shipped in special Burlington cars to Chicago, containing 75,000 pounds, and shipments of 10,000 pounds or over were made to Duluth, St. Paul and Alexandria with smaller shipments to other points.

The value f. o. b. Crookston, was between $25,000 and $30,000, which was the largest by several thousand dollars ever shipped from this point. All this butter was made in and about Crookston and on branch lines in this immediate vicinity and goes to show the wonderful development of the dairy industry in this section the past few years specially the past year.

One reason for the marked increase in the output of butter this spring is the splendid pasturage afforded. The frequent rains have kept the grass tender as a result of rapid growth and the cows have not been pestered with mosquitoes because of the cool weather and prevailing breezes.

In addition to this there have been over a score of new creameries established in this immediate vicinity during the past four months, thus encouraging the farmers to pay more attention to the production of milk.

Another encouraging feature is the fact that the farmers have discovered that clover can be successfully raised in this section, and that fodder corn can be produced to fill silos, thus giving a better flow of milk during the winter months than was possible under the old regime.

In addition to the wonderful increase in the production of butter the shipments of cream to the Twin Cities and Duluth from Crookston and the branch lines has more than trebled during the past year according to the records of the express companies so that the net income from the cows of the valley is fully double what it was a year ago.

From Wednesday's Daily—

Lake City, Minn., June 17—(Special to the Journal)—The Third regiment of the state national guard arrived in Lake City. The train was in two sections of 11 care each. The unloading was accomplished with dispatch and before evening the men were all settled and the drills had commenced. The Co. I boys are all feeling fine.

The Third regiment is now well established in camp and will be here for ten days. ELIAS STEENERSON'S ADDRESS AT CONVENTION

IN HIS ADDRESS BEFORE THE STATE ASSOCIATION OF POSTMASTERS MR. STEENERSON RECOUNTED SOME INTERESTING EARLY HISTORY OF MINNESOTA SHOWING THE WONDERFUL DEVELOPMENTS THAT HAS TAKEN PLACE IN A FEW YEARS—MADE SUGGESTIONS FOR IMPROVEMENT OF THE POSTAL SERVICE—ONE OF THE BEST ADDRESSES AT THE CONVENTION

From Saturday's Daily—

The addresses of Postmaster Elias Steenerson at the annual meeting of the State Association of Postmasters in St. Paul the forepart of the week attracted unusual attention not only because of suggestions as to improvement of the service but because there was a "boosting Minnesota" strain thru his remarks. Though following such men as Representatives Stevens Nye and Tawney U. S. Senator Clapp and Second Assistant Postmaster General J. T. McCleary the address of Mr. Steenerson commanded the closest attention. His address in full follows:

Steenerson's Address

Mr. President and Fellow Postmasters:

The committee on arrangements has seen fit to place me on the program which I regard as an honor and especially so for it is a fact that my inclination in the matter has not been taken into consideration.

I have so to speak been drafted into the service. It is with reluctance that I comply, inasmuch as I am a new man in the postal service compared with many of you old war horses of Uncle Sam as I have yet to complete my first term in office. However I assure you that I am not as young as I look and from that fact and from the fact that this seems to be a case where the office seeks the man I take courage and trust that I may have your confidence and indulgence while I talk to you, in my humble way upon the antics and intricacies of the subject alloted to me.

Progress and Efficiency

We are a progressive nation and a progressive state. To meet the postmasters of the state of Minnesota is a great pleasure and that it will result in our mutual benefit and promote the efficiency of the postal service. I sincerely hope and I am here, fellow postmasters, to stand shoulder to shoulder with you for progress and efficiency.

Early Memories

In my time the state of Minnesota developed from a territory of less than 50,000 population to its present population of more than two million. I can remember when St. Paul was but a small place up the river known best by reason of its proximity to Fort Snelling.

I can remember when the Sioux Indians raided the settlers along the Minnesota river and the postmaster's scalp was sought by them as well as the politician's; I can remember when the grass hopper feasted on the promising crop of the struggling pioneer; I can remember the Red River Valley with its alluvial soil and broad acres before a furrow was turned. I remember the forest primeval of Beltrami Co., where Chief Bemidji wooed his dusky maid and built his wigwam on the sandy beach of the head of the Mississippi, where the thriving town of Bemidji is now located and our friends Anton Erickson now presides as postmaster enjoying all the luxuries of a second class postmaster and a free delivery system.

The Transparent Envelope

In view of all these facts why should I not take courage and obey the mandate of our worthy president. The subject allotted to me is "The Transparent Envelope". I believe the reason for selecting said subject is that of late the transparent envelope has become an annoyance to Postmasters and postal clerks and a discussion is desired for the purpose if possible to get rid of the trouble. It is easy to find fault but quite another thing to mend it and apply a remedy. If I am able at this time to say some thing that may lead to a reform in the line of what the subject suggests I shall feel endorsed as I realize that the snags the Postmasters are apt to run up against are not easily up-rooted

Two Species

Transparent envelopes are of two species we may say. One of them is I believe patented. It is an ordinary envelope with a hole in the address side an inch and a half wide and about five inches long on which is pasted a piece of transparent paper which allows the writing inside to show thru and is used in sending out bills, the name of the debtor so placed on the bill as when folded and enclosed it will form the address and thus save the sender from writing the address on the envelope, a great saving of work as well as a protection against the mistake of placing the bill in the wrong envelope. They sell, I am told for $1.90 per 1000 which is about 66 cents per 1000 more than the government charges for return card envelopes. They are evidently a desirable envelope for those using them.

A Yankee Invention

I am told that they were invented by a Yankee a few years ago and he sold his right to make them for $500,000. So I was told by an agent for a fountain pen who said he had once met the inventor on the train between Springfield and Boston. If in your judgment two Yankees can be believed in a case of this kind you do so, I have no further evidence of the affair. This kind however is not the one that causes the most trouble and for fear of disturbing vested rights we had better tolerate them.

The Troublesome Kind

The other kind of transparent envelopes are those used to enclose ornamental postal cards. They are in themselves as inoffensive as any other envelope or piece of paper that we have to deal with but the manner they are used has made them quite unpopular with our fraternity.

I sincerely hope the time is not far distant when the feud between these innocent envelopes and the troubled postmaster may be completely obliterated.

The cause of the feud does not originate with the postmasters nor the envelopes but in the ever present push and energy of the American people and the ever allert official of the post office department who always seeks to satisfy the wants of the public by construing the law to fit the demands justly made upon them.

An Opening Left

As I gather it order number 98 dated February 16, 1907 was provoked by danger of postoffice employes in the handling of ornamental cards from the presence of poisonous substances in the coloring and the order winds up by stating that such cards shall be excluded from the mails except when enclosed in suitable envelopes. This left an opening for a further ruling as to what is a suitable envelope. The manufacturer naturally taking it for granted that a suitable envelope was one in his judgment adopted to purpose consequently we have the post card with the direction in the upper right hand corner "Place postage stamp here" and a transparent envelope to cover it with.

An Easy Error

Very naturally the well meaning sender did as directed put the stamp on the card and then took the envelope and puts the card inside of it not realizing that by so doing he not only made it first class matter if it had a message of writing on it but also obstructed the cancellation of the stamp The card thus becoming stalled in the office to be treated as matter without postage and if not able to secure postage from addressee will be finally sent to the dead letter office.

Expects a Remedy

This annoying condition has not existed very long and I have no doubt a remedy will soon be found. There are many things we as postmasters have to contend with in a similar line and I am free to say I have observed a great deal of improvement in the service in such matters in the brief period I have been in the srvice. I am of the opinion that we need to apply some of the cheap and indespensible salve which a certain clergyman advised his wife to use when she suffered from a broken limb. The name of said salve—"Patience."

Rich Man and Lazarus

You have all read the parable in Scripture about the rich man in affluence who refused to alleviate the pangs of hunger of poor Lazarus and when they both went beyond the condition became reversed and he saw Lazarus in Abraham's bosom and he asked him to go back and tell his brothers and relations of the mistake he had made. Abraham answered "They have the Law and the Prophets let them hear them." Thus it is with us postmasters.

We have the postal laws and regulations and the guides; let us observe them. During my charge of a postoffice I have learned to respect the wisdom of said laws, regulations and the orders in its guides. I have learned to respect the wisdom of Congress and how many times admired their ability and skill. I am therefore reluctant to suggest remedies to fancied ills for fear that the remedy might turn out to be worse than the evil.

Would Abolish 4th Class

It would seem however that so long as I have consented to speak upon the subject without some suggestion to reform were made the talk would be a waste of time. Let me then suggest a reform which may correct not only the transparent envelope evil but other evils which it seems to me originate in the same cause. I refer to the classification, I believe congress and the department have been too technical in their rulings with regard to the postal and post cards. I believe the time is at hand when Congress like Alexander the Great will rise to the occasion and cut the Gordian knot with reference to Classification and make everything that is not first and second class, third class and place all postals, post cards and unsealed letters third class and do away with fourth class altogether and return all matter to the writer if not called for if possible to do so.

Postcard Red Tape

There is more red-tape and hair splitting laws regarding postcards than any other subject and it is time that a reform is inaugurated. Such a reform may be a compromise with those who clamor for the parcel post and a one cent postage rate a step in the direction of their ideals and a step in the direction of simplifying the rating problem. An ideal, the coming of which I believe both the public and postal officials will receive with open arms.

In conclusion I wish to say we ought to be appreciative of the ability of our delegation in Congress. Our state ranks high in the galaxy of states of our nation and our delegation is equal if not superior to any of them.

Never in the history of congress has there been such wholesome and progressive legislation with regard to postal service. They have responded to every reasonable demand for increase of pay for clerks and carriers, rural as well as city. They have revised the method of railway mail pay resulting in large savings to our country. They have had a commission at work to improve the method of the workings of the service which has made thorough investigation which will no doubt result in further improvements. They have kept pace with the demand for public buildings by liberal appropriations. In view of all this I believe we Postmasters as well as the whole state have reason to be satisfied and show our appreciation. I thank you for your attention.

HOMESTEADED BY CONGRESS

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE RECEIVES NOTIFICATION FROM WASHINGTON

OF PATENTS GRANTED BY SPECIAL ACT—WIDOW GETS LAND

From Thursday's Daily—

The Crookston U. S. land office received this morning from the general land office at Washington notice of the granting of three patents by special act of congress in the last session.

Direct grant of a patent was made by congress to a widow, Mrs. Gertrude Halvorson Aaby on 80 acres in section 27 town 148 range 38 near the city of Bagley. The widow made proof here at the Crookston land office and then the proof was declared invalid on account of the fact that her husband had filed on land before and had no right to this entry which was made by him.

The homestead entry of Walter H. Quist was declared to be invalid when he came to make proof on account of previous entry. The entry and previous entry were made in this district Congress granted a patent to the claimholder.

In both of these cases the parties making the entry also spent considerable time and money in the improvement of their homesteads and had lived up to all the other requirements of the law.

By another section of the same bill Carrie Jeglem now of Kelley, N. D., was granted a proof on a homestead near Strathcona. Her proof was approved at the Crookston land office when she made final proof on the claim, but was rejected at the United States general land office at Washington on the grounds that her proof did not show full fourteen months residence immediately preceding the application for the patent.

The bill was introduced from the public lands committee in the house of representatives of which Congressman Steenerson of Crookston is a member.

Mrs. S. L. Bowen of Wayne, W. Va., writes: "I was a sufferer from kidney disease, so that at times I could not get out of bed, and when I did I could not stand straight. I took Foley's Kidney Remedy. One dollar bottle and part of the second cured me entirely." Foley's Kidney Remedy works wonders where others are a total failure. Sold by all druggists.

DAIRY CENSUS VALUABLE

SURPRISING RESULT OF CENSUS SHOWING YIELDS FROM HERDS

BROTHER OF A. O. STORVICK OF THIS CITY GIVES RESULTS

From Saturday's Daily—

That a cow consus is a good thing for the farmer in that it calls his attention to the results accomplished by his herd is shown by the report of a cow census taken by T. A. Storvick buttermaker for the creamery at Lake Mills, Iowa. The census was taken among the herds of the farmers supplying milk to the creamery and showed a difference in the returns to the several farmers some cows producing more than five times as much butter fat in a year as others in the same neighborhood.

Mr. Storvick is a brother of O. A. Storvick, an inspector in the Minnesota dairy and food department located at Crookston, who has for several years been urging farmers to adopt the system of taking an annual cow census. He insists that the best results cannot be obtained unless the farmer knows just what his cows are accomplishing and that when this information is obtained the farmer is in a position to improve his herd so as to increase its moneymaking qualities.

M. Storvick of Iowa acted on the suggestion and started to take a cow census of all the herds supplying milk to his creamery. He did not get complete returns but he got results from 187 herds, and his report contains the following information:

"Number of herds reporting, 187; number of herds producing over 200 pounds of butter fat per cow per year 3; 150 pounds 12; 125 pounds 46; 100 pounds 100; less than 100 pounds 87. The best herd produced 262 pounds butter fat per cow and returned to its owner $79.14 per cow. The poorest herd produced 38 pounds butter fat per cow and returned the owner $9.28 per cow, a difference of $69.86 per cow While I am not acquainted with the conditions at either of the farms, there certainly must be a difference in caring for the cows in order to make this large difference in returns.'

"The cows in both these herds had to be kept 365 days in the year, so the cost of keeping should be about the same, neither of the herds being grain fed. The only difference, if any is the extra work in caring for them, and allowing $5 per cow for this extra work we find that a cow producing 262 pounds of butter fat at $30, estimated cost of keeping, has charged 11 1-2 cents to produce one pound of butter fat, while the cow producing 38 pounds of butter fat per cow at $25 the cost of keeping, has charged 60 1-2 cents to produce one pound of butter fat. One patron receives a good net return on his investment and the other had been better off not knowing what cows were.

"The price you receive for butter fat indicates what the creamery is doing. But it does not indicate the poor cows you are keeping at a big loss to produce that fat. It does not indicate your lack if knowledge in feeding and handling cows is that they cannot be profitable.

THE REDSKIN AND HOW HE PERFORMS AT CIRCUS

TAKES SPECIAL INTEREST IN THE ELEPHANTS IS ALWAYS MANIFESTED BY THE BRAVES WHILE THE SQUAWS TAKE A SPECIAL DELIGHT IN THE CLOWNS AND FREQUENTLY MAKE THEM VALUABLE PRESENTS—THE HIPPOPOTAMUS EXCITES THE DEEPEST HATRED OF THE ABORIGINES AND HAVE TO BE GUARDED TO KEEP THEM FROM DOING HARM TO THE MONSTER

"With the exception of the elephants, there is nothing on earth that will make the red-skinned, untutored Indian sit up and take notice as quick as the clowns. These light hearted crazy quilts of circusdom seem to tickle the Indian joy rib at every stage of the game," said a representative of Ringlings Brothers' World's Greatest Shows, which are to exhibit here on Monday (afternoon only) June 29.

"Yes sir," he continued, "In the far West, where the circus exhibits every two years, there are several towns which seem virtually bounded on the North, South, East and West by Indians and it is while playing these points that the tepee lords and families have opportunity to wheat their amusement appetite. Out in that country, the Ringling herd of 40 elephants and bevy of 50 clowns receive no limited amount of attention. To the Indians, an elephant is a kind of Chinese puzzle, and they would stand all day feeding the two-tailed critters if the keepers did not shoo them into the big top. One season while showing at Pocatello, Idaho, Chief Big Horn became so attached to Boo, an elephant of tender years that he offered to trade his squaw for the pet. Now the deal might have been approved of by Boo, had she had any voice in the matter, for she liked the brute immensely and raised a terrible fuss when parted from her friend. Strange as it may appear, it is a fact that elephants like Indians. The big brutes will carry on like an affectionate child every time they behold a redskin heading their way.

"The squaws do not take so kindly to the peanut eaters, owing to their timid nature. Clowns are their hobby. To the lady of raven locks and copper complexion, the circus cutup it IT in every sense of the word, and she will become as mushy as a healthy cream puff every time one appears. In the land of alkali and sage brush, where flowers are scarcer than hen's teeth, the squaws do not honor their favorites with bouquets, but bestow dainty creations of bead work instead Like their pale face sisters of the East, they are very enthusiastic. On circus day they fuss up their faces in true feminine fashion and sail forth as gay a bunch of loveliness as ever worshipped at the matinee idol's shrine. Of course these little ladies do not munch chocolates or split their gloves applauding; no siree! When a clown wins squaw approbation he is rewarded with a shower of beaded moccasins, handbags, belts and trinkets. These little ladies have been known to work like beavers for weeks preparing articles to toss at their favorites. I remember one instance where an Indian princess became so enthused over a clown act that she tossed her jacket into the hippodrome. This piece of finery was heavily decorated with elks' teeth and valued at $600.

"Indians as a rule are liberal spenders. They save considerable money for circus day and buy reserved seats with the same ease a member of the Standard Oil ring displays when attending grand opera. Of course there are some Indians who are not in a position to travel first class, but the percent is very small. These unfortunates come to town on show day and content themselves with viewing the parade or visiting the side shows. While there is always something good in every life, there also exists a drop of bad blood, and that particular drop becomes a bubbling fountain whenever an Indian passes the hippopotamus den. Say, if there is anything, animal or otherwise, that will cause an Indian to finger his shooting iron, it's the liberal mouthed 'hip.' Just why the Red Man can't go the animal is more than we have been able to learn. but it is a double clamped cinch there exists a terrible hatred. On several occasions, while playing the West, Ringling Brothers have been compelled to order the hippo's den closed for fear of the animal being harmed by his red-skinned, blanket wearing enemy."

Life

The poet's exclamation: "Oh life! I feel thee bounding in my veins," is a joyous one. Persons that can rarely or never make it, in honesty to themselves are among the most unfortunate. They do not live, but exist; for to live implies more than to be. To live is to be well and strong—to arise feeling equal to the ordinary duties of the day, and to retire not overcome by them—to feel life bounding in the veins. A medicine that has made thousands of people, men and women, well and strong, has accomplished a great work, bestowing the richest blessings, and that medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. The weak, run-down, or debilitated, from any cause, should not fail to take it. It builds up the whole system, changes existence into life, and makes life more abounding. We are glad to say these words in its favor to the readers of our columns.

It's so much easier to pray for forgiveness than to fight against temptation.

STATEMENT BY GOV. JOHNSON

MINNESOTA EXECUTIVE DECLARES HE WILL NOT ACCEPT RENOMINATION

CONFIRMS THE ANNOUNCEMENT MADE BY FRANK A. DAY FEW DAYS AGO

From Saturday's Daily—

Governor Johnson yesterday killed the last flickering hope of democratic office holders, by the declaration that he would not accept a renomination. He made it emphatic and final.

The interview given out by Frank A. Day early in the week had a purpose. It was to prepare the way for the declaration made today. The governor returned from Kansas where he delivered the state university commencement address and immediately corroborated Day's statement by issuing the follow ing interview.

"The statement made by Mr. Day to the effect that I would not again be a candidate for the office of governor is correct in every particular. Under no circumstances will I be a candidate for a renomination. Not only will I not be a candidate but I would not accept the nomination if it were unanimously tendered me. appreciate the signal distinction which has been conferred upon me by the democratic party and the people of Minnesota in two nominations and two elections to this office and I am mindful of the obligation which I owe to the people of this commonwealth but I do not believe in the third term principle as applied to the office of governor and I am influenced in this decision by considerations generally which would make it impossible for me to arrive at any other conclusion.

"My reason for making this statement at this time is that there may be no political embarrassment because of any indefiniteness as to my position."

Johnson's transition will be from the capitol to the lecture platform. He is already under engagement for a series of summer Chautauqua dates at $200 a lecture to be followed by a winter tour and the only thing that will interfere with this program will be Johnson's nomination for president at Denver.

In order to meet in the midst of the strawberry season, the Minnesota State Horticultural society has called its summer meeting for June 23. It should give the northern fruit growers a chance to show their early varieties, the southern men to show their late varieties, and the central section will be in the middle of the season.

The summer meet will be held at the state experiment station. St. Anthony Park. Fruit exhibited will be served at luncheon after it has been judged.

While the meeting is primarily for the study of fruits, considerable attention will be given to flowers and particularly to roses and peonies for which many prizes are offered. The management is anxious for a large floral display and invites private growers to exhibit, even tho they have only one variety.

Samuel B. Green of the experiment station is president of the society and A. W. Latham of Minneapolis is secretary.

BREAKS HER ARM TWICE IN ACCIDENT

Eva Fairchild residing on South Fourth street was the victim of another serious accident yesterday. Two weeks ago a bone in one of her arms was broken when she tripped on the sidewalk. Yesterday when the doctor was about to come to take off the splints she had another fall and not only broke the arm where it was broken two weeks ago but sustained a new fracture. Within a year she had her shoulder dislocated and so she thinks she has had more than her share of accidents.—Grand Forks Herald.

THINK HE WAS MURDERED

BODY OF UNKNOWN MAN FOUND ALONG SOO TRACK NEAR PAYNESVILLE

INDICATIONS ARE THAT HE WAS THROWN FROM THE FAST PASSENGER

From Friday's Daily—

An unknown man, who may have been murdered was found along the Soo tracks near Barnesville, at an early hour yesterday morning. The find was made by two tramps who flagged the thru freight and turned the remain over to the train crew. The railroad men in turn took the body to Paynesville, where it was given to the authorities.

The authorities at Paynesville believe that the man was murdered. There were no bruises whatever to show that he had been run over by a train and the general theory is that he was thrown off a passenger. Other than a ticket to St. Paul which was found in his pocket there was nothing to identify the remains.

The tramps who found the body state that it lay about ten feet from the rails and in the ditch.

The man had been dead but a few hours and it is the belief that he was aboard the passenger which arrives at Paynesville early in the morning.

A description of the dead man has been sent to St. Paul authorities in an attempt to learn his identity. The unknown was well dressed and had every appearance of a man who had prospered.

CASTS GOLD FOR TEETH

DR. ROBERTSON OF CROOKSTON ATTENDS STATE DENTAL ASSOCIATION

DR. W. H. TAGGART OF CHICAGO DEMONSTRATES NEW DENTAL DISCOVERY

Dr. W. A. Robertson of Crookston returned yesterday morning from St. Paul where he had been attending the annual meeting of the State Dental Association. While in attendance on the meeting he witnessed the demonstration made by Dr. W. H. Taggert of Chicago of Taggert's new method of casting gold, which process has revolutionized dentistry. An impression in wax is taken of the prepared cavity of a tooth to be filled, this placed in a mold the mold is then shaped as the tooth is desired to be and the gold is forced into the mold by air pressure. Dr. Taggert cast flowers and other delicate filaments before the meeting which was very enthusiastic.

Dr. Robertson with a company of 12 dined with Dr. Taggert in his honor at Carlings after the meet had adjourned.

By his machine with air pressure Dr. Taggert has succeeded in increasing the specific gravity materially.

BADGE GAVE INDIANS SCARE

COMMERCIAL TRAVELER TELLS OF EXPERIENCE AT OMEGA, MINN.

MUST NOT SELL LIQUOR TO ANY INDIANS ON RESERVATION

From Wednesday's Daily— ...

Commercial travelers arriving in the city from the north tell of a scare that Food Inspector Heiberg threw into a bunch of Indians and a bartender at Omega east of Thief River on the reservation.

Inspector Heiberg struck Ogema quietly on the soft pedal as usual and in course of business dropped into a saloon. He found several Indians there and while hesitating at one side one of the Indians stepped up to the bartender and spoke in Indian. Then the barkeep says, "You're a Norwegian aint you?" The Indian answering the affirmative the barkeep handed over the liquid.

"Say" said Inspector Heiberg, "don't you know that it is against the laws of the government to sell liquors to Indians?"

At the same moment the wind from a nearby door blew back the skirts of the inspector's coat and revealed the big badge of his office that he wears.

The barkeep turned white as a sheet and grasped the edge of the bar for support and then made a wild race for the door and disappeared followed by several wild Indians, leaving the inspector in possession.

A posse had to be sent out far into the woods after the runaway barkeep and an hour or two spent in allaying his thrill and combing his hair down.

Strict government orders have gone into effect preventing the sale of liquor to Indians whether government Indians or any other kind of Indians on government or bordering on government soil.

WINTER RYE A WINNER

N. C. HANSON SAYS IT IS A MOST PROFITABLE CROP TO RAISE

AND IS AT THE SAME TIME AN ERADICATOR OF ALL FOUL WEEDS

From Monday's Daily—

From present indications winter rye will soon be one of the leading crops of the Red River Valley. Several farmers in this section have been experimenting with it for several years past and have made a signal success of it. The crop this year is exceptionally fine and will be ready for harvest early in July.

N. C. Hanson residing three miles west of the city on the south side of the river has several beautiful fields this year. The rye is all headed out, and has been for the past ten days. It stands four feet high and the heads are long and well filled. Mr. Hanson sowed the rye the first part of September last year and believes that is the proper time to sow it in this latitude It attained a good growth last fall and before killing frosts came he turned his cattle and sheep onto it and it made most excellent pasturage and makes a better crop when so pastured than when allowed to freeze down.

With the first approach of spring it shot up and is so hardy that hard frosts did not phase it in the least and it will be harvested and the ground plowed before any other crops are ready for the harvest this year and he intends plowing the land a second time later in the fall, so the land will virtually be sumer fallowed and in prime condition for a banner wheat crop another year. A sample of Mr. Hanson's rye can be seen in the Journal window.

But the success of the crop is but half the story. The rye crop if properly handled is far more effective in cleaning the land of foul weeds than two summer fallowings according to Mr. Hanson who is a thoroly practical farmer and others who have raised the crop. Because of the early start it gets in the spring it chokes out mustard, king head and all other weeds and foul growths.

The land which Mr. Hanson cropped to rye this year was literally yellow last year with mustard. This year not a dozen stalks of mustard can be found in the whole field. Two crops of rye on another field completely eradicated the mustard and all other foul seeds.

Another year will see thousands of acres of winter rye harvested in the Red River Valley as scores of farmers are preparing to sow rye next September. The land should be well cultivated or manured to make the crop a certain success.

Harrington of the School of Agriculture at the State Experimental farm near Crookston has returned from a tour of the southwestern part of the state where he has been doing farmers' institute and summer school work since school closed here early in the spring. VOL. XXXIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY JUNE 25, 1908 NO. 9

HEIRS OF SUICIDE CANNOT BE LOCATED

Attorney Clough searches in Chicago for Amelia Ark, heir to valuable property in the north. country.

Attorney Eugene D. Clough of Crookston is searching the intricate geography of Chicago for Mrs. Emilia Ark and Mrs. Minna Huber (or Fluber) who are the only surviving heirs of C. E. Alfred Foelsh, a homesteader found dead in the township of Huss February a year ago.

About noon February 16, 1907 while the meditative John Bystrom, town clerk of the township of Huss in Roseau county was nodding on his back porch, John Whalen, a homesteader ran headlong thru the bush up to him and told breathlessly of his finding out in the pines Alfred Foelsh dead in his cabin a shotgun between his legs.

The town clerk rushed posthaste thru the country, gathering from all sides the homesteaders of the locality and they found Foelsh's dead body laying prone on the floor his head covered with blood and the wall covered with his brains.

Crumpled up and to one side of the body, laying as if it had dropped from the table was found this missive written in Norwegian:

"Dear Sisters: When you receive these lines I will not be among the living.

God is a mild and just ruler and knows that I die innocent.

Joel Wahlin and his father have poisoned me once before, but, thanks to my strong constitution, I got well again. They are after my claim and are making trouble for me. Lystrom and Pflaten are in the gang, especially Lystrom and Joel.

Now the good God may forgive those three as I forgive them.

My Will

All that I own I bequeath to my two sisters, Emelia Ark and Minna Huber (or Fluber) in Chicago, Ill. * * House and Claim, also a cow at G. C. Pflaten's value $28.00, and one at my dear friend Bratrudt's value $28.00. Have paid everything in cash.

In the coroner's examination that followed Joel Whalen said he last saw Foelsh at his (Whalen's) house on the Tuesday before or Feby. 14th, that he missed Foelsh for four days and went thru the swamps to Foelsh's cabin. He knocked on the door but received no answer, he found the door locked and broke it in and he found Foelsh on the floor in the same manner as the summoned town clerk had found them.

The key to the cabin could not be found on the inside of the cabin and the cabin door had undoubtedly been locked from the outside.

Shortly after Foelsh's death Joel Whalen filed notice of contest on the claim on the grounds of abandonment by the heirs. The case came to the attention of Attorney Clough of Crookston and he has been trying to find the heirs mentioned in the document left.

The case was tried here last week and Saturday Judge R. J. Montague handed down a decision which will give the Crookston attorney 40 days in which to find the heirs. The claim is said to be worth $15,000 in timber alone.

GETS 3 YEARS FOR ROBBERY

FRANK STEVENS IS SENTENCED FOR BREAKING INTO MANVEL POSTOFFICE

IS SURPRISED THAT HE DID NOT GET AS MANY AS TEN YEARS

From Monday's Daily—

"That's easy; you don't need to put those handcuffs on me, officer, I would walk over to the jail and serve three years if you let me out, for I do not consider that it would be worth the chance of escaping to get out of serving three years; I expected to get ten."

These were the words of Frank Stevens alias Miller who was sentenced by Judge Reed in federal court at Fargo Saturday for the crime of robbing the post office at Manvel, to which he had pleaded guilty early in the week.

Three years in the federal prison at Leavenworth and also a $500 fine was the sentence imposed on Stevens.

The prisoner made his own plea for clemency, reminding Judge Reed that he had saved the United States a great deal of expense in pleading guilty and also making a lengthy plea on the ground of poor health and because he claimed to have a wife and family living in California.

HAY STACK SWALLOWED

CYCLONE NEAR EUCLID SUNDAY HAD BIG FEED FROM PETE STUHR'S HAYSTACK

NO TRACE OF STACK HAS BEEN FOUND—FUNNEL SHAPED CLOUD DID WORK

From Tuesday's Daily—

One of the most peculiar cyclones that ever visited this section of the county swept a strip of country begining two miles west of Euclid Sunday afternoon, taking a course south east from that point for a distance of 5 miles. The funnel shaped cloud appeared about 5 o'clock p. m. and the people of Euclid were terrorized for a time, but the devastator did not get closer than a mile to Euclid and in its course did not strike any buildings.

The most peculiar freak however, was the complete disappearance of a last year's hay stack belonging to Peter Stuhr, the merchant of Euclid. The stack was well weighed and settled, but the entire stack was picked up bodily and no trace of it has been found. It was about a 20 ton stack and no one in this region ever heard of a similar performance even by a cyclone. After traveling about five miles the funnel shaped cloud raised and no further damage was done.

ECLIPSE OF SUN ON JUNE 28

An annualar eclipse of the sun will take place on June 28 and it will be visible in America as a partial eclipse A large portion of the face of the sun will be eclipsel and it will probably be one of the most interesting natural phenomena of this kind which has taken place and which will be visible in North America for some time. June 28th is on Sunday and the eclipse will commence about 8:30 o'clock in the morning and end at about 11:15. If the weather proves favorable and there are no clouds or but few of them the inhabitants of this section of the world will have the opportunity of witnessing a fairly good eclipse of the sun.

MIKKLESON HAS TROUBLE WITH WIFE & SUICIDES

BODY OF BEN NIICHOLSON, AGED WESTERN POLK COUNTY FARMER FOUND IN THE RIVER—DISAPPEARED FROM HOME WEEK AGO—NO PROBABILITY OF FOUL PLAY

Historical Society

Further details have been received regarding [illegible] death of Ben Mikkelson whose body was found on the Red River bank [illegible] Jackson's landing, ten miles below East Grand Forks, on Sunday. Mikkelson had been gone since last Tuesday. His wife told the police of his disappearance on Thursday but cautioned them to say nothing about his going, for she feared he would be angry if there was anything told about it. She is 25 years old and the dead man is 70. She is a niece of his first wife. He sent for her to Norway, and they were married two years ago.

On Monday Mikkelson returned from Birkholz, Minn., where he had gone to look after his half section farm. He complained to his wife concerning the way the work had been done on the farm and acted so threateningly that she was alarmed She feared he would harm her and spent the night with a relative in the residence at 702 Fourth avenue.

Had a Quarrel

In the morning they had a quarrel and she said she would go to her home in Norway if he would give her money enough. He said that he guessed he would go home too. That was the last she saw of him. She supposed he had gone to his home at Northland, but on Wednesday ascertained that he had not done so. It was learned that Mikkelson had taken his will from the Union National bank on Tuesday. The deceased had resided at Birkholz for 31 years before.

Coroner Chesterman has decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Saw Him Near the River

It developed yesterday that Chris Hanson a blacksmith employed in the Dow machine shop had talked with Mikkelson on Tuesday and was probably the last man who saw him alive. Mikkelson seemed despondent and acted rather queer, but Hanson never thought there was any likelihood of his committing suicide.

The will of the deceased has not been found and it is supposed that he destroyed it in order that his wife would not receive the amount of property he had intended at first. She will receive her share of the estate, as will also the two daughters of the deceased who reside near Birkholz.

The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon from Norman's undertaking rooms, Rev. G. O. Mona of Trinity Lutheran church conducting the services. The body was taken to Birkholz for burial.

COUNTY ATT'Y THROWS BOMB

A WARNING GIVEN TO SALOONISTS WHO SELL TO THE INDIANS

STATE COURTS WILL PROSECUTE WHERE FEDERAL COURTS LEFT OFF

From Tuesday's Daily—

The trial of Indian liquor cases has occupied more time in the United States court at Fergus Falls than any other line of business. From ten to twenty-five such cases have been called for trial at every term of court for a decade, but at the last term, this business was practically suspended as nearly all of the Indians on the reservation north of there have taken lands in severalty and the courts have held that such Indians are no longer wards of the government, and they have been drinking as freely as their white fellow citizens. The dealers along the border have been doing a thriving business, but the county attorney of Becker county, has just thrown a bombshell into their ranks by sending out the following notice:

"I wish to call attention to section 1560 of the revised laws of Minnesota for 1905 which reads as follows: "Section 1560—Sale to Indians—Whosoever sells or in any way furnishes liquor to any person of Indian blood, whether a member of any tribal organization or not, except as hereinbefore provided, in case of licensed pharmacists, shall be guilty of felony and shall be punished by imprisonment in states prison for not more than two years and a fine not to exceed $300."

"Violation of this law has become so open and notorious that it becomes my duty to see that the provisions of this section are carried out. You are therefore notified that it is my duty upon complaint being made to enforce the provisions of this section I therefore trust that you will at once if you have not done so in the past refrain from in any way, either direct or indirectly selling or furnishing to any person of Indian blood, liquors of any kind."

From this it appears that the Indian liquor dealers have escaped the federal court only to fall into the hands of the state courts, and with heavier penalties.

JAKE' CARRIES RAMSEY CO.

JACOBSON GETS RAMSEY, ANOKA RICE AND GRANT COUNTIES

HEATWOLE LOST HIS OWN COUNTY, RICE, WHICH WENT FOR JAKE

Outside of Ramsey county which went for J. F. Jacobson for governor primaries held in different sections of the state Saturday for the most part declared for uninstructed delegations.

Joel P. Heatwole, candidate for governor, is reported to have lost his own county to the opposition which probably means the county will be for Jacobson.

The primaries will be held on various dates from June 18 to June 24. The Hennepin primaries will be held this evening.

The Ramsey county organization had Jacobson tickets in the many of the wards and they carried.

The county conventions will be held next Thursday all over the state. Arrangements are about complete for the state convention which will be held in St. Paul July 1.

In Hennepin the situation is uncertain. Friends of both Captain Snyder and of M. W. Savage are claiming an approaching victory for their respective candidates.

There is considerable doubt as to the result. The recent pronouncements coming from Young and Savage will have on the result. Attorney Geenral Young has advised his friends to vote for Savage while on the other hand, Mr. Savage has come out in a statement denying an alliance with Young.

Two For Heatwole

In their primaries of last night, the city of Faribault is reported to have gone against Heatwole contributing to the loss of Rice county.

Nicollet county is said to have declared for Heatwole and Olmstead county is reported the same way.

Brown county broke about even for Young and Jacobson while Anoka declared for Jacobson without reservation.

In Carver the delegates are uninstructed.

Washington county did not show much interest in the result, declaring no special sentiment. Wadena is for an uninstructed delegation, while Grant county declared for Jacobson.

The Jacobson forces appear to have won out in Anoka county. In Anoka there was a contest in but one ward, the First, which Jacobson carried by nine votes. Everything points to a Jacobson vicotry in the county.

SUBTLE FLUID DOES HAIR RAISING STUNT HERE

A number of people knocked down and telephone service crippled. Most intense shock ever felt in the city.

From Monday's Daily—

The most freakish electrical storm that ever visited Crookston resulted in a panic in practically every part of the city Sunday afternoon between 1 and 2 o'clock. And stranger still there was but one flash of lightning, but it was the most terrific ever witnessed in Crookston or vicinity. From 10 o'clock heavy clouds hung over the city and the atmosphere was exceptionally close and rain was expected every minute.

A Blinding Flash

About noon many residents noticed and commented on a sulphuric smell with which the air seemed to be permeated.

Shortly after 12 o'clock it began to sprinkle and a few minutes later there was a blinding flash of lightning and a crash of thunder which rattled dishes, stoves and everything else loose and nearly sent every resident into hysterics.

Bolt Struck in Sampsons Addition

The bolt struck two trees and a telephone pole along the side walk on Woodland Avenue, Sampsons addition and A. L. Berkland who was about 20 feet distant carrying a steel framed umbrella was knocked down but not seriously injured. The trees lost all their bark.

Limb Blackened

At least 10 other people were also knocked down, including Andrew Peterson, son of the Great Northern section foreman who was near Peterson's Pop factory, 5 blocks from where the bolt struck, and the little Evanstine girl who was about two blocks from where the trees were pealed. She lives next door to Morberg's store in Sampson's addition and has a black spot on one limb where she was struck.

Another man who was walking on the G. N. tracks 8 blocks from where the bolt struck was knocked down and two or three children whose names cannot be learned were knocked over. All of those shocked soon recovered.

But there is not a residence in the city with electric lights or telephones but what experienced something out of the ordinary.

Light Globe Shattered

Archie Hillard went up stairs to close a window and was directly underneath a drop light when the crash came. He saw a blue flame, the electric globe was shattered into a thousand pieces and Mr. Hillard found himself under the bed when he came too.

The domestic at the Hillard home was putting the tea kettle on the range and the shock knocked it from her hands and clear across the stove.

A Close Call

Chris Thygeson of Sampson's addition had a close call and thought he was sent for and couldn't come. He was sitting a few feet from his telephone when the lightning struck a nearby telephone pole and ran to his telephone smashing it all to pieces. Mr. Thygeson was severely shocked.

Broke an Arm

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schmidt, who resides across the street from the old Riverside Hospital was so shocked that he fell from the high chair on which he was sitting and broke an arm. A physician was called, the fracture was reduced and he is now getting along nicely.

Shock was General

Similar experiences are reported from every part of the city and the miraculous part of it is that no one was seriously injured. Graham Munch was sitting up stairs in his room a short distance from one window and states that a bar of fire seemed to stretch from one window to the other and he was so shocked he fell over backwards.

In a down town drugstore patrons and employes noted two apparent balls of fire below an electric light.

Telephones out of Commission

The telephone service thruout the city was crippled for a time, many phones being entirely out of commission yet, and scores of electric lights are out of business temporarily.

Following the flash rain poured in torrents for a half hour.

It is later learned that two traveling men were knocked over in the lobby of the Hotel Crookston. A big spark shot from the bottom of a chandelier to the tile floor with a crack like the explosion of 100 pistol shots hitting the floor right at their feet, and both men keeled over but were not seriously shocked.

Toll Service Crippled

In addition to the 15 or 20 phones put out of commission in the city the Northwestern has several toll lines knocked out. Near Nielsville several telephones were shattered and all connections broken. The damage will probably be rapired before night. Some of the other long distance lines are also temporarily down, the electric storm having been more severe to the south and west than it was in Crookston.

Got Off Easy

The electric lights in the city were not seriously effected. A few lights in the court house and in a few residences were burned out, but outside of this the damage was immaterial.

GRAND MARIAS ROUTE CHANGED

CAPT. JAS. A. BEARD SPENDS A DAY ON STATE'S GRAND MARAIS DITCH

ROUTE CHANGED TO RUN DOWN WATERCOURSE AT ONE MAIN BEND

From Monday's Daily—

Captain Jas A. Beard of the Standard Drainage Company of Windom, Minnesota arrived in the city last night from the Grand Marais north of East Grand Forks where he investigated the condition of the big steam floating dredge located there on state ditching work. The ditch straightens the Grand Marais digging thru the banks in some places about twenty feet. As a result of the Captain's visit the dredge is again working on the project and will rapidly complete it. As the Grand Marais is the outlet for considerable land above it the completion is awaited with interest.

Some changes were made in the ditch line which will now follow the Marais around the last bend in it instead of trying to cut across as originally intended.

POST OFFICE AT FARLEY ROBBED

ABOUT $5,000 WAS SECURED BY THE THIEVES WHO DID A CLEVER JOB

STOLE TOOLS OF SECTION CREW AT TURTLE RIVER TO DO THE WORK

$200 OF VILLAGE FUNDS TAKEN AND MAYOR LOST $100 PRIVATE FUNDS

Bemidji, June 19—A daring post office robbery took place some time during last night at Farley the postoffice was robbed of $100 in cash and over $100 in stamps. In addition to this $200 of the village funds was taken and about $100 belonging to Postmaster W. T. Blakely.

It seems that the robbery had been carefully planned the robbers breaking into the storeroom of the M. & I. railway company at Turtle River and secured a handcar and from there went to Farley.

Before breaking into the building it was carefully wrapped with blankets and other material to deaden the sound. So well had they planned their act that not a person was disturbed when the large safe belonging to the village was blown to pieces.

The section crew at Turtle River discovered their loss this morning and the company at once set out on a thoro search for the missing handcar

The county officials are making a vigorous search and Sheriff Bailey expects in a short time to be able to locate the handcar. This will give a clue as to the direction in which the robbers went after leaving Farley

FIVE MINUTES IN A CISTERN

LAD APPARENTLY DEAD AT MINTO LIVES TO TELL THE TALE

DOCTOR WORKS AN HOUR TO RESTORE RESPIRATION — NARROW ESCAPE

From Friday's Daily—

At Minto, N. D. Domnick the five-year-old son of F. D. Ronkowski had a wonderful escape from death by drowning yesterday and for a while it was believed he was dead. The family lives over a poolroom conducted by Ronkowski and the mother sent the boy to bring potatoes for dinner from a dark room underneath which is a cistern. The boy failed to return in a reasonable length of time and the father was notified. He hastened to the room where potatoes were kept and looked down into the cistern Everything was still there being no evidence that the water had been disturbed. A pole with an iron hook attached made for the express purpose of fishing things out of the cistern was at hand.

This the father seized and at the first attempt hooked the clothing of the boy and brought him to the surface The body was lifted out and taken to the rooms. Apparently life was extinct. Dr. Norton who was passing was called in.

Slight Sign of Life

He found no sign of breathing but there was still a slight action of the heart and the doctor went to work with a will. After an hour of hard work he succeeded in getting the water off the boy's lungs and restored respiration.

It was feared pneumonia might set in but the boy is doing nicely. It was more than five minutes between the time the boy went into the room and when the father fished him out and so it is believed he was in the water at least five minutes.

Before committing a mean act a man usually manufactures what he considers a good excuse for it.

The world would respect some reformers more if they would begin on themselves.

Names and the Law.

Speaking generally, the law of England allows a person to assume and use any name, provided its use is not calculated to deceive or inflict pecuniary loss. So the court of appeals laid down the law in Dockrell against Dougall, and this attitude of the law, the Law Journal remarks, is characteristic of our British love of liberty. French law is much more strict. It forbids any citizen to bear any name other than that which is expressed in the registry of his birth or to add any surname to his proper name. German law is the same, only it goes a little further in imposing a penalty on any one giving a false name to an official.—Dundee Advertiser.

A Leopard Collar.

"A leopard collar," he said, taking up a dog collar studded with sharp spikes three inches long. Fitting the collar on his dog, he resumed: "This piece of armor—for that is what it is—illustrates an oddity of the Himalayas—namely, the fondness of the Himalayan leopard for dog flesh. In the Himalayas last year I found that all dogs wore these murderous looking spiked collars. The explanation was that the Himalayan leopards conducted an unceasing dog hunt, and that in attacking a dog they always fell upon his neck. This collar with its sharp spikes is a great protection. It has saved many a dog from a hungry leopard. Often in the Himalayas a dog comes trotting home safe and sound, though with smears of blood and yellow hairs upon his collar spikes."

BOY TORTURED BY AWFUL HUMOR

Almost Covered with Eczema—No Night's Rest for Nearly a Year—Feared Lifelong Disfigurement—All Treatments Failed and Limit of Endurance Seemed Near.

PERFECT RECOVERY IS DUE TO CUTICURA

"With the exception of his hands and feet, my son Clyde (thirteen years old) was almost completely covered with eczema. Physicians treated him for nearly a year without helping him any. While they were very kind and did all in their power, yet nothing seemed to relieve him. And I had tried many remedies sent to me by kind friends but they all failed. His head, face, and neck were covered with large scabs which he would rub until they fell off. Then blood and matter would run out and that would be worse. Many a time he looked as if his ears would drop off. Friends coming to see him said that if he got well he would be disfigured for life.

"When it seemed as if he could possibly stand it no longer, I decided to try Cuticura. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. I used them in the evening and that was the first night for nearly a year that he slept. This may sound exaggerated to you, but in the morning there was a great change for the better. In about six weeks you could not have told that he had ever had anything wrong with him. I treated him twice a day for six months and at present he has a fine complexion and not a scar on his body. This story may seem overdrawn, but neither words nor pen can describe Clyde's suffering and how he looked. Our leading physician, Dr. ——, recommends the Cuticura Remedies for eczema. Mrs. Algy Cockburn, Shiloh, O., June 11, 1907."

Frequent shampoos with Cuticura Soap and weekly dressings with Cuticura stop falling hair, remove crusts, scales, and dandruff, destroy hair parasites, soothe irritated, itching surfaces, stimulate the hair follicles, supply the roots with nourishment, loosen the scalp skin, and make the hair grow upon a sweet, wholesome, healthy scalp, when all other remedies fail.

NORTH COAST BACK AGAIN

PUT LIMITED ON YESTERDAY AFTER A TEN DAYS' BLOCKADE

NORTHERN PACIFIC OFFICIALS BELIEVE TRACK SAFE ENOUGH TO RESUME

From Saturday's Daily—

After a period of about ten days during which it has had to refuse passage to thru passengers to the coast the Northern Pacific yesterday re-established thru service to the Pacific by running the North Coast limited out of St. Paul at the usual time. A succession of floods in Montana badly damaged the line for about seventy miles but repair work has been pushed so rapidly that operating officials feel reasonably sure that the North Coast limited can get thru

If it is found that the track is not yet in condition to be used detours to other lines will be made and passengers carried thru to the Coast. Arrangements have been made with the Oregon Short line and the Oregon railroad and Navigation company for the use of the tracks of these companies in case the Northern Pacific line is not fully repaired by the time the North Coast limited reaches the point of detour which is Butte, Mont. The return to the Northern Pacific tracks would be made at Wallula, Wash.

It was also announced that the Pacific express, trains No. 3 and No. 4, will be operated between St. Paul and Helena, beginning this evening.

Even a detective's train of thought may get on the wrong track.

TAFT CHOSEN AS LEADER OF REPUBLICANS

Made Unanimous Choice of Convention Amid Wild Uproar of Enthusiasm.

OUTBURST FOR LA FOLLETTE

Demonstration for Wisconsin Man Sweeps Convention From Its Bearings.

BATTLE OVER THE PLATFORM

Declares for Tariff Revision, Currency Reform and Modification of Injunctions.

Chicago, June 20.—For president of the United States—William H. Taft of Ohio.

Taft on the first ballot; Taft by 702 votes; Taft by the unanimous choice of the convention.

Such is the record of the culminating day of the Republican national convention of 1908, effected amid scenes of tumultuous enthusiasm and after a nerve-racking, continuous session lasting nearly eight hours. With the candidate for president named and the platform enunciated, there remains only the nomination of the vice president to complete this momentous work. Last night the whole city was given over to wild exultation in honor of the new candidate whose name goes echoing through the country.

Favorite Sons Named.

The picture within the walls of the vast amphitheater as the presidential candidate was named yesterday was one truly grandiose in its magnitude In front and to the right and left, below and above the billowing sea of humanity, restless after hours of waiting and stirred from one emotion to another, was in a fever of expectancy for the culminating vote. The favorite sons of other states had been named, save Knox and La Follette, and now on the roll call came Ohio. As the Buckeye state was reached the tall, gaunt form of Theodore E. Burton, with studentlike face and severe black, clerical garb, advanced to the platform to nominate Ohio's candidate. He spoke fervently, with the singing voice of an evangelist, which went ringing through the great building.

Taft Legions Break Loose.

The close of his speech was the signal for loosening the long pent-up feeling of the Taft legions. Instantly the Ohio delegates were on their feet, other Taft states following, while the convention hosts, in gallery and on floor, broke into mad demonstrations: "Taft, Taft, W. H. Taft!" came in a roar from the Ohioans.

Megaphones seemed to spring from concealed places and swell the Taft tumult into thunder. A huge blue silk banner bearing the familiar features of the secretary of war was swung before the delegates, awakening afresh whirlwinds of enthusiasm.

All semblance of order had been abandoned and the delegates' arena was a maelstrom of gesticulating men.

Tired Voices Die Down.

The band was inaudible, a mere whisper above the deafening volume of sound. For ten, fifteen, then twenty minutes, this uproar continued.

It was a repetition of the scene of Wednesday when the name of Roosevelt threw the convention into a frenzy; repeated in intensity and almost in duration. But there is a limit to the physical resources of throat and lungs; relays had not been established, and at last the tired voices died down to a hoarse shout and at last subsided.

This lull now gave the opportunity for the speech seconding Taft's nomination by George H. Knight of California, his big, round face beaming forth on the sympathetic multitude and his splendid baritone voice welling forth like the tones of a great church organ. California's tribute to Taft was brief and fervid. Now there was another lull in the Taft movement while the remaining candidates were placed in nomination.

Do It Again for La Follette.

It was late in the afternoon before the convention, now literally sweltering with the intense heat, weary after nearly seven hours of continuous session, reached the end of the flood of eloquence, and the decks were at last cleared for the culminating act. But no, just as the last swell of oratory, the seconding speech for La Follette, had died away, like a cyclone from a clear sky burst a La Follette demonstration which swept the convention from its very bearings. It was the same deafening wave of sound that had greeted Roosevelt Wednesday and Taft a little while before, intense and maddening and with the vital ring of genuine enthusiasm. It seemed as though Wisconsin had suddenly peopled every foot of the galleries. The delegates sat calm and waiting except the frantic Wisconsins, but the convention for the time being was in the possession of the galleries.

Another One for Roosevelt.

Now a singular transformation occurred—gradually the whirlwind veered from La Follette to Roosevelt. A banner bearing the Roosevelt portrait and waved from the gallery was the signal for the change, but in the confused babel of voices there was no distinguishing where the La Follette cheers ended and those for Roosevelt began.

Amid this pandemonium, and with the galleries in full control, Chairman Lodge decided upon heroic action in order again to make the convention master of its affairs. He ordered the roll call of state to begin for the vote on president. Such a call, under such circumstances of intense confusion, has probably never before occurred in the history of national conventions. The secretary was powerless to make his call of the states heard above the deafening clamor. Seizing a megaphone, he shouted the roll of states—Alabama, Arkansas—but his voice was swallowed up in the mad uproar. Gradually, however, the curiosity of the multitude conquered their enthusiasm and they lapsed into silence to hear the result of the roll call.

702 Votes for Taft.

A hush of expectancy hung over the assembly as the call proceeded. Hasty summaries showed that Taft was far in advance. When New York was reached the Taft column totaled 427. Ohio carried the Taft total to 511, or twenty more than enough to nominate, Still the call went on until the final result was announced by Chairman Lodge:

"For Theodore Roosevelt, 3 votes; for Joseph B. Foraker of Ohio, 16 votes; for Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, 40 votes; for Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, 61 votes; for Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, 25 votes; for Charles E. Hughes of New York, 63 votes; for Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania, 68 votes, and William H. Taft of Ohio, 702 votes."

A great shout went up as Lodge concluded his announcement, and with one accord the cohorts of Cannon and Knox and Hughes and the other heroes joined in a common tribute fo for the candidate of the party.

Make It Unanimous.

Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, for Gov. Hughes, leaping upon a chair, moved to make the nomination of Taft unanimous; Senator Penrose, for Knox, and Boutell, for Cannon, and Henry of Georgia for Foraker, and Cochems of Wisconsin, for La Follette, seconded the movement for a unanimous vote for the candidate. The vote was given with ringing cheers, and then with shouts of exultation over the new candidate the convention adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning, when the nomination for vice president will be made.

Early in the day the battle over the platform had occupied the close attention of delegates and spectators.

The platform as framed by the committee on resolutions was read by its chairman, Senator Hopkins of Illinois, while the minority report, reflecting the views of the supporters of Senator La Follette, was presented by Congressman Cooper of Wisconsin. The platform was adopted by an overwhelming vote, after many separate planks in the Wisconsin plan had been buried under adverse votes.

Planks of the Platform.

The following are the more important features of the platform:

Revision of the tariff by special session of congress immediately following inauguration of next president.

Development of permanent currency system to meet needs of nation.

Establishment of postal savings is favored.

More perfect control of trusts by government and greater publicity in their affairs.

Federal supervision over stock and bond issues of railroads and provision that railways make inoffensive traffic agreements.

Rules of procedure in federal courts with respect to injunctions should be more accurately defined, and no injunction, or temporary restraining order, should be issued without notice, except where irreparable injury would result from delay, in which case a speedy hearing should be granted.

Free rural mail delivery and good roads favored.

Movement for conservation of natural resources is indorsed.

Vigorous protection of American citizens abroad is commended.

Extension of foreign commerce.

Enforcement and extension of civil service law.

Merchant marine should be revived and prestige of nation upon the seas restored.

Attitude of the administration in regard to Philippines, Porto Rico, Cuba and Panama canal is upheld.

Equal justice for all men, regardless of race or color, is demanded.

Floods of Eloquence Let Loose.

It was not until four hours had been spent over the platform that the convention was ready to proceed with the nominating speeches for president. First came the nomination of Cannon, by Representative Boutell of Illinois, seconded by Representative Fordney of Michigan. The nominating speech for Fairbanks, by Gov. Hanly of Indiana, was made amid intense confusion and continued interruption. Mayor Bookwalter of Indianapolis made the speech seconding the nomination of Fairbanks. The convention gave enthusiastic welcome to the name of Hughes, as Gen. Woodford presented the governor's candidacy in fervent words. The name of Senator Foraker was placed in nomination by Judge C. B. McCoy of Ohio and seconded by the eloquent negro delegate from Georgia, W. O. Emery. The call of Pennsylvania brought the Keystone delegation to their feet in a wild demonstration for Knox, and a little later Wisconsin followed with its enthusiastic tribute to Wisconsin's candidate, Senator La Follette. The speeches concluded, the time for balloting arrived, with the results already given.

SECRETARY TAFT HEARS THE NEWS

Presidential Nominee Says He Cannot Deny That He Is Very Happy.

ATTENDS TO DAY'S BUSINESS

News Finds Roosevelt Playing Tennis; Gives Out Statement and Continues Game.

Washington, June 20. — "Words do not find themselves at a time like this. I do not deny that I am very happy."

This was the response of Secretary Taft to a request for an expression of his views on his nomination for the presidency.

The sentences did not come easily. Throughout the afternoon preceding the announcement of his nomination, the secretary had been laboring under suppressed nervous tension. The atmosphere of his office was electric with excitement. Notwithstanding the great personal interest which he had in the proceedings at Chicago, a thousand miles away, Secretary Taft did not permit politics to interfere for a moment with his transaction of official business as secretary of war.

Attends to Duties.

In the intermission of the receipt of bulletins from the convention, the secretary disposed of several important departmental questions, and when his nomination for the presidency was announced his desk practically was cleared of important official business.

Throughout the afternoon the private office of Secretary Taft and the office of his private secretary, Frederick Carpenter, were thronged with members of his family, intimate personal and official friends and newspaper men.

President Gets News.

The president was playing tennis with Assistant Secretary Bacon of the state department when Mr. Loeb took him the news of the nomination of Secretary Taft for the presidency by the Republican national convention. He had previously prepared a statement declaring Mr. Taft to be the very best candidate the Republican party could get for the high honor paid him, and as soon as the news of the nomination reached him it was given to the newspapers. Then he continued with his game of "singles" until the time arrived to go in to dinner.

Last evening, by invitation, Secretary Taft went to the White House.

Will Resign at Once.

Secretary Taft's resignation as a cabinet officer will be received by President Roosevelt to-day. It will take effect on July 1. This was learned last night, following a conference of several hours at the White house, at which Mr. Roosevelt, Secretary Taft, Secretary Root and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon were present.

Apostrophe to a Champion Cow.

Hail, O champion nurser of the human race! Hail, O quiet chewer of nutritious cud! Blessed be peace and open air, beasts and sunlight, and especially blessed be this cow; of her we sing. Hail, Pauline; number 48,426—if that name you love, O butter champion of the world! Think of giving 104.4 pounds of milk in a single day and also at a high average of fat!

I think I could turn and live with animals, they are so placid and self contained.
I stand and look at them long and long.
They do not sweat and whine about their condition.
They do not lie awake in the dark and weep for their sins.
They do not make me sick discussing their duty to God.
Not one is dissatisfied, not one is demented with the mania of owning things.
Not one kneels to another nor to his kind that lived thousands of years ago.
Not one is respectable or unhappy over the whole earth.

Would the pen of Homer were our own, for we have no taste to celebrate the feats of admirals and presidents, prizefighters and millionaires and would fain do justice to the cow, for she by her own unaided might can support thirty babies on this earth.—Collier's Weekly.

ATTEMPTED TO SUICIDE

ITALIAN EMPLOYED ON GREAT NORTHERN ENDEAVORS TO COMMIT SUICIDE

PLACED REVOLVER IN EAR AND SHOT HIMSELF THRU THE HEAD

From Friday's Daily—

Phillip Reppano a section man employed on the Great Northern at Ashby attempted to commit suicide Wednesday morning by shooting himself in the head. Reppano was apparently in his usual health and spirits on Tuesday, but Wednesday morning he arose went to an outhouse a short distance from his boarding place placed a revolver to his ear and fired.

The bullet entered the ear canal but the weapon had apparently been pointed somewhat forward and instead of taking a direct course it split the bone passed thru the lobe of the brain and lodged just under the skull almost at the base of the nose. Reppano staggered back into his boarding house and his friends bandaged the wound as well as they could and brought him to Fergus Falls on the afternoon train.

He was taken to St. Luke's hospital and is receiving treatment but as yet it has not been deemed advisable to attempt to remove the bullet. He is conscious during the greater part of the time and was able to walk when brought in on the train. Reppano is an Italian, apparently about 35 or 40 years of age, and has resided in this country for thirteen years, but is unable to talk English. He appears to be of frugal disposition and has probably saved considerable money. He has no family but has a sister residing in Chicago, and her son is expected here in a day or two to look after him.

A Rule For Dramatists.

A dramatist must never keep a secret from his audience, although this is one of the favorite devices of the novelist. Let us suppose for a moment that the spectators were not let into the secret of Hero's pretty plot in "Much Ado," to bring Beatrice and Benedick together. Suppose that, like the heroine and the hero, they were led to believe that each was truly in love with the other. The inevitable revelation of this error would produce a shock of surprise that would utterly scatter their attention, and while they were busy making over their former conception of the situation they would have no eyes nor ears for what was going on upon the stage. In a novel the true character of a hypocrite is often hidden until the book is nearly through; then when the revelation comes the reader has plenty of time to think back and see how deftly he has been deceived. But in a play a rogue must be known to be a rogue at his first entrance. The other characters in the play may be kept in the dark until the last act, but the audience must know the secret all the time. In fact, any situation which shows a character suffering from a lack of such knowledge as the audience holds secure always produces a telling effect upon the stage. The spectators are aware of Iago's villainy and know of Desdemona's innocence. The play would not be nearly so strong if, like Othello, they were kept ignorant of the truth.—North American Review.

A Curious Coincidence.

The story of a queer coincidence is told by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. While traveling upon the continent he visited a certain mountain inn, which was in winter, he learned, occupied only by two men. These men, prisoned in a waste of snow and ice, had for all that period no communication with the world below. Here was a situation for a novelist! And the novelist accordingly began to let his imagination play about the possibilities of tragedy surrounding the two men on their mountain height. But the story was never written, for, happening to come upon a volume of Guy de Maupassant, which was new to him, he found therein, under the title of "L'Auberge," the very story he had meant to write.

Sixty Thousand Seeds to the Plant.

The common purslane is one of the wonders of botany as far as seeds are concerned. A single seed of this plant will produce about twenty seed pods in a season. The average number of seeds in each of these, by actual count, is 6,000, making 60,000 in all. As far as we have been able to learn there is no instance of similar fruitfulness in any plant found growing in this country. A single plant of either the Jamestown weed ("jimson"), the butterweed, the ragweed and some of the vervines produce an enormous number of seeds, but it is doubtful if any one of them produces one-fourth as many in a year as the purslane does.—St. Louis Republic.

Two Witnesses.

In order to test a Chinese witness' qualification for taking the oath an English magistrate asked him the other day where he expected to go when he died. He replied, "Peking," and was disqualified.

One in another English court, a little girl, in answer to that question said, "I don't know." The horrified counsel called the judge's attention to the answer. "Oh, I don't know, either," said the judge. "Swear the witness."

CIVIL ACTIONS TO COLLECT PENALTIES FOR ALLEGED VIOLATION

CLAIMED 28-HOUR LAW WAS VIOLATED IN N. D. ON 16 SEPARATE OCCASIONS

From Thursday's Daily—

Eight thousand dollars are involved in the action started in the United States circuit and district court for North Dakota yesterday afternoon at Fargo, entitled the United States vs. the Northern Pacific railway company It is a civil action brought to collect the penalties provided by the government for violation of what is known as the 28-hour law which provides that cattle shall not be kept in transit for more than 28 hours without being fed and watered. There are 16 separate counts and the penalty provided by Uncle Sam is $500 for each count. The case is being prosecuted by Assistant District Attorney W. H. Barnett with District Attorney P. H. Rourke, while Ball, Watson, Young and Hardy defend the railway company.

A Human Nose Two Feet In Length.

Elephantiasis is a peculiar form of leprosy in which the limbs and features swell to horrible proportions and out of all semblance to the legs, arms and faces of human beings. Cases are known where the legs have become so swollen that they measured 4½ feet in circumference. The ears of the same victim, Walter Brisbane, an English sailor, were eighteen inches in length, and his nose elongated to upward of two feet when in the last stages of the horrible malady.—London Telegraph.

Feminine Logic.

"The female sex," said M. Calino lately, "is the most illogical in the world."

"What new proof have you of the want of devotion of women to the canons of logic?" he was asked.

"Why, take my wife," answered M. Calino. "I had all the trouble in the world to get her to enter her thirties, and now, a dozen years later, I can't get her out of them."

FARGO FILLED WITH PEOPLE—EIGHTEEN HORSES PULL PEDESTAL

From Thursday's Daily—

Hundreds of Norwegians from Fargo and surrounding towns in North Dakota and Minnesota, with prominent visitors from all sections of the Northwest, witness the unveiling of the Wergeland statue at Fargo yesterday afternoon. The statue was presented to the Norwegians of this country by the Normands Forbundet of Norway. The presentation was made by Secretary Klaveness and Bishop Bang at Minneapolis, May 17, and the statue was awarded Fargo over several cities in different states on the ground that it was the greatest Norwegian center in the United States

The Wergeland monument represents one of Norwaay's greatest poets and patriots and yesterday was the hundreth anniversary of his birth—a most fitting time for the unveiling.

The statue is 14 feet high mounted on a handsome pedestal on an imposing site in Island park.

The pedestal was contracted by the Northwestern Marble Works of Crookston and was hauled to its position with much difficulty by eighteen teams of horses.

The Stein Of Lager

The German-Americans of St. Louis county are perfecting an organization to protect themselves against the forays which the prohibitionists, the county optionists and the local optionists are preparing to make against the drink habit and the sale of liquor Partisan politics will not enter into the organization and every German-American who likes his stein of beer and freedom to drink it at his pleasure will probably become a member. How far the "craze" to prohibit everything which some people do not like will be carried before the partisan politicians will take fright at the situation is a question we are not able to answer, but it is quite apparent that unless a halt is called on the so-called disturbers of the public peace, those who have heretofore counted on the German vote to save them from defeat will fall far short of their usual expectations. The Germans say: "We came to America believing it to be a land of freedom and equal rights At home we were permitted to drink our beer and "chnapps" if we wanted it without asking our neighbors if we might do so. We expected the same right would be accorded us in the land we chose for our future home."

Milwaukee is also organizing for the same purpose and other cities and towns will probably follow suit.

To deprive the German of his stein of lager while he lovingly singe "De Wacht Am Rhine", is deprecated by almost every Teuton of America and there are others who strongly sympathize with them.—Cass Lake Times.

Endurance Record at Yale Broken.

Karl Mann the famous German pedestrian has just visited Yale University and smashed the endurance record on Professor Irving Fisher's endurance measuring machine.

This machine measures endurance by registering the number of times a heavy weight can be lifted with the knee. The ordinary record on the machine is between 30 and 60 times. A very few have succeeded in reaching over 100. The record for Yale athletes is 175. Last year Horace Fletcher, the apostle of thoro chewing reached 350, but Karl Mann pushed the record to 687.

These results like the results of previous experiments of Professor Fisher, confirm the theory of his colleague, Professor Chittenden, that people eat too much meat and eggs, or, in scientific terms, too much "proteid." Karl Mann's "proteid" is moderately low, being 80 grains a day instead of 120, which was the old standard of Voit and Atwater. Mr. Mann uses no meat and few eggs.

The machine on which Karl Mann was tested was devised by Professor Fisher to take the place of the painful endurance tests, "deep knee bending" and other gymnastic feats. Usually it takes only a few minutes to show the limit of endurance on the machine.

Karl Mann first became famous for endurance when he won the walking races between Berlin and Dresden, a distance of one hundred and twenty five miles, in May, 1902. This walk he finished in two minutes less than 27 hours. Thirty-two pedestrians took part in the walking race. about half of whom were meat-eaters and half vegetarians. Twelve reached the goal, of whom all but three were vegetarians. The first six, headed by Karl Mann, were all vegetarians.

Professor Chittenden and Professor Fisher maintain that the success of vegetarians in this and other athletic contests is not due to vegetarianism as such, but to the fact that they generally use less proteid. In order to have the right amount of proteid one need not be a strict vegetarian, altho meat, if used, must be used sparingly, or else the yolks used and the whites rejected.

Professor Irving Fisher is engaged in a study of athletic contests of endurance, such as the Boston Marathon runs, and hopes soon to publish the results, which will show the comparative success in such contests attained by followers of different systems of training and diet.

Indications from the experiments of Professor Fisher are that mental endurance is also promoted by a diet relatively free from highly nitrogenous food, such as meat and eggs. The practical value, therefore, of such a diet is not the ability to perform gymnastic feats or take endurance tests in the laboratory, but to enable people to do more work, whether physical or mental and in a shorter time.

Business Atmosphere Clearing

In his last letter Henry Clews says in part:

"Now that the Chicago convention is over and that Mr. Taft has secured the nomination, the political outlook has been much clarified. Unless unforeseen events interfere, Mr. Taft will be our next President. His high character, ability and long experience in public affairs afford promise of a satisfactory and successful administration. The Roosevelt policies will be continued, but in a more deliberate and less disturbing fashion. As these policies are already well understood and have been fully discounted the stock market ought to be comparatively free of political influences for some time to come. The Denver convention is, of course, still in prospect, and is likely to bring to the surface discussion and movements of a radical nature. This however should cause no serious concern. As a voice of protest and warning the Denplatform may be of some value, but fortunately the American people are not yet prepared to follow the extreme and dangerous radicalism which is likely to develop at Denver.

"The stock market has shown dullness usually experienced previous to important political contingencies. With the removal of politics, from consideration, temporarily at least, the market is likely to be governed more by natural influences. The technical position of the market is a strong one; and the floating supplies of stocks are chiefly in strong hands, who have no difficulty whatever in carrying large holdings in the present easy condition of the money market. It is true that the market has had a very remarkable recovery since the October panic, and that prices appear high in view of the many remaining unfavorable conditions. But as tendencies are towards improvement and confidence is rising, it is difficult if not impossible to induce holders to part with stocks; especially when they are so strongly concentrated as at present. Wall Street will not long rest satisfied with a stationary market; efforts will soon be made to force prices either upwards or downwards much depending on the future course of business.

There is no question but that the tendency here is towards steady recuperation; nor is there any doubt but that the worst of the crisis was passed last winter. The future therefore now chiefly depends upon the crops. As is already known these are very promising; the larger acreage and the generally high condition of grain, cotton, hay, fruits and vegetables all assuring the farmers of a profitable year.

"June however, is usually the period of highest condition for many of the crops; July and August are frequently months of deterioration, and September always brings the danger of frost to the corn and cotton, two of our principal crops. To this extent, then, the future is uncertain; yet, allowing for the average loss in condition during the past ten years, we should still have crops much above the average, for which profitable prices will be had, and of which Europe will take all we can spare."

JACOBSON APPEARS TO HAVE MOST DELEGATES

BOTH SNIDER AND SAVAGE MEN CLAIM ABSOLUTE CONTROL OF HENNEPIN DELEGATION—SNIDER MEN CLAIM ADDITIONAL VOTES ON ORGANIZATION—COUNTRY REPORTS MEAGER

Minneapolis, June 24—The struggle for control of the republican organization was settled by the primaries last Monday. The result of that settlement will not be apparent till the county convention meets Thursday morning, as both the Snider and the Savage organizations claim victory.

Both sides are making strong claims, but both are working with every resource in their power to round up the delegates that were elected Many precincts are yet to report, and barely half the country towns have been heard from.

The situation seems chaotic, and both sides express great confidence. The Snider men are talking about 375 delegates. They will try to put a thoro program thru, with 113 delegates to the state convention.

Chisago

Center City, Minn., June 24—The indications are that Chisago county will take no action on a candidate for governor on account of having a candidate for railroad and warehouse commissioner, Charles E. Elmquist of Rusr City.

Stearns

Paynesville, Minn., June 24.—The delegates elected at the republican caucuses to the county convention at St. Cloud are supposed to favor E. T. Young for governor.

Itasca

Grand Rapids, Minn., June 24.—There was little excitement at the primaries here last night. The convention Thursday from present indications will be sold for Jacobson.

Fillmore

Harmony, Minn., June 24 — Delegates elected to the county convention are instructed to vote for a Jacobson delegation. From reports received it is safe to predict that Fillmore county has gone for Jacobson by about two to one.

Pine City, Minn., June 24.—The republican caucus last night elected five Jacobson delegates to the county convention. Jacobson appears to be leading in this section.

Lac Qui Parle

Madison, Minn., June 24—The primaries give Jacobson everything. No other name will be considered at the county convention.

Clay

Barnesville, Minn., June 24—Barnesville sends an instructed delegation for Jacobson. First ward: Peter Engles, A. C. Henderson and Tom Gunness; second ward, N. B. Hanson, John McGrath and H. G. Tweeton; third ward, James Glasgow and G. B. Woolan. The county convention will be held in Moorhead on Thursday. The townships of Tansem, Skree and Barnesville also instructed for Jacobson.

Otter Tail

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 24—The Otter Tail county primaries did not indicate anything definite on the governorship. Some of the delegates express themselves for Jacobson, and others are for Young, no sentiment appearing for other candidates.

Chippewa

Montevideo, Minn., June 24.—Montevideo elected a Young delegation to the county convention to be held on Thursday.

From Over The Valley

A BIG INCREASE IN VALUATIONS

Assessor D. P. O'Neill has totaled the assessed personal property of the city of Thief River Falls at $302,037 This is by far the largest personal property assessment ever recorded for the city, and exceeds the assessment of 1907 by $113,011. The heaviest assessment is that of Mr. D. N. Winton who pays taxes on an assessed valuation of $95,000. Mr. O'neill found 83 pianos valued at $5,745. He found 57 "rich men's dogs," by this meaning men having $100 or more assessed property.

CEMENT FORK AT FOSSTON PROGRESSING RAPIDLY

Up to the time of the showers yesterday afternoon, Contractor Johnson and his force of men had nearly completed their third street crossing thus far built this week. Board walks upon the two business blocks east side of Marrison and south side of First street have been cleared away and the filling has been rapidly put in preparatory to the laying of the cement next week.—Fosston Thirteen Towns.

OLD PEMBINA TRAIL MAY SOON DISAPPEAR

The old Pembina trail which passes each of this village will probably disappear within the next few years, before the march of the plowman. There are five tracks in the trail—a new one being started each time the ruts got too deep—and the amount of traffic that has passed over it has been quite extensive. One or two of the tracks show plainly the path in the center where the oxen that pulled the Red River Carts—which was the passenger coach of the early days—have walked. The trail was the main highway along which the first civilization traveled into the lower Red River Valley and the part of it thru the reservation is about all that is yet visible and in use as the historic old road.—Waubun Forum.

CO-OPERATIVE TELEPHONE LINES BEING EXTENDED

The Garden Valley Telephone Company is rapidly extending its field of usefulness by building new lines and taking over old ones. It is now building into Erskine and Winger and is rapidly pushing this way with a view to making connections also with this city and Fosston. From present indications the day is not far distant when the entire countryside will be connected by phone.—Fertile Journal.

NEW HIGHLANDING CREAMERY IS PROSPERING

Last Friday the newly established creamery at Highlanding received 3800 pounds of cream, a mighty good record, The plant is said to be exceptionally neat and well cared for. Wm. Lauritzen formerly of Plummer is buttermaker.

The creamery at Kratka was started only last week but reports from there state that the first receipts of cream were excellent and that the association is bound to grow stronger with each succeeding month.

MORE RURAL TELEPHONES IN OPERATION SOON

The farmers residing southwest of town have received eighteen brand new phones to be installed on their telephone line. Some twenty miles of wire likewise has arrived and a car of poles were loaded at Wylie on Tuesday. It will be but a comparatively short time now until that section of the county will be connected to the local exchange. The farmers residing southeast of here are also planning on putting in a line to connect with the city system This may not be built this year, but almost certainly in 1909 will see such a system in operation—Thief River Falls Press.

HENDRUM CREAMERY DOING WELL THIS SEASON

Business at the Hendrum creamery it is taking quite a spurt this year. Last year was an off year, owing to the lack of feed the winter preceding and the business was small but it is now back again where it was before that time and is increasing in a manner that promises to make a new record in total business for the year. In the four first months of 1908 the creamery pail out twice as much money as for the some months in 1907, and in May the increase in the amount of cream receipts was about 300 per cent, the figures being 5,584 for May of last year and 15,899 for last month.—Hendrum Review.

WILL SERVE AS GOOD ADVERTISING FOR COUNTY

C. H. Martz, county road supervisor, was up from St. Hilaire Tuesday. Mr. Martz has just completed a blue point map of the county, which is to be used on the back of stationery by county officials, business and professional men and others if they desire. Along with this map a concise 'write-up' of the county will be given thus affording outsiders an opportunity of getting acquainted with the resources of the county. This plan has been adopted in other sections of the state with good results.—Thief River Falls News.

PRIMARIES RED HOT

AFTER ALL THE SHOUTING SAVAGE GOT BUT 5 OF 17 DELEGATES

From Tuesday's Daily—

The republican primaries were held last evening thruout Polk County. In Crookston there were red hot fights in the 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 7th wards, the fights being practically all the result of an effort to land Savage delegations.

Where a fight was put up the Savage delegates were defeated in every instance but in the 3rd ward where Thomas R. Brown was elected by two votes, the other delegate, E. M. Walsh being a Young delegate. In the the 6th ward both delegates are for Savage first choice, and Jacobson 2nd choice of one delegate and Young 2nd choice of the other.

In the 5th ward, South Crookston, Savage emissaries furnished tickets and other perquisites and the Young-Jacobson supporters made no move and as a result two delegates were elected who may vote for Savage tho they are not Savage men at heart and simply went thru the formalities of a caucus to please the Savage healers.

But few of the outside delegations have been heard from. There are a number of townships where caucuses were not held but delegates will attend and be seated in the convention.

The delegation from East Grand Forks is uninstructed, and no poll has been taken, but Jacobson has the majority of the support, with possibly two delegates for Savage. The Crookston township delegates are J. M. Stephens and B. H. Cochran; both Young delegates.

From Fairfax, Ole E. Rude and John Amundsen were elected instructed for Elias Steenerson with Jacobson 2nd choice.

McIntosh elected Ed Stowe and K. K. Hoffard both Jacobson delegates.

East Grand Forks

The primaries for the election of delegates to the county convention at East Grand Forks were held last evening. The delegates chosen at the caucuses include T. A. Sullivan, J. C. Sherlock, G. A. E. Finlayson, F. C. Massee, Ed Lodgard, D. T. Collins, J. R. Johnson and N. J. Nelson. They are uninstructed and have not decided on what delegation they will support but lean toward Jacobson strongly.

SHERMAN CHOSEN FOR SECOND PLACE

New York Congressman Selected as Running Mate for Secretary Taft.

Speaker Cannon Given Ovation When He Seconds Sherman's Nomination—Session Ends.

Chicago, June 21. — Taft and Sherman. This is the ticket of the Republican party flung to the breeze yesterday as the Republican national convention concluded with the nomination of James S. Sherman of New York for vice president, amid a final roar of tumultuous demonstration.

Again the vast assembly was swept with wave on wave of wild, exultant clamor, as the multitude, realizing that at last the work was done and the record made upon which the Republican party goes before the country, united in one last, mighty outburst of enthusiastic tribute to the men who will bear forward the standard in the struggle now at hand.

Another inspiring picture was presented as the convention named its candidate for vice president yesterday. The enormous throngs had waited through an hour of oratory, sweltering in the heat-laden atmosphere, packed as before into solid masses of humanity, with only here and there a few vacant spots in the remote galleries—the delegates in the broad arena below, the bright-hued lines of femininity in the circling galleries and over all the enveloping folds of "Old Glory."

Was a Sherman Crowd.

From the outset it was distinctly a Sherman crowd, with galleries already trained into choruses of Sherman songs and an invading host of Sherman marchers with a huge portrait of the New York candidate, starting the echoes ringing. Among the early arrivals on the floor was Speaker Cannon, only the day before a candidate for president, but yesterday here as a pillar of strength in the Sherman movement. The widespread affection for the old warhorse of the party was shown by the crowds of delegates surging about him to grasp his hand and bid him welcome.

The preliminaries were brief, and at 10:30 the nominating speeches for vice president began with a limit of ten minutes to each speaker. On the call of states Delaware yielded to New York and Former Lieutenant Governor Timothy L. Woodruff of New York mounted the platform for a glowing speech placing in nomination Sherman as New York's choice for the vice presidency. Now came a surprise, as the venerable Cannon, with his Lincolnlike visage and shaggy beard, emerged from the Illinois delegation and stepping to the platform was yielded unanimous consent to second the nomination of Sherman.

Joy shrugged his shoulders, pulled his hat down over his eyes and settled down for a good snooze muttering something about the judge assuming too much authority in Minnesota territory.

NOLAN AND ZALINSKI INDICTED FOR STEPHEN BANK ROBBERY

THEIR CASES WILL BE SET TODAY—CANNON DEFENDS ZALINSKI

From Wednesday's Daily—

The Grand Jury which convened at Warren Monday, yesterday returned indictments yesterday charging Nolan and J. E. Zalinski with burglarizing the Stephen Bank early last spring. Zalinski and Nolan were arrested at Greenbush a few days after the robbery and have been confined in the Warren jail ever since. Zalinski. Geo. J. Cannon went to Warren this morning to defend Zalinski, and Atty. B. B. Britt of Stephen will defend Nolan. Their cases will be set today.

Atty. J. H. Maybury went to Warren this morning to represent the G. N. in a damage suit brought by the Farmers Co-operative Creamery which sues to recover for several tubs of butter which they claim were delivered to the defendant for shipment and which the Great Northern claims they never received.

There will be a number of criminal cases and the term will be one of the most important held in Marshall Co., for many years. It is expected that after an indictment is returned against E. F. Whitney that he will enter a plea of guilty and be sentenced at once. Judge Grindeland refused to allow him to plead guilty till an indictment was returned, as the minimum sentence exceeds a term for which the law allows a defendant to plead guilty and be sentenced without the matter going before the grand jury first.

NEED $100,000 FOR DRAINAGE

STATE AUDITOR IVERSON SAYS THAT ADDITIONAL AMOUNT IS NECESSARY

WILL RECLAIM 400,000 ACRES OF STATE LAND IN NORTHERN MINNESOTA

From Wednesday's Daily—

State Auditor Sam Iverson and his clerk, Theo Nelson, returned last evening from Warren and Hallock where they have been for the past two days conducting state land sales, and left this morning for Roseau where another sale will be held. The north line sales were very good, many people wanting more Valley soil. In speaking of conditions Mr. Iverson said:

"The state has previously spent $25,000 on drainage projects in Northern Minnesota and $50,000 more is being expended on the Roseau River and other ditch projects now under construction.

"However, I have been convinced during the present trip that at least $100,000 should be appropriated by the state for drainage work in Northern Minnesota, and if this is done as I believe it will be, at least 400,000 acres of land belonging to the state will be reclaimed and make as fine land for agriculture as can be found within the confines of the entire state

"There has been a vast amount of drainage work done in the past few years in this part of the state, but more is needed, and every dollar invisited in drainage ditches is well spent and will bring forth a return of a hundred fold."

TO ENFORCE STATE LAW

DEALERS IN NOISE MAKERS FOR THE 4TH OF JULY SHOULD TAKE NOTICE

CANNON CRACKERS, BLANK CARTRIDGE PISTOLS, DYNAMITE CAPS PROHIBITED

The dealers in the sinews of war for 4th of July should be very careful this year not to bump up against the state law in the sale of goods that are prohibited.

The last legislature of Minnesota passed a very stringent law prohibiting the sale of cannon cracker, blank cartridge fire arms, blank cartridges dynamite caps, etc., which have caused so many thousand accidents in the past, many of them resulting in death

Mayor McPhee requested City Attorney O'Brien to define the law covering the situation and received the following communication:

Hon. J. D. McPhee, 6-23-1908.
City.

Dear Sir: In response to your request for information in the premises I would state that Chapter 28, Laws of Minnesota for the year 1907, provides as follows:

"Section 1. Every person who shall manufacture, use, sell or keep for sale within this state any blank cartridge pistols, blank cartridges, caps containing dynamite, and firecrackers exceeding three inches in length, and exceeding one-half of an inch in diameter shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

Respectfully,
—Martin O'Brien, City Attorney.

IVERSON SAYS ITS JACOBSON

State Auditor Iverson who was in the city this morning when asked about the gubernatorial situation said "It looks all Jacobson to me. I cannot see any possible chance for any other candidate. I believe it will be Jacobson all over the state, and that he will be named on the first ballot. The people have been clamoring for Jacobson and I believe they will have him and no one else. That is the way the situation looks to me whereever I have been."

RINGLINGS GREAT AGGREGATION JUNE 29

AN ARMY OF NEARLY 2,000 PEOPLE A HERD OF 40 ELEPHANTS, 14 ACRES OF CANVAS AND A 108 CAGE ZOO WILL BE HERE ON THAT DATE—THE DAY WILL BE REGARDED AS A GENERAL HOLIDAY AND OLD AND YOUNG WILL FLOCK TO SEE GREATEST CIRCUS THE WORLD HAS EVER KNOWN

Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows are to exhibit in this city on Monday June 29. In all its entirety from the 1280 people employed, the wonderful herd of 40 elephants, the 14 acres of canvas, 108 cage zoo to the pink lemonade man, the circus will be transported to this city from Wadena in fire sections, requiring 85 double length cars.

The first brigade of "billers" made Crookston last week in one of the largest and most modernly equipped advertising cars ever constructed. The interior is handsomely finished in oak and has "all the comforts of a home." It contains the private office of the manager, a gentlemen's smoking compartment and the berths are so arranged that each person has practically a private section. It is from this car that the first billing matter is distributed and posted. Wagons loaded with paper and billposters, were dispatched into the country where, as press agent Charles A. White would say: "Every barn, fence and bill board within 40 miles will be clothed with posters which serve to elicit the mastadonic marvels in store for those who come to town on show day. The car went to Winnipeg Sunday afternoon on the N. P.

No Stake Driving

"The old time method of driving stakes with sledges has been eliminated owing to the enormous size of the tents employed by Ringling Brothers this season. The new invention is in the form of a driving machine which is mounted on a heavy wagon and operated by gasoline engines. Stake after stake is fed into the machine and driven deep and straight, doing away with the hard work of former days, also assuring rapid erection of a gigantic canvas city which could not be handled otherwise. This wonderful invention and the 'full plate' service of the 'Hotel Ringling' has been instrumental in causing working men to flock to the show for employment, while other shows were unable to secure help at any price.

The Circus Cook

"The cook tent is on important factor in the estimation of both performer and working man, and the 26,880 hungry mouths fed each week, crave every article served in hotels of 'standing; ice cream, cakes and delicacies of the season are always to be found on a Ringling menu. Figuring the meals served by this firm to their army of employees, in one season, the amount aggregates that of the President's salary for a period of over eight years. In one short season, the combined population of Minneapolis, Milwaukee and Cincinnati have figurative ly dined under the Ringling roof.

A Great Aggregation

"For this season's tour, Ringling Brothers have gathered together the flower of the acrobatic, aerial and equestrian world. Their exhibitions of strength and dexterity on the numerous stages, in the rings, upon the backs of mettlesome horses, and far up in the aerial enclave, 'midst a network of trapeze and horizontal bars, justly brings them the title of the physical marvels of two hemispheres.

"In the big new 108 cage zoo are many rare and odd creatures nowhere else to be seen. A family of full grown giraffes, the only rhinoceros in captivity; the almost extinct gnu or horned horse, and 40 elephants, the largest company ever shown under canvas and more than twice as many as are with any other show in America. The big menagerie tent is the largest ever made for a circus, and so big that an army of 5000 men could be easily maneuvered within its walls."

And the Tall Giraffe

Speaking of giraffes, the agent continued, "Why, the family of long necked beauties, which Ringling Brothers are exhibiting this season, represent an outlay of money sufficient to erect a brownstone mansion. These delicate animals are cared for like the children of royalty, and could not be bought at any price. They have special cars for traveling and live in wagons thickly padded with curled hair, backed by fine brass springs and covered with a rich and serviceable fabric. They are nervous and timid creatures and must be watched every minute by a trained keeper, who alone is allowed to feed them. Their food is prepared and steamed according to scientific rules. A giraffe has seldom been known to touch water. Codliver oil and milk are a part of their diet."

WAS ANOTHER FRED G. WELLS

FORMER RESIDENT OF CROOKSTON WAS NEVER IN COGSWELL, N D

It is with genuine pleasure that the Journal has learned that the Wells who was formerly located in Crookston, Thief River Falls and Grand Forks is not the Wells who was alleged to have turned up missing at Cogswell, N. D., several thousand dollars behind in his accounts. The Journal copied several items from N. Dakota papers in which it was stated with authority shrdluetaoinshrdluuu that the alleged defaulter was Fred G. Wells, but the Journal can state with authority that Fred G. Wells and family are located at Des Moines, Ia., where Mr. Wells is doing a big land and insurance business under the firm of Wells & Co. Fred G. Wells was never in Cogswell N. D. according to a letter received by E. M. Walsh this morning and in closing Mr Wells facetiously remarks 'and I have never yet been able to steal $40000".

The Journal most cheerfully publishes a retraction.

BELIEVE METEOR FELL NEAR TOWN

The discovery of a big piece of betal, having the appearance of iron on the Walter Latta farm a couple of miles southeast of Crookston yesterday recalls the wonderful falling star or meteor that startled the people of this section last fall. In these dispatches at that time an account was given of the most brilliant display of the kind ever witnessed in the northwest. The light was blinding for several seconds, and many people were terror stricken. One farmer's team ran away, smashed the rig all to pieces and nearly killed the driver.

The find of Mr. Latta is jagged in shape and weighs about 50 pounds. He discovered it while plowing, the share just grazing the top of it. Mr. Latta with much difficulty unearthed the strange phenomena and will send it to the University of Minnesota or North Dakota for analysis. Those have seen it are confident that it is at least a portion of the molten mass that fell, and which appeared to fall just at the city limits.

NEW RAILWAYS IN MINNESOTA

BUILDING IN NORTHERN PART OF MINNESOTA IS VERY ACTIVE

NORTHERN MINNESOTA RAILWAY LATEST TO BE INCORPORATED

From Thursday's Daily—

Railroad building in the northern part of the state is particularly active so far as the incorporation of new companies is concerned and if recently launched projects are made good the sparcely settled district comprising Roseau and Kittson counties will have two new railroads running parallel with the graded right of way of the Great Northern from Greenbush to Warroad.

Following closely the incorporation of the Minnesota Air Line Railway company comes the filing of articles by the Northern Minnesota Railroad company, whose incorporators are Minneapolis men. The purpose of the company as stated in the articles is to build a road from a point in Warroad township on the Lake of the Woods to a point in Marshall county on the Red River of the North. This is 60 miles and the road would pass thru the villages of Warroad, Roseau Badger, Pelan and Karlstad. The incorporators are George H. Seeley, Waldron M. J. Jerome and Hector G. Spaulding all of Minneapolis. The capital stock is $100,000.

The route announced for the Minnesota Air Line incorporated about a week ago is thru the same territory the terminal points mentioned being Thief River Falls and Zipple Bay. It has been suggested that the purpose of both companies may be to coerce the Great Northern into the completion of its road from Warroad to Greenbush.

MUCH BUILDING BY FARMERS

From Saturday's Daily—

The farmers of this section are expending a great deal of money this year thruout this section in the erection of cowbarns silos and the fencing in of pasture land. The fact that this section is proving one of the greatest butter producing localities in the state has aroused the farmers to a keen sense of the neglect that has been shown it in the past and on practically every farm in this section material improvements are being made in the erection of milk houses and convenient barns for their increasing herds. Instead of a side issue which was conducted without any system the farmers are getting down to a business basis in the dairy industry.

Albert Bergh the general agent of the International Harvester Co., in this district has a farm near Fosston and is engaged in the dairy business having worked up his herd from a few cows till his average income is now $125 per month from his cows. He is erecting a fine silo and new cow barns and stated today that the farms in eastern Polk are all being revolutionized and strictly up-to-date methods employed in the production of butter.

SNEAK THIEF IS RECAPTURED

Walter Wilson a transient of the bum variety at East Grand Forks who was arrested last summer for the theft of a coat from Arneson's store, and who made his escape from the municipal court, just after being sentenced, made his appearance in the city last evening and was promptly gathered in by Officer Nelson. When searched a sack of phony jewelry was found in his possession, which may serve as a clue to one of his present callings. He will be given a hearing in the municipal court this morning.

CROP OUTLOOK IS EXCELLENT

PROSPECTS ARE THE BEST THEY HAVE BEEN IN THE PAST TEN YEARS

WARM RAINS THIS WEEK WERE MOST OPPORTUNE FOR THE LATER SOWN GRAIN

From Saturday's Daily—

The third week in June closes with the finest crop prospects the Red River Valley has experienced since 1897. On Thursday and Friday two welcome rains fell and came at the most opportune moment possible. The late sown barley and flax needed a good rain and all other crops will be benefitted by the moisture tho the early grain was not suffering.

The fields never presented a more even appearance than at the present time. Not a low spot where the grain has suffered from too much moisture can be found in a day's travel, for while the rains earlier in the spring were frequent they were all light, and there was no water standing on the surface two hours after the rain ceased.

The efficiency of the drainage ditches were never more apparent than this spring taking care of the water early in the season and practically all the farmers now have laterals leading into the main drainage ditches which carry off the water from the low places before the land has a chance to sour, so that the crops are as healthy looking in the low places as on the higher ground.

The recent warm weather has made the corn shoot forward wonderfully and the potatoes are forging ahead with a promise of a most bountiful crop and prospects of maturing from two to three weeks earlier than usual.

The winter rye harvest will be started the latter part of next week and will be general the first week in July and all rye land will be plowed before even the earliest barley is ready for the sickle.

The hay crop will be the heaviest this year thruout this section that it has been for many years barring the two years '05 and '06 when there was so much water that much of the hay land was under water practically all summer. The clover crop is exceptionally luxuriant, and all tame hay is a banner crop.

The excellent crop prospects are having a salutary effect on business and merchants are noticing a marked increase in the volume of business done during the past week.

GREAT DAY FOR M. B. A.

FESTIVITIES IN CONNECTION WITH LODGE WEDDING AND CLASS ADOPTION

SETS A NEW HIGH MARK FOR FRATERNAL ORGANIZATION ENTERPRISE

From Saturday's Daily—

The festivities incident to the initiation of a class of 12 members last evening, followed by an elaborate wedding under the auspices of the Modern Brotherhood of America in their hall in the Fournet Block marks a new era in the growth of the local branch of the order and has set a new high record for fraternal organization enterprise both as to uniqueness and elaborate details.

The lodge met at 8 o'clock last evening and initiated the class of 12 after which the lodge was closed and preparations made for the wedding which was a notable event.

As soon as all was in readiness the orchestra played a wedding march and twelve flower girls, all dressed in white and carrying baskets of fragrant flowers entered from the ante room and marched slowly toward the altar down an aisle formed by ribbon held in place by six more little girls dressed in white, strewing flowers as they proceeded.

Following the flower girls, who formed a half circle about the altar came Rev W. S. Ward and the ring bearer and then came the bride, Miss Rena H. Stokke on the arm of the groom, Mr. Severe A. Charbneau. Following them came the three bridesmaids on the arms of the three groomsmen.

The bride and groom stood beneath an immense bell of crepe paper, beautifully decorated with flowers and the words uniting the two for life were pronounced by Rev. W. S. Ward the beautiful ring service being used.

Just as the benediction had been pronounced some one pulled a cord and about a peck of rice cleverly concealed in the bell fell on the heads of the bride and groom.

The bridal party was escorted to seats of honor from where they were formally introduced to the hundreds present after which the orchestra played, "Will You Be True." C. E. Brown, state manager of the M. B. A. for North Dakota in a very happy manner then made the presentation speech in which the bridal couple were presented with a magnificent collection of silverware from the Crookston lodge.

After congratulations had been extended, dancing was indulged in till 11 o'clock when the procession was formed for the march to the Grill Restaurant where a most elaborate course banquet was served, every appointment being perfect.

During the progress of the banquet splendid music was furnished by a harpist and violinist. At the conclusion of the banquet every guest was presented with a piece of the monster wedding cake, neatly wrapped, which without doubt the recipients all enjoyed pleasant dreams over later on.

The decorations in the hall, where the company repaired to after the banquet where they danced till 3:30 a. m. were the most elaborate ever seen in the hall. Beautiful stramers were draped from the center of the hall to all corners and sides of the hall. The walls were literally banked with flowers, palms and potted plants.

The committee in charge is entitled to a great credit for the splendid success of the affair in every detail.

The bridesmaids all dressed in white were Misses Minnie I. Strader, Hannah Rustad and Minnie Isaackson and the groomsmen were Messrs. Clyde A. Williams, Christ Gorder and Wm Lundberg.

The 12 flower girls were Clara Bergman, Valletta Glenn, Elva Glenn, Gerda Kinn, Florence I. Cash, Bessie E. Cash, Annie Nhughter, Irma Gossman, Ella M. Anderson, Myrtle Amundsen, Pearl Tolan, Gladys Berg.

Miss Martha Ofstad acted as ring bearer.

Committee on arrangements A. A. Glenn, Mrs. Amanda Ofstad, G. J. Genereaux.

The out of town guests included C. E. Brown and wife, A. C. Gage, R. G. Bates, L. Harris, A. W. Anderson Sadie Anderson, Jennie Anderson, Annie Marks of Grand Forks and Reynolds, N. D.

A FARM WITHOUT AN AX—The crew of men who are staking out the line for the proposed Farmers Union Telephone Co., northwest of the city had a most laughable experience yesterday. They were about thru with their work and ran out of stakes. They went to the nearest house, the owner being a well known farmer to get some more stakes. The farmer stated that they could have all the stakes they wanted, but that he had no ax to sharpen them with. This struck the crew, composed of farmers of that section, as extremely ludicrous, and they bantered the farmer for running a farm without an ax till he volunteered to drive to Crookston and buy a case of "White Seal" if they would forget it. It is very probable that he will also invest in an ax or two to take out with the case. He makes a wry face every time the word "ax" is pronounced in his presence, and it now looks as tho that would be his nickname among his friends.

The criminal cases of Polk County will be thru by the end of the week. This afternoon the Albert Johnson case, a charge of grand larceny committed in East Grand Forks was called. Attorney E. D. Clough defends and Attorney Finlayson of East Grand Forks prosecutes.

THEY WORK CHEAPLY—A gang of forty-five Italian laborers employed in improving the Great Northern track in this vicinity received their monthly pay checks in this city on Thursday noon and called on one of the local banks in a body to have them cashed. The gang consists almost entirely of young men—the majority of them look like mere boys—and all are very small. The do not do as much work as other men, but the company employs them because they are sober and reliable. When they hire out in the spring they work till fall, whereas workmen of other nationalities are likely to leave for the harvest fields or some other locality as soon as work becomes plentiful. Very few of the Italian laborers understand English language and they show no particular desire to acquire it in most cases. They work under the direction of a foreman who understands their language and tells them what to do. The great objection to their employment is that they send their earnings back to Italy and return to that country as soon as they have accumulated what they consider a sufficiency They do not become citizens and the money which they earn is taken out of this country permanently. COLBERT GANG AT BEMIDJI

A. H. KLEVEN, FORMERLY CROOKSTON LAND MAN TOUCHED FOR $4,000

AT ELKS CARNIVAL AT BEMIDJI —THERE WERE ALSO OTHER THIEVERIES

From Saturday's Daily—

Reports reach Crookston today of the robbery of Albert H. Kleven formerly a Crookston land man at Bemidji to the tune of $4,000 by sneak thieves.

A Chicago traveling man was touched for a diamond stud in his tie worth $500.

S. O. Rifsdal, merchant at Aure, Minnesota, north of Solway was touched for $103 in checks and about $80 in money.

Kleven's loss consisted chiefly of papers, part of which however were negotiable. He also lost some money.

The whole list of robberies occurred in the Great Uorthern station at Bemidji or thereabouts.

Lost Wallet and $390

A well known traveling man of the north country stepped up to the ticket window in the Great Northern station at Bemidji yesterday and placed his grip on the floor while he purchased a ticket. He found his grip missing when he turned to get it and also his wallet filled with $390 in bills which he had dropped on the floor. Turning about he saw W. S. Lycan of Crookston and knowing him cried out to him that he had just been touched Lycan asked him if he would know the robber if he saw him again and getting an affirmative answer he dragged the traveler after him and broke thru the crowd.

Out on the platform Chief of Police Carr of Bemidji was holding a tall dark eyed black haired gentleman for attempting to get the wallet of a gentleman standing on the platform.

Taken to Coop

The dark eyed sir was urbanely explaining why he was there and his lack of connection with any robbery. Lycan advised the police to take him to jail and the dark eyed gentleman was so taken.

Rifsdal did not discover his loss until after he had left Bemidji and had landed on the platform at Shevlin last night. Then the train was searched but no find could be made of any suspects. Rifsdal returned home broke. It is probable however that he can stop payment on the checks.

Believed to be Colbert Gang

The gang of men operating at Bemidji are believed to be about five in number and to be under the leadership of the criminal sneak thief Colbert well known to the police and the Pinkertons.

The Colbert gang is believed to be connected with the sneak thievery robbery of a traveling man's grip containing $700 in jewels here two months ago. The Pinkertons have been on their trail ever since.

The Colbert gang operated at Fargo during the recent races there and left there for East Grand Forks where they stayed for a few days. Thence they left East Grand Forks on the east bound and went as far east as Cass Lake, doubling back into Bemidji to await the well filled wallets of the festive Elks.

It is believed that their apprehension is only a question of time. A Pinkerton passed thru here last night east.

MARKET DAY AT MIDDLE RIVER

R. D. V. CARR OF MIDDLE RIVER OFFICIATES AT BIG EVENT

Middle River on the Greenbush line north of Thief River Falls had a live Market Day yesterday at which R. D. V. Carr editor of the Middle River Pioneer was the leading light. The Market Day was attended from far into the eastern interior where the homesteaders have been longing for some time for a live trip to town. Reports indicate that there were about fifteen hundred people in that city.

In the afternoon a baseball game was played between Middle River and Sandridge.

RETURNED KLEVEN DRAFTS BY MAIL

Later reports from Bemidji state that A. H. Kleven received in the mail this morning nearly $3,000 in drafts and checks from parties unknown. He estimates his loss now at about $100.

Perhaps Adam's downfall was due to the fact that he had no mother-in-law to look after him.

Thousands Here For Market Day

Dinner was served to 2,000 farmers and their families. Everybody well supplied and highly pleased.

City furnishes continuous excitement to it's gathered guests. Made interesting and matter of civic pride.

From Saturday's Daily—

"Make Polk county again the banner county of this state," urged Thomas Johnstone this noon hour to the commodious auditorium full of farmers and their families who came in to attend Crookston's first great Market Day.

The entertainment committee consisting of Walter Stone, chairman, Mayor McPhee and Thomas Johnstone realize that there is a reason for this day and are trying to make of it something more than a movement for immediate trade and prosperity.

The earnest appeal of the well known Crookston gentleman to the gathered guests of the city rested on the past history of this county when its products represented the United States in dairying and wheat exhibits in Paris, France.

Following the address of Thomas Johnstone came the address of welcome by Mayor McPhee in which he told the assemblage that, if they found anything wanting this day in their entertainment, they would not miss it the next market day held in Crookston for this is the first Market Day and the committee expected to gather much valuable experience from its incidents.

However visiting farmers and out-of-town people insist that there is nothing missing and they feel right at home.

2000 Were Fed

At the Auditorium at noon two thousand people partook of their noonday meal as the guests of the city without charge. The dinner being served by the W. R. C. Ladies under the direction of the Commercial Club.

If the tables were full, they found on every hand facilities for their comfort while they waited and amusements and care for their children, if they brought any with them.

This morning sensational fire runs were made from the fire department hall to different parts of the city and a large crowd witnessed the proceedings. This will be made more of a feature at the next Market Day.

Sale a Big Success

This afternoon in the midst of an immense concourse of people Chas. Hitchcock climbed the auctioneer's stand on Second street and began to arrange deals for the products that five hundred different farmers had brought to town to dispose of.

An Unqualified Success

The entire day was an unqualified success and the farmers were unanimous in expressing their genuine satisfaction and lively pleasure over the arrangements that had been made for their combined pleasure and profit The business men are also highly gratified over the success of the day and the Commercial club members and officers feel well repaid for the efforts expended.

The first Market Day s but a starter, and while there is more produce brought to Crookston than was ever bought before in one, or even two days combined, it will prove but a marker to what will be brought on the next Market Dak. The auction sale was a grand success in every particular.

Plenty of Amusement.

In addition to the fire run the band concerts and dinner, all the farmers and their families were supplied with all the tickets to the Lyceum and Bijou they could use and were well entertained during the entire afternoon.

Did Fine Business

The merchants of the city, especially those who advertised special discounts for Market Day did a land office business. They were busy from 9 o'clock this morning during the entire day, and realize that the Market Day proposition is a grand thing for the merchants as well as the farmers

Fakirs Should be Barred

The Journal believes that one mistake was made. No license should be granted to street fakirs on any Market Day or any other holidays. The farmers should not be encouraged to come to Crookston to have their sons fleeced and schooled into the practice of engaging in games of chance. All street fakirs should be barred from the city on Market Day, specially and on every other day for that matter. The money the farmers and their daughters and sons have to spend, should be spent with the legitimate business houses, and not with some con-game artist.

Great Credit Due

Too much credit cannot be given to the splendid work done by the Market Day committee consisting of Messrs. Walter Stone, John Cowley, and O. Mercil, Jr., and the sub-committees they appointed. They worked with a commendable energy for weeks, and did everything in their power to make the day the success it proved.

President Misner of the Twenty-Five Thousand club was highly gratified at the work done by the above named committee, and praised them in the highest terms.

FARGO PUTTING THE RUN ON GYPSIES

Gypsies have been given a farm welcome in Fargo so far this season and from the reputation that has been established by the police it is probable that this class of people will pass the city up entirely hereafter. Yesterday a trio of fortune tellers were located in the residence district by Chief Grant and Captain Dahlgren. The women were taken to the police headquarters and then escorted to their camp on the west border of the city where about 50 had pitched their

SUBJECT TO STATE LAWS

PUBLIC LANDS MAY BE ASSESSED FOR DRAINAGE PURPOSES

FAILURE OF ASSESSMENTS MAY ENTAIL LOSS OF LAND INVOLVED

From Tuesday's Daily—

The attention of the register and receiver of the Crookston land office have been called by the department to an act of congress of May 20 of this year subjecting the public lands of Minnesota to the drainage laws of the state. The act covers lands controled by the Crookston, Duluth, Cass Lake land offices and is of immense importance to homesteaders and entrymen of all kinds, who have not received their patents and prospective entrymen.

The law provides that all public lands in Minnesota, whether unoccupied and open for entry, or entered upon, but not yet patented shall be subject to the drainage laws of the state of Minnesota, in the same measure and under the same provisions as the land held by any private party.

In case of non-payment of state assessments for drainage purposes, any unentered lands ar entered lands without patent may be seized and sold by the state for the drainage fee, the sale to be merely a right of entry, which may be exercised at the United States land office. The purchaser of the right may purchase the land from the government for $1.25 per acre, providing he has the qualifications of a homesteader, but no one man can acquire more than 160 acres by that means.

If there are no private bidders at a sale of the kind the state may purchase the land from the government for $1.25 an acre and sell it to anybody with the same limitations—that the purchaser shall have the qualifications of a homesteader and that no one man shall acquire more than 160 acres.

Section 8 of the act provides that entries and proofs may be made and patents issued for all ceded Chippewa lands (except in the Red Lake reservation), which were withdrawn under the act of June 21, 1906 in the same manner in which entries proofs and patents for the other lands are made and issued under the homestead laws subject to the payment of the purchase price fixed by law for such lands.

Persons making final proofs of entries in the Red Lake reservation will be required to pay 3 cents per acre in addition to the purchase originally fixed by law, except in cases where entry was made prior to Nov. 10, 1906 the date of the withdrawal under said act of June 21, 1906.

BREAKS AN ARM IK BALL GAME

LESLIE FOX, A FELTON BALL PLAYER HAS PECULIAR ACCIDENT

The ball team of Felton went to Georgetown on Sunday to play a match game with the team of the latter village. Leslie Fox of Felton played center field for his team. A hit was made out to his territory and in fielding the play he threw the ball with such force or with such a peculiar motion that the bone between the elbow and shoulder snapped, breaking squarely off, leaving the arm hanging limply at his side. Fox was hastened to the Great Northern depot where a hand car was procured and he was taken to Moorhead, a distance of 16 miles, on the hand car. The bone was reset by a local physician. The accident was a most peculiar one. Arms are frequently thrown out of joint, but rarely broken in this manner.

The Old Settlers meeting at Heiberg Park near Twin Valley June 27-28 promises a pleasant enjoyable affair and doubtless will be well attended. Everything possible is being done to give visitors a hearty welcome and a good time. Lovers of good music will be pleased to learn that the Viking Chorus of Crookston will be present and this organization together with the Twin Valley Octette, the Ada band and the Twin Valley Orchestra will furnish a musical treat that will be worth many a mile's travel to hear.

The list of speakers for the two days include O. S. Bentley president of the society, Hon. Halvor Steenerson, Crookston; Hon. C. O. Drayton, Illinois; Rev. L. C. Symons, N. T. Moen and M. A. Brattland, Ada; Rev. O. R. Wold, Andrew Engeset and Rev. A. L. Huus, Twin Valley. A camp fire for those remaining at the park on the evening of the 27th will afford excellent opportunities for these talks and will doubtless be a pleasant feature of the meeting. Then of course are the pleasures of the park itself—the falling, rushing waters, the birchen groves, the cool freedom of nature. One cannot well afford to miss it. WONDERFUL ACROBATS FROM LAND OF SHAH

Probably the strangest band of peoplie in America today are the Mirze Golem acrobats who are making their first professional tour with Ringling Brothers' circus which gives one performance in Crookston next Monday afternoon. Until this season these people had never performed outside the court of the Shah of Persia, where they have long enjoyed the distinction of being the favorite entertainers of the Commander of the Faithful.

The fame of these wonderful acrobats is known all over Europe, tho no one has seen them perform except visitors at the Persian court; and many have been the efforts of European managers to secure the company at any price. To Edgar Linden an agent of Ringling Brothers stationed at Constantinople, due the honor of having persuaded the Shah to release his favorites for a season's tour of America; and it was thru the friendship of a diplomat at Teheran. the Pesian capitol, that this good luck came about.

When Linden told the diplomat he was going to make an effort to secure the Mirze Golems, he was laughed at for his temerity, but so persistent was he, that his friend finally agreed to get him an audience with the Shah, cautioning him, however, to be careful how he made his proposition. He first went to the Mirze Golems, who were elated over his proposal. The possibility of going to America filled them with delight, but they feared to even broach the subject to the Shah.

Then Linden sought the Persian monarch, the diplomat arranging for the audience. When the circus agent entered the royal presence, the Shah was seated on an Oriental couch amid rich draperies. Prostrating himself at the feet of the Commander of the Faithful, Linden went at once to the subject, asking thru an interpreter for the release of the Mirze Golems. The Shah showed no little annoyance at the audacity of the American. It was sometime before he made a move, and then it was to point to the door and urge the circus agent in that direction by a gentle thrust of the foot. Then he said:

"Wait. Command the Golems, most favored of all my entertainers to appear before me, that I may show this presumptuous infidel what he seeks is impossible. Even were I to give my consent think you they would go to a country where women walk alone upon the streets and mere girls show themselves in public without a veil?"

When the Mirze Golems appeared they were in a state of delight at the prospect of foreign travel. They fell on their faces at the side of the circus man and begged to know how they might serve their master.

"By telling this American," said the Shah, "What you think of leaving Teheran to wander in a strange land under tents."

The elder Golem lifted his face to the Shah. "Gracious master," he said, "Grant us leave to do what this stranger asks, and we will bless you all the days of our life."

The humor of the situation struck the Shah, who had expected a prompt refusal, and he laughed heartily. "Very well," said he, "since you have served me faithfully for many years, and since some unusual reward is due you, it shall be as you wish, tho I cannot say I am pleased."

A week later when the happy family left the palace, an officer was sent by the Shah to present them with the most costly wardrobe ever worn by performers. The American legation at Teheran assured the Shah of the perfect reliability of Ringling Brothers in all matters, and when the circus opened its season in Chicago, the Mirze Golems received a cablegram from their commander with the single English word "Godspeed."

U. S. TROOPS TO GUARD FRONTIER

President Orders Troops to Border to Prevent Violation of Neutrality.

REQUEST COMES FROM MEXICO

Mexican Rurales Take Field Against Marauders—Absolute Quiet Now Reigns.

Washington, July 1. — By direction of President Roosevelt, Secretary Taft has issued orders to the commanding general of the department of Texas at San Antonio, to send a sufficient number of troops to Del Rio, El Paso and other points in Texas to aid the civil authorities in preserving order. This action was decided upon as a result of the request from the Mexican government that the United States do its utmost to prevent any violation of the neutrality laws.

May Arrest Rebels.

There is a possibility that the United States may be called upon to arrest any of the Mexican revolutionists who may cross the border in the effort to escape from the Mexican authorities. It cannot be learned that any orders to this effect have been given, as none of the officials having to do with the matter is willing to discuss just what is being done except that every step possible is being taken to see that the neutrality laws shall be enforced. The United States authorities are sincerely working to the end and assurances have been received from the attorney general of the United States and Gov. Campbell of Texas that everything will be done to compel a strict enforcement of the law.

Region Now Quiet.

City of Mexico, July 1.—Up to this evening no news of any sort had been received at the capitol that would indicate that there had been a repetition of the disorders similar to those which occurred at the towns of Viesca and Las Vacaso. On the contrary, at the departments of the interior, war and state it was reported that absolute quiet reigned in the region where the two small bands of malcontents had been operating. Word from Torreon declares that the place is as quiet as any well organized city of the United States.

Charged With Common Crimes.

The entire direction of the campaign against the malcontents is under the direction of the secretary of the interior, Senor Corral, who is also vice president of the republic. The government, considering the marauders criminals, is chasing them with rurales, the mounted police of the country. Foreign Minister Mariscal declared yesterday that those manifestants who infest the Rio Grande and are now on the United States soil will be extradited on the grounds that the men are guilty of crimes and not political offenses.

Troops Take Field.

El Paso, Tex., July 1.—According to information from a reliable source, official advices have been received in Juarez, across the Rio Grande from this city, to the effect that the 2,500 federal troops sent to Torreon, Cohauila, have taken the field in an effort to surround the parties believed to be responsible for the attacks on Viesca and Hacienda Matamoras.

WOOL PRICES HIGH.

Growers Make Contracts to Sell in the Neighborhood of 18 Cents.

Lewistown, Mont., July 1. — The idea that there would be a great slump in prices for wool this season has been dissipated. About one-half of the product of Fergus county has now been contracted for and the prices run close to 18 cents, which, while about 3 cents under what the same clips brought last summer, is still much better than was generally expected a few months ago.

FLOODS DELAY LINE

Carpenter Who Doesn't Seek Surgical Aid Dies of Lockjaw.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 1. — William Doane, a young man who came to South Dakota about a year ago from Warren, Ill., and located at Artesian, is dead of lockjaw. About three weeks ago, while employed at carpenter work, he stepped on a rusty nail, which penetrated his foot. After a few days the wound apparently healed and was not given surgical attention, but yesterday morning he was found in his room suffering from a well developed case of lockjaw, from which he died.

FALLS FROM A TRAIN

Young Woman Walking in Her Sleep Plunges Through Window.

Waterloo, Iowa, July 1. — While walking in her sleep, Miss Jessie Shilling, twenty years old, while en route from Chicago to her home in Washington state, fell from the window of a rapidly moving Burlington passenger train near Dubuque, and, strangely enough, will survive the unusual accident, though her injuries are serious.

Miss Shilling's traveling companion notified the trainmen, who hurried back along the tracks, where they found the girl lying near the rails, bleeding and unconscious. She was taken to the nearest town and placed in a hospital.

RUSTY NAIL WAS FATAL

Milwaukee Will Not Enter Butte Until August, It Now Appears.

Lewistown, Mont., July 1. — The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway will not be able to get the line from Lombard, the present terminus of the road, to Butte, a distance of ninety-two miles, completed early in July, as was expected. The delay is entirely due to the floods, which did some damage and hindered the contractors. It is said on good authority that the line will be into Butte early in August.

Body Found Under Log Jam.

Grantsburg, Wis., July 1. — Word reached here that the body of Zach Kessler, twenty-eight years old, living forty-five miles northeast of here, whose supposed drowning was reported a few days ago, had been found in the St. Croix river near the Indian village at the mouth of the Yellow. The verdict of the coroner's jury was that the man came to his death by accidental drowning. The body was found under a log jam.

Jealous Man Kills Wife.

Sailor Springs, Ill., July 1. — Jealous of his young wife and mistaking his son for another man, Julius Turner, sixty-three years of age, shot his wife to death from ambush, seriously wounded his fifteen-year-old son and attempted to commit suicide near here last night. He and his wife had been separated four years.

Joy Over Nasi's Liberation.

Trapani, Sicily, July 1. — The liberation of Nunzio Nisi, former minister of public instruction, who has just ended a term of imprisonment for embezzlement from the state treasury, is hailed here with great enthusiasm.

LUMBERJACK BADLY CUT.

Drunken Row in Michigan Camp May Prove Fatal.

Houghton, Mich., July 1. — John Maki, a woodsman, was probably fatally stabbed by August Matson, also a lumberjack, as the result of a drunken quarrel at a camp a few miles out of Chassell late last night. Maki is at St. Joseph's hospital, with his abdomen badly slashed, and Matson is a prisoner at the county jail.

The bigger an armful a woman is the more she expects you to call her your little pet.

HIGH LICENSE

Legislature Passes Measure Raising the Fee.

Baton Rouge, July 1.—That Louisiana shall be a high license state for the next two years at least was finally decided by the assembly last night, when the senate passed the Shattack-Gay liquor bill by a vote of 29 to 4. This measure has passed the house and is known to have the governor's approval. It fixes the minimum parish license at $500, minimum state at $200, with maximum licenses running up to several thousand dollars each.

JACOBSON NOMINATED BY ACCLAMATION

Frank Eddy Made The Nomination Speech, And Was Seconded By Young And Snider.

Historical Society

Mills And Elmquist For R. R. Warehouse Commissioners. Entire Slate Goes Thru.

✦ ✦

THE REPUBLICAN NOMINEES

Governor—J. F. Jacobson, Madison.
Lieutenant Governor—A. O. Eberhart, Mankato, renomination.
Secretary of State—Julius A. Schmahl, Redwood Falls, renomination.
Treasurer—C. C. Dinehart, Slayton, renomination.
Attorney General—George T. Simpson, Winona.
Railroad Commissioners—Ira B. Mills, Moorhead, renomination.
Charles E. Elmquist, Rush City.

St. Paul, July 1st—(Special to the Journal)—J. F. Jacobson was nominated for governor by acclamation by the Republican State Convention this afternoon amidst the wildest enthusiasm. The nomination speech was made by Frank M. Eddy and was seconded by Atty. General Young and Capt. Snider. The balance of the slate went thru unanimously.

✦ ✦

It was John F. Jacobson on the first ballot. The republican state convention in St. Paul made short work of the nomination for governor.

Whatever doubt remained as to Jacobson's success, was settled by a conference at the Ryan hotel last night, attended by D. F. Reese and Senator W. W. Dunn of St. Paul, Senators E. E Smith and J. F. Calhoun and S. L. Trussell of Minneapolis, E. B. Hawkins of Duluth, Congressman J. Adam Bede, George H. Sullivan of Stillwater and Ripley B. Brower of St. Cloud.

The "dark horse" talk was finally settled. It was agreed to go thru with the Jacobson program and nominate the man from Lac qui Parle.

It has been apparent since the county conventions that Jacobson would be nominated. There was no "dark horse". The band wagon was in motion yesterday with plenty of seats and the rush was on.

At least two propositions came to Young from the Jacobson camp. The gist of them was that Young should withdraw in Jacobson's favor and accept another nomination for attorney general. He turned them down emphatically. It was reported that Jacobson and Seventh district friends were very anxious to have Young on the ticket, but his ambitions in that direction are satisfied and he will not stand for it.

Ripley B. Brower, the premier dark horse said yesterday that he would not permit any one to make him a candidate for governor.

"I am not even a receptive candidate," he said.

The conference agreed on a tentative draft for the platform. It will endorse the national platform, will explicit reference to tariff revision, will touch on state regulation of railroads and will have the usual planks on good roads, taxation, state development, etc. County option will not be mentioned however.

Chairman A. B. Cole of the state committee refused to name any temporary chairman unless the candidates agreed. There was favorable mention yesterday of two congressmen for chairman—Stevens and Steenerson — but the big man from the ninth district put the honor aside Before leaving for the capitol to file for congress again he told the delegates to pick somebody else. There was also talk today of W. W. Sivright of Hutchinson, who was chairman two years ago at Duluth, but he put a quietus on his friends, saying that the honor was one to be passed around.

FATE IS CRUEL TO HOMESTEADERS

Mitchell, S. D., July 1.—A tragedy involving three deaths is reported from the reservation country, twenty-five miles northwest of Chamberlain. A family by the name of Easters moved out there a month ago to settle on a claim near Van Meter. The wife was in the last stages of consumption and she was taken to a hospital at Pierre for treatment, but after remaining there a short time the physicians advised the husband that his wife could not be cured.

Mr. Easters started to drive back home when his wife became suddenly worse. While stopping at a roadhouse his wife passed away.

The daughter of Mr. Easters, and Mrs. Reiter, with whom she was staying, started to drive from Van Meter to the claim upon learning that her mother was being taken home. Reaching Bad river, they attempted to ford the stream, not knowing how deep it was. When half way into the river, which was high, the buggy turned upside down and precipitated the two women into the water, both of whom were drowned, together with the horse. When they did not appear at the ranch a rescuing party started out to hunt for Mrs. Reiter and the girl. Only the latter's body was found.

The Easters were strangers in the country, having moved there recently from Indiana.

IS FILLING MINNESOTA UP

St. Paul, July 1.—George Welsh is the man who is steering hundreds of farmers from all parts of the country to the fertile lands of Minnesota. Officially he is secretary of the state board of immigration and his campaign of advertising over the country has been so effective that the board yesterday raised his salary from $2,000 to $3,000 a year, on recommendation of the state auditor. The salar of the chief clerk was raised from $100 to $125 a month.

Yesterday two men from Illinois were sent to Aitkin to settle on land near there. One of them was a blacksmith, who went from the country to Chicago to earn a living. He found that it was difficult to earn a competence for himself, to say nothing of possible reserve, sufficient to support a wife. The young men came to St. Paul in response to advertisements they had seen of the land for sale in this state. They want to get back to the country, where they can earn a living for themselves.

Five men from Illinois were at the capitol Saturday and were sent to look at land near Aitkin. They are looking for homes and will settle somewhere in the state.

On account of the smallness of the appropriation for the purpose the department has had to curtail its advertisements in papers, but a phenomenal demand for literature is being supplied every day. There are thousands of inquiries, and on account of this work the demand for state land in the northern part of Minnesota has been heavier than ever.

DRIVEN OUT OF HOMES BY FLOOD

Many Families in St. Paul Are Rescued From Flooded Houses by Officers.

RAILROADS BADLY CRIPPLED

All Roads Running Into St. Paul From South Have Struggle to Keep Things Moving.

St. Paul, July 1. — A score of abandoned houses, water-soaked and forlorn, standing waist deep in the shifting eddies of the backwater along the lower flats; dozens of boats manned by the police plying back and forth from the flooded homes to the mainland, bearing with them men, women and children, household effects, live stock, and the Mississippi river seventeen feet above the low-water mark, with the water still rising. Such were the conditions yesterday, recording the high-water mark for the year and the first actual danger of the flood period.

The first signal of distress went up yesterday morning, when word was received at the Ducas street police station that several families were caged in the second stories of their homes by the rising water, with every communication from the mainland shut off.

Are Rescued in Boats.

By 9 o'clock a relay of boats were busily plying between the shore and the flooded quarter, family after family being carried ashore, wiht all available belongings that could be taken.

By noon the isolated households had been taken ashore, but the police were unable to find accommodations for all of them, and the Relief society was called upon to care for the flood sufferers temporarily.

All over the West side district adjacent to the lower backwater the river is causing alarm. Cellars by the dozen have been flooded, the water creeping into the basements of the manufacturing plants along the river edge and keeping a crew of men at work night and day pumping.

Railroad Tracks Under Water.

The Rock Island tracks from Inver Grove to the freight house are now under water, and the trains are run in over the St. Paul lines. On the city side the water is beginning to menace the railroad tracks running along the river bank.

The packing plants at South St. Paul are still safe, and a heavy rise of two or three feet will be necessary to hamper them seriously.

Along the upper flats many of the inhabitants are moving out, and a general note of alarm has been sounded. For the time being, at least, the rapid rise of the water has been checked, and the weather bureau yesterday afternoon was of the opinion that the crest of the flood would be reached last night.

Railroads Are Crippled.

The railroads running into St. Paul from the south are having a hard time to keep things moving on account of the high water. The Chicago Great Western and the St. Paul river division have both been tied up.

On the Chicago Great Western between Goodhue and Red Wing and between Cannon Falls and Red Wing traffic has been suspended for forty-eight hours, but will be resumed today.

The greatest damage to any of the roads is reported by the St. Paul on its line between Wabasha and Zumbrota.

Ask Help for Sufferers.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 1. — Gov. A. B. Cummins yesterday issued a proclamation calling the attention of the people of Iowa to the worthiness of aid asked by citizens of Northeast Iowa for the flood and storm sufferers. The proclamation is in answer to a strong petition forwarded to the governor yesterday from the citizens of McGregor and vicinity.

IS STABBED

Man Alleged to Have Been Thrown Out of Feed Yard Suspected.

Marshalltown, Iowa, July 1. — Cyrenus Chamberlain, aged twenty-six years, was stabbed and murdered, it is alleged by Fred Selk, a young German, at Tama last night. Selk, it is charged, came to the feed yard Chamberlain was managing and became insulting. CROPS ARE DEVASTATED

Hail Storm Destroys a Wide Area of Growing Grain in South Dakota.

Beresford, S. D., July 1. — The most disastrous hail and wind storm that struck the state in years ravaged the farms in this locality early Sunday morning, completely devastating crops over a territory six miles wide and ten miles long. Beresford was the center of the storm, which amounted to a veritable flood, accompanied by hail, which drove all growing crops into the ground. Over sixty square miles of rich farm land there will not have an acre of grain harvested, and much pasture land is beaten out by hail, the grass roots being killed. There was no wind accompanying the storm, but the damage will reach $100,000.

SUFFERED WITH ECZEMA 25 YEARS

Limb Peeled and Foot Was Like Raw Flesh—Had to Use Crutches, and Doctors Thought Amputation Necessary — Montreal Woman Writes of Cure Seven Years Ago.

BELIEVES LIFE SAVED BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did their best, but failed to cure it. My doctor had advised me to have my leg cut off, but I said I would try the Cuticura Remedies first. He said, "Try them if you like, but I do not think they will do any good." At this time my leg was peeled from the knee, my foot was like a piece of raw flesh, and I had to walk on crutches. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bottle of Cuticura Pills. After the first two treatments the swelling went down, and in two months my leg was cured and the new skin came on. The doctor could not believe his own eyes when he saw that Cuticura had cured me and said that he would use it for his own patients. I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap, three boxes of Ointment, and five bottles of Resolvent, and I have now been cured over seven years, and but for the Cuticura Remedies I might have lost my life. I have lots of grandchildren, and they are frequent users of Cuticura, and I always recommend it to the many people whom my business brings to my house every day. THE COST OF THE FOURTH

MANY LIVES AND MUCH PROPERTY DESTROYED BY FIREWORKS

AN IMPORTANT STATEMENT IS MADE BY STATE FIRE MARSHAL PETERSON

On each Fourth of July, fireworks burn more than 700 buildings and kill 300 persons in the United States. This does not include children burned to death by the ignition of their clothing nor those killed by runaway horses. The number maimed thru the loss of eyes and fingers is never less than 2000. The sale of firework to children should be prohibited. Preparatory to the reign of fire, rubbish in areas or yards should be removed or wetted down. Stables, outhouses, packing rooms and cellar windows should be tightly closed. Red fire does not explode; the pin wreel is fastened to a tree; the Roman candle discharged from the curbstone burns nothing but a wrist. The dynamite torpedo aften used on street railway tracks is not dangerous to the occupants of the car but it is a terror to hysterical nerves.

Fire Crackers

The small firecracker which is used in greater number than any other firework, destroys most property and fewest lives. The paper of the cracker often glows for minutes after it is exploded, igniting trash in which it falls. The electric sparkler is harmless unless its wire while still red hot is thrown into rubbish. Garden pieces and the new "cannon string," which contains thousands of crackers are safe enough because they must be fired by an adult. But a very small part of the fire loss on the Fourth is chargeable to skyrockets. The sticks are cooled on falling so they seldom ignite a roof. But in the celebration at Pittsburg last year, a descending ricket stick pieced the skull of a babe destroying it in its mother's arms.

Deadly Toys

The small cannon crackers contain dynamite and the very large ones, giant powder. One of them exploding in the hand converts it to gasses. The baby cannon is one of the most deadly joy producers. The number of tragedies from it has been enormous. The hot air balloon is the worst of incendiaries because the resin used under it makes it a flying bonfire. Its use certainly should be barred in cities. The lightning and shooting matches are dangerous because they are sold to children and contain picric acid.

A new firework call "Son-of-a-Gun" is misnamed for only Lucifer would admit parental claim to it. It is laid on the pavement to startle the passer by. When stepped upon it hops about popping like a gattling gun and often jumps into a cellar window, grating or trash pile to start a fire. It has all the fiendish characteristics of the "Devil Chaser" and some others.

Lockjaw

The most deadly thing used in our annual outbreak of savagery, called patriotism, is the toy pistol. It explodes a paper cap containing chlorate of potash and pieces of the paper are often driven under the hand Street dust at all times carries bacilli which cause lockjaw if buried in human flesh so that air cannot reach them. A most dangerous practice is to cover such a wound with a plaster. All penetrating wounds from fireworks must be laid open by a surgeon and dressed so that air can enter them. The deaths in the United States from lockjaw following the Fourth have ranged from 105 to 466. Fortunately there is now a serum for the cure of lockjaw.

There should be a state law limiting the amount of powder in any firework and prohibiting altogether fireworks containing phosphorus, chlorates, picrates, dynamite and other high explosives. Toledo first, and then Baltimore and SanFrancisco prohibited fireworks altogether.

DEADLOCK IN WOOL MARKET.

Growers Demand 18 Cents and Buyers Offer Only 15.

Miles City, Mont., June 27.—About 1,500,000 pounds of wool has found its way to the Milwaukee and Northern Pacific warehouses here. Buyers are here representing nearly all the big houses, but hardly a sale is being made, as the growers have set their price at 18 cents for good clips and the buyers are offering around 15. It is expected that Miles City will ship 7,000,000 pounds or more this year.

ATE POISON TABLETS NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH

Sever the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sovick had an experience last Friday that will not soon be forgotten—by his anxious parents at least.

His father had purchased a box of bi-chloride tablets recently to use in making a solution to apply upon a sore hand of his, and the tablets were left in a bureau drawer from which, when his mother was absent from the room for a few minutes the boy managed to extract them and evidently mistook them for candy.

The first intimation of his act was when the child commenced to vomit and this continued for some hours. The prompt emitting of the bulk of the poison was the only thing that saved the boy's life for in one alone there was poison sufficient to kill several persons. — Fosston Thirteen Towns.

DR. BIORN RETURNS FROM A SAD MISSION

Doctor Biorn returned home last Friday morning from Zumbrota where he was called by the illness of his father who passed away Sunday, June 14th, Rev. L. M. Biorn was formerly vice president of the United Lutheran church of America and long a leader in religious work in this state. He was born in Noss, Norway in 1835. He persued his studies in Christiania finishing his collegiate course in 1855 and was graduated from the theological department of the University of Christiania in 1861. Immediately after his ordination he received a call to Manitowoc, Wis., where he remained until 1879 when he removed to Zumbrota and where he has since been in charge of large and important pastorates. He was one of the ablest preachers and workers in the Lutheran church and was actively engaged in the work until the day he was taken sick. The funeral was held on last Wednesday and was one of the largest ever held in the state, over 2500 people coming to pay their last tribute to the departed.—Norman County Herald.

DR. STUHR SAVES A LITTLE BOY'S HAND

The eight year old son of John Carlson living near Kennedy, met with an accident several weeks since that, had it not been for the skill of Dr. H. C. Stuhr, might have cost him the loss of a hand. The little follow got caught in the geering of a drill in motion and had the second, third and fourth fingers completely severed and the forearm badly lacerated. The local doctor wanted to take the arm off above the wrist, but the anxious father brought the patient to Argyle where he placed him in care of Dr. Stuhr and when the reporter saw the boy last Saturday he was able to move the first finger and thumb and the wound is fast healing up Just think of the value of that finger and thumb. Can it be estimated?—Argyle Banner.

GREATLY INCREASED OUTPUT OF PRISON MADE TWINE

The new prison factory will open its doors November 1, and the binding twine plant will start operations at that time. The output this year is estimated at 4,500,000 or 1,500,000 pounds, more than ever before. It is also planned to construct farm machinery and work probably will begin soon after the binding twine industry is well under way. Many more prisoners will be employed on state account and additional guards and employes will be required by the new industry.

EXTENDING TELEPHONE LINES IN NORMAN COUNTY

The directors of the telephone company had a meeting, Tuesday, and decided to extend the line to Grandin and the work on the new extension will commence as soon as the material can be secured, and the work has been let to Syver Syverson. The new line will go west to J. T. Lockhart's from there south to David Black's and then straight to Grandin where it connects with the North Dakota Independent Co., line at Tom's store. There will be eight or ten phones on the new extension. The new line will give the patrons of the Hendrum line and the connecting lines the benefit of a 15c rate to Fargo, and direct communication with Grandin and other villages on the Dakota side.—Hendrum Review.

Fine Dairy Showing

Wherever you see a very prosperous looking piece of country in Minnesota you will always be told that "it is a dairy country." The direct returns from the sale of cream can hardly be figured up to the returns from a good crop of wheat, but the secret of the prosperity of the dairy district is that they usually raise both.—Hendrum Review.

PENNED AND PILFERED

Grafton Record: Poison Carrots went to Grand Forks a short time ago to have his palm read by a palmist, who reads palms as clear and distinct tone of voice; she also reads between the lines and charges so much per folio or whatever she can get for her trouble. The hired man went with Poison to record the findings and accompany the remains home if Poison did not survive the operation The palmist seated Poison in a red plush chair and he rocked to and fro in a nervous manner as the reading progressed. On the first page of his right hand she read that Poison was a son of toil, but had never broken his arm lifting money into the bank; she noted the mark of the grindstone handle and the worried furrows of the pitchfork also the knife and fork. She said he had a past and gone, and when a boy had stolen watermelons and played tic-tac on the neighbor's windows. The hired man made a note of these revelations in a small book and knocked the ashes out of his pipe in a card receiver and spit in a jar containing the ashes of the palmists grandmother. The palmist scowled and an attendant gave him the sign of better manners. The palm ran a line in the neighborhood of his right thumb which seemed to startle her, and she inquired if he had a mother-in-law. Poison answered in the affirmative and the palmist said she saw indications of family difficulty and advised more patience on his part and less internal liquid salve. She saw a bright red blushing future for him, slightly worn about the edges and a few buttons missing; advised him to keep more milk sows and pull the shoes off the mules. The mud hole should be filled up on the road leading to the barn and a couple of rat traps, open night, would do a good business in the granary. The hired man wrote fast and sweat like a hero loading a cannon, trying to record the readings for future reference when they sat around the fire winter nights popping corn or mending harness. She said that Poison was good to his help and that a hired man would stick to him like a spavin to a horse, completing her narrative by charging him five dollars for the reading and seven dollars for the injuries done her grand mother's ashes by the thoughtless hired man. Poison paid both accounts cheerfully charging the hired man with his part of the exercises.

A travelling man arrived at a Sioux Falls hotel one evening recently and was assigned to a room. After unpacking his personal effects he found hanging in a closet a garment left there by a preceding lodger. It was a feminine robe de nuit—a daintily trimmed nightie. The traveling man rang the bell. When the boy responded he took down the night gown and handed it to him. "There, son," he said, "take this and get it filled."

HURLED INTO A DEEP WATER HOLE AND CAME NEAR BEING STRANGLED

From Friday's Daily—

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Geo. A. Ralph and dauughter Dorothy, wife and daughter of State Drainage Engineer Geo. A. Ralph came near losing their lives enroute from Caribou to Lancaster with Mr. Ralph, Capt. Jas. A. Beard of the Standard Drainage Co., and J. B. Pierson.

The roads were very bad and while crossing a swale as the hind wheels of the buggy dropped into a deep hole from which a big rock had been removed, the rear seat broke and fell backwards, Mrs. Ralph and daughter were sitting in this seat and were hurled in about four feet of water.

Before she was rescued, Mrs. Ralph was nearly strangled, and Dorothy had to be worked over for half an hour before she recovered consciousness fully, being nearly choked to death with mud and water.

KELLIHER SURPRISED

MAYOR PUTS ON THE LID AND SAYS IT MUST STAY PUT

Kelliher, Minn., June 25— For the first time in the history of Kelliher the "lid" is on tight and apparently is on to stay.

The order came after a stormy session of the village council and was a surprise to citizens there having been no intimation that the closing of the town was even considered by the mayor and council, and there being no demand on the part of the citizens for the enforcement of the state law.

"The lid is on to stay, and the state law will be enforced so that there will be no leaks," is the only statement the mayor will make.

PLAN TO DRAIN THIEF LAKE

The refuges from Moose River bottom on account of continued heavy rains were not able to get back on their land as they expected to, until it is now too late to put in any crop. As it is the plans of the government surveyors to make extensive and costly improvements in the way of drainage in the Moose River Valley, it is thought that Thief Lake will either be drained or, at least have its level lowered enough so that it cannot raise and overflow the adjacent lands as it does now for several miles up the valley, thus driving settlers off their land.—Middle River Pioneer.

THE POULTRY YARD

FROM JULY FARM JOURNAL

The rooster is half the flock.

Keep the eggs in a cool cellar.

Keep on fighting the army of lice.

Disinfect the premises once a week.

The prices are good for roasting fowls.

Separate the growing cockerels from the pullets.

It will pay to clean up the droppings each morning.

Never leave a dead fowl lie around the buildings.

Filthy houses are doubly dangerous during hot weather.

The price for dressed ducks is not so high as last month.

The most profitable hens as a rule are not the styylish ones.

This is a good time to dispose of the old stock that is not needed.

During hot weather special care should be taken not to overcrowd nor overfeed.

To keep them growing, the cockerels need a little more feed than do the pullets.

It isn't good for hens to roost in a draft. Locate windows a little way from the roosts.

When the clouds look threatening, it is time to look after the little turkeys that are running with the hens.

Oats are just as good a food as you need for turkeys, but feed them yourself; and don't let the turks wallow thru the oat-fields.

If there is ever a time for lazy folks to hatch chicks it is now, when the weather is favorable and Nature provides so abundantly for them.

Lice like to hide away under the ends of the roosts. Every time you spray, lift the roosts and give the pests a dose that will drive them out for good and all.

Fine wire netting about the yard of the little chicks will keep out the rats, unless they dig under. If they do that, better put a cement floor under the enclosure.

Partly decayed meat is little better than a dose of arsenic for hens. It is surely not fit for them to eat. Limberneck is now believed to be caused by that kind of poison.

You cannot blame a hungry cat for destroying birds at nesting time and picking up a young chicken once in a while. Feed the cats extra well and they will not be apt to form these bad habits.

In setting a hen late in the season, when the weather is warm, it is well either to make the nest on the ground or to put a sod in the bottom of it, so that there may be some degree of coolness and moisture.

The best way is to shut up all fowls for 24 hours before killing, and give neither "bite nor sup". They will then be quite empty, and will kill and truss up in a very much firmer and sweeter condition than if shipped with decaying foods and evil smelling fluids.

PUT BOUNTY ON CROWS

RED LAKE COUNTY OFFERS TEN CENTS PER HEAD FOR THEM

SOME OF THE FARMER BOYS ARE MAKING $5 PER DAY

From Friday's Daily—

The county commissioners of Red Lake County have adopted a novel and, apparently, successful method of ridding the farms in the county of the great number of crows that infest this territory. They have placed a bounty of 10 cents per head on the birds, and every shotgun in the section is doing execution with the crows. As many as fifty have been killed by a good shot in one day, and strings of twenty to thirty are very common This bounty will continue until the nesting season is over which will be about the 1st to the 10th of July. It is claimed that these birds are the greatest enemy that the prairie chicken has, as it robs the nests of eggs, which been proven by the large number of egg shells that many of the hunters find under the crows' nests.

REPORT THEFTS TO PAPERS

LINCOLN STEFFENS ADVOCATES PUBLICITY AS FIRST STEP

CHIEF ECK THINKS POLICE SHOULD BE CALLED FIRST

From Thursday's Daily—

Lincoln Steffens magazine muckraker, believes that victims of robberies should telephone the facts to the newspapers as soon as they are discovered and inform the police later. He contends that better results could be obtained by such a procedure Chief of Police Aaron Eck is opposed to this method on the ground that the police should have the first chance at all police business.

Mr. Steffens has given his opinion in an article in the last issue of the American magazine. A part of the article follows:

Should Tell Newspapers

"The police everywhere warn citizens not to let anyone but the police know of such troubles. They say that if the newspapers get hold of the news they will publish it; this will frighten away the thieves and prevent the police from recovering the stolen property. This is only a polite trick to avoid criticism. They give to the press all their successes; they suppress their failures, and thus keep up the appearance of efficient service. As a matter of fact the first thing that the victim of a robbery should do is to telephone to the newspapers—all of them. That would soon show what a small proportion of the reported cases a detective bureau like that of New York 'detects' and it will make the police work on your case."

Chief Eck Says No

Chief Eck in taking issue with the Steffens idea says: "The newspapers are, no doubt, one of the most valuable adjuncts to police work They are of great value in most of our investigations and during my experience they have given the police some excellent assistance. The mission of the newspaper as I understand it, however, is to give the news, and not to conduct a detective bureau. The police department is supported by the people for the purpose of catching criminals and recovering stolen property. It seems to me therefore that the police should be the first to know of and take charge of their own business.

"I don't know how others look at the publicity idea, but for my part I am willing for the press to publish the news of all the real robberies. Further, when there are epidemics of certain kinds of robberies, the more publicity the better. The people will watch their houses and places of business and ward off the crimes. Many of the cases reported as robberies prove to be accidental losses when investigated.

Some False Alarms

"A man loses his purse, suspects someone and tells the police. Later, the purse is found. The immediate publication of such an occurrence would do someone an injustice. We do not try to suppress our failures, and the people are informed of the robberies.

"Stealing cannot be stopped absolutely in a large city, but the police can keep it within reasonable limits. Minneapolis I think has no more robberies in proportion to its size than any other city. Our desire to have the news of some crimes suppressed for a time has absolutely nothing to do with making a record for efficiency. I think the best results can be obtained by a fair-minded co-operation between the press and the police than by working the one against the other.

JUMPED FROM TRAIN TO DEATH

LEON DEMERS, INSANE, KILLED HIMSELF IN WISCONSIN LAST WEEK

Leon DeMers until three years ago a scaler for the Thief River Falls Lumber Co., with his home in that city jumped from a train while insane, his death resulting therefrom. DeMers, who had been insane for some time, was being transferred from one asylum to another. When near Chippewa Falls, Wis., he sprang from the rapidly moving train, sustaining injuries from which death resulted.

DeMers leaves a wife and four children. His brother-in-law Frank Yell, is now barn boss for the company at Thief River Falls. DeMers left three years ago for Wisconsin and was later judged insane. While at Thief River he acted as scaler in winter and grader during the cutting season. He was 4 years of age.

Picnic Notes

The selections rendered by the choir comprised of Misses Eva and Mabel McDonald, Nettie and Minnie Hannah, Katie, Lettie and Lily Bryson were especially well prepared and were generously applauded.

About 500 people participated in the festivities of the day.

The address on "A Trip Thru Palestine" was attentively listened to and Rev. Mathews was the recipient of many congratulations on his clear and concise description of that wonderful land.

The new pastor of Bethel church Rev. H. R. Brown is a promising young Divine, a forcible speaker and an all round good fellow and will make good.

Rev. Warmer was in his usual happy vein and warmed up to his subject as he spoke and all that heard him were satisfied when he was thru that they had certainly hear a "warmer."

The recitations rendered by Misses Hannah and Dalby were loudly applauded by virtue of their humorous nature and the able manner they were given in.

Little Archie Johnstone who is visiting with young Tommy Johnstone of this city and who is considered one of the finest Highland dancers in the state gave the Highland Fling in true Highland costume and style and was given a splendid ovation.

The dinner was exceptionally fine and served in the usual fine style only known to the ladies of the Marais for which a handsome sum was realized for the picnic fund.

A large number of Grand Forks friends and business men took advantage of the beautiful day and drove out to renew and make new acquaintances

Thomas Johnstone and son Tommy accompanied by their guest Archie Johnstone of Minneapolis drove down to the Picnic and enjoyed meeting their many friends again and report a good time for all.

MARAIS PEOPLE ARE DEEPLY INTERESTED

THOMAS JOHNSTONE PREACHED THEM THE GOSPEL OF MARKET DAY THURSDAY

At the Marais Picnic Thursday last, over which Thomas R. Johnstone of this city presided, he did not fail to emphasize the importance to the farmers of the regular market day established by the Crookston Commercial club. The Marais farmers were much interested and the thoughtfulness of Mr Johnstone is a good example for every resident of Crookston to follow. Talk market day in season and out of season. Tell every farmer every time you see one. Never let up. Advertise it so thoroly that every farmer in Polk Co. will know about it and look ahead to it as he would any very important event that he could not afford to miss.

The Bungalo

There's one word I hear
Wherever I go;
'Tis a queer importation
The word bungalo.

All over the land,
The North and the South
The bungalo theme is
In every one's mouth.

The master and mistress,
The groom and the maid
Are studying plans
To see how they're made.

One kind's built of plaster,
Another of logs,
But all are constructed
With queer little jogs.

There is one room in front—
Half a dozen combined;
The others are fastened
Somewhere on behind.

But then, after all,
The most room is outside,
Where porches are broad
And mosquitoes abide.

It's the funniest thing—
Whatever I do,
I've got to have
A bungalo too!

SAD DEATH OF JAMES MCGUIRE

SON OF PIONEER RESIDENT DIES OF TUBERCULOSIS AT MERRIAM PARK

Friends in this city have just received advices of the death of James McGuire at the home of his parents at Merriam Park some time ago.

"Jimmie" as he was known here was the son of P. J. McGuire who was County Auditor for a number of years in the early days and with the family resided here for years and was about twenty-four years of age. After leaving here the young man took up work at St. Thomas Seminary at St. Paul which is a Catholic institution, studying for the Priesthood and from reports his death occurred two days before he was to have been ordained and his end came rather unexpectedly For over a year he had been at Denver with a view to overcoming the ravages of tuberculosis and had improved considerably, and it was thought he had overcome the disease. The family still have a large number of friends in this locality who exceedingly regret the sad death of one who had such a brilliant and useful future before him.

MOTHER RISKS LIFE FOR CHILD

JUMPS INTO WELL AFTER OFFSPRING BUT DEATH HAD RESULTED

Mrs. J. W. Byers of Badoura, south of Akeley plunged into a 22-feet well in an attempt to save her little boy, Theodore, from drowning yesterday. The little fellow was playing near an unprotected well, containing about six feet of water, when his mother missed him. She ran to the well and jumped in. Sinking to the bottom, she felt for the child and rose to the surface crying for help. She clung to a board a few inches above the water. Clinging to the board she endeavored to bring the child back to consciousness and worked vigorously to resuscitate her litle one. Evidently the boy had fallen into the well head first and was killed. The mother was rescued after some difficulty from the well, with the dead child in her arms. She held tenaciously to the little one while they lifted her to the top of the well. It seems almost miraculous how Mrs. Byers escaped entirely unhurt.

Western Settlers Facing Trouble.

In an article in the St. Louis Globe Democrat Francis Perry Elliott says that in the West they are very much stirred up over the proposition to tawke from shrdluetaoinshrdlueuudlu take from the unreserved, unappropriated public domain reserved for settlers a vast area of 300,000,000 acres and place it in the forest service and lease it out for fencing and grazing for the big cattle barons and others whose interests are being crowded out by encroachments of the homesteaders.

This would shut out settlers from a pretty big strip of country—well, equivalent to an area 200 miles wide and over 2,000 miles long. This land is not included in the lands concerned in the regulation of streams or conservation of timber supply. This vast area has never been included in the forest reserves; it is part of the public domain awaiting settlement.

The agricultural lands of the public domain belong not to the people of the West alone; they belong to the citizens of every state in the Union. Anybody may go out there, take up a homestead of 160 acres and make a home in the manner the law specifies

The act of June 4, 1897, which set aside timbered areas and mountain watersheds for forest reserves specifically and distinctly forbade the including of lands good only for other purposes. The idea was that the interest of the settlers should have first consideration. Land unavailable for timber protection or reforestation or for conserving the flow of streams was to be kept open for farms and homes and communities.

Under the proposed "leasing policy" any big cattle magnate may lease and fence up for ten years as much as 10,000 acres; his friend may lease next door to him 10,000 more, and another friend the next, and so on.

It is not likely that any settler would care to undertake the responsibility of taking a family upon a home stead within such inclosure; his life would be a sultry one at best.

But the settler is not likely to have this opportunity, for if the leasehold has had one penny over $100 spent on it by the cattle owner (which amount is easily covered by the fence), the lessee has a right to debar the settler from entering.

This movement is, in effect, a plan to "corner" the forage of and withdraw from settlement a domain larger than the combined areas of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York, all of the New England States, and nearly all of the Southern States. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Change Of Campaign

The days of old red fire, torchlight transparency and "stump" speech campaigns are gone. Thirty years ago a good republican enthuser was of about equal proportions of good stories, eagle's tail feathers. the "bloody shirt' and personal abuse. It was all "whoop-'er-up" says the Duluth News Tribune.

But that was then. Now, as the Still water Gazette says, "There is more thinking and less of the howlfest in the land over political nominations than when red fire, bands of music, marching clubs, noise, etc., were most prominent. Now the people are just as earnest, think more and give the question of elcting a president deeper consideration."

Senator La Follette, Mr. Bryan, Governor Folk, Senator Tillman, Governor Cummins and a number of other prominent politicians do most of their campaigning from the lecture platform, thus combining profit with effective appeals to the people. So it has come to pass that the voters pay to hear politics discussed from a more or less non-partisan standpoint.

The modern campaign speech preceding an election is indeed little more than a lecture on political and economic questions. The appeal is made more to the people's brains and less of hysteria in the speaking department of a campaign.

The American public more than that of any other nation is a reading public, and so has sharpened its powers of discrimination. It is getting harder to fool even a part of the people, and it is expected that the present presidential battle will be fought largely thru such addresses, the news papers and magazines.

Under such conditions no people can make any serious mistakes, and this has been shown in the preconvention party contests, where the folks have won in spite of the old-time tactics and all the powers and cuteness of wealth and special interests.

Will Wave Big Stick

A poll of the delegates passing thru this city on their way to republican convention at St. Paul does not indicate that they are hampered with instructions and are very wise to the possibilities of the uninstructed delegations in holding the balance of power. One of the delegates from Red Lake county arriving in this city last evening from the north stated that his delegation had no promises to make as to whom they would vote for and other northern counties will not commit themselves.

In view of the fact that the field is not cut up by the presence of a local candidate in the race north country politicians think they will be able to wave the big stick at the convention and secure whatever is wanted in this territory. They figure that the field is so cut up in the south among the different candidates that the north country will probably swing the balance. That this demand on the convention candidates will be an inclusion of strong drainage planks in the state platform is now very evident.

While the delegates from this section are not instructed as a rule, individually they are largely Jacobson men, and look for his nomination on the first ballot.

.:. POLITICS .:.

Character Counts

Character in public men counts far more than it used to and it possibly counts far more in this country than in any other where representative government exists. This is strikingly seen today in the moral calibre of the leading candidates for the presidency in the chief political parties. Not only are they men of clean, upright lives and in most instances church members. A nation that makes character in its public men the first requirement is a nation that is morally sound at heart whatever may be the evil excrescences that often times appear. —Badger Herald Rustler.

Says Sherman is O. K.

James S. Sherman the republican candidate for vice president altho not as well known, has been a useful and hardworking member of congress for years. He is a very capable man, a man of splendid character, and enjoys to the fullest extent the confidence of the people of his own state, New York. As the campaign progresses the people of the whole country will learn to know him better than they do now.—Warren Sheaf.

Politics so long dead is coming to life again with a flavor of the old days about it. William Kent, LL.D., describes Richard Yates, candidate for governor of Illinois, as "a cross between a crocodile and a parrot," "a hole in the air with an odor in the vicinity," "a phonograph with a polecat attached."

We don't know whether Mr. Kent can keep up the lick. We hope he can in the interest of a lively campaign; but, fearful lest he should run down, we suggestion caution and conservatism in the use of his vocabulary. Mr. Richard Yates is apparently an attractive subject, but he is, after all, only a local issue. We should regret to find later in the campaign when Mr. Kent may be called upon to say something striking and unique about Mr. Taft or Mr. Bryan that his works refused to respond. It seems to us that Mr. Kent's gift of language is one of the natural resources of the country to be conserved.—Minneapolis Journal.

STATE OF MINNESOTA TRUSTEE OF GOVERNMENT

DRAINAGE OF ALL PUBLIC LANDS IN NORTHERN MINNESOTA TURNED OVER TO THE STATE OF MINNESOTA BY BILL PASSED BY CONGRESS AT THE LAST SESSION—SUM OF THREE CENTS PE RACRE MUST BE PAID BY ALL MAKING FINAL PROOFS TO PAY FOR DRAINAGE SURVEY OF LANDS BELONGING TO GOVERNMENT

The Crookston United States Land office has received orders relating to the following bill from the general land office at Washington. The order practically makes the state of Minnesota the trustee for the execution of all drainage plans on the immense tracts of public lands in the state of Minnesota. The drainage of public lands will not only be greatly facilitated by this arrangement whereby the projects are localized, but also vast systems of drainage which will include private and state lands as well as public government lands may be more completely and effectively realized when the constructions are under one management.

H. R. 19541—An Act to Authorize the Drainage of certain lands in the State of Minnesota.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all lands in the state of Minnesota, when subject to entry and all entered lands for which no final certificates have issued, are hereby made and declared to be subject to all of the provisions of the laws of said State relating to the drainage of swamp or overflowed lands for agricultural purposes to the same extent and in the same manner in which lands of a like character held in private ownership are or may be subject to said laws: Provided, That the United States and all persons legally holding unpatented lands under entries made under the public land laws of the United States are accorded all the rights, privileges and benefits given by said laws to persons holding lands of a like character in private ownership.

Sec. 2. That the cost of constructing canals, ditches, and other drainage works incurred in connection with any drainage project under said laws shall be equitably apportioned among all lands held in private ownership, all lands covered by unpatented entries, and all unentered public lands affected by such project; and officially certified lists showing the amount of the charges assessed against each smallest legal subdivision of such lands shall be furnished to the register and receiver of the land district in which the lands affected are located as soon as said charges are assessed, but nothing in this act shall be construed as creating any obligation on the United States to pay any of said charges.

Sec. 3. That all charges legally assessed may be, enforced against any unentered lands, or against any lands covered by an unpatented entry by the sale of such lands subject to the same manner and under the same proceedings under which such charges would be enforced against lands held in private ownership.

Sec. 4 That when any unentered lands, or any lands covered by an unpatented entry, have been sold in the manner mentioned in this act, a statement of such sale showing the price at which each legal subdivision was sold shall be officially certified to the register and receiver immediately after the completion of such sale.

Sec. 5.—That at any time after any sale of unentered lands has been made in the manner and for the purposes mentioned in this act patent shall issue to the purchaser thereof upon payment to the receiver of the minimum price of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, or such other price as may have been fixed by law for such lands, together with the usual fees and commissions charged in entry of like lands shall have the qualification of homestead entrymen and not more than one hundred and sixty acres of such lands shall be sold to any one purchaser under the provisions of this act. This limitation shall not apply to sales to the State but shall apply to purchases from the State of unentered lands bid in for the State. Any part of the purchase money arising from the sale of any lands in the manner and for the purposes provided in this act which shall be in excess of the payments herein required and of the total drainage charges assessed against such lands shall also be paid to the receiver before patent is issued.

Sec. 6. That any unpatented lands sold in the manner and for the purposes mentioned in this act may be patented to the purchaser thereof at any time after the expiration of the period of redemption provided for in the drainage laws under which it may be sold (there having been no redemption) upon the payment to the receiver of the fees and commissions and the price mentioned in the preceding section, or so much thereof as has not already been paid by the entryman; and if the sum received at any such sale shall be in excess of the payments herein required and of the drainage assessments and cost of the sale, such excess shall be paid to the proper county officer for the benefit of and payment to the entryman. That unless the purchasers of unentered lands shall within ninety days after the sale provided for in section three, pay to the proper receiver the fees, commissions and purchase price to which the United States may be entitled as provided in section five and unless the purchasers of entered lands shall within ninety days after the right of redemption has expired make like payments as provided for in this section, any person having the qualifications of a homestead entryman may pay to the proper receiver for not more than one hundred and sixty acres of land for which such payment has not been made: First, the unpaid fees, commissions and purchase price to which the United States may then be entitled; and, second, the sum at which the land was sold at the sale for drainage charges, and in addition thereto, if bid in by the state, interest on the amount bid by the state at the rate of seven percentum per annum from the date of such sale, and thereupon the person making such payment shall become subrogated to the rights of such purchaser to receive a patent for said land. When any payment is made to effect such subrogation the receiver shall transmit to the treasurer of the county where the land is situated the amount at which the land was sold at the sale for drainage charges together with the interest paid thereon, if any, less any sum in excess of what may be due for such drainage charge, if the land was sold was unentered.

Sec. 7. That a copy of all notices required by the drainage laws mentioned in this act to be given to the owners or occupants of lands held in private ownership shall, as soon as such notices issue, be delivered to the register and receiver of the proper district land office in cases where unentered lands are affected thereby and to the entrymen whose unpatented lands are included therein, and the United States and such entrymen shall be given the same rights to be heard by petition, answer, remonstrance, appeal, or otherwise as are given the same righas of redemption as are given to the owners of lands held in private ownership.

Sec. 8. That hereafter homestead entries and final proofs may be made upon all ceded Chippewa Indian lands in Minnesota embraced in the withdrawal under the Act of June 21st, nineteen hundred and six, entitled "An Act making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department" (Thirty-may issue thereon as in other home-fourth Statutes at Large, page three hundred and twenty-five), and patents stead cases, upon the payment by the entryman of the price prescribed by law for such land and on entries on the ceded Red Lake Reservation in addition thereto the sum of three cents per acre to repay the cost of the drainage survey thereof, which addition shall be disposed of the same as the other proceeds of said land.

Approved, May 20, 1908.

Be Courteous

"Be courteous" is an injunction as old or older than the scriptures but it needs to be constantly emphasized, especially in these days when the hurry of our modern life inclines one to be brisque of speech and oftentimes discourteous. Courtesy and its twin, politeness, are the lubricants which prevents friction and makes the wheels of society revolve smoothly.—Herald Rustler.

Mitchell's Life Work

John Mitchell former president of the United Mine Workers of America has positively refused to run for governor of Illinois on the democratic ticket and also to consider the nomination for the vice presidency. Mr. Mitchell declares that he has no desire to mix up in politics and "that he is a poor politician anyhow." He has made arrangements to take charge of the trade agreement department of the National Civic Federation a position that carries with it a salary of $6,000 per year. Mr. Mitchell's work will be to settle disputes between employees and employers without strikes and lockouts, and to secure as far as possible industrial peace in the labor world. For this work he is peculiarly fitted and quite properly believes that in his new position he can be of far greater service to society and organized labor than if he attempted to hold any political position such as those mentioned. People who are familiar with Mr. Mitchell's career will agree with his views in this matter and will consider the effort to make a politician out of him as being illy advised, for he has created for himself a position in the labor world that he should be allowed to occupy during the rest of his natural life. He is the peer of arbitraters and as such we wish him to remain. —Detroit Record.

Mr. Molstad opened the door of the front room where he was sleeping, to see what the matter was, and was driven back by the fire and smoke. PARADISE ON THE ROSEAU

VICTOR C. BAILEY ENJOYS LIFE AT CARIBOU, MINNESOTA

THIRTY MILES FROM RAILROAD ONE OF MINNESOTA'S BEAUTY SPOTS

Victor Bailey, merchant and postmaster at Caribou in the north east corner of Kittson county, who will be made more known to the world when the big Roseau state project is completed, perhaps enjoys the distinction of being one of the most isolated men living in one of the most beautiful places in all the northwest.

The town of Caribou which consists of Mr. Bailey's store and warehouses and lumber yards is situated at the International Rapids on the border line between Minnesota and Manitoba thirty miles from Lancaster on the Soo, the nearest railroad station, and just about one mile from the iron posts that traversing northern Minnesota's boundary determines the bounding line between this state and the Dominion of Canada.

About a hundred yards above the store and residence of Mr. Bailey up the Roseau a small island the size of a city block rests peacefully in the broad surface of the river, both sides lined with precipitous rapids. Below the Roseau bends out into a broad river many hundred of feet across until further down it comes upon other cascades and rapids.

The home of Mr. Bailey itself, tho situated far distant from the railway facilities nevertheless has a modern architecture so arranged that all the pleasant advantages with which the building is surrounded are ever at hand and visible and enjoyable. The grounds are most excellently kept and the banks of Roseau are but a few feet behind the rear door. The building is situated in the midst of a northern grove of trees.

The homesteaders and residents of this locality come from long distances to do their trading at the Bailey store and many are the products of the wild taken in exchange. The store is one of the most modern north of Crookston and carries a large stock on hand.

When the big Roseau river is diverted by the State's project into an artificial canal which will run but a few hundred feet west of Mr. Bailey's store, the rapids will be watched by Mr. and Mrs. Bailey anxiously to see what the effect will be upon them as the rapids lend much of the natural beauty to the place.

Mr. Bailey is an occasional visitor at Crookston and is well known to men about town, however little known his home is.

The Republican County Convention is history, and the result was a death blow to gang politics in Polk county. The progressive delegates after they realized what they were fighting, rallied after they had lost the organization and by an overwhelming majority elected delegates to the Republican state convention without instructions but constituted by an equal number of Jacobson and Young men practically with general sentiment in favor of Jacobson, in deference to the desire of the delegates from the rural districts who were in favor of "Jake."

Lines Closely Drawn

The convention was called to order by County Chairman J. C. Sathre who read the call, and T. A. Sullivan of East Grand Forks and P. Snyder of Crookston was nominated, the latter being the candidate of the progressive Republicans who were not opposed to the west end candidate personally, but who were unalterably opposed to the gang methods of those with whom the west end delegates affiliated in this city, and those who were handling the Savage campaign in Polk county.

The result of the vote was Sullivan 32, Snyder 31. Chairman Sathre refrained from voting or the result would have been a tie. L. E. George of Fertile was the unanimous choice of the convention as secretary.

The Committees

Chairman Sullivan after thanking the convention for the honor on motion named the following committees:

Permanent Organization—G. A. E. Finlayson, E. M. Walsh and A. W. Foss.

Credentials—N. J. Nelson, J. M. Stephens, Albert Berg.

Resolutions—T. R. Brown, Andrew Opheim and C. O. Longley.

The committee on permanent organization reported in favor of making the temporary organization permanent, which was unanimously adopted, and the report of the credentials committee was approved without question the convention later seating residents of all outlying towns who happened to be present where there were no regularly elected elected delegates.

The Fun Began

The fire works were started when a motion was made for the chair to name a committee of five, one from each commissioner's district to submit a list of 17 delegates and 17 alternatives to the state convention. On a viva voce vote the chair declared the motion carried. J. C. Sathre took an appeal from the decision of the chair, calling for a rising vote and the result was 28 for and over 40 against. This showed clearly that those who had secured the organization of the convention had lost out and the progressives held the whip hand. They immediately forced an adjournment till two o'clock.

Caucused at Noon

During the recess the Progressives caucused and a delegation to the state convention was agreed to and a plan of action outlined, all anti-gang interests having been harmonized.

Uninstructed

The committee on resolutions reported immediately after the convention was called to order in the afternoon and appear below. Albert Berg offered an amendment instructing the delegation for J. F. Jacobson but the amendment was laid on the table and the resolutions as returned from the committee passed unanimously.

Reports Were Amended

On motion of N. S. Davies of the Journal a committee of five to consist of Ed Stowe, O. A. Stortroen J. C. Sathre, H. J. Beardmore and G. A. E. Finlayson was named to prepare a list of 17 delegates and 17 alternates to the state Republican convention to be held in St. Paul July 1st and the motion carried unanimously.

Poured Oil on Waters

The committee reported shortly afterwards and the list of delegates did not contain the names of any delegates from the city of East Grand Forks. N. S. Davies took the floor and stated that in the interests of harmony and fair play, the Progressives, who had a big majority could well afford to amend the report to include two names from the west end metropolis and on motion of F. C. Massee, who made a telling address the committee was sent back to revise the report and the delegates were elected as given at the top of this column.

A Rousing Address

While the above committee was deliberating a committee was named to escort Congressman Halvor Steenerson to the convention hall and he appeared shortly afterwards and gave a rousing straight from the shoulder republican address which was punctuated by most vigorous cheers by the audience at frequent intervals.

The Journal Gratified

The Journal is highly gratified at the outcome of the convention. The Journal has always fought against gang rule, and upheld clean politics with equal representation to all. We believe that cliques and plots should be done away with, and everything done in the open. The majority should rule and the rights of all be respected. No other method will be tolerated by the Progressive Republicans of Polk County in the future.

The convention on motion adjourned.

The Resolutions

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

The republicans of Polk county in county convention assembled, do hereby adopt the following resolutions:

Resolved, that we pledge our hearty support and influence to the success of the Republican National Ticket, believing that the candidates, William H. Taft and James S. TENSTRIKE SENSATION

AN ALLEGED DETECTIVE THREATENED WITH LYNCHING AT THAT PLACE

From Thursday's Daily—

Charged with havinig criminally assaulted Hazel Kruger a 9-year-old girl at Tenstrike and leaving her unconscious and in a terrible condition, Justin Stoddard is confined in the village jail there, with an angry populace threatening to lynch him.

It appears that Stoddord accosted the young girl as she was returning to her home near Gull Lake, from a trip to the postoffice about 8 o'clock Tuesday evening picked her up and carried her to the woods, attempting to criminally assault the child.

Carl Holuptzok who was passing the place where the girl lay at about 9 o'clock heard a faint cry and found the girl in an unconscious condition with her face terribly bruised and her clothes badly torn. Holuptzok brought the girl to her home and came to the village and told of the assault on the girl. A crowd of men was organized and all suspicious parties were arrested.

Between 9:30 and 10 o'clock last night Justin Stoddard who poses as a detective was chased to his home at Spur 106 and arrested by Deputy Sheriff Fred Wilson and Ed Leonard. He was brought to Tenstrike and lodged in the jail where he is held to await identification by the girl who was unconscious ever since the attack until 3 o'clock this afternoon. She has not yet sufficiently recovered to pronounce judgment on Stoddard.

It is said that Stoddard was seen running from the place where the girl was found last night, and that when he arrived home he changed his clothes.

HARD FIGHT TO RETAIN HOMESTEAD

GOVERNMENT INSTITUTES CONTEST VALUABLE GRACETON CLAIM

Yesterday before the U. S. land office officials in this city was held the final trial in the contest instituted by the government to cancel the entry of Albert Cavalier to 160 acres filed on in Northern Beltrami County in the vicinity of Graceton.

Five years ago this fall Cavalier filed on a valuable claim in that locality, had his description surveyed and began making improvements with the idea he was on his own land. Another survey was made by other parties a year later and it was found he was 300 feet over on another man's holdings and a contest was instituted against him and after the case was heard before the U. S. Commissioner at Warroad it was decided in his favor. But as the claim is a valuable one other contests were brought against him and caused him both trouble and considerable expense.

Mr. Cavalier is the youngest son of Charles Cavalier the first white settler in what is now Pembina, N. D. having settled there in 1840 is like his father a frontiersman and the call of the wild always has an attraction for him and he is perfectly contented fighting mosquitoes in the north woods these days. With his witnesses David Cooper and Pat Gayno he departed on last night's Duluth train for their homes in the woods going in via Bemidji and International Falls.

DEATH COMES SUDDENLY TO CLEVELAND

Former President Unexpectedly Passes Away at His Home in Princeton.

NOTABLE CAREER IS ENDED

President Roosevelt Orders National Honors in His Memory—Sorrow Is Universal.

Princeton, N. J., June 26. — Grover Cleveland, twice president of the United States, died at 8:40 o'clock yesterday morning at his home, "West Land," in this quiet college town, where he had lived since his retirement as the nation's chief executive, almost twelve years ago.

When death came, which was sudden, there were in the death chamber Mrs. Cleveland, Dr. Joseph D. Bryant of New York, Mr. Cleveland's family physician and personal friend; Dr. George R. Lockwood of New York and Dr. John M. Carnochan of Princeton.

An official statement, given out and signed by the three physicians, gave heart trouble, superinduced by stomach and kidney ailments of long standing, as the cause of death.

Death Is Unexpected.

While Mr. Cleveland had been in poor health for the last two years and had lost a hundred pounds in weight, his death came unexpectedly. Some three weeks ago he was brought home from Lakewood, where his condition for a time was such that the hotel at which he was staying was kept open after its regular season because he was too ill to be moved. But when Mr. Cleveland was brought back to Princeton he showed signs of improvement and actually gained five pounds in weight.

Although confined to his room continuously after his return to Princeton, it was not until Tuesday that Mr. Cleveland's condition aroused uneasiness on the part of Mrs. Cleveland. Undoubterly affected by the heat, Mr. Cleveland showed signs of failure and Mrs. Cleveland telegraphed Dr. Bryant, and Dr. Carnochan, who had been Mr. Cleveland's local physician since the former president came to Princeton, was also called in.

The End Is Peaceful.

During the evening Mr. Cleveland seemed to rally, and Mrs. Cleveland felt assured it was merely another of the many attacks Mr. Cleveland had suffered, and she informed those who inquired that Mr. Cleveland's condition was not serious.

Mr. Cleveland became worse during the night, and Mrs. Cleveland was called to the bedside of her husband. The distinguished patient sank into unconsciousness, from which he recovered at times only to suffer a relapse. This continued throughout the night and early morning. The last time he became unconscious was about two hours before he died. Death was peaceful. Just before he died Mr. Cleveland sought to say something, but his words were inaudible.

The news of Mr. Cleveland's death came as a sudden shock to the people of Princeton, as it did to the people of the rest of the world.

Roosevelt Sends Coldolence.

Many intimate friends of the family and many others not so close called at the Cleveland home. Few were able to see Mrs. Cleveland, and all of them left cards. The visitors, newspaper men, photographers and others became so numerous that the police authorities placed a policeman on guard at the Cleveland home, and no one but intimate friends and those in charge of the funeral arrangements were allowed to approach the house.

It was not until late in the day that messages of condolence began to come in from all parts of the world to Mrs. Cleveland. One of the first was from Mr. Roosevelt, who will attend the funeral, which will be held on Friday afternoon, and which in deference to Mrs. Cleveland's wishes will be as private as possible.

To Rest in Princeton.

Mr. Cleveland's body will be buried in Princeton cemetery, in the family plot where lies the remains of Ruth, the eldest of the Cleveland children, whose death was a sad blow to her father.

So suddenly did Mr. Cleveland's death occur that not one of his four children were at home. The children are at the Cleveland summer home at Tamworth, New Hampshire, under the care of Mrs. Perrine, Mrs. Cleveland's mother. Word was sent to them of their father's death, and they will start at once for Princeton. The children are: Esther, aged fourteen; Marion, aged twelve; Richard, aged ten, and Francis Grover, aged five.

Ever since Mr. Cleveland's arrival in Princeton, eleven years ago, he has been a conspicuous figure in Princeton. Although his only official connection with Princeton university was his lectureship, known as the Stafford-Little lectureship on public affairs, and his membership in the board of trustees, he was regarded as a strong friend of the institution.

Telegrams Pour in.

Grover Cleveland was well liked among students and faculty. His last public appearance in the university was while delivering a public lecture about two years ago. Princeton university is closed now. Except for a half dozen students who are doing special work, there are none but the professors here who are connected with the university.

The telegrams of condolence came in by the hundreds from all parts of the United States and other countries during the day, and they continued to pour into the telegraph office here far into the night. Besides President Roosevelt's telegram, messages of condolence came from government officials, governors, legislators, prominent educators and citizens of various walks of life.

Tribute From Taft.

New Haven, June 26.—News of the death of ex-President Grover Cleveland yesterday threw into a shadow of genuine sorrow the commencement festivities at Yale.

Secretary Taft was informed of the demise of Mr. Cleveland as the procession of the officials of the university, the faculty and the graduates were forming to march to Woolsey hall, in which the commencement exercises were held. He expressed his deep regret at Mr. Cleveland's death and said:

"President Cleveland was one of the very great men of the country. His death is a distinct loss to the American people."

INSPECTED THE ROSEAU DITCH

STATE DRAINAGE ENGINEER RALPH RETURNS FROM TRIP THRU NORTH

IMMENSE FLOATING DREDGES BUILD NEW ROSEAU RIVER RAPIDLY

From Saturday's Daily—

State Drainage Engineer George A. Ralph of Crookston returned home last evening from an extensive trip thruout the north where he has been inspecting all the ditches under state construction. Mr. Ralph left Greenbush Monday last and went to Badger from which place he drove overland for fifteen miles to the Roseau River two miles below Ross postoffice, taking one of the woodboat fleet of the Standard Drainage Company of Windom, Minnesota, down the river to the dredge. This entire trip from Badger to the dredge was made in a driving rain in open boat and carriages.

After having fully inspected the work by the Standard Drainage Company on the cut offs across the bends of the Roseau Mr. Ralph pushed on down the Roseau twenty miles to the floating dredge belonging to Sherwood and Dick of Litchfield, Minnesota. This dredge has just entered on the ten mile cut straight from a point up the Roseau to the Roseau river just below Bailey's store at Caribou. The dredge is now about down this cut.

It will cut off about fifteen miles in the route that water has formerly been compelled to take by way of the river proper. This cut is thru solid earth eight and nine feet deep and fifty feet wide with a total excavation of 290,000 yards.

The machines on the Roseau intend to get done by the end of the year in contract time. The Standard Drainage Machine under Captain Jas. A. Beard has been making splendid progress. The Sherwood machine below has been having some very hard digging thru tenacious formations of soil.

From Caribou Mr. Ralph drove to Lancaster, Minn., took the Soo there and inspected the ditches at Bronson on the Soo. These ditches, six in number are being dug by Arpin Bros., of Grand Rapids, Wis., and are under the direct charge of A. N. Arpin of that place. They are walking dredges making their way across the country on immense rollers and dumping the dirt clear free of the ditch line. They are digging ditches about 25 feet wide and five feet deep and are excavating an immense yardage. They are now at work on a ditch draining the big Hjelma swamp which they compluete in a few days.

The Technique of Home Making

"Cook, sweep, dust and sew, these four words will never make a happy home," writes the editor in Woman's Home Companion for July. "They do not make sympthy, and love, and ambition, and faith; but they go a long way toward making room for these things. The average bride has a trunkful of ideals, and maybe two trunkfuls of clothes. Her cook book—if she has one and the leaves are cut at all—opens easily to 'fudge.' But unless she has mastered enough pages of this book to get three meals a day, without exhausting her own body and soul, and her husband's too, she will have little time for clothes and none at all for ideals. She finds herself involved in the mastery of the merest technical details. In spite of her best endeavors, her husband loses his enthusiasm for badly cooked food poorly served. Perhaps she tells him that he couldn't do it so well himself, and then he tells her about what he can do—perhaps it's soldering a joint or adding up a column of figures or drawing a straight line between two given points—but anyhow he can do it, because it is his business and he has perfected himself in it, and if she—And then Cook and Sweep and Dust and Sew fling wide the doors of that house, and Sympathy and Love and Ambition and Faith make their escape."

MR. FURLONG IS PLEASED

SAYS POLK COUNTY WAS NEVER IN BETTER SHAPE TO SEND FINE EXHIBIT

OF RESOURCES TO THE STATE FAIR—WORK WILL BE STARTED AT ONCE

From Saturday's Daily—

J. J. Furlong of Austin, Minn., spent Friday in the city on conference with President H. C. Misner and Secretary J. F. Moore of the Commercial Club in connection with an exhibit of the resources of Polk Co., at the Minnesota State Fair this year, and as a result of the conference steps will at once be taken toward the collection of an exhibit that will do Polk County full justice. It has been nearly ten years since Polk Co., has had an exhibit, and the plan is to make up for lost time this year.

The business men will be interested at once; and special aid is to be secured from the land men, with the idea in view of collecting an exhibit which will show the wonderful diversity of crops of which Polk Co., is capable of producing. The dairy exhibit will be one of the most important, but grains, vegetables, grasses, clover and fruits will all receive special attention.

Friday afternoon the Commercial club officials with Mr. Furlong were taken on an auto tour of this vicinity by President J. W. Wheeler and on their return Mr. Furlong said:

"I never saw the prospects for a bumper crop better. Your fields are the best I have seen in the state this year. I have been specially impressed with the splendid herds of cattle seen on almost every farm. This means permanent prosperity. Your pasturage facilities are certainly excellent. The Red River Valley never looked better than it does today. Polk County was never in a position to send such a magnificent exhibit to the state fair as this year.

$8,000,000 ON PUBLIC ROADS

THAT IS THE APPROPRIATION IN INDIANA FOR THE CURRENT YEAR

HIGHWAYS OF THAT STATE ARE ALL UNDER SUPERVISION OF COUNTIES

From Saturday's Daily—

H. L. Falk is an ardent advocate of good roads, as he always has been, and in conversation with a representative of the Journal stated last evening that he had just noted an article in his old home paper from Indiana to the effect that in Indiana this year $8,000,000 had been appropriated for the construction and maintenance of public highways.

This is nothing out of the ordinary in Indiana, which, by the way, has the best highways of any state in the union, Ohio coming second.

The foundation of Indiana's splendid road system was laid in the early days when the main roads were constructed by private corporations or individuals who collects toll from every passing team.

Later the rights were purchased by the various counties and kept up by a special tax for that purpose until at the present time the vast sum of $8,000,000 per year is expended on the public highways which are kept in first class condition all season's of the year.

The importance of good roads cannot be over estimated, and a system of good roads in Polk County would mean a wonderful influence in the development of the land here and Crookston as the county seat and metropolis of the Valley should take the initiative in the agitation of so important a subject. A start has been made in that direction in the Experimental farm road, and the Commercial club should stand solid behind any and every project to better the roads leading to Crookston.

One dollar bottle and part of the second cured me entirely." Foley's Kidney Remedy works wonders where others are a total failure. Sold by all druggists.

EAGLE WILL SCREAM IN MANY NORTHERN MINNESOTA CITIES AND TOWNS

COMFORTABLE DAY WILL BE PROVIDED IN CROOKSTON—BIG BALL GAME

There will be every opportunity offered for those who wish to celebrate July 4th this year in Crookston and many surrounding cities and towns. We have not the full list at hand but quite a number of places in Polk county plan an old time celebration.

The majority of the Crookston people will remain at home. While there will be no great celebration here, the band will play, the Germania Club will give a big dance and serve refreshments all afternoon, and there will be a red hot game of baseball between the Grand Forks Independents and the Crookston Independents.

Bygland

In Western Polk there will be a grand celebration at Bygland which Prof. J. C. Sathre will be the principal speaker. There will be a fine program of sports music, recitations and speeches. The Burnham Creek Band will furnish the music under the direction of G. Oliver Riggs. There will be horse races, foot races, baseball and in the evening a grand display of fire works. The program begins at 10:30 sharp.

East Grand Forks

At East Grand Forks there will be four different kinds of a big time. The preparations are on a more elaborate scale than ever attempted by the metropolis of the west end city. They will have several bands, some great races, speeches, ball games and every thing that goes to make a grand celebration, and in the evening there will be fire works that will make the people of the southern states think a phenominal display of Aurora Borealis is taking place.

Ulen

At Ulen the entire country side will join in and have a celebration that will be a regular old-timer. The eagle will start screaming at day break and there will be no cessation of hostilities till there is danger of cracking Sunday.

St. Hilaire

The 4th of July is to be celebrated at St. Hilaire this year and a great time is being prepared. Besides other attractions the ball teams of Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls are to play and the Red Lake Falls band is to be in attendance.

Highlanding

Highlanding is to celebrate also, and many of the residents of the Eleven Towns will go to that place where a good lot of attractions have been arranged for.

Warren

In Marshall county, Warren at least will observe the day as will probably other places. There will be no celebration this year at Thief River Falls.

Erskine

Arrangements have been completed whereby the Nation's Independence Day, July 4th will be properly observed at the Martin Ostby place in the town of Winger. Alfred Strom and Rev. Benjamin Clausen are the speakers of the day while the Mjolner brass band of the town of Garden, will dispense the sweet music. A fine program of races and sports is also included and all who attend will be sure of a good time. A magnificent display of fireworks will take place in the evening.—Erskine Echo.

I have decided to become a candidate for the republican nomination for Representative of the 62nd Legislative District at the Primary Election to be held September the 15th, 1908 and I solicit the active support of all of my friends and all who are interested in the welfare of our people of this district.

I think I need no introduction to the people of Polk county, being the present Register of Deeds to which office I was elected for a second term without opposition.

I am interested in the growth and development of Polk County, the strict enforcement of law; and, that every man shall stand equal before the law.

Your support will be very much appreciated. If nominated and elected I will give the best service that I can command to the people of my district.

Very sincerely,

—J. H. STAIR.

FIVE FARMERS WILL BUILD SILOS

Five of the most progressive farmers of western Polk county are going to build silos this summer. They are O. H. Bang, A. Syverstad, Ole Ostgaard and A. Aaberg. This is a good move and many others will probably be put up before long. A silo is almost necessary on a farm as it keeps good, fresh fodder, increasing the cream output, which means money in the pocket of the farmer.

TOOK ANDY FOR KNUTE

STEPHENS OF CROOKSTON GIVES UNITED STATES SENATOR A BIG BOOST

GRAND CELEBRATION AT McINTOSH OF QUARTER CENTURY'S END

From Tuesday's Daily—

Five thousand people attended the grand celebration at McIntosh Saturday and Sunday of the 25th anniversary of the settlement of the Thirteen Towns dating from the opening of those thirteen towns by the government in 1883 when all this territory was a new country.

Politicians from all parts of the state were present at the celebration A peculiar situation transpired on account of the absence of Knute Nelson senator from Minnesota, who was billed to address the assemblage of people in an immense tent erected for the occasion.

Upon learning of the absence of Knute Nelson, Senator Andy Stephens of Crookston was called to the speaker's platform and addressed the gathering. The introduction of the substituted speaker did not reach all ears and many hundreds of farmers and visitors of the celebration departed from McIntosh believing that they had heard Senator Knute Nelson address them according to the program.

Senator Nelson's stock has gone sky high, therefore, for the speaker showed an intimate acquaintance with the local conditions thruout Polk county and the north valley and it was very pleasing to the residents of this section who believed that they had heard the United States Senator to receive this encouragement from so august a man. Bands from many of the towns of the vicinity were at McIntosh and races and other sports were given. The celebration continued Sunday and a large number of people from Crookston attended.

Judge R. J. Montague of the United States land office of Crookston delivered the leading address Sunday. Fully seven thousand people were at the grounds.

The thirteen towns were opened by government order June 27, 1883, and the immense tract of land was immediately settled. The thirteen towns compose the eastern portion of Polk county and two towns in Clearwater. They consist in the main of high rolling land, well drained and fertile. These conditions attracted early the best quality of inhabitants who live there to this day.

A VERDICT OF $2,000

RETURNED AGAINST JEFF BARTON OF GRAND FORKS WHO OWNED HACK

IN WHICH AGNES BEARDMORE WAS INSULTED IN EAST GRAND FORKS

From Tuesday's Daily—

The case of Agnes Beardmore, postmistress at Rugby, N. D., vs. G. W. Barton was tried in the district court here yesterday and last evening the jury after being out but a short time awarded the plaintiff damages in the sum of $2,000. The history of the case is too well known to require details at this time, but it may be stated briefly that some time ago an East Grand Forks hack driver known as "Dude" Smith was convicted in the district court of an attempted assault on the plaintiff in this case, while at her request he was conveying her from the depot to the home of a friend in East Grand Forks.

The hack was owned by and the hackman employed by G. W. Barton of Grand Forks. Soon after the conviction of Smith the present suit was brought by the plaintiff and the case tried yesterday, as stated above. The plaintiff was represented by Massee & Finlayson and the defendant by S. G. Skulason of Grand Forks. "Dude" Smith is now serving a three year sentence in Stillwater.

A Queer Goose

Ducks swim the world over, but geese do not. In South America a species is found that cannot excel an ordinary hen in aquatic accomplishments. It has lived so long in a country where water is only found in wells that it has lost its aquatic tastes and abilities entirely. It has also been demonstrated that the daily use of a good malt tonic such as golden grain belt beer will strengthen the weak, build up the run down and cheer the depressed. WILL MEET IN SUPERIOR

THE SONS OF NORWAY HAVE A GREAT MEETING AT ST. PAUL — NEW LAWS

NEW OFFICERS WERE ELECTED —PLAN A VISIT TO NORWAY IN 1914

From Monday's Daily—

The Sons of Norway grand lodge at their meeting held in St. Paul Saturday decided to meet in June 1909 in Superior, Wis. The officers elected:

President—John Boke, St. Paul.

Vice President—S. Surnsgord, Hillsboro, N. D.

Physician—Edwin Clovness, Sioux Falls, S. D.

Secretary—Howard Askeland, Minneapolis.

Treasurer—B. O. Draxten, Minneapolis.

Regent—T. O. Giare, Rochester, Minn.

Marshal—R. N. Queloai, Madison, Wis.

Watchman—O. Lindahl, Benson, Minn.

Liquor men received a severejolt yesterday when the grand lodge of the Sons of Norway voted that no liquor manufacturer, dealer or employe shall be eligible to membership. Hitherto employes have not been barred, but the sentiment against even that concession has been gradually growing stronger. The resolution was carried by over a two-thirds vote.

The amendment to secure optional insurance was voted down. It was desired by many that social lodges be permitted to organize and also that members be taken in as social members only, but the matter was disapproved of by a strong majority. As the matter now stands, men who are able to pass the regular physical examination and are acceptable otherwise, but too old to obtain insurance, may be admitted as social members. A committee of five has been working on the matter during the last year.

One of the chief matters of discussion was that of improving the library The librarian's report showed that there was a good supply of books on hand and that many publishing houses thruout the country had promised one volume to be placed in the library.

The correspondence committee read a letter from the Pacific coast grand lodge asking the Eastern grand lodge to unite with them. The matter was referred to the board of directors to be considered after the close of the convention. The suggestion was received with considerable favor by many. The following committee was appointed to act on the invitation received from the Pacific coast lodge: H. P. Peterson, Superior, Wis.; P. Holtornt, J. Stenvik, L. Koarmess and I. Stevenson, Minneapolis.

A plan of great interest was brought forth to have the grand lodge make a visit to Norway in 1914. Oscar Erickson of Minneapolis was made a committee to look into the matter and work it up.

FUR CROP GETS BETTER

"SKIN" GEORGE INDULGES IN REMARKS CONCERNING NORTHERN FUR TRADE

OLDEST TRAVELLING MAN IN STATE SAYS 1908 PROSPECTS GOOD

From Monday's Daily—

"Skin" George, for thirty eight years a commercial traveler in Minnesota and the northwest, arrived in the city last night to attend to business in conenction with the purchase of furs thru this territory. He came down the north line where he had visited at Stephen and Hallock where agent buyers gather in the furs from the north country for him.

Mr. George says that the fur business looks even better than last year and he believes that he will buy more furs this year than last and be able to pay a good price for them. The number of wild animals seemed to have increased tho the number of trappers in the business he believes to have decreased slightly. Mr. George has traveled thruout the entire northern part of the continent on his search for furs, has ascended and descended the MacKenzie River twice clear to Hershel Island and has visited Paris, London and Leipsic. He says that last year durin gthe money stringency here the furs bought in this country were sold in large quantities in these three cities where his house has selling branches.

R. H. MEDICRAFT SAYS NORTHERN MINNESOTA—R. R. CO., MEANS BUSINESS

WILL START CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS AGAINST G. N. AT ONCE

From Tuesday's Daily—

If the solid backing and support of the people of Roseau and Beltrami counties, with Marshall and Kittson counties adding considerable influence, amounts to anything, the Northern Minnesota railroad company will soon have a line in operation from Warroad, running thru Roseau, Pelan and Karlstad, connection with the Soo at the latter place, and continuing west to the Red River and into Dakota at some point not yet definitely determined upon.

Peter Lofgren one of the influencial promoters, of Pelan, is known to be intimately connected with the Soo, and it is generally believed that the Soo is behind the new project. John Lind and A. Ueland the attorneys of the new road it is understood will soon begin condemnation proceedings against the Great Northern, with the intention of securing the right of way of the Great Northern rfom Greenbush to Warroad and using it for the construction of the proposed new line as far, as practicable.

The people of Roseau county contend that the Great Northern has had a reasonable time in which to lay the steel on the road bed that has practically been completed, and that those who donated the right of way have a cause for action that will stand in court.

Attorney R. H. Medicraft of the Roseau Region who is in the city enroute to the Republican state convention at St. Paul states that action is to be commenced at once and that every possible aid and encouragement will be extended to the new project.

PAUL JONES TO BE TRIED

ALLEGED SLAYER OF NELS HALVORSON WILL BE UP IN COURT THIS WEEK

STRONG CASE OF CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE HAS BEEN PREPARED

From Wednesday's Daily—

The trial of Paul Jones accused of the merder of Nels Halvorson will be started at Minnewaukon, N. D.. Jones is making a hard fight for liberty. He claims that he had no hand in the murder.

Halvorson was a bachelor and lived about a mile from the farm on which Jones was employed. Jones was left at home while his employer and family were absent. The state claims that during the afternoon he visited the home of Halvorson and shot him with a shotgun owned at the farm where Jones was employed. The motive of the crime was robbery, it is asserted but Jones secured nothing so far as can be learned.

Gun Wads are Same

Shells found at the scene of the crime corresponded with those with which the shotgun owned by Jones' employer had been loaded a short time previous. The gun wads were the same also.

Jones admitted that he had been absent on the afternoon of the crime but claimed that he went to round up the cattle and did not visit the Halvorson farm.

The state has prepared a good case against him and is confident he will be convicted. It has been learned that he was a convict in an eastern penitentiary and has a long criminal record.

McINTOSH INSANE MAN THREW HIMSELF HEADLONG FROM STAIR TOP

TO AVOID SUDDEN DESTRUCTION OF WORLD—TAKEN TO FERGUS

From Tuesday's Daily—

Yesterday afternoon Gattorm Grundyson a farmer near McIntosh was declared insane after an investigation by the probate court here and was committed to the insane hospital at Fergus Falls, Deputy Sheriff Daniels taking him down last evening. The unfortunate man is 38 years of age and single. He has been acting queerly for some time past and recently was so far "off" that the neighbors did not think it safe for him to enjoy liberty longer.

Grundeson fears every one about plans to do him harm resultant tendencies to suicide.

Moreover Grendeson predicts the world is coming suddenly to an end and to evade the impending tortures of that moment he hurled himself headlong down the stairway of his home near McIntosh, remaining unconscious for hours.

He is a single man and for a time his sister took care of his home for him, but she left him a short time ago and the lack of her care is believed to be the cause of his gradually weakening of mind and present violence.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN HAS FIGHT ON HIS HANDS

Col. J.M. Guffey is Putting Up Great Fight and has 376 Delegates Pledged to Support Him,

Historical Society

S[illegible] to the Journal:

C[illegible]tion Hall, Denver, Col., July 8, 3[illegible] m.—This has been a wild day [illegible]e Democratic National Convent[illegible]eceeded by a wild night in which [illegible] following of Col. J. M. Duffy of [illegible]ylvania and the anti-Bryan delega[illegible]om other states have been working tooth and nail to block the nomination of Bryan on the first ballot. Because of the ruction in the committee room o fthe committee on credentials which has reported in favor of unseating 10 of the Duffy delegates, it was decided to adjourn shortly after the convention met at noon today, and hold a night session.

In the meantime Duffy has 376 delegates signed up who will vote for the adoption of the minority report of the credentials committee seating all the Duffy delegates.

There are rumors with more or less credible foundations, to the effect that the 376 delegates signed up will also oppose the nomination of Bryan and this will make his nomination on the first ballot impossible.

It is also current convention hall talk that the high handed methods of the Bryan machine in over riding the rights of the opposition is arousing the ire of the luke warm Bryan supporters, and that if Guffey's rebellion shows considerable strength when the vote is taken on the report of the committee on credentials, there may be a greater defection from the Bryan ranks.

The anti-Bryan forces are working tooth and nail to stampede the convention and what the outcome will be cannot be foretold till the night session convenes.

Because of the doubt regarding Bryan's nomination, practically no attention has been paid today to vice presidential talk.

Openly Defy Bryan.

A majority of the Pennsylvania delegation in caucus named Col. James M. Guffey as national committeeman, in open defiance of Mr. Bryan's demand for his displacement and on the heels of Guffey's stinging public arraignment of Bryan as a "hypocrite, ingrate and falsifier."

The New York delegation appointed a committee of ten to draft a platform and named Judge Alton B. Parker, the Democratic standard bearer of 1904, as the New York representative on the platform committee.

New York Is Silent.

The New York caucus was silent on the presidential and vice presidential situation, and New York still fails to show her colors.

The Democratic national committee held its first meeting to consider contests, which resulted in the dismissal of Senator McCarren's New York contests and the seating of Roger Sullivan's Illinois delegates.

The foregoing are only the main features of an eventful day — a day marked by the culmination of that noisy demonstration which ushers in a national convention, with delegations and their pouring into town, with bands and marching clubs vieing in turbulent demonstration, and with streets and hotel lobbies filled with surging crowds. Amid all this confusion the men of action have worked unceasingly. Most of the state effected their organization, electing members of the committees which will serve to-day. Aside from the many private conferences over candidates and platform, the day has been one of preparation and business detail for the coming assemblage.

The arrivals during the day and last night have practically completed the roster of state delegations.

Look Vainly to New York.

The allied opposition to Bryan have been looking intently but vainly toward New York, for it has been recognized that Chief Murphy, the political genius of the delegation, holds a key which might unloose a movement of genuine force against the Nebraskan. With New York taking the lead and throwing its seventy-eight votes against him, Guffey and his Pennsylvania cohorts would have followed suit. Georgia was wavering and likely to turn a block of Southern strength away from Bryan, and this with the organized strength of Johnson and Gray might have given vitality to the allied opposition. But all these reckonings have come to naught because of New York's persistent silence.

Allies Show Their Strength.

For the first time last night the allied opposition disclosed figures showing what might have happened had New York announced at the outset that New York's seventy-eight votes would be swung against Bryan. According to this table a total of 349 votes, or considerably more than the necessary number to block a Bryan nomination, would have swung into line with New York, the claim in detail being as follows:

Alabama, 1; Florida, 7; Georgia, 25; Louisiana, 18; West Virginia, 14; North Carolina, 24; Connecticut, 12; Delaware, 6; Maine, 11; Massachusetts, 12; New Hampshire, 4; New Jersey, 24; New York, 78; Pennsylvania, 48; Rhode Island, 4; Vermont, 8; Minnesota, 22; Ohio, 12; Wisconsin, 6; Alaska, 6; Porto Rico, 6.

More Than One-third.

The total vote of the convention is 1,002, the one-third necessary to prevent a nomination being 334, whereas the allied opposition claimed fifteen in excess of this requirement had New York furnished the rallying point.

A meeting was held late last evening of the various anti-Bryan elements, during which the situation was fully canvassed and a practical agreement reached that it was futile to continue the fight in view of New York's inaction.

BOTTINEAU FANATICS HOLD MOUNTED POLICE AT BAY

Old James Sharpe and his band of religious fanatics supposed to hail fr o seommhrd se sshe shrdlue rdlu rfom somewhere near Bottineau, N. D., are holding his camp at Pierson just across the Canadian border against force of 5 5royal northwest police under Inspector Tucker and are apparently determined to shoot any one molesting them, so at least the police think. So all yesterday afternoon they kept at a safe distance.

Last night Sharpe sent word that the police were at liberty to shoot at him upon their arrival but they could do him no harm as he being Jesus Christ, was immortal and consequently immune from bullets. The situation is desperate in the extreme for the police have received instructions to at once send his band of fanatics across the border into Dakota, but when they approached the camp, "Christ" told them to halt or he would order his followers to shoot and, rather than have bloodshed, the police retreated only to receive a message from the immigration authorities that Sharpe and his followers must go across the line at once and arrangements are being made to effect this today but bloodshed is sure to result as the fanatics are determined to march across thi eprairie and find God's chosen people who will be led to a better land by James Sharpe and his wife, who is said to be no less a personage than the Virgin Mary. It is a picturesque sight to see the detachment of mounted police wiht their red coats and Stetson hats surrounding the band of fanatics who never leave rifles or revolvers from their hands.

Even the women and children are armed having been supplied with Colts and instructed in their use. The entire party is determined to die rather than surrender and say they would rather die than continue living among sinful people. A year ago Sharpe made an attempt to seek his chosen people in Northwestern Canada, but was turned back by the immigration authorities and he then said he would return with fire and sword to kill all who interfered with him.

ATTEMPT MADE TO BREAK SAFE

YEGGMEN FAILED TO BREAK DULUTH BREWING CO.'S SAFE AT E. G. FORKS

NOISE OF EXPLOSION BRINGS OFFICERS BUT BURGLARS ESCAPE

From Wednesday's Daily—

At 1:30 this morning yeggmen made an unsuccessful attempt to break the Duluth Brewing Company's safe in their office on the main line of the Great Northern on the Point in East Grand Forks. The noise of the explosion brought Officer Murphy on the run to the scene but he was four or five blocks away when the explosion took place and when he arrived the would-be safe blowers had made their escape.

An investigation showed that they were unsuccessful in their attempt to break the safe having used too light a charge and the only damage done was to the windows and office furniture. All the windows were broken and several pieces of furniture broken The officers have no clue as to who the men are or how many there were. but it is evident by the work that they are novices in the business.

Clayton Final and Sam Hunt of Red Lake Falls arrived in the city last evening.

ASK MORE TIME FOR ARGUMENT

The first round in the most sensational damage suit of the court cases in the June term of the district court was begun before Judge Watts yesterday when Chas. Loring argued a demurer to the $15,000 damage suit of Ole Larson, the former hardware merchant at Fisher, who was burned out last winter, against Ex-representative Gunder Krostue the Fisher Banker. The defendant demurred to the complaint stating that it did not state sufficient facts to constitute a cause of action. E. O. Hagen, representing the plaintiff in the case put up a game fight and late in the afternoon Atty. Loring asked for further time to present arguments and cite authorities.

The complaint recites that after the Larson hardware store had been destroyed by fire, the defendant, Krostue had made the statement before divers and sundry parties that Larson had set the fire himself in order to collect the insurance which amounted to more than the stock was worth. The case will be bitterly fought and no matter who wins in the lower court, will be appealed to the court of last resort.

DOINGS IN THE PROBATE COURT

Petition was submitted to the probate court today by Nils P. Handy son-in-law of the deceased for appointment of administrator in the estate of Julian Larson who died in Williams Co., N. D., March 20th 1906 at the age of 68 years.

MOOSE ROAM THE NORTH

EVIDENCES OF LARGE NUMBERS OF THE BIG WOODS ANIMAL

GUARDED BY GAME WARDENS—MAKE FOR OPEN TO EVADE FLIES

From Tuesday's Daily—

C. C. Cook deputy state game warden for the Roseau country has returned from a trip thruout his entire district where he has been looking over the business of his department and making new appointments where same are needed. The woods of the Roseau valley will be the most thoroly policed the coming season of any in the state. Now that the moose and deer are being driven out from the brush to avoid the flies and mosquitoes there number is becoming more known.

Mr. Cook's trip took him over muskeg and prairie and the evidences he saw himself as well as the reports of nearly a hundred reliable agents indicate the presence of moose and deer in t he north country as never was equalled before.

Caribou are also very numerous in the north and large herds of all of these three animals have been sighted along the border by the customs and revenue officials bound for the woods that line the Roseau and the open prairie which furnishes now in the north the best feeding ground for them, since on these broad stretches there are few human beings to disturb them and such inhabitants as may run across them in these haunts disturb them hardly at all.

TOUCHED FOR HIS WATCH

TEMANSON EMPLOYED AT JOHNSON'S FEED STORE LOSES TIMEPIECE

POLICE CANNOT FIND TRACE OF ROBBER—[illegible] PINCHED

From Wednesday's Daily—

Gilbert K. Temanson employed at S. C. Johnson's feed store on Main street reported to the police at 11 o'clock last night the loss of a watch yesterday afternoon to an unknown hold-up artist. The police have failed to find any trace of the robber.

Last night Captain Vonderbeck and Officer Phillips raided the Windstacker sheds along the Great Northern right of way just north of the city and caught nine men in their dragnet. The hoboes make it a practice of keeping their headquarters there and fell asleep last night only to find themselves suddenly in the hands of the police. All of the nine men were hailed before Temanson this morning but he could identify none of them and the boes were put in the thirty minutes class and driven from the vicinity.

AN UNKNOWN MAN IS KILLED NEAR WILTON

The body of an unidentified man was found lying beside the G. N. railroad tracks a short distance from east switch at Wilton, by section men, who were going along the track on a handcar to their regular day's work.

The scalp of the man was bruised and investigations showed that his neck was broken. There were marks in the sand showing that the body had been dragged two or three rods and then thrown into the ditch.

As there had been no freight train for sereval hours before the accident it is believed that the man was killed by the east bound passenger train.

Dr. Marcum county coroner of Beltrami County was at Wilton making a professional visit and he was notified of the finding of the body. The coroner made an examination of the body ascertaining that the scalp was bruised and the necken broken. A search of the man's clothes brought forth a nickel and two pipes. There was also a letter addressed to Alex Erickson. It was signed Alex Erickson, Alberta, Canada. The body was taken to Bemidji and there was no means of finding out the real identity of the man, or whether he had any relatives. the body was taken to the poor farm and buried in the potter's field this morning.

There were no indications of foul play in connection with the man's death and it was deemed unnecessary to hold an inquest.

PENNED AND PILFERED

A German colony of over 50,000 in habitants, rivalling in size all but the three largest cities in the "Vaterland," now forms a part of Chicago. According to figures recently compiled this community has been growing so rapidly during the past few years that there are now more persons of German birth or parentage in Chicago than in any city in Germany itself, with the exception of Berlin, Hamburg and Munich. The only other city which approaches these figures is Leipsic, with a population of nearly half a million. The German-Americans in Chicago are of course scattered thruout the city, but the center of the community has been found in a special district on the north side. This German speaking province lies in the region bounded by Division and Clark streets and the river, and here the curious visitor may any day hear the language and see the customs of old "Deutschland" not to mention smelling the odors of every favorite German dish from Sauer-kraut to dienerwurst.

As if the bustling, roaring city were a thousand miles away instead of all about them, the citizens of this community live their lives of peace and content and seldom, if ever, do they venture far from their place of satisfaction. One old white-capped man, with his typical mustache, has not left the sanctitude of the colony but once, and that was when the lure of the World's Columbian Exposition drew him across the city to the fair grounds in 1893. The houses in this American German Utopia are picturesque and above all comfortable, homelike and foreign. The houses are frame, set in narrow lots with tiny gardens, containing old fashioned flowers and big easy chairs with an occasional hassock to assure of more solid comfort. The girls on Menominee street are not "girls" but "Maedchen" and after the day's work is over they sit and gaze down the street, while the old grandfather changes, with his thoughts, the street from Menominee in Chicago to "Unter den Linden" in Berlin, and quietly puffs away the hours with the same obliviousness to surroundings as is evidenced by the sleek-coated, much petted cat which purrs in soft German accents on the porch by his side.

DELEGATES RETURNED

ALL STATE THAT REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION WASTED NO TIME

GREAT ENTHUSIASM WAS DISPLAYED WHEN JACOBSON WAS NOMINATED

From Thursday's Daily—

Delegates Harris, Snyder, Christianson, Bjoin and Sathre to the Republican State convention returned this morning from St. Paul and all appeared perfectly satisfied with the result of the convention which was in session but 4 hours, no adjournment having been taken till all the business was concluded.

They state that a general air of harmony prevailed, and that the sore spots seem to have all been eradicated They report that the entire convention was convulsed when Frank M. Eddy in making the nominating speech for Jacobson said.

> "The only reflection any one has been able to cast on our candidate is that he eats pie with a knife."

Jacobson Speaks

When the ticket had been nominated J. F. Jacobson was led to the platform by Messrs. Young and Snider. His acceptance speech was brief and to the point. He spoke as follows:

"Fellow Republicans: I want to return to you my most sincere thanks for the honor you have conferred upon me and the confidence which you have expressed. My only regret in this campaign is that we have had to meet and oppose some of our most sincere friends, but I have been assured by some of these men who have been my opponents that I shall have their most hearty support, and I assure you that it would have been the same if one of them had been nominated. I would have supported him most heartily.

"I am not here to make a speech. You will hear from me later in campaign. But I want to say that altho some little hard feeling may have arisen in the heat of the campaign, I hope and I expect to have the hearty support of the party. I want to say also that no pledges have been asked of me and none have been given by me.

No Machine

"I enter this coming campaign absolutely untrammeled, and I want to assure you that there will be no Jacobson machine or any other machine in this campaign. I realize perhaps as well as anybody my many imperfections as a candidate for this high office of governor of the state of Minnesota, but I feel that anyone who aims and strives to do what is absolutely right cannot go very far wrong.

"In my past political experience I have gained some knowledge of the institutions of this state and of the needs of the state, and I want to assure you that if I am elected this state will have the best possible effort of the next two years of my life."

A VERDICT FOR FERTILE

MRS. GAYLORD LOSES THE SUIT AGAINST SOUTH COUNTY VILLAGE

ONE JURY DISCHARGED—COURT WILL WIND UP TONIGHT

From Friday's Daily—

The suit brought by Mrs. Laura M. Gaylord against the village of Fertile for $1000 damages is before the district court this afternoon. A P. Hanson was examined this morning, being a witness for the plaintiff. The basis of the case is a broken water spout in front of the properties owned by John Holton and C. H. Carlson which last winter became broken and was permitted to remain so flooding the sidewalk and freezing. Mrs. Gaylord was crossing this and slipped and fell dislocating her left arm and spraining her wrist.

L. E. Gossman represents the complainants and P. R. Lavik the village of Fertile.

It is understood that the suit to be brought against the village of Fertile by Attorney Gaylord of Fertile for damages as a result of the accident to his wife is the last case to be heard and the presentment of this case to the court will necessarily depend largely on the outcome in the present case.

In any event court will undoubtedly adjourn tomorrow night for the term.

The jury in the suit brought by Mrs. Laura M. Gaylord against the village of Fertile for $1000 damages alleged to have been caused by slipping on ice caused by the unrepaired rent in a waterspout in that village returned a verdict in favor of the defendant, the village of Fertile.

The suit intended to be brought against the village of Fertile by Attorney Gaylord for damages alleged to have been incurred as a result of the accident to his wife will probably be dropped for the time being. The suit was based to some extent on grounds of the suit just decided and there is no sign that prosecution will be forwarded this term.

One of the juries was discharged for the term this morning by Judge Watts

This morning the court took up the suit of the Northwestern Marble Works against Emma Dalby to secure payment of alleged notes for sale of a gravestone.

Following this case the court will adjourn sine die.

Webster's Retainer.

One day a man entered Daniel Webster's office and consulted him in regard to a prospective lawsuit. At the close of the conference he paid the attorney a retainer of $100 to look after the matter. Upon returning to his place of business he found that his partner had already settled the suit, obtaining the sum demanded without an attorney. He thought $100 was altogether too much for an office fee, so he dispatched his clerk to look after the subject.

"Mr. Webster," said the young man, "my employer thinks you should return a part of your retainer. That case has been settled."

"Young man," said the lawyer, "you go back and tell your employer that a retainer is something to be retained."

SPLITS CLAIM OF BAILEY

JURY RETURNS VERDICT FOR $900 IN SUIT FOR DAMAGES

FOR LOSS OF SERVICES OF SON ON ACCOUNT OF AN ACCIDENT

At ten thirty this morning the jury in the case of John Bailey vs. the Grand Forks Lumber Company returned a verdict for $900 for the plaintiff and against the company. The verdict is a split of the claim of John Bailey for the loss of the services of Barney Bailey, his son from the time he lost his foot in defendant company's mill, till he attained his majority, a period of 3½ years.

The case attracted a great deal of attention. The lumber company went to great lengths to win the suit and erected in the court room a large model of the mill where the accident took place. Barney Bailey secured damages of $7500 in the last term of the court. He lost his left leg below the knee in the mill saws.

The attorneys for the lumber company are Bangs, Cooley and Hamilton of Grand Forks and the two senior members of the firm were present before the court. John Sorley represents John Bailey. The suit was brought for $1800.

ONLY A DOLLAR FOR MARTINSON

After a short session the jury this morning returned a verdict in the suit brought against the Grand Forks Lumber company by Hans Martinson in favor of the plaintiff—for $1. The suit was brought for $1000 damages alleged to have been caused by neglect while Martinson was in the employ of the Company eleven miles north of Blackduck. Martinson was employed as a wood chopper for one month, the first of last year and January 17 took sick with a very bad fever according to his complaint. He claims that the company refused to care for him properly. Forcing him to walk to Bagley, 11 miles. Bronson and Collins represented the lumberman and G. A. E. Finlayson the company.

Paris' Secondhand Market.

There is a curious old market near Paris in which everything is sold at second hand. Working girls can fit themselves out there from head to foot. As a writer says, "Mimi can sell her old felt hat and buy a straw one, exchange her old dress for a new one and, if she likes, buy a steak and a salad for her dinner, a paper bag of fried potatoes, sweets and some flowers for her window. Democracy is king here, and no more attention is paid to the millionaire who is looking for something marvelous which he may pick up cheap than to the man with the wooden leg who wants a new left boot in exchange for a dozen sardine tins, five gloves and a stocking."

Lord Kelvin's Bravery.

Lord Kelvin once performed a daring experiment before a class of students. In the course of his lecture he said that while a voltage of 3,000 or so would be fatal to a man a voltage of some 300,000 would be harmless. He was going to give a practical illustration on himself, but the students cried out, "Try it on a dog!" Lord Kelvin cast a look of reproach at his class. "Didn't I figure it out myself?" he said quietly, as he walked to the apparatus and safely turned the tremendous voltage into himself.

Chinese Cologne.

The Chinese ladies have an odd kind of cologne—that is to say, they constantly have upon their person a small bag of sweet smelling gum similar to that which was used by the ancient Egyptian women. Numerous costly jars recently unearthed at Pyramida contain the cosmetics and perfumes which were used by Egyptian princesses, all of which bear a resemblance to those in vogue today among Chinese ladies of the highest rank.

Sorry He Spoke.

She—I know I can't buy them, but there is a sort of melancholy pleasure in thinking that I could have bought them if I had married George Scads when I had the chance, instead of taking you.

Coldly Described.

"So you don't envy any of the world's men of genius?"

"No," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I admire them, but I don't envy 'em. A genius is a man who gets a monument after he's dead instead of three square meals a day while he's living."—Washington Star.

She Was Stout.

"Do you remember how you used to put your arm round my waist when we were engaged, ten years ago? You never do it now."

"No; my arm has not grown any longer."

ITCHING HUMOR ON LITTLE BOY

His Hands were a Solid Mass, and Disease Spread All Over His Body —In Four Days the Child was Entirely Cured—Mother Strongly

RECOMMENDS CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"One day we noticed that our little boy was all broken out with itching sores. We first noticed it on his little hands. His hands were not as bad then, and we didn't think anything serious would result. But the next day we heard of the Cuticura Remedies being so good for itching sores, etc., that I thought I would get them. By this time the disease had spread all over his body, and his hands were nothing but a solid mass of this itching disease. I went to the drug store and purchased a box of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment, and that night I stripped my little boy and took the Cuticura Soap and lukewarm water and washed him well. Then I dried him with a soft bath towel, and took the Cuticura Ointment and rubbed him thoroughly with it. I did this every evening before I put him to bed and in three or four nights he was entirely cured. You have my permission to publish this because anybody who suffered as my baby did ought to know of the Cuticura Remedies. I will surely and gladly recommend the Cuticura Remedies, for they are a godsend to all suffering with skin diseases. Mrs. Frank Donahue, 208 Fremont St., Kokomo, Ind., Sept. 16, 1907."

JULY 1ST THE DAWN OF A BRIGHTER DAY

Wednesday, July 1st, is generally regarded as the re-birthday of prosperity in this country. The financial floodgates were raised yesterday and $195,000,000 were poured out in dividends to fill the sluice ways of investment, commerce and trade. Within the next thirty days this vast total will be invested and paid out many times, arousing activities, employing labor, renewing mercantile stocks, paying indebtedness and reviving drooping financial spirits.

It is like the bursting of the sun thru the clouds and it is believed by most of those who closely watch events that it is the culminating point of the slow resumption of buisness activities that has been going on since January 1, and that from now on the pace will be greatly accelerated.

This has long been accepted as the day when traffic on the lakes would take on the full measure of midsummer activity. The Harriman railroads have announced that all the work on betterments on all this great system would begin at this time, involving an expenditure of $80,000,000. The New York Central has improvements to be started at once involving an expense of $100,000,000. In all directions the railroads are preparing for a great grain harvest, and there is today little idle labor as compared to January 1 last.

Most of the railroads are returning full crews to work in their repair shops, and not only are the tracks being put in condition for heavier traffic but every car is being put in condition for use.

The same story of better times comes from all lines of business, and the financial and industrial interests are very optimistic. It is not unusual for these renewing impulses to come from the great semi-annual dividend distributions; indeed, it may rather be said to be inevitable.

The payments on securities will be divided as follows:

Railroad stocks	$30,831,282
Industrial stocks	27,976,975
Public service corporations, such as street cars	10,815,093
Banks and trust companies	9,000,000

In bonds the interest figures are approximately these:

Railroads	$69,698,478
Industrials	17,613,904
Street railways	14,389,158
Municipal bonds	10,579,530
Government bonds	4,000,000

In whatever measure we may restrain our confidence and discount our hope, there can be no denial nor question as to the rapidity of the change in conditions in the past thirty days, nor that the immediate outlook is most encouraging. The full tide of good times probably cannot be expected until after the election, but we can feel very sure that from now on the condiitons will be adding better to good and then the road is not long to best.

WONDERFUL WEALTH OF AMERICAN FARMERS

The earnings of the farmers of America in seventeen days would buy out the Standard Oil company—water, oil good will and all.

The proceeds of one American crop would buy thrifty and prosperous Belgium, boots, bag and baggage, and still leave a good deal in the bank for operating expenses. Two crops would buy Italy, three would buy Austria and five would pay for all the empire of the Russias.

In view of these facts given in the American Review of Reviews by Herbert N. Casson, it is small wonder that this is a rich nation, and that the department of agriculture is the most practical and efficient department of government. It has a splendid subject to deal with, and it would have to be composed of dead men to do anything but good work with such material.

The American hen alone earns more than all the annual revenues of Spain and Portugal combined.

What the farmer has furnished for export alone since 1892, after feeding this great nation would enable him to buy every foot of railroad and all rail road equipment in the United States. The hog money of Iowa would pay the salaries of all the monarchs of Europe A year's corn crop in Iowa would buy out the harvester trust and build three New York subways.

This is the source of our wealth. We have mines, it is true, that yield great wealth, but their product does not compare in value with the product of the soil. Our total mineral production for 1906 according to the statistical abstract issued by the United States government was worth $1,902,517,505. In 1907 the farm value—that is the value at the farm not what the consumer pays—of our oats, corn, rye, wheat, barley and flax alone was $2,385,952,000. In addition to that our cotton was worth $721,647,237 our hay brought $743,507,000 our potatoes were worth $183,880,000 and our wool $78,263,165.

Our coal production was worth $513,079,809, but our production of corn alone was worth $554,437,000. Our total production of copper was worth $177,595,888, but our potatoes alone brought $6,284,000 more than that. Gold and silver combined, $127,000,000 was worth only a little more than our barley crop, which was worth $102,290,000 at the farm.

And while the production of minerals is exhausting the supply, the production of farm wealth, if it is properly managed is constantly improving the soil. The more wealth you get out of a mine the less it is worth, but there is more in the soil than has ever been taken out of it.

With a productiveness like this, and with the growth of intelligent and scientific methods of farming, there is something wrong with our management if we ever have hard times, or if anybody ever goes hungry.

PHIL LARAMIE HERE FROM WEST

OLD TIMER ON THE G. N. VISITING HERE FROM TACOMA, WASH.

The old time railroad men of Crookston are enjoying the visit here of Conductor Phil Laramie, who for many years past has been running a passenger on the Great Northern out of Tacoma. Mr. Laramie was one of the best railroad men in Crookston, having run a passenger out of this city 15 years ago, when Tom Adams manipulated the throttle of the engine that pulled his train.

Mr. Laramie is a brother of Engineer J. J. Laramie, 321 Hulbert Street of this city, also a well known railroad man, whose guest he will be for some time. He is accompanied by his family and yesterday left for Argyle where he will visit his sister, Mrs. D. Tessier for a few days. This is the first vacation he has enjoyed for some time past and it has been years since he was in Crookston. He finds many of the old faces missing, some having crossed the Great Divide, and others having been transferred to other divisions or gone to other roads. He is the same jovial "Phil" of former days and the old railroad boys are enjoying his visit immensely.

ROCK PILE FOR ALL JAIL BIRDS

GRAND FORKS COUNTY OFFICIALS WILL PROBABLY HAVE ROCK SOON

Grand Forks county will probably have a real rock pile for the offenders of the county jail to work on. Some time ago a high wall was provided for a workhouse and yesterday State's Attorney J. B. Wineman requested the Great Northern to furnish two carloads of stone for use in the workhouse. It is believed that the company will comply, as tramps and lawbreakers cause the road lots of expense and it is anxious to keep them out of this section.

A county jail has no terrors for the average offender unless there is lots of work attached. A rock pile has been found to be a good investment for other counties of the west, according to the state's attorney, and Polk county should have one also.

Raymond," who brought the woman to the house, have been telegraphed to cities in various parts of the country, but the police of the Northwest and of New York have been asked to keep an especially sharp lookout.

Signs Of Returning Prosperity

Conditions thruout the country point to an early return of prosperity. Bank clearings, and railroad earnings are below those of a year ago, but the gap is steadily narrowing. There are fewer idle cars than there were at the beginning of June. The July interest and dividend payments this year in New York, the country's financial center, will be $177,000,000, as compared with $184,000,000 in July 1907. Thus the falling off is far less than had been expected. About $46,000,000 of gold has been exported since the present outward movement began in the middle of April, but as we gained over $100,000,000 of gold in November and December last, and as we can get as much as we need from the outside world at any time we may need it, this movement does not disturb anybody. The rates for money are about the same as they are in mid summer of normal years.

"Re-employment days" are becoming general. St. Louis had one on June first, when 15,000 idle persons were put to work. On a far larger scale the Pittsburg district will have one today, when every plant of the United States Corporation, the langest concern in the world in its field, will resume operations. The other shops of that corporation, all over the country will, it is expected, all be running by August first. All the independent steel concerns in the Pittsburg district, it is announced, will be at work with a full force by the first week in August.

The Department of Agriculture in Washington says the crop outlook is better, on the whole, than it ever was before at this time of the year. It estimates that the value of the country's farm products of 1908 will reach the $8,000,000,000 mark. This will leave all records far behind. It will be more than double the value of the farm yield of 1900, which was $3,764,000,000. Big crops have always heretofore meant good times for the country, and they will mean the same this year.—James W. Van Cleave, President National Association of Manufacturers, in American Industries, for July.

A Tribute To Cleveland

Chicago's final tribute to the memory of Grover Cleveland will take the form of a big memorial meeting to be held in the Auditorium next Sunday, July 12. Personal friends and political associations of the former president will make the leading addresses and thousands of citizens of Chicago, will unite with them to do honor to the "Sage of Princeton." The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Iroquois club, the democratic club of the city. From the day that the news of Grover Cleveland's death reached Chicago, associations, clubs and public bodies here have vied with each other in bearing witness to the admiration and affection with which the former president was regarded, by democrats and republicans alike. The Board of Trade of Chicago was one of the first bodies to take official and commendable action and summed up the feeling of the city and of the entire country in the following striking resolution:

"On June 24 the mortal life of Grover Cleveland was ended. The record of his career as president of the United States for two full terms, and in other capacities, both private and public, is one of lofty patriotism, of unsurpassed courage, of unswerving fidelity to great and immutable principles, of profound statesmanship, of unhesitating loyalty to his convictions regardless of personal considerations or political affiliations. In the great crises that made illustrious his presidency he kept unawed and solely in view the maintenance of law and order and the glory of the republic. No sophistry ever pierced his armor of righteousness. He was great in his simplicity and simple in his greatness. His name is written in living and ineffaceable characters among the names of our great presidents. The life and character of Grover Cleveland are among the imperishable treasurer of the nation."

The Board of Trade of Chicago has always been foremost in voicing the unspoken sentiments of its members and of the city in times of national calamity, and in such cases as the Johnstown flood, the Galveston flood and the San Francisco earthquake, it contributed large sums of money for the relief of the sufferers. Among the other organizations which passed memorial resolutions were the Iroquois club, Union League Club, Hamilton club, Illinois Athletic club and the Board of Commissioners of Cook county.

Arraignment of Chicago's postoffice authorities by the National Art Society because of the exclusion of its journal from the mails, with the tart comment that the officials "didn't know the difference between a Venus de Milo and a mud pie" has excited an equally tart reply: "A Halsted street barkeeper's recitation of Hamlet is not art." The judging of what is art and mailable brings frequent clashes all over the country, the rules of the department being complied with rigidly and according to precedent. There is an interesting difference recognized between the original paintings and statuary and the reproductions which an official who has to discriminate put this way: "The original Venus de Milo was art but a picture of it printed on cheap paper is not art. One does not need a pair of spectacles to see the sun and some pictures are the 'first aid' to immorality." The exclusion which raised the wrath of the art society was due to a picture of 'La Source" by Ingres, which represents a woman—in the nude—holding an overflowing jar upon her shoulders. In consequence the arraignment of the postal censors as "prudes". The magazine was released, by a wire from Washington, but now the Department is debating whether in the future the lady of "La Source" must wear clothes even in midsummer or be kept from the mails.

Protect Stock

Protection and care of animals in summer as well as in winter will repay the owner many fold. In Holland they put canvas coverings over the backs of cows to protect them from flies. As a result the cow instead of tosing her head and tail in vain effort gives her time and energy to eating and ruminating with the advantage of a larger flow and a better quality of milk. In Japan the oxen are shod with straw sandals. In Russia, blinds or blinkers to driving bridles are unknown except where western fashion has corrupted. There is an immense saving of leather and increase of comfort to the animal; also an improvement in his work and docility.—Warroad Commonwealth.

No Collar and Born Free

We having heard a good deal of mention made of county seat removal in connection with the late Republican convention we desire to say that we were not attending a county seat removal convention, but a republican convention to elect 12 delegates to the state convention at St. Paul. We paid our own expenses and wore no man's collar. We are a free born American citizen and claim that we have just as good a right to vote for who we want for governor as a man living in either Thief River Falls or Red Lake Falls. We want to say to the Red Lake Falls boys, that you put up a good fight, and now we expect you to follow our example of two years ago and get into line and support the ticket. We ask no more, and expect no less.—Sunbeam.

Ever have a "low down" pain in the back?

In the "small," right over the hips?

It's caused by sick kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Crookston people endorse this. Read a case of it:

Mrs. John Mackill of 333 Sixth St., E. Crookston, Minn., says: "Both my husband and myself used Doan's Kidney Pills with fine results. Mr. Mackill suffered a great deal from backache and a kidney weakness, hard work and colds always aggravated the annoyances. Good reports about Doan's Kidney Pills led me to procure a box at Wallace's drug store. He began using them and they quickly proved their effectiveness, correcting the action of the kidneys and removing the pains and lameness from his back My own case was a complicated one of long standing the kidneys being badly affected. Doan's Kidney Pills served to dispose of my trouble and in other wasys benefitted me greatly."

DRAMATIC HISTORY OF A TITLED VENETIAN

One of the most interesting of the many strange characters connected with early history of the state was J. C. Beltrami who spent only a short time in Minnesota, but whose name remains as the name of one of the northern counties. Beltrami was an Italian, the son of a customs officer of the Venetian republic born near the end of the eighteenth century.

Beltrami seems to have been a hot headed youth and early in his career got into much trouble among his easily disturbed fellow countrymen that he was forced to leave the country. His roving disposition brought him to the wilds of Minnesota shortly after the founding of Fort Snelling. He seemed to enjoy the scenery and stayed at the fort several weeks becoming acquainted with the officers and what later proved more important with a number of the northern Indian chiefs. He obtained permission to join an expedition fitted out at the fort to explore the northern country, about 1824. But he fell out with the commander of the party and with several of the Indians he set off by himself.

His Ojibways fell in with some Sioux and got the worst of it, and that night paddled away to more friendly country. Beltrami had plenty of nerve and being left alone in the wilds of an unexplored country didn't bother him. But the Italian gentleman had never counted the art of managing a canoe among his accomplishments and he records in his journal that he found paddling very fatiguing work.

He was in the vicinity of Red Lake in the northern part of the state and says that he found navigation of the rivers much easier by walking in the water at the edge of the stream, dragging the canoe by a rope over his shoulder. He writes to the "dear Countess" in some published letters, that he smiled at the fishes and presented a very grotesque figure.

He claimed to have discovered Red Lake river, which he called Bloody river. He also says that he discovered the true source of the Mississippi river. He wandered around until he met more Indians, one of whom recognized him as the strange white man at the fort and helped him paddle back to the outpost.

He soon left the country and later made extensive investigations of Mexico, all of which is published in several sets of books.

The features of Beltramis trip is part of the next to the last chapter of the first of a four volume work, "Minnesota in Three Centuries" a subscription work issued under the auspices of the State Historical society. The first volume is being written by Dr. Warren Upham secretary of the society. Other volumes will be prepared by old settlers of the state. Gen. L. F. Hubbard, Gen. James H. Baker, and William Pitt Murray are also interested in the work.

SKULL CRACKED IN BALL GAME

A serious accident occurred at Dalton about 5:30 o'clock on the afternoon of the Fourth. A baseball game was in progress there, and one of the players, after striking at the ball, let go of his bat, which swung back with great force, striking a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jorgen Peterson in the head, and breaking his skull.

The baseball was between the Tordenskjold and Dalton nines and the man who threw the bat was one of the heaviest members of the Tordenskjold nine. The boy's skull was broken just above the temple, the fracture being somewhat larger than a silver dollar and the skull was pressed into the brain to a depth of about half an inch at the lowest point.

Physicians were summoned and the pressure on the brain was relieved as quickly as possible, and notwithstanding the serious nature of the injury, there is a strong probability that the boy will recover.

A SELF TYING APPLIANCE PATENT

D. Becklund thru his attorney P. J. Russell, both of Bemidji, has secured a patent for a self tying appliance which is intended to do away with the old fashioned way of tying packages.

4TH PASSES PLEASANTLY

MANY COMMUNITIES HELD PICNICS WITH ORATION AND DANCE TRIMMINGS

DAY WAS IDEAL AND NO ACCIDENTS MARRED THE FESTIVITIES

From Monday's Daily—

The 4th of July was a rather quiet one in Crookston, the ball games and band concerts furnishing the chief amusement while in the evening the pedestrians had to jump sidewise to avoid the "devil chasers" cannon creckers and roman candles.

In many surrounding communities there were old time celebrations. A fine one was held south of the city at Hardie's Grove, another at R. T. Buckler's where scores of former Illinois residents gathered, enjoyed a picnic dinner and listened to an address by Thomas R. Johnstone in which he boosted Market Day, the necessity of a county exhibit at the state fair and the importance of a county fair.

At Climax there was a big celebration at which Atty E. O. Hagen was the orator of the day. At Bygland hundreds gathered for a big time and were addressed by Prof. J. C. Sathre of this city. In many other communities there were similar evidences of patriotism.

Picnic at Lanterman's Grove

A big picnic was held at Lanterman grove in Lowell town the Fourth and a large number of city people partook of the good things there. A large crowd also attended from the surroundnig country. Plenty of good things to eat and games of high quality are reported.

OLD TIME 4TH AT EUCLID

FINE PROGRAM OF SPEECHES, SPORTS—BIG PICNIC DINNER

EUCLID BALL TEAM DEFEATED HILL HUSTLERS BY SCORE OF 15 TO 10

From Monday's Daily—

Euclid had one of the famous old 4th of July celebrations Saturday which included orations by Rev. W. S. Ward of this city, Rev. Wilson of Euclid, readings, patriotic music, etc., which was followed by a grand picnic dinner in the grove east of that village which was attended by hundreds of people from the surrounding country who made a full day of it.

In the afternoon there was a good program of sports including a ball game in which the fast Euclid team defeated the Hill Hustlers of Crookston to the tune of 15 to 10. This was the third of a series of three games and both teams played for blood. It was a good clean game and neither side had any kick coming.

In the shot put John Stuhr won the first prize.

The broad jump was won by Dr. Dryden of Euclid.

In the 100 yard dash Rev. Wilson of Euclid and Geo. Ruth of Crookston tied the first heat in 10 seconds flat and in the second heat Rev. Wilson won by a few inches in 10 1-4 seconds.

In the half mile trot J. M. Ball's horse of Crookston won handily.

In the running race Henry Halters horse won first money.

In t he evening there was a grand dance in Woodmen Hall which was very largely attended.

The celebration was under the auspices of Woodmen lodge No. 2994 of Euclid and was a success in every particular.

ADDITIONAL LIGHT ON GREAT MURDER MYSTERY

WOMAN WHO WAS FOULLY MURDERED IN CHICAGO A WEEK AGO TODAY HAD SEVERAL TICKETS WIRED HER FROM CROOKSTON BUT NEVER CAME—J. H. RAYMOND SENT HER A TICKET A YEAR AGO—SHE HAD PLANNED TO ENTER ONE OF THE RESORTS HERE—WROTE A LETTER BUT A FEW DAYS BEFORE SHE WAS KILLED

From Monday's Daily—

Some light was thrown on the mystery of the murder of Mrs. Fanny Thompson of Chicago a week ago today as the result of investigations of your correspendent Saturday night. It appears that Mrs. Thompson during the past two years had written the mistress of a resort in the red light district of this city four or five times statin gthat if a ticket was forwarded her to Crookston that she would come to Crookston and become an inmate of the house.

Failed to Come

Four times a ticket was wired, but after each incident Mrs. Thompson wrote giving some excuse for not coming. Less than two weeks ago Mrs. Thompson wrote to the landlady of the same house again stating that she would come at once if a ticket was sent her. In her last letter, however she signed "Mrs. Fanny Raymond" instead of Thompson. The ticket, however was not forwarded on the last application, as the landlady did not think the woman would come any way because of her previous failure to report when she promised.

Never in Crookston

The tone of her former letters however, make it certain that she had had trouble with Thompson. The Thompson woman was not known to the resort keepers here. and had never been in Crookston to their knowledge.

The ticket which the murdered woman stated she was expecting from her husband in Crookston is believed here to be the ticket she had written for from the resort keeper, and that her husband had never been here.

In June 1907 J. H. Raymond sent from Crookston to the Northwestern depot at Chicago a ticket to Crookston from Chicago to be delivered to Mrs. Frances Gilmore Thompson at Oak Park suburb of that city. This lady was found murdered last Wednesday in a Chicago rooming house.

Mrs. Thompson called at the North western station when notified and refused to receive the ticket and it was returned to this city. Raymond never returned here for his money or made a claim for a refund.

It is probable that Raymond wished the woman to come here. Raymond is but indefinitely remembered by the agents at the ticket office here. Pinkertons are in Crookston and have been here for the last two days. No intimation can be found of what cases they are on, but it is believed they are working on this case.

Thompson in Minneapolis

After having heard that he was wanted by the police of Chicago who have intimated that he might know something of his wife's murder, which took place there a few days ago, Thomas Edward Thompson presented himself to the Minneapolis police.

He proceeded to offer substantial evidence that he has been employed in Nelson Bros. restaurant 311 Washington Avenue south for several months and that he could not have been in Chicago on the day of the tragedy. Chief of Police Corriston was convinced of the man's truthfulness and he was permitted to go back to work.

"I saw that the police were looking for me so I thought I had better let them know where I was, because I did not think they could find me," Thompson said last night. "At first I did not believe it was my wife who was killed, so did not pay much attention to the affair."

Has Not Seen Wife

Thomas has not seen or heard from his wife since 1905. They were married at Fargo N. D. From Fargo they went to Milwaukee and a month later they separated, Thompson going to Minneapolis and his wife going to Chicago.

He received two letters from her shortly after this, asking him to come to Chicago but he refused.

Thompson does not know J. H. Raymond the man with whom his wife was living in Chicago.

A School Teacher

It is stated that Thomas Edward Thompson who is now being sought by the police of Chicago on a charge of murdering his wife, at one time taught school at or near Reynolds, Grand Forks county. Three weeks ago he was in Fargo. He was employed as baggageman for the Great Northern in Fargo in 1904 and 1905. On Sept. 24, 1904 he contracted to purchase the east 60 feet of lot 7 block 10, Roberts second addition to the city of Fargo, being 814 Fourth avenue north.

Married in 1905

Dec. 19 he married Fannie Gilmore, Rev. Edward W. Day, Presbyterian preacher performing the ceremony. On the records his occupation is given as school teacher altho at this time he was occupied with the Great Northern. On May 16, 1905 Thompson disposed of his interest in the property he purchased to Bosard Bros., of Moorhead. It was originally held by Lester H. Bakfier.

Thompson is believed to have been in Crookston about three weeks ago and it is possible that he came to this city after leaving Fargo.

TEAM FOUND IN PASTURE

SMITH & SINCLAIR NOTIFIED THAT THEIR HORSES ARE AT LANGDON

THIEVES HITCHED FRESH TEAM TO SURREY AND ARE GOING YET

From Wednesday's Daily—

Smith & Sinclair the East Grand Forks liverymen received a message from the sheriff at Langdon last evening stating that their $450 black team stolen Saturday, had been located in a pasture near Langdon. The thief took another team from the pasture and went on his way with Smith & Sinclair's surrey and harness.

Police are scouring the country between here and East Grand Forks and west into Dakota in search of a livery rig stolen from East Grand Forks Saturday afternoon by a man and a woman.

The rig was the finest put out by the livery and was made up of a very dark brown gelding, nearly black, with lighter brown nose and flank, rangy, 1200 pounds and 8 years old and a mate very much similar, 5 years old, black, about same build and weight but a little more. The horses were harnessed with light hack harness trimmed in brass. The vehicle was a double seated extension top surrey.

A man about 5 feet 7 inches tall with a tall woman, dark complexion, appeared at Smith and Sinclair's livery at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon and secured the team. The man said his name was Henry Anderson. The couple drove southeast out of the city and have not been seen since or reported from any part of the country. The theft is the most mysterious as well as the most daring reported in this part of the state for some time.

LIND CAN'T BE CANDIDATE

REGENT OF STATE UNIVERSITY BARS HIM FROM ALL

ELECTIVE OFFICES—DEMS MUST FIND OTHER GUBERNATORIAL TIMBER

From Friday's Daily—

John Lind is ineligible for the democratic nomination for governor. As a member of the board of regents of the university he is barred from holding elective office during the term for which he was appointed as regent and as Mr. Lind was appointed in March last for a six-year term, he will be ineligible to elective office until 1914.

In 1907 the legislature amended section 1407 of the Revised Laws of 1905 the section which dealt with the appointment of university regents. In the amendment the ten members of the board were named with the dates of their retirement, and it was further provided that "from and after the expiration of the terms of the aforesaid appointed members no appointed member of the board shall, during the term for which he is appointed, hold any other office elective or appointive under the state of Minnesota."

Strictly interpreted, this statute would bar Governor Lind as a gubernatorial possibility, even tho he should resign from the board of regents, for Mr. Lind was appointed as successor to James T. Wyman after the amendment went into effect.

Mr. Lind has never consented to the use of his name in connection with the democratic nomination, but there has been talk among democrats of the possibility of naming the former governor to head the democratic state ticket.

ROSEAU WILL BACK MATTSON

SUPT. OF SCHOOLS WILL PROBABLY BE SENT TO STATE LEGISLATURE

County Superintendent of Schools G. H. Mattson of Roseau Co., is an avowed candidate for representative to the state legislature from the 63rd district which comprises Marshall, Kittson and Roseau Counties, and will without doubt land as he will have the solid backing of Roseau County. Two years ago Roseau county had three candidates which so split up the votes that Marshall and Kittson landed both representatives and the state senator.

Representative Robertson is again a candidate from Argyle and he could not be beat with a club, so that it now looks like Robertson and Mattson from the 63rd.

PASS HOLDERS ARE REDUCED

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION WARNS RAILWAY MANAGERS

AGAINST ABUSE OF TRANSPORTATION PRIVILEGES—TROUBLE AHEAD

Issuance of passes by railroad companies has been hedged about with close restrictions by the interstate commerce commission. The companies must keep all pass records and must return passes returned by train conductors for five years.

When passes include members of a family or members of a car party, each must be named in the pass.

The commission has been aroused by abuse of the pass privileges and announces that it will recommend the prosecution of carriers and persons issuing passes not within the legal limit. The list of eligibles is reduced by the following eliminations:

"Officers or employees of news companies other than newsboys.

"Officers or employes of telegraph or telephone companies, excepting when personally engaged in operation extension, repair, or inspection of lines upon or along the railroad right of way and used in connection with the operation of the railroad.

"Officers or employees of surety, transfer, and baggage companies except baggage agents.

"Officers or employees of carriers not subject to the act to regulate commerce, including officers and agents of steamship and stage lines not subject thereto.

"Officers or employees of subsidiary corporations, which corporations engage in any employment for, or render any service to, others than the carrier save that such officers or employees may be granted free transportation when engaged on the business of the carrier.

"Families of local attorneys surgeons and others who are not regularly employed by carriers.

THE BACON HOG.

Press Bulletin No. 77, By A. J. McGuire, Supt. of Northeast Experimental Farm at Grand Rapids

Owing to the fact that corn is not grown in northern Minnesota as safely and abundantly as barley and peas it has been considered more profitable to raise a bacon breed of hogs rather than the lard breeds. For this reason a bacon breed (The Large Improved Yorkshire) has been raised exclusively on the Experimental Farm. It is this breed that is raised so extensively and profitably in Canada an don precisely the same feed as is grown here in abundance, clover, roots, barley, peas and the by-product of the dairy, skim milk.

The method of raising pigs on the Experiment Farm is to have the sows farrow in March and April. A good clover pasture is provided and the young pigs are turned on this when weaned at from six weeks to two months old. In connection with the clover pasture they are fed skim milk and a little shorts, 1 lb. to 3 pigs per day. Sept. 1 barley and peas are added to the ration. For two months they are fed as much as they will eat which generally brings them into prime condition for bacon. Their average dressed weight Nov. 1 is from 130 to 150 lbs. The average price for this kind of meat on the local market the past three years has been 8 1-2 cents a pound. The cost of producing it, including the feed of the brood sows during the winter has been 4 1-2 cents per lb., making a net profit of $4.00 per hundred. This profit may be considered good in hog raising in any section, even where corn is grown abundantly.

It is possible in this section of the state by the use of clover pasture and skim milk, and by having the pigs come early in the spring and disposing of them as soon as they can be fattened after the pasture season in the fall, to raise pigs as profitable as anywhere in the state. The increased demand for choice bacon makes this subject of raising bacon pigs in connection with dairying in this section of Minnesota a matter worthy of consideration.

During the past three years 8 pigs have been raised per sow on the Experiment Farm. This is a large average, but is characteristic of the Yorkshire breed to produce large litters and of strong constitution.

The brood sows on the Experimental Farm are wintered on second crop clover, boiled roots, skim milk and a very small allowance of grain (1-2 lb. per head a day.) They are comfortably housed, with access to a yard during the day, exercise being very necessary. They are bred in December to farrow in March, and only one litter a year. Fall pigs don't pay. Only brood sows should be carried thru the winter, and when a sow has proved to be a good mother she should be kept as long as she is productive, which is generally from 4 to 6 years.

The chief point to remember in raising pigs in this section of the state is that about the only feed that profitably can be realized from is clover pasture and skim milk. The expensive grains will only finish the product that has been grown on the inexpensive pasture and by-product of the dairy. Therefore aim to have the pigs come in early spring for them when they are ready for pasture.

The bulletins that have appeared previous to this and a few to follow concluding the 1907 report, will be put in pamphlet form, and any one desiring this publication may secure the same upon application.

Send your name and address on a postal card to the Northeast Experiment Farm, Grand Rapids, Minn., and it will be put on file for all future publications.

FINE OUTLOOK IN NORTHWEST

MINNESOTA, NORTH AND SOUTH DAKOTA TO HAVE BUMPER CROP THIS YEAR

TOTAL OF 200,000,000 BUSHELS OF WHEAT FOR THE THREE STATES

From Thursday's Daily—

The month of June leaves the northwest in a condition promising bountiful crops, notwithstanding much bad weather and the wettest June for many years. The approximate total of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat for Minnesota, North and South Dakota remains a reasonable expectation from the present stand of the grain.

North Dakota is in fine condition. Last year the season being late, that state produced 55,130,000 bushels of wheat. This does not begin to measure the state's productive possibilities for in the season before that North Dakota raised 77,96,000 bushels and in the year before that 75,623,000. That North Dakota has a stand today warranting expectation of 80,000,000 bushels is a conservative statement. That the edge will be taken off thru the summer is possible but nothing aside from actual calamity could reduce it now to as low a total as last year.

In South Dakota

South Dakota producer of 45,000,000 to 50,000,000 bushels of wheat in a good year, has a prospect somewhat broken into by local damage yet so maintained on the whole as to promise a big crop. Corn in South Dakota amounted olny to 47,000,000 bushels last year, but the state has produced 62,000,000 bushels in a good season, and altho corn everywhere has been late, the outlook now is for a good crop in South Dakota.

Minnesota

Minnesota with her record of 80,000,000 bushels of wheat—which was not attained last year, when production fell to 67,600,000—had a promise for a bumper crop which has been lowered in some degree by the excessive rains and floods in southern Minnesota. Mainly, however, that part of the state is given over to coarse grains. The 50,000,000 bushels of oats and 30,000,000 bushels of barley that, in a good year, Minnesota ought to produce, may be attained, but in wheat the state stands well up, with the important Red River Valley promising better this season than for five years past.

Yield May Fall

Wheat is heading all along the line thru central South Dakota southern South Dakota being well headed out. Farmers near Lintonville, Minn., will cut oats in fifteen days and they report wheat and barley heading.

Some samples of wheat and barley headed out and flax in blossom are reported from a few Red River Valley points.

INDIAN WEDDING AT STATE FAIR

EVENT TO BE CELEBRATED IN THE INDIAN VILLAGE

In a letter received by C. N. Cosgrove secretary of the Minnesota State Fair, from Major C. B. Jackson, Indian at Sisseton Agency in South Dakota, it was suggested that a marriage in the Indian village, which is to be established on the Fair Grounds during fair week, might be an interesting feature of the fair.

Maj. Jackson who is to bring 300 Sioux from his agency to the fair, writes that there are several couples in the party who have indicated a desire to be married on the fair grounds, and it is quite possible that this feature will be arranged for. The event will receive ample publicity thru the newspapers so that all who wish to see one of the brave warriors joined in wedlock to a coy and winsome squaw will undoubtedly have the opportunity at some time during the fair.

FIND BODY OF INFANT

BODY OF BABY IS FOUND BURIED ON CIRCUS GROUNDS IN FERGUS FALLS

THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN CHILD OF PEOPLE CONNECTED WITH THE CIRCUS

From Thursday's Daily—

Workmen who were digging in the vicinity of the circus tents at Fergus Falls found the body of a new born infant Tuesday afternoon. The body was wrapped in a piece of cloth enclosed in a small box and was buried at a depth of six or seven inches below the surface of the ground. It had apparently been buried only a week or two and it is suggested that it may have been the child of some of the people connected with the former circus. There was a name in the box but it was written in indelible ink and the rain had soaked in, causing the letters to run together. As a consequence, it is very difficult to decipher. In the absence of Coroner Haugen, no one had authority to remove the body and it was re-buried where it was found. The coroner is expected home from the state convention today and it is probable an inquest will be held tomorrow.

Roome farm, after whom the township was named, and a better 320 acres cannot be found in Polk Co. The deal was closed thru the land firm of McPhee and Brown and the price paid was a good round one. Mr. Rolsch made his money in the Red River Valley and thinks Red River soil is as good an investment as could be made. He will not turn farmer himself, but will nevertheless maintain as up-to-date a farm as can be found in the valley.

Help! Help! I'm Falling

Thus cried the hair. And a kind neighbor came to the rescue with a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. The hair was saved! This was because Ayer's Hair Vigor is a regular hair medicine. Falling hair is caused by a germ, and this medicine completely destroys these germs. Then the healthy scalp gives rich, healthy hair.

FORGER GETS IN HIS WORK

SCANDIA AND SVEA HOTELS BOTH CASHED FORGED CHECKS SAME EVENING

CHECKS WERE FORGED ON THE ATLAS LUMBER CO.—NO CLUES

From Friday's Daily—

A week ago, June 26, about 7 o'clock a stranger entered the Svea Hotel and succeeded in cashing a check for $21.75 which was supposed to have been drawn in favor of Knute C. Olson by the Atlas Lumber Co., and the name of E. W. Hanson as manager was attached to the check. The same evening, but a few minutes later the same party cashed a check for $21.50 at the Scandia hotel drawn in favor of Ole C. Knuteson and also signed by the Atlas Lumber Co., and E. W. Hanson as manager.

Not till today was it discovered that the checks were forgeries. As a matter of fact E. W. Hanson was succeeded as local manager of the Atlas Lumber Co., months ago by Manager Potts. Neither the Scandia nor Svea hotel proprietors can give an adequate description of the forger and it is probable that he will never be apprehended.

Of course Ole or Knute represented that he was employed by the Atlas Lumber Co., and was very smooth, but as he was a total stranger to both hotels the checks should not have been cashed. As a matter of fact no business man should cash a check unless he knows the party. It would have been a very easy matter to have phoned the Atlas Lumber Co., and found out about the checks before they were cashed. Now it's "goodbye Hiram" as far as Knute, Ole, et al. is concerned.

D. D. HORTON FOR SHERIFF

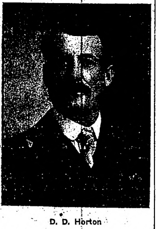
IS THE NINTH CANDIDATE TO FILE FOR REPUBLICAN NOMINATION

HAS BEEN A RESIDENT OF THE COUNTY FOR PAST 27 YEARS

This afternoon D. D. Horton, one of the pioneer residents filed as a candidate for the republican nomination for sheriff of Polk Co., making the 9th candidate to enter the race.

Mr. Horton, known to all the old timers of the county of "Deck" has been a resident of Crookston for the past 27 years, coming here from Niagara, Welland Co., Canada in 1881 and since his arrival has not been away from Polk county a year all told.

During his entire residence here, Mr. Horton has been a consistent republican—clear to the core, and has never before been a condidate for any office, but has worked hard for the election of republican candidates, being one of the hustlers for votes when votes were badly needed.



D. D. Horton

The latest candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Polk County.

Mr. Horton has entered the race to win, and will make an active campaign. His wide acquaintance thruout the country, and his general popularity will make him a formidable candidate. He goes on the assumption that "the last shall be first and the first shall be last" and if this quotation from the Good Book is applicable he stands a mighty good chance of winning out at the primaries on September 15th.

MAIN BUILDINGS CLEAR OF FAKIRS

MAIN BUILDING AT STATE FAIR GROUNDS TO BE CLEARED OF FAKIRS

At the last meeting of the board of managers of the state fair several communications were read from various business concerns of both Minneapolis and St. Paul in reference to the discontinuance of selling space in the aisles to small concessioners. It has been the custom to sell so much space in the aisles of the main building that the exhibitors felt as if they were not warranted in going to the expense of making elaborate exhibits when the aisles were so crowded that their exhibits could not be properly displayed.

As the concessions in this building have always been a big source of revenue by the state fair, the management was naturally reluctant in agreeing to discontinue selling the aisles space, but as nearly all of the exhibitors who have booths in the main building have expressed a desire to pay for their booth in order to recompense the fair management for the loss they would have, they decided to bar fakirs from the building, and this year's fair will see the main building entirely free from peddlers of small jewelry novelties, spectacles, etc. This will not only be appreciated by the exhibitor but by the public at large.

ALFALFA FOR THE NORTH

WINKJER URGES DEVELOPMENT OF CROP IN NORTH COUNTRY SOILS

FOUR CROPS TO YEAR SECURED IN KANSAS—FIVE IN OKLAHOMA

Joel J. Winkjer, formerly deputy state dairy inspector and resident at Crookston, now assistant dairyman at Manhattan, Kansas, for the United States government with a territory covering Kansas and surrounding states, says that northern Minnesota farmers should develop the alfalfa crop more than they do and secure some of the fruit of its growth which other parts of the country are now doing.

Mr. Winkjer states that in Oklahoma farmers are securing five crops of alfalfa every year and in Kansas they are securing four crops every year. The soils in northern Minnesota are not unfitted for the growth of this grass which is so salable when shipped east and is one of the best feeds grown. Three crops would not be an over-estimate of what could be secured in this territory and the stalk would be of hardier quality.

Mr. Winkjer is well acquainted with the soils and conditions of this north country and is very confident that when the farmers have mastered the growth of alfalfa here it will be one of the staple crops. Some have tried it already and have not met with perfect success, but the same was true at one time of the farmers of Kansas.

Osmund K. Vinlos, Lars E. Ofte, Torger K. Vinlos and Aslak B. Mandt all of Kratka postoffice in Red Lake county are at the United States land office today making commutation proof on homesteads in their vicinity.

WARM WELCOME FOR SHERMAN

Homecoming of Vice Presidential Candidate Made Occasion of Demonstration.

Utica, N. Y., July 4.—The homecoming last night of Congressman James S. Sherman was made the occasion of such a demonstration as has rarely been seen in this section of the state. The welcome to the Republican candidate for vice president was a non-partisan affair and to a great extent personal. The congressman's recently somewhat alarming illness gave additional reason for public rejoicing on his safe return.

Mr. Sherman, accompanied by Mrs. Sherman and Dr. Carter, reached here on the New York express from the west at 9:18 o'clock last evening. As his train drew into the station bands played, fireworks were set off and church chimes rang out. In Bagg's Square and every other spot adjacent to the New York Central station thousands of persons were crowded. Mr. Sherman stepped from the train slowly, looking pale and worn. But he had stood the journey, his physician said, very well. A monster procession formed in the vicinity of the station and escorted the candidate to his home.

SCHINNER AT HOME.

Warmly Welcomed at Superior on Return From Europe.

Superior, Wis., July 4. — A great crowd greeted Bishop A. F. Schinner upon his return to the city last night from his European trip. He was accompanied by several priests of the diocese who had met him at Ashland. A procession was formed and the bishop was escorted to the Sacred Heart cathedral, where he gave the papal benediction. A reception followed.

Cheap Living In Norway.

"It is a good scheme," said a rich man, "to spend the summer in Norway. The Norwegian climate is superb, the scenery is grand, and the living is cheap—a dollar a day at the hotels and carriages at a half dollar a day. One fine thing about Norway is that in the summer the night only lasts a couple of hours, and if you go as far as the North cape there is no night at all, but the sun circles round and round the horizon and never sinks below. The Norwegian rivers abound in fish, and any one is free to angle for trout in them. The salmon rivers, though, are strictly preserved. Some of the salmon rivers are very fine and rent for as much as $2,000 a year. I know a man who has a river only two miles long that he pays $1,800 for. He often gets fish sixty or seventy pounds. The day I called on him his wife came in with a forty pounder, a twenty-two pounder and a fifty-one pounder that she had caught herself within three hours."

TEXAS IS CHARGED WITH BAD FAITH

Mexico Will Ask United States to Punish Authorities of Del Rio, Texas.

FAILED TO DO THEIR DUTY

Allowed Las Vacas Raiders to Return to Texas Unmolested—Washington Praised.

City of Mexico, July 4.—Mexico will ask the United States to punish severely the local authorities of Del Rio, Tex., and possibly others of the state under whose authority they acted. The grounds will be that the officers knowingly failed in their duty by allowing persons who took part in the Las Vacas raid to return to the Texas side of the river unmolested and to bring with them their wounded.

Punishment may also be asked for the authorities and police of Del Rio for allowing meetings to be held there for the purpose of fomenting and planning raids, murder and robbery in Mexico.

Charge Bad Faith to Texas.

The latter request, however, will be contingent upon investigations not yet completed, which have for their purpose the ascertaining the amount of knowledge which the police of Del Rio had of the meetings.

This new phase of the international side of the trouble in Northern Mexico was made known yesterday by Minister Mariscal of the foreign relations department. Bad faith toward Mexico by the state of Texas in the recent trouble is very strongly suspected by the Mexican government.

Pleased With Washington.

"The action of Washington has been the very best," said Minister Mariscal yesterday. "Not only has the United States government shown itself willing and eager to assist Mexico, but took quick steps to move troops to the border, evidencing a degree of friendliness which cannot be questioned, but admired.

"The sincerity of Texas, however," he declared, "appears to be another matter.

"Our doubts in regard to Texas have begun to increase with developments. The failure of local authorities to arrest these men on the ground that their offense was political, in my mind, has no tenable excuse."

Raiders Return to Del Rio.

The minister called attention to the fact that about 100 men held a series of meetings in Del Rio, which could hardly have taken place in secrecy. A large number of raiders also returned to Del Rio, after the trouble and carried with them wounded men, an act that could hadly have been performed in secret.

URGES HITCHCOCK FOR PLACE

Secretary Cortelyou Gives Taft Information Regarding Campaign Work.

Washington, July 4. — Two conferences of importance were held yesterday by Judge William H. Taft, the first being with Speaker Cannon and the second with Secretary of the Treasury George B. Cortelyou. Concerning neither conference was much disclosed.

Speaker Cannon, at the conclusion of his talk with Judge Taft, said that he had called on the Republican standard bearer merely to pay his respects and to renew his assurances, given in his telegram on the day of the nomination, that he could be depended upon to furnish any assistance in his power to insure the election of Judge Taft.

In the afternoon Judge Taft had an hour's talk with Secretary Cortelyou. The interview covered a wide range of political topics. Primarily it was Judge Taft's idea to talk with Mr. Cortelyou about the work of the national committee, of which Secretary Cortelyou gave Judge Taft much valuable information concerning the practical workings of the committee. Incidentally, although the subject of the national chairman was not considered at great length, Secretary Cortelyou took occasion to urge the selection of Frank H. Hitchcock.

Judge Taft, Mrs. Taft and their son Charlie, accompanied by a clerical force and servants, will leave Washington to-day for Hot Springs.

TEACHERS ARE NEEDED.

Polk Superintendent Urges Persons Qualified to Try for Schools.

Crookston, Minn., July 4. — Supt. Casey of the Polk county schools has issued official notice of a teachers' institute, to be opened in this city on July 27 next, and to continue for one week. On the Monday following the teachers' examinations will open and will continue for three days.

The announcement of the county superintendent calls attention to scarcity of teachers and urges all qualified persons living in this part of the country to attend.

If absence makes the heart grow fonder, it's up to the wise young man to go home early.

NINE PERISH IN FAST MAIL WRECK

California Limited and St. Joseph Express Meet in Head-on Collision.

CRASH OCCURS IN HEAVY FOG

Believed That Failure of California Limited to Take Siding Caused the Wreck.

Knobnoster, Mo., July 4. — Nine persons were killed and a score of passengers were badly injured yesterday morning in a wreck near here.

The fast Missouri Pacific California limited and the St. Joseph express, bound to St. Louis, met head-on between Lamont and Knobnoster. The cause of the collision has not been determined, but it is believed the failure of the California limited to take the siding near Knobnoster caused the wreck.

The track at the scene is level and without curves, but a heavy fog prevailed at the time and prevented the engineers from seeing ahead any distance.

Debris Catches Fire.

The locomotives were smashed and the mail, baggage and forward coaches were badly broken up. Part of the debris caught fire.

A special train bearing all available physicians in Sedalia went to the scene, and the dead and injured will be brought back there. The California limited carried two mail cars, a baggage car, two chair cars, two sleepers and an observation dining car.

The wreckage of the engines and mail cars was in such a chaotic shape that not until the wrecking train cleared it away to a large extent was it positively determined how many dead were in the debris.

DRAINAGE BY GOVERNMENT

CONSIDERED STILL POSSIBLE BY PARTIES ACQUAINTED WITH PROGRESS

FEDERAL DRAINAGE OF NORTH MAY NOT YET BE ABANDONED

The appeal to the federal congress for assistance in the drainage of northern Minnesota is not altogether abandoned by the advocates of drainage and the demand will still continue The National Drainage Association will not cease its efforts and its members believe that there are still hopes of getting the government to establish a revolving fund for the drainage of its lands thruout the country, much of which is included in Minnesota.

The drainage minions do not take the bill passed by the last house making Minnesota a trustee for the drainage of all public lands in its borders as a rebuff. They believe it is an advance and only a step toward actual help from the government.

At any rate the activity for federal drainage will still go on at Washington.

THE ANTIS ARE FUSSY

W. A. RICE SAYS A BIG FIGHT IS BEING PUT UP AGAINST SALOONS

70 COLLEGE STUDENTS HAVE BEEN TURNED LOOSE THRUOUT THE STATE

W. A. Rice of Fergus Falls who is in charge of the county option campaign in the 9th congressional district has been spending the past few days in Polk county trying to get a man to make the race for the nomination for the state legislature on the prohibition ticket but has abandoned the idea. His plan was to have B. B. Larson of Nielsville, a banker, make the run so that in case the present representatives, John Saugstad and John Holton, both of whom are running on a county option platform, should be defeated at the primaries the county optionists could rally to the support of the prohibitionist candidate.

Messrs. Holton and Saugstad however, do not take kindly to the plan, believing that it would divide their support and possibly result in the defeat of both of them.

Mr. Rice states that a corps of 70 young colege anti-saloon workers have been turned loose in Minnesota and will remain at work till after the primaries and some of them till after the election. It was the first intention to secure about 106 of them, and have every voting precinct in the state, 2666 in number, visited by personal workers and organized for the approaching fight at the primaries. However 70 were all that could be secured and the best will be made of their time.

Mr. Rice claims that Supt. Mattson of Roseau County and Representative Donald Robertson of Marshall County both of whom have filed for the nomination for the legislature from the 63rd district are making the run on an out and out county option platform and that Wold of Norman county is also pledged. He asserts that the northwestern portion of Minnesota at the present time is a hotbed of county option sentiment, and that there will be things doing at the next session of the state legislature as all candidates must come out in the open on this proposition, and those opposed to the anti-saloon movement will be targets for the efforts of the prohibitionist, and the anti-saloon league and the county optionists.

PASTOR ASKS FOR DAMAGES

FORMER CROOKSTON PASTOR WANTS DAMAGES FOR INJURIES

From Tuesday's Daily—

Notice of claim was last evening served on the Fargo city council by Rev. Edwin S. Shaw, formerly of Fargo, and also pastor of the Congregational church at Crookston, but now engaged in Sunday school and missionary work in the northwestern part of North Dakota and Montana, with headquarters at Minot, N. D., who asks $2,037.50 for alleged permanent injuries which he claims to have received June 9, as the reesult of a defective sidewalk on First aveinue north in front of the Stone Music House at Fargo. It is stated in the notice that the walk was left in an uneven and unsafe condition and that a bone in his right foot was broken as a result.

Rev. Shaw was in Fargo attending a meeting of the board of directors of the Fargo college when the accident occurred an account of which was given in the Journal at the time.

On motion of Alderman Amerland the claim was rejected. Alderman Amerland and City Engineer Crabbe stated that they both believed the walk was not in an unsafe condition.

FATALLY INJURED

JENS STRANDQUIST HAD CHEST CRUSHED BY LOADED WAGON JULY 4TH

FELL OVER DASH BOARD IN ATTEMPT TO USE HIS CAP FOR HORSE WHIP

Jens Strandquist, 20 years of age was fatally injured the night of July 4th while driving home from Strandquist a small town on the Soo where with a party of 8 men he had been celebrating the Fourth.

It seems that several barrels of beer had figured in the celebration, and a keg or two more was taken along for the ride home. Young Strandquist thought the horses were not going fast enough and reaching over the dash board to slap one of the horses with his hat, he lost his balance and fell to the ground, the heavily loaded narrow tired wagon passing over his chest.

The physician at New Folden was sent for and rushed to the scene of accident but stated that the internal injuries were fatal and gave no hope of recovery. At last reports the injured man was still alive but his vitality was slowly ebbing away.

The unfortunate young man is a brother of John Strandquist, the merchant after which the village of Strandquist is named.

A BANNER CROP WEEK

ALL GRAIN IS FORGING AHEAD WITH GREAT RAPIDITY

A COPIOUS SHOWER WOULD BE BENEFICIAL TO THE LATE GRAIN

Another excellent week for the Valley crops has passed and all grains remain in strictly first class condition The early wheat, oats and barley is heading nicely and the heads are coming out long and plump. The cool weather is ideal for the advanced grain specially and could not be better for the development of long heads In a few localities the need of a good shower for the later sown grain is beginning to be felt, but there will be no great need for rain for several days to come. The advanced grain could stand several weeks of dry weather without injury, but the latter sown grain could forge ahead faster with a good copious shower within the next few days.

The hay crop is developing rapidly, and some hay has been cut already tho haying will not be on generally till the last of this week or the first of next. Both tame and wild hay will make the best crop in years. and all of it can be harvested as there is no water standing in this section excepting in the bed of sloughs.

OLD RESIDENTS OF READ'S LANDING

ORGANIZE AN ASSOCIATION IN TWIN CITIES—HONORARY MEMBERSHIP

This morning Otto Burkhardt and several other former residents of Reeds Landing, Minn., received a notice from Wm. B. Mohler, Corn Exchange Building, Minneapolis, to the effect that a Read's Landing Association had been organized in the Twin Cities with Fred A. Bill, President and Wm. B. Mohler secretary. The society is composed of old residents of Reads Landing, Minn., and has quite a large membership in St. Paul and Minneapolis. The secretary was aware that about a score in Crookston and vicinity are eligible to membership and desires to enroll as honorary members all who are located in this section.

The association plans to hold reunions, picnics, etc., in the future and renew old friendships. Mr. Burkhardt went to school to Mrs. Mohler at Reads Landing, her maiden name having been Miss Brown. Mr. Mohler in the early days was bookkeeper at Reads Landing for Holmes & Co., and President Bill of the association was formerly clerk for the Diamond Joe steamboat line running to Reads Landing.

The old residents of Reads Landing located here are much pleased over the organization and practically all of them will at once become enrolled as members and will look forward with pleasure to the next reunion.

WATCH DOG OF PENSIONS

HOW PENSIONS ARE DISTRIBUTED AMONG OLD U. S. A. SOLDIERS

DISBURSE $166,000,000 THIS YEAR AMONG VETERANS AND WIDOWS

Once in three months every hundredth person or more in this country looks to Washington for money. Most of them don't get much, but usually what they do get is very important to their happiness, for these men and women are those who fought and suffered for the country in time of war. A grateful government has not forgotten their services and annually gives them enough money in the aggregate to run fifty five cities the size of St. Paul.

The man who has charge of the disbursement of this vast sum in pensions is the commissioner of pensions and his name is Vespasian Warner. He began as a private, became major in the regular army, fought the Indians in Nebraska campaigns in latter '60's and was a congressman for ten years. For the last three years he has been at the head of the pension department.

He was in Crookston yesterday and St. Paul visiting with his old friend, Congressman Frederick C. Stevens. The friendship of Maj. Warner and Congressman Stevens dates back to when both were members of the lower house. Maj. Warner then lived in Clinton, Ill., and the friendship between the two has not been allowed to die. Maj. Warner and his wife took the river trip from St. Louis to St. Paul arriving Monday noon. They came to Crookston yesterday morning on private business and will visit in St. Paul later in the week on their way East.

The pension fund of the government last year amounted to $129,000,000. But for the year which begins the first of this month that amount will be swelled to $166,000,000 and this in spite of the fact that the Civil war veterans are responding to their last call at the rate of 2,500 a month.

Maj. Warner explains this increase as resulting from two causes.

Pensions Increase with Age

"Altho many of the old soldiers are dying," he said, "the rest of them are getting older and the age pension increases regularly. If a former soldier who served at least ninety days and was honorably discharged reaches the age of 62 he is entitled to a pension of $12 a month, even tho he received no wound and was none the worse for his experience. At seventy years this is increased to $15 and to $20 at seventy-five years. Every soldier is entitled to this.

Pensions for Widows

"The pension for widows also was raised by the last congress. Formerly widows who had an income to the amount of $250 a year got no pension from the government. The recent law declares that the government doesn't care how much the widow gets somewhere else. If she is a widow she is entitled to a pension and gets $12 a month. This law not only increased the amount to each widow but also increased the number of people to whom the law applies.

"The Spanish war veterans are also swelling the list. The total amount of pensions will never be so large again. As the old soldiers die the widow gets a pension, but always smaller than the veteran had been drawing. This leaves the number of pensioners about the same, but reduces the amount."

There are 900,000 pensioners and every once in a while the department finds that some one has been drawing money which the government thought it was paying to another. Not every old soldier applies for a pension and unscrupulous persons send in claims under their names. Recently the department found that one man was drawing money under four names in various parts of the country.

HAD HIS RIBS BROKEN TOO

Asst. Chief of Police Hugh Quigley of East Grand Forks father of Mrs. N. S. Davies of this city, was more seriously injured than the first examination showed and it was found Sunday that in addition to a fractured shoulder and broken collar bone he had suffered two broken ribs. The injuries as well as disabling Mr. Quigley, are very painful. Some one with more activity than brains slapped the fractious horse Mr. Quigley was riding during the July 4th parade, the bridle broke and the rider was hurled to the ground.

Harmony Now

When Winston and Martin O'Brien had been named the latter suggested that of this team one had supported Palmer and Buckner in 1896 and the other had been a Populist but now harmony was complete.

Bryan Minnesota volunteers arrived at Denver Monday morning forty strong and more arrived before the convention met. Among these were T. T. Hudson of Duluth and J. R. Bennett of St. Cloud.

LIVE STOCK SHOW IN NOV.

SECOND GREAT EXHIBIT WILL BE HELD IN SOUTH ST. PAUL NEXT FALL

MOVEMENT IS ONE THAT WILL BE OF GREAT INTEREST TO THE FARMERS

From Wednesday's Daily—

The Northwestern Livestock Association which entered the field with a successful show at the Union Stockyards in South St. Paul last year, will present its second annual show at the same place November 17th to 20th, 1908.

This show is conducted in the interests of the farmers and feeders and is not open in competitive classes to Agricultural Colleges, with its course of lectures and demonstrations it is designed to furnish much valuable information on the subject of animal industry.

The classes in the premium list cover individuals, pen lots and car lots in cattle, hogs and sheep. There are six prizes in each class for the single cattle, and five prizes in each class for swine and sheep singles; while in the car lot division there are four prizes for all kinds in each class.

In all there are nearly $7,000 in premiums; and the small farmer and feeder has a good chance to win some of these prizes.

The territory of the show is limited to Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, the northern part of South Dakota and the northern part of Wisconsin.

Also there are no classes in the premium list for breeding stock. Therefore, the farmers and feeders of this territory will not be brought into competition with the professional herds shown at the big fairs.

The management of the show has felt that there is a field for it in this territory, and believe that the farmers and feeders will readily appreciate the advantages that will accrue to them thru the building of a show of this character.

STATE DITCH DIVIDES U. S. INTO ISLANDS

DITCH 57 IN ITASCA COUNTY WILL CLEAVE [illegible]ERCONTINENTAL DIVIDE BY THANKSGIVING AND DIVIDE THE UNITED STATES INTO TWO PARTS, THE EAST AND THE WEST, EACH SIDE BEING COMPLETELY SURROUNDED BY WATER WHEN THE DITCH IS FULL OF WATER

The state of Minnesota is now engaged in making an island out of about one-third of the United States. Before Thanksgiving comes and if there is plenty of water on the high places, all that portion of the country east of the Mississippi river will be separated by water from the solid West. This great engineering feat will be performed by the construction of what is known as Ditch 57 being a short drainage ditch in Itasca county.

This ditch, by cutting thru the international water shed will make it possible for a hardy traveler to take a canoe trip from the Gulf of Mexico thru the heart of the country to the Gulf of St. Lawrence without making a portage. There is little likelihood that the route will be popular with the summer tourists, but the fact is interesting from a geographical stand point.

The drainage ditch, which will accomplish this separation of the East from the West, will provide an outlet both ways for a small body of water near Bowstring station a few miles north of Deer River. This is called Round lake and is in a slight depression on the water shed. The ditch runs in two directions from this lake To the south the waters will reach the Mississippi river almost directly. That river there reaches its most northerly point after the junction of Leech Lake river and Mud river.

To the north the waters will flow toward the gulf of St. Lawrence thru Big Forks river after passage thru several smaller tributaries.

This ditch is but one of sixteen which the state has under construction at present. Most of them are short, but it keeps George A. Ralph, the drainage engineer, and his assistants busy jumping from place to place to watch the progress of the work.

There are three ditches in St. Louis county, a short distance west of Duluth. These were inspected last week There are three also in Koochiching county, four in Kittson county in the extreme northwest corner of the state There is one each being built in Itasca, Marshall, Roseau, Wilkin, Polk and Otter Tail counties. The largest one is in Roseau county in connection with the Roseau river, the contract price being $52,000.

WHERE TO DUMP DIRT

FARMERS OBJECT TO METHODS OF DITCHERS IN DUMPING DIRT

WATER CONCENTRATED ON LOW LANDS—LOW LANDS CLAIM DAMAGE

From Tuesday's Daily—

Farmers thruout the country are making strenuous objections to the methods of dumping the excavated earth from the ditch constructions now in progress. The engineers make no provision generally for a distribution of the dump according to the rise and fall of the land and as a result in the high land where the excavation is necessarily deeper more dirt is taken out and dumped along the ditch line than in the low places where possibly there may be no excavation at all.

As a result the water in seeking an outlet thru the ditch is unable to mount the tall dump on the higher land and centers in the low places where it can get over the dump if there is any. The farmers then on the low land receive much damage as a result.

A very proper use of the dump as put into practice by some engineers is to take all the dump from the high places and center it on the low places where it may act as a dike to keep the water flowing down the ditch and off of the land.

In all cases all ditchers should leave outlets at least every few hundred yards in the dump while on high cuts in order that all water may be properly drained off and engineers should see that this rule is enforced.

FOUR MILES YET TO COMPLETE

BEFORE MAPLE LAKE ROAD WILL BE OPENED TO THE PUBLIC

Secretary Moore of the 25,000 Club and Ed Carlson spent yesterday east of the city between here and Maple Lake on the Maple Lake road project of the club.

The work is now under way on the four miles of proposed highway between Benoit station and Tilden and this work will undoubtedly take the greater part of the summer and fall if it will be completed this year at all.

The road at this point is not now in a passable condition and will not be until it is fully completed. This four miles is the key to the whole Maple Lake-Crookston project.

G.N. ATTORNEY IN ROSEAU

ATTORNEY KIMBALL OF GENERAL OFFICES VISITS ROSEAU GRADE

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS EXPECTED IN FIGHT FOR GREAT NORTHERN GRADE

From Monday's Daily—

Attorney Kimball of the Great Northerns general offices at St. Paul has been up along the grade of the Great Northern between Greenbush and Warroad on business connected with developing trouble concerning the grade of the Great Northern which residents in the Roseau claim has been abandoned.

This action of the Great Northern in sending an attorney to examine the ground indicates the anxiety and attention of the company in connection with the Roseau Valley which rich region has so long been its tributary.

The recent incorporation of the Northern Minnesota Railway Co., and its evident intention of entering the Roseau country has agitated the Northern Minnesota railway world and a battle is very imminent over the trade of the great north Minnesota Valley.

The fight is rapidly approaching the courts and some definite move is expected in the fight in the very near future, the first move being the institution of condemning proceedings by the anti-Great Northern faction to secure the G. N. grade.

MAN HELD FOR BRUTAL CRIME

LAPORTE MINN., LABORER NEARLY KILLS ONE GIRL AND

MISTREATS HER COMPANION IN SHAMEFUL MANNER — ONE MAY DIE

From Monday's Daily—

William Conway, aged 20, a laborer at Laporte, criminally assaulted Florence Williams at Laporte, leaving the girl in a terrible condition and also nearly killing Mary Meade her young companion, while the two girls were walking along the railroad track, south of Laporte.

The girls claim that Conway hit the Meade girl on the head with a revolver, kicking and mistreating her hauling her into the woods by the hair of her head and leaving her for dead.

The Williams girl attempted to escape, but was pursued and overtaken by Conway who mistreated her in a terrible manner. Conway made his escape to his cabin near town, where he was afterwards apprehended and placed under arrest.

Florence Williams went to town and told her mother of Conway's action. An alarm was immediately given. The girls had recognized Conway and the section crew went to his cabin. Conway was sitting with a revolver on his lap and said he would shoot the first man who touched him. The men joked with Conway, getting him to lay his revolver down, when he was overpowered and placed under arrest.

Conway Waives Examination

He was taken to Laporte and given a hearing before Justice Crandall. Conway waived examination and was bound over to await the action of the grand jury of Hubbard county. Early this morning Constable Earl Daily took Conway to Walker on hand car and from there went to Park Rapids and lodged him in jail.

The Meade girl is in a serious condition, her body having many bruises and her scalp has a deep gash where Conway hit her with the revolver, there are also three thumb marks on her throat. The Williams girl is not in as serious condition. There were threats of lynching and it was with difficulty that the constable got Conway to Park Rapids.

CREAMERIES SHOULD PASTEURIZE CREAM

WALL SAYS IT COSTS TOO MUCH TO KILL INFECTED CATTLE

"The creameries would be under little or no additional expense to pasteurize all the milk and cream," says W. W. Wall secretary of the state dairy and food department in discussion of the best method of ridding the state of infected milk. "Every creamery in the state now has a pasteurization plant to treat the skimmed milk returned to the farms and it would be only a little more trouble to pasteurize all the milk.

"Denmark is the most advanced dairy country in the world and all of their milk and cream is pasteurized. Denmark has practically all the English butter trade.

"I must confess that I don't like pasteurized milk or cream, but I am willing to sacrifice my taste, because we can't get money enough from the legislature to have $1,000,000 worth of cattle slaughtered every year."

PECULIAR DISEASE AMONG HORSES

There are a number of horses in this city that are affected with a peculiar disease. It may be classed as influenza, and commences with a cough, and rapid loss of flesh and strength. There is an obstruction between the head and throat. In drinking half of the water is forced up thru the nose with a squeaking noise. All kinds of remedies have been tried, but nothing has been found that gives relief. The cough has left those that have had the disease the longest, but the obstruction remains and the animal eats and drinks with the greatest difficulty. The jaws appear to be partially paralyed. Only one horse has died as far as known.—Fergus Falls Journal.

MISS ELLA JOHNSON SECURES DECISION AT U. S. LAND OFFICE

RUSHED THRU DAMP PLACES WITH LUGGAGE TO THE HEARING

From Tuesday's Daily—

This morning Judge Montague of the United States Land Office at Crookston handed down decision dismissing the contest brought by Mike Deep against Miss Ella Johnson to secure a homestead near Fram in Marshall county.

Miss Ella Johnson is assistant postmistress at Vining in Otter Tail county and May 13th last made a sensational race thru the swamps 20 miles east of Middle River from her claim to Fram postoffice where the hearing was had on the contest before Allan W. Clark, United States Commissioner at that point. Miss Johnson carried over 50 pounds of luggage on her trip.

Miss Johnson accepted the position as assistant postmistress May 2nd 1907 and has held that position ever since.

Attended Normal

The land office here also dismissed the suit brought by Erick Anderson against Miss Emma S. Erickson contesting the right of the lady to a homestead near Jevne north of Thief River Falls. Miss Erickson filed on the land April 26, 1904, and tried to make commutation proof September 1st last but proof was rejected as insufficient residence shown. Miss Erickson had read in the papers that she was permitted to attend school and leave her claim and she had accordingly attended the Normal School at Moorhead and taught school, remaining away from her home.

August 17th last she was appointed and assumed the assistant postmistress position of the postoffice at Spooner, Minnesota. Contest was brought by Anderson this spring while Miss Erickson was away, but the contest is dismissed.

A BAD RUNAWAY AT MAPLE LAKE

There was a disastrous runaway at Maple Lake Sunday evening when one of Buhn's bus teams driving back from Mentor became frightened by a Grand Forks automobile and ran away. There were six men in the rig and they had a wild ride. The team could not be kept in the road and dashed against an oak tree killing one of the horses instantly and throwing the occupants out, one man sustaining a badly wrenched wrist. The horse killed was a family pet and very valuable.

G.N. ESCAPES THE TAX ON THE ORGINAL LINE

COURT DECIDES GREAT NORTHERN 4 PER CENT TAX CASE—CONTRACT WITH MINNESOTA AND PACIFIC IS VALID, BUT IT DOES NOT INCLUDE BRANCH LINES NOT SPECIFICALLY COVERED—ROAD HAD PAID 3 PER CENT ON GROSS EARNINGS

Judge Hallam Saturday at St. Paul filed his decision in the case of the State against the Great Northern Railroad Company, an action to compel the payment of a 4 per cent gross earnings tax for 1905 under chapter 253, Laws 1903. The company voluntarily paid 3 per cent on its gross earnings, and asserted that it was exempt from further taxation by the original charter of the Minnesota & Pacifis railroad company.

The court sustains this contention so far as the "original lines" are concerned, but it is held that this immunity from taxation in excess of 3 per cent does not apply to any of the so-called "branch lines." The state demanded the balance, $120,737.38.

Valid Contract

After the Manitoba company had acquired the original lines, sixteen branches were constructed with an aggregate mileage of 752.13 miles. The court holds that the original charter of the Minnesota & Pacific company, providing for the payment of a 3 per cent gross earnings tax in lieu of all other taxation of its property, constitutes a valid, irrepealable contract between the state and the company.

The branch lines were constructed, however, after the adoption of the constitution which declared that no property, with certain exceptions not including railroad property, should be exempt from taxation. Such legislation was prohibited by the constitution until 1871.

Branch Lines Not Covered

The main line from Stillwater to Breckenridge and the so-called branch from St. Anthony via Anoka and St. Cloud to Crookston and St. Vincent are specifically named and authorized in the charter of 1857. The original lines are expressly described and located in the charter and are clearly within its exceptions, says the court. The original charter, however, did not obligate the Minnesota & Pacific company or its successors to construct any of the sixteen branches. They were built by authority of state laws, silent in themselves upon the subject of taxation, passed subsequently to the adoption of the constitution.

The immunity granted by the territorial legislature, says the court, applied only to original lines, the amendatory acts attempting to extend it to the branches were enacted after the constitution was adopted. The court says that it is not clear that the territorial legislature of 1857 intended to extend the exemption to branch roads constructed a quarter of a century later.

O'BRIEN BACK FROM DENVER

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION ADJOURNS WITH GREATEST OPTIMISM OF YEARS

MINNESOTANS TREATED SQUARE BY BRYAN—PLATFORM LEVEL HEADED

From Monday's Daily—

"Bryan treated Minnesota all right," says Martin O'Brien today. "We stopped off at Lincoln on our way to Denver and talked with Bryan. He stated that he didn't believe he would do anything else if he were in our places. He nor his men did not antagonize Johnson or Johnson men in the convention at Denver."

Martin O'Brien of Crookston, delegate from the Ninth Congressional Minnesota district to the democratic national convention, and Minnesota member of the Denver committee on resolutions which had to do with the drafting of the national platform of the democratic party, returned home this morning and is full of optism as far as the chances of a next democratic president is concerned and believes that at last "the great Democracy is coming into its own."

As a member of the committee that drafted the platform, Mr. O'Brien expresses satisfaction with every feature of it.

Tied to Standard

Mr. O'Brien was in the very thick of the great 88 minute demonstration for Bryan following the speech of Senator Gore of Oklahoma and resisted the efforts made by the Bryan armies of delegates to draw Minnesota into the demonstration. The Mayor of Mankato with two or three others had to be actually fastened to the Minnesota state standard to keep it out of the uproar.

The vote received by Johnson after his nomination for president by Hammond the democratic Minnesota Congressman who beat out McCleary was scattering, coming from New York, Connecticut and Georgia among others. Upon their arrival at the convention the Johnson men observed the inevitable end of the fight and released such delegates as had been pledged for them from their vote for Johnson, the most of these same delegates still cast their vote when the poll was taken.

Tammany Promises New York

On the way from Denver Mr. O'Brien observed Tammany stop at Lincoln to meet with Bryan and heard the promise of Tammany to deliver New York state to the annointed one of Fairview in the coming election.

On the committee of resolutions Mr. O'Brien was the one of three laymen who were members, the other members being governors of states, senators and congressmen.

BOARD LEVIES $40,700

REDUCTION OF $12,300 FROM LAST YEAR'S LEVY OF TAXES

LOWELL DITCH BRIDGE AND DITCH NO. 78 COMMAND ATTENTION

The county commissioners of Polk county this afternoon fixed the tax levy for the coming year at $40,700 or $12,300 less than last year. In addition to this the county board set aside $20,000 for road and bridges $6000 for bonds and interest and $6000 for deepening and straightening and widening of overflowed water courses. This is a total tax of $72,700.

Contractor Brown of ditch 63 and 64, is struggling before the board about the depth of the ditch awarded him, he stating that he did not think the specifications called for as deep digging as demanded of him by the engineer.

The matter of the bridge over ditch 1 in Lowell town which has been causing the town board so much trouble was also before the commissioners but no results have been reported to time of press.

Day after tomorrow the county board meets for ditch hearing on 78 in Lowell and next Monday the county board meets as a Board of Equalization.

HOUSE BURNED TO THE GROUND

CARISH RESIDENCE AN OLD LAND MARK BURNED AT FORKS

The Carish residence near the string of elevators at the Great Northern siding was destroyed by fire Saturday afternoon shortly after four o'clock. The Carish home was one of the old landmarks of the city. The loss is estimated at about $800, the building being frame. The fire started while the Carish family was away and the origin of the fire is unknown. The fire department made a hurried trip to the scene but could not check the flames which had too much headway. The Carish family formerly resided at Euclid and is well known here.

PENNED AND PILFERED

The University of Chicago has lost its head trainer of white rats. This does not imply that the education of rodents is a regular feature of that university's curriculum but nevertheless, Professor John B. Watson, of the department of psychology, owed his Ph. D. degree and present position to his success in training these animals, and he has just been called to a higher position at the John Hopkins University at Baltimore. The experiments that made Dr. Watson's fame were highly unique and may throw important light on the development of human beings, scientists declare. The object of the investigation briefly was to discover whether the higher members of the animal kingdom, including rodents and babies, can be considered to possess any real intelligence prior to the full development of the nervous system. The results indicated that they can, and incidentally established for all time the exact number of minutes it will take an average hungry rat to find a way into a box when there is cheese in the box. The principal experiments consisted in timing the successive attempts of a young rat to get into a cage, opening by a latch string which had been moistened with cheese. The first attempts took ten or twelve minutes but after a number of trials a light began to dawn on the rat and thereafter he made a bee line for the string as soon as he was released. The old rats took more time to solve the puzzle but their memory proved better than that of the youngsters. One old one took 5 minutes to learn a complicated method of entering the food box, but the second time has was placed near it he did the trick in exactly one minute and a half. It is said that John D. Rockefeler was exceedingly pleased at the ingenuity shown in the experiments.

Mary Helen, four years old, is very brave, and is usually perfectly willing for her mother to leave her after she has put her to bed and has given her her favorite doll. But one night after she had been left a short while she called loudly for her mother.

"Why, Mary Helen!" her mother asked, "What is the matter with you?"

"I'm tired of staying up here with nobody but God and my dolly. I want somebody with skin on," she sobbed. —The August Delineator.

The Fourth Estate repeats a good story told by "Bob" Davis formerly of the Call and now on the editorial staff of Munsey's. While Davis was connected with a paper in a rough-and-ready western town, a shabbily dressed stranger walked in one day and asked for some old clothes altho his own were fairly good. The staff contributed and, to the surprise of every one, the stranger pulled out $8 and paid for one year's subscription to the paper. Then, having donned the contributed clothing, he hastily departed. He had been gone but a little while when the sheriff came in looking for a horse thief. His description fitted the stranger to a nicety. "He was in here," said the foreman and went up up the street when he left. If you hurry you will catch him," Davis was surprised.

"Why did you say he went up the street when you saw him go the other way?" he asked the foreman.

"H—l!" retored the foreman, with freezing dignity "you wouldn't have me go back on a subscriber, would you?"

Senator Beveridge at a dinner in Washington last month told a story about a statesman of the past.

"Like many a statesman of the past," said Senator Beveridge, "he drank too much. And one Fourth of July morning, on a platform hung with flags and flowers, before the court house of a western county town, facing an audience of farmers and their families that had come from miles around the statesman arose to deliver the Independence day oration in a slightly intoxicated state.

"He was not incapable of an oration, but his unsteady gait, his flushed face and disordered attire spoke ill of him, and the audience hissed and booed.

"He held up his hand. They were silent. Then he laughed scornfully and said:

"Ladies and gentlemen, when a statesman of my prominence consents to appear in such a little one-horse town as this, he must be either drunk or crazy. I prefer to be considered an inebriate."

TRAMP ARRESTED FOR DRINKING MILK

A tramp was arrested Saturday for drinking "milk"—and he wasn't intoxicated either. What do you think of that? The poor fellow was looking for something he couldn't get everyday in his travels and as Stephen is getting to be quite a "dairy" city the wanderer struck something wonderful and downed it. Agent Campbell had it hid away in a secret place thinking while his wife was gone he would have a 4th of July all by his lonesome and when he came home to make ready his dinner, cleaning his strawberries, building a fire to boil his coffee, slicing the potatoes for salad and for which he was going to use this milk and cream, after doing all this he went to the secret place, with a broad smile on his face, to get the treasure, but lo and behold it was gone, so the feasting hour of the Independence day was spent in wiping tears—poor man we sympathize with thee.—Stephen Leader.

STEPHEN BANK ROBBERY MYSTERY IS SOLVED

From Thursday's Daily—

The famous Stephen Bank Robbery is solved. The case that has baffled detectives and county officials of Marshall county is at last unravelled by the confession of James A. Nolan, who told the complete story of the robbery in court at Warren yesterday afternoon just as the trial of his pal, Joseph E. Silinski was drawing to a close with every indication that he would be acquitted, as Attorney Geo. J. Cannon of this city had succeeded in breaking down practically every bit of the important circumstantial evidence of the state.

Had Nolan kept silent there is little question but what both Nolan and Silinski would have been free within a very few weeks, perhaps at once, as there was no evidence against Nolan outside what there was against Silinski.

After Nolan's confession, Silinski changed his plea to guilty in lieu of which the indictments against him for grand larceny in the 1st degree for taking money from the bank, and a similar indictment for stealing a horse and buggy were nolle prossed and under the indictment for burglary in the second degree for which he was tried he was at once sentenced to 10 years in the Minnesota penitentiary at Stillwater where he will be taken tonight by Sheriff Forsberg of Marshall Co., Silinski's only comment after Nolan had made his confession in court was:

> "I would not trade places with Nolan this minute. I would rather spend the greater part of my life in prison than be a free man and be weighed down with the knowledge on my mind that I had turned traitor to an associate."

Silinski Stood Pat

Silinski had stood pat from the start, and all day Tuesday, the first day of his trial, and till yesterday at noon fought persistently, his attorney Geo. J. Cannon of this city, having succeeded in breaking down practically all of the circumstantial evidence that was introduced against him by the state, which was mainly that he had been at Warren buying canned goods, crackers, etc., and had been seen around Warren and north line towns just prior to the robbery.

Told the Whole Story

Yesterday when court convened after the noon adjournment Sheriff Forsberg, County Attorney Wm. J. Brown and his assistant, Atty Olson began lugging into the court room an array of bags containing burglars' tools, revolvers, cartridge belts, cartridges, a dishpanful of silver coin and a roll of bills that had been shattered by the dynamite explosion which wrecked the bank at Stephen and blew the safe open. Attorney Cannon and his client, Silinski knew then that the confession was coming.

Nolan's Recital

Nolan was then led into court and told substantially the following story: Silinski, Nolan and two pals, not yet apprehended planned the robbery of the Stephen bank. It was to have been accomplished the Friday before the robbery took place, but owing to a big thunder storm the job was postponed till the morning of Wednesday, April 29.

Nolan claimed the job was planned by Silinski and the other two and that he was simply an accomplice. Following the robbery the men drove west of Stephen about 15 miles and halted in a grove where $575 in silver the tattered bills, amounting to about $1000, burglars' tools, cartridges, etc were all buried.

The Spoils Divided

The balance of the money was divided, each of the four taking $500 in gold and $500 in good bills after which the quartette separated, the two not yet apprehended heading for the north, while Silinski and Nolan headed for Greenbush. The day after the robbery Silinski and Nolan got a ride with a farmer to Greenbush and when approaching the outskirts of the village jumped from the wagon and proceeded to a secluded spot in the woods near by where they buried the gold and silver amounting to $2000 retaining $16 between them. They then went to the hotel at Greenbush and were eating their dinner when they were apprehended.

Intended Taking Train

Silinski and Nolan had intended digging up their plunder cartridges, etc., just before the train for Crookston left Greenbush, but as they were nabbed the money was left where they hid it and the two men have been in the Warren jail ever since.

Shortly after Nolan was lodged in jail he was induced to confess and told where the plunder was concealed east of Stephen. With Sheriff Forsberg, County Attorney Brown and others Nolan was driven to the spot and the $575 in silver, the tattered bills and the damaged bills etc., were recovered and have been in safe keeping at Warren ever since.

Other Loot Missing

Two days later Nolan piloted the same party to the place where Nolan and Silinski had concealed their $2000 near Greenbush. The place was located the cans and bags in which the money had been concealed found together with the revolvers, cartridges, handkerchiefs etc., but every cent of the money had been dug up and taken away.

Where Did the Money Go?

It is the general belief of the Warren officials that someone saw Silinski and Nolan leave the farmers wagon and after their arrest became suspicious and searched about till they discovered the hiding place and took the money. Some however think the other two confederates were wise to where the plant was made and dug it up.

Silinski is Cheerful

Silinski was still cheerful after conviction and said he would serve his time and then live down the disgrace. His parents reside at St. Paul and he has never before been convicted of any crime tho he has been under arrest three times before for minor offenses but was each time released.

Nolan Held

Nolan entered a formal plea of not guilty yesterday afternoon as a matter of form and his case was continued till the fall term, the purpose being to have him on hand to identify and testify against the other two robbers should be apprehended.

A business man of Warren who was in the city last evening paid a high tribute to the splendid defense put up by Atty. Cannon for Silinski, and stated that if Nolan had kept silent he would certainly have been acquitted, the general sentiment of those who had watched the progress of the trial being that there had been nothing in the line of circumstantial evidence of any importance but what had been completely broken down by the defense.

Not Vindictive

Silinski did not appear in the least vindictive towards Nolan, but instead seemed to pity him for his lack of nerve in making a confession. The trial attracted an immense crowd, Judge Grindeland's court room being packed during the two days of the trial.

FUNDS NEEDED TO MOVE CROP

NORTHERN FARMERS AND ELEVATOR MEN TO ARRANGE LOANS

FAVORABLE REPORTS FROM THE GRAIN STATES INDICATE A HEAVY YIELD

From Friday's Daily—

With the prospects of a big grain crop this fall the farmers and elevator men are dropping southward to the cities daily to arrange for funds with which to handle the crops. C. A. Brown, manager of the St. Anthony and Dakota railway line, had several agents in conference at Minneapolis yesterday arranging details for the big shipments this fall.

C. D. White of Devils Lake says the condition there is highly promising except that more rain would be beneficial.

"I do not mean to convey the idea that the country is in any immediate need of rain" said Mr. White, "for it could go some time yet before crop deterioration would begin, and there is considerable grain that would mature even if we had no more rain. But the one thing needed to make the outlook perfect about Devils Lake is a shower which we would like to see in the next week or so.

Rains are Abundant

"The rains north to the Canadian line have been abundant. I was up at St. John, north of Churches Ferry, a few days ago, in an auto and the ground was so heavy that it was hard travelling. It is just in a limited area around Devil's Lake that rain is needed.

"The west side of the Red River valley from Larimore down is in fine condition. Here and there one hears of a spot that is a little too wet, but generally speaking there is a fine crop in prospect.

"The east side of the Red River is of course now assured the banner crop."

CUTICURA CURED MOTHER AND BABY

Southern Woman Suffered With Itching, Burning Rash—Drove Her Nearly Crazy—Her Baby Had Sore on Neck, and Two Other Babies Had Skin Troubles—Calls

CUTICURA A STAND-BY THAT NEVER FAILS HER

"I just can't say enough for the Cuticura Remedies, I can't find words high enough to express my thanks to God for hearing of the wonderful remedies. My baby had a running sore on his neck and nothing that I did for it took effect until I used Cuticura. My face was nearly full of tetter or some similar skin disease. It would itch and, after scratching, it burned so that I could hardly stand it. Two cakes of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment cured me. Two years after it broke out on my hands and wrist. I cured it for a while, but it came again in the summer. Sometimes I would go nearly crazy for it itched so badly. I used ten dollars' worth of so-called blood medicines which did no good at all, then I went back to my old stand-by, that had never failed me. One set of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent did the work. One set also cured my uncle's baby whose head was a cake of sores, and I know of another woman's baby who was in the same fix and nothing else did any good. I speak a word of praise for Cuticura whenever I see a case that needs it. Mrs. Lillie Wilcher, 770 Eleventh St., Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 16, 1907."

WARDEN WOLFER OF STILLWATTER REPORTS FINDINGS ON CROPS

BINDER TWINE OUTPUT AND DEMAND ARE INDICATIONS OF PROSPERITY

From Saturday's Daily—

Henry Wolfer warden of the state prison at Stillwater has spent several days in the Red river valley where he made inquiries and inspection regarding crops, returning this morning. He says that the prospect is very promising, but he was surprised to learn that with all the heavy rains about the country there is a portion of the Red river valley that needs rain soon to help the grain crops.

Speaking of the binder twine output and the demand at the prison the warden said that the demand is a sure indication of a good crop of grain Altho the manufacture is much larger at the prison this year than ever before, the demand is also greater. There is left but 380,000 pounds of twine not ordered, that including all that can be made by running overtime up to August 1. This amount is being held in reserve to fill small cash orders. Aditional demands are coming in and the capacity of every spindle will be exhausted in filling as far as possible the requests of farmers of the state.

TO REDEEM 300,000 ACRES AT A COST OF $700,000

To turn 300,,000 acres of Minnesota land from valueless swamp to firm farm land is the project being startel by citizens in the northern part of Marshall county, in the northwest corner of the state. To reclaim a tract of land forty miles long and nearly as wide is a task which the general government looked on several years ago as one of stupendous magnitude. It means that land which has no value now except a speculative one of $5 an acre will be transformed into as good farm land as there is in the state worth $35 to $60 an acre. Thus at the opening of the big system of ditches which will bring this about, there will be a net increase in the value of the land affected of $10,500,000. But by building the ditches the land will be thrown open to cultivation and the value of the annual crops and the annual increase in the value of the land will make the state immeasureably richer.

Will Cost $700,000

This immense drainage problem is to be solved by construction of two large ditches, each about forty miles long, with numerous lateral branches. The entire system will include 120 miles of ditches. These will average about seven or eight feet deep and will cost $700,000.

This project has been talked of for years. Government engineers have made topographical surveys and reports have flooded the departments at Washington. There are so few dry spots in that part of the state that only here and there is to be found a shanty of some hardy homesteader. The only man with a big enough pocketbook to dig the trenches was Uncle Sam. The state could not do it, because a large part of the land drained is government land which could not be assessed, and the state was not in the mood for spending over a million dollars of which the government got the most benefit.

But a little measure passed by the recently adjourned congress known as the Volstead bill, has fixed matters and made every one happy. It was the drop of oil which started the wheels of improvement.

All Land Assessed

By the terms of this measure the residents of the district can petition a district judge for orders to build a ditch needed for drainage purposes. The judge holds a hearing and if the result is favorable he issues an order to have the trenches constructed. The cost of the work is assessed against the property benefited, just as the board of public works of St. Paul assesses property in the neighborhood benefited by a park or parkway.

The land held for the government is assessed just like that of the latest newcomer with title to 160 acres. The state land is assessed in the same way Formerly the government land was exempt from assessment and as a large portion of the 300,000 acres belongs to the government the possibility of assessment opened the way for the ditch. The assessment is a lien on the land which must be paid by the purchaser of the tract. The ditch is built from funds raised by the sale of bonds which the state or corporations may purchase.

Petition Circulated

G. A. Johnson of Grygla has petition blanks which he is circulating for the construction of this large system of ditches. The government engineers have estimated that it will cost $1,100,000 to dig these 120 miles. Geo. A. Ralph, state drainage engineer, says that the government engineers estimated excavation higher than the state is now paying for it, and thinks that the system can be constructed for about $700,000. It will take three years to complete the work, but if the petition is signed and the district judge orders the work, it can be commenced in the spring and pushed with four or five dredging machines.

The System Outlined

The drainage system as outlined by Mr. Ralph comprises two long ditches running nearly paraallel. The system empties into Thief River, about fifteen miles or more north of Thief River Falls. The most northern branch of the system follows Mud River for a considerable distance and goes thro Mud lake and then turns south thru Elm lake and down to Thief river. The secondary long ditch runs nearly parallel to the first, about five miles south. Both of these are supplied with several branches to drain the land more thoroly.

By the passage of the Volstead bill the national government in a large measure shifts to the state the responsibility for draining its waste land. The government is now making a survey for the drainage of the Red Lake Indian reservation, but it is probable at the conclusion of this work that the federal government will withdraw from all the drainage work in the state. The legislature at its last session appropriated $200,000 for drainage work, and it is probable that a much larger amount will have to be set aside at the next session if much progress is to be made toward reclaiming the swamp lands of the north.

In the project in the southeast corner of Marshall county about 50 per cent of the cost will have to be borne by the national government. The homesteaders will bear 45 per cent, and the state land will stand only 5 per cent. This is according to the proportion of land held in the district to be benefited. Because the national land is merely assessed against, it will be really the purchaser of the land who will pay for the ditch, as the assessment lien must be paid to obtain a clear title.

Build Highways Same Time

Another important feature of the Marshall county ditch is the fact that plans are made for the construction of highways on the side of the ditches out of the dredged material. These roads will be high and easily drained and will prove a valuable means of access to a territory now almost impenetrable for great distances. The land is rich for agricultural purposes, and as soon as the water is given an opportunity to dispose of itself and roads built, it is estimated that the district will be one of the most sought portions of the state.

This system if the present plans are carried out will be by far the largest drainage system the state has ever attempted. There have recently been completed ditches 48 and 49 in Kittson county, each five miles long. At present dredges are throwing up dirt along the Roseau river. At one end of this river the channel is being deep water, and in another place a cut is being made across the country to get around some rapids which impede the flow of water.

PETITION FOR TWO COUNTY DITCHES

PRACTICALLY SAME ROUTE MAPPED OUT BY THE GOVERNMENT SURVEY

The county board of Marshall county has been petitioned to construct two drainage ditches in the eastern port of the county, extending almost from the Beltrami county line westward to Thief River, the two ditches joining before the river is reached. Each of these ditches would be in the neighborhood of 24 miles long and would drain and make beautiful and prosperous an extended area of country.

These drains, as petitioned for, almost exactly duplicate in their course the propesed government channels as outlined by the surveyors of the geological department last year. The one on the south, however, when it reaches a point near Esplee, will swing one mile farther south than the original government survey.

A number of Germantown men went over to Warren recently to petition for the south ditch, and on Tuesday a delegation from Grygla went over to push along the north proposition.

The Immensity of Chicago

Interesting figures showing the enormous concentration of activity in big cities during the past few decades of the country's history have been gathered in the course of an official investigation to determine the geographical, business and industrial center of Chicago. The geographical center of the city has shifted, it was found, to a point near the intersection of Wood and Thirty-fifth streets.

The city is now 26 miles long by 14 1-2 miles wide, and if used for agricultural purposes would make exactly 762 farms of 160 acres each. A few farms are situated within the city limits but the bulk of the area is made to support a population of over 2,300,000. The problems of transportation, traffic, lighting and water supply that such a congestion creates were only touched on in the report, which was prepared by the city bureau of statistics and submitted to the Mayor.

The center of industrial activity was found at the intersection of Van Buren and Desplaines streets. In determining this location the bureau secured information regarding 47,196 places employing 540,018 persons. The business center of the city is claimed to be at the corner of State and Madison streets, which has been declared by the Board of Review to be the most valuable piece of land in Chicago and probably in the United States west of the Alleghany mountains. There are no less than 2,200 streets in the city. One fifth of the entire population of Chicago is said to be dependent for its livlihood upon the stockyards and packing industry.

The War On Tuberculosis

The tuberculosis exhibit here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, brought out a good many people. Each evening the city hall was well filled. As conducted it was a school of instruction in matters pertaining to the prevention and cure of the disease. It was shown that the four things that the consumptive needs to effect a cure are outdoor life, sunshine, nourishing food in large quantities and rest. It was urged that the consumptive employ the agencies at home for effecting a cure rather than go to Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona or any of the other so-called health resorts. This was urged for two reasons:

First—That the patient acclimated in Minnesota stands a good deal better chance of getting well if he lives out of doors in the sunshine, breathing pure air and eating good nutrious food, and living a life of rest, than he wound under the same habits of life in any other climate on earth, and, secondly, he can get cured by the expenditure of very much less money.

The consumptive from Massachusetts can be cured in Colorado but when cured he can't again go back to Massachusetts and live. If cured in Massachusetts he will stay cured there. There is, said Dr. Bracken, no sadder chapter in life's drama than that of the poor home-sick consumptive in Colorado. Often they go there with little means, hoping to get employment. As the disease progresses they grow weaker, and many is the sad, sad story of the poverty stricken consumptive left alone to die without money and without friends and without hope.

It is a matter of the deepest regret that while the legislature has appropriated $100,000 for the treatment of the diseases of domestic animals, it has not expended one cent for the treatment of the terrible white plague that sends to a premature grave every year in Minnesota alone two thousand victims. By charts and lantern slides the people have been let in here to the many facts about the disease and its treatment that they did not know before.—Wabasha Herald.

Ireland's Political Freedom

Ireland's cause now gaining in England, will receive a new impulse in the United States as a result of a meeting held in Chicago this week by the Irish societies, with membership in every state of the Union, to do honor to the memory of John F. Finerty. In his youth the late president of the United Irish League of America was driven out of Ireland and his zeal in the Irish nationalist cause was unceasing thru his eventful life. The invitation to send representatives to the memorial meeting met with a response from the Irish Fellowship Club Irish Nationalists, Gaelic Society, Gaelic League, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Ladies Auxilliary of the A. O. H., Knights of Equity, Irish Choral Society, Gaelic Athletic Association South Chicago Irish Historical Society, Old Guard of the Fenian Brotherhood and various posts of the G. A. R.—for Colonel Finerty fought well in the Civil war.

During his lifetime Colonel Finerty held more posts of honor in connection with the movement for Irish liberty than any other man in America. Glowing tributes were paid to his efforts and the prediction was made that within five years the fight for political freedom would be ended and Ireland would be enjoying home rule.

In support of this, attention was called to recent statements by the Honorable Timothy Harrington, member of parliament from Dublin, and others to the effect that the present lord lieutenant, the Earl of Aberdeen, favored the movement and that King Edward himself was at heart a home ruler and would welcome the change. James Bryce, now British ambassador to this country, was outspoken in his sympathy at various times during his political career and it is expected that the liberal party, now in power, will be forced shortly to fulfill its pledges, and give Ireland the rights she has demanded for so many years.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

The following are the principal planks of the Democratic platform:

Modification of law relating to injunctions. Injunctions should not be issued in any cases in which injunctions would not issue if no industrial suit were involved.

Employers' liability act.

Immediate revision of tariff by reduction of import duties and the placing on the free list of articles entering into competition with trust controlled products. Graduated reduction to restore tariff to revenue basis. Pulp, print paper, lumber, timber and logs to be placed on the free list at once.

Prohibiting private monopoly and licensing corporations.

Publicity of campaign contributions.

Federal remedies for regulation of interstate commerce and prevention of monopolies should be added to and not substituted for state remedies.

Requiring national banks to establish guarantee fund for prompt payment of depositors of any insolvent national bank. Emergency currency controlled by federal government and loaned to national and state banks.

Postal savings banks.

Admission of Asiatic immigrants is opposed.

Income tax.

Will Bear Watching

While county option may be the main issue in the election of legislators this year, it may be well not to forget that the steel trust is interested and is undoubtedly at work fortifying itself against the enactment of a tonnage tax law. They have no desire to pay their just share of taxes to the state. Bjorge, of Becker; Jefferson, of Cottonwood; and Thayer, of Fillmore, the three leaders in last winter's fight for the tonnage tax, already has as opponents the strongest man in their respective districts. The hand of the octopus may not be visible, even to the candidates they hope to elect, but there is no doubt but what it is there. If the leaders can be defeated it will serve as a warning to others not to attempt legislation against this the greatest of trusts.—Hendrum Review.

We regret the action of President Roosevelt in his persistence in turning down Judge Hale, against the wishes of the Minnesota Senators especially U. S. Senator Nelson.

We consider the President's action as worse than a crime—a blunder.

President Roosevelt has the patronage of the nation at his disposal almost, and could have rewarded Mr. Purdy in a score of ways.

The patronage of even U. S. Senators is restricted seldom reaching outside their states, and Mr. Nelson whose oratory, character, ability and popularity has been of such inestimable value to the party of which President Roosevelt is the head deserves more than the usual consideration in the councils of the President.

President Roosevelt has strength of a giant, and it behooves him to use it as becomes a giant.—St. Vincent New Era.

KERN NAMED FOR SECOND PLACE

Indiana Man Selected as the Running Mate for William Jennings Bryan.

Denver, Colo., July 12.—The Democratic national convention concluded its labor late yesterday afternoon by the nomination of John Worth Kern of Indiana for vice president, completing the ticket on which William Jennings Bryan was made the nominee for president during the early hours of the morning.

The nomination of Kern was made by acclamation, amid the resounding cheers of delegates and spectators. No ballot was necessary, as the tide of sentiment had set irresistibly toward the Indiana candidate, state after state registering their delegations in his favar, and all other candidates withdrawing before the universal demand for his nomination.

Kern Is the Favorite.

The convention, after adjourning at daylight with the nomination of Mr. Bryan, resumed its session at 1 p. m. with a powerful undercurrent already in motion toward the nomination of Kern for second place. On the call of states Indiana presented the name of Kern; Colorado, through ex-Gov. Thomas, placed in nomination Charles A. Towne of New York; Connecticut presented Archibald McNeill and Georgia Clark Howell. The names of Judge George Gray of Delaware and of John Mitchell of Illinois were not presented, owing to the positive requests of these gentlemen not to have their names go before the convention.

Flock to Kern.

For a time it looked as though a ballot would be required. But the steady line of states which joined in seconding Kern's nomination soon made it apparent that the chances of all other candidates had been extinguished. Mr. Towne in person was the first candidate to recognize the decisive nature of the Kern movement and in a ringing speech he withdrew his name from consideration and pledged his support to the ticket of Bryan and Kern. Withdrawals quickly followed from the supporters of Howell of Georgia and McNeill of Connecticut, leaving the Indiana candidate alone in the field.

Made by Acclamation.

The withdrawal of the Connecticut candidate was accompanied by a motion that the nomination of Kern be made by acclamation. The motion was carried with a deafening shout, and the assemblage broke into clamorous demonstration on the accomplishment of its work and the completion of the Democratic national ticket

APPLY FOR NEW ELECTION DISTRICT

County Auditor Wilmann has received a petition from residents f townships 159 and 160 range 34 in the northwestern part of Beltrami county praying for the establishment of a new election district embracing these townships.

The territory desired to be covered by this new election precinct is north of Red Lake and includes settlements of homesteaders composed of people who have heretofore lived at Crookston, headed by E. J. Keating and Adolph Rauch.

In the petition the petitioners state that the nearest voting precinct is ten miles distant and it would be serving the convenience of those signing the petition to have the election district allowed.

It is more than likely that the board of county commissioners will act favorably on the petition at the meeting of the board which will be held this week.

Auditor Wilmann also expects another petition for an election district embracing Townships 158 and 159 range 30 known as the "Rapid River country." There are a large number of settlers in this district and no doubt the petition for the election district will be granted, if asked for.—Bemidji Pioneer.

ATT'Y GENERAL APPEALED TO

GRAND FORKS BOSS BARBERS CLAIM THEY ARE UNABLE TO GET

POLK COUNTY AUTHORITIES TO ARREST EAST SIDE MEN

From Wednesday's Daily—

The Grand Forks Herald says:

"Grand Forks barbers propose to find out whether the Sunday closing law, as far as it relates to barber shops, was put on the statute books of Minnesota as a joke or not. East Grand Forks barber shops have kept open Sunday forenoons for the past couple of weeks and have defied the Grand Forks barbers who are obliged to keep closed, to do anything. Application was made to the East Grand Forks municipal court for a warrant for the arrest of the bosses but the court declined to issue it The Polk county attorney also declined to have anything to do with the case.

"The matter has now been taken up by the Minnesota Federation of Labor and it is expected that something can be accomplished thru Attorney General Young.

"East Grand Forks barbers reap a rich harvest on Sundays. Week days they get 15 cents for a shave but on Sunday the price is 25 cents. Hair cuts are 35 cents during the week and on Sunday the price is 50 cents. A good share of the Sunday business comes from Grand Forks, it is stated, and the barbers on this side side consider they are losers by the east side owners keeping open. They claim, however that practically all of the union men of the east side get their work done in Grand Forks since the east side boss barbers declared for the open shop."

Mr. and Mrs. Ruud had been to a dance on Saturday evening returning Sunday noon. Mrs. Ruud went into the house while Mr. Ruud proceeded to unhitch the horses. He had completed the work of removing the harness of one of the horses when he discontinued the work. A rope was thrown over a rafter and used in ending life.

It is supposed that the unfortunate man was delirious at the time of committing suicide as he had been subject to such spells.

NEED MEDICAL INSPECTION

STATE SUPT. OF SCHOOLS FAVORS EXAMINATION OF THE PUPILS

OLSON SAYS THERE SHOULD BE MEDICAL INSPECTION IN MINNESOTA SCHOOLS

From Wednesday's Daily—

"We need medical inspection in every school in the state of Minnesota said J. W. Olson state superintendent of schools before the university summer school yesterday afternoon at the university chapel.

"We need it for two reasons. First that the children may receive medical attention, and, second, that the teacher may know what allowances to make on account of a child's weak ness.

"We also need more stability of tenure in our schools and county superintendents for efficiency. There should be an educational standard for county superintendents and it should be kept up. School teachers need higher wages and should be employed for a term of years, or, rather, as long as their services proved satisfactory.

"I also believe thoroly in consolidated schools in rural districts. The time is also ripe for county agricultural schools as well as county normal institutions. Longer terms of service and better wages would improve the schools 100 per cent."

IN OREGON: LIKES MINNESOTA BEST

MAN WHO MOVED TO OREGON WANTS TO COME HOME

After twenty-seven years there is still in the heart of one Oregon farmer a big warm spot for Minnesota. He recently wrote George Welsh, immigration commissioner at St. Paul, for a booklet of Minnesota. He said that he moved from Brown County in 1881 and has always been sorry.

He gives advice earnestly to all Minnesotans who are thinking of moving West, to go West and settle if they want to, but not to sell the farm or business in this state. He says that he wants to come back.

"That is a type of scores of letters we receive in this office said Mr. Welsh. The people seem to think that Minnesota is a pretty good state to come back to even after they have lived for a long time in some other commonwealth."

W. J. BRYAN GETS NOMINATION ON FIRST BALLOT

Chosen as Democratic Candidate for President Amid Wild Enthusiam.

JOHNSON IS WILDLY CHEERED

Uproarious Demonstration Lasting 25 Minutes Follows Hammond's Speech.

UNANIMOUS FOR PLATFORM

All Night Session Marked by Most Stirring Scenes Ever Witnessed in Convention.

Denver, Colo., July 11, 3:40 a. m. — William Jennings Bryan was this morning nominated for president of the United States by the Democratic national convention.

The nomination was made at 3:40 o'clock, amid scenes of tumultuous enthusiasm, the vast assemblage breaking en masse into a frenzied demonstration of intensely dramatic tribute to the chosen leader.

The first and only ballot gave Bryan the commanding and decisive total of 892 1-2 votes, or 221 more than enough to nominate, with Gray 59 1-2 and Johnson 46.

The announcement was greeted with a perfect pandemonium of sound and motion, floor and galleries joining in deafening, long-continued tumult.

Nomination Made Unanimous.

The decisive ballot was followed, at the first lull, with motions from the Gray and Johnson leaders to make the nomination unanimous and by acclamation, which was carried with an echoing chorus of approval in which every state joined its voice, but with one dissenting vote, from the State of Georgia.

The convention adjourned at 3:50 until 1 o'clock this afternoon, when the candidate for vice president will be nominated.

Candidates Are Named.

The Democratic national convention proceeded last night to the nomination of a candidate for president of the United States, the nominating and seconding speeches being made amid scenes of tumultuous enthusiasm.

The speech placing William J. Bryan in nomination awakened a whirlwind of demonstration, rivaling in intensity and duration the record-breaking tribute of Wednesday.

The names of George Gray of Delaware and Gov. Johnson of Minnesota were also placed in nomination with demonstrations of approval from their followings.

Dunn Names Bryan.

The platform committtee was not ready to report when the evening session began and after listening to political oratory, the rules of procedure were suspended and the convention proceeded with the speeches placing the candidates for president in nomination with the understanding that the usual vote would be deferred until the platform had been adopted.

The speech placing William J. Bryan in nomination was made by Ignatius J. Dunn of Nebraska, a youthful orator of fire and eloquence, whose closing phrase stirred the vast assembly into a wild demonstration.

Pandemonium Breaks Loose.

"I nominate," he exclaimed, "as the standard-bearer of our party the man who in the thrilling days of '96 and 1900 bore the battle-scarred banner of Democracy with fame as untarnished as the crusaders of old—America's great commoner, Nebraska's gifted son, William J. Bryan."

Immediately perfect pandemonium of sound and motion was unloosened as delegates and spectators arose en masse and joined in the reverberating chorus of tribute to the Nebraska candidate. The standards of the states were wrenched from their places and borne through the hall to the platform, while banners bearing the portrait of the commoner were waved aloft and the multitude joined in long-continued tribute. At times the intensity of the demonstration threatened a panic. One woman was borne out fainting.

Hammond Names Johnson.

The opportunity of the Johnson supporters came when the roll call reached Connecticut and that state gave way to Minnesota.

Winfield S. Hammond of the latter state took the stand amid a considerable volume of applause to place in nomination Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota.

Mr. Hammond, although he was speaking to a mass of delegates who had conclusively shown their preference for another candidate, made a most favorable impression on the convention for himself and his candidate. The speaker, who is a powerful, portly man, with no surplus of hair, easily sent his voice to the farthest corners of the hall, and his speech was heard with marked attention.

Demonstration for Johnson.

By the time that Gov. Johnson had been placed in nomination the gallery crowds had materially dwindled. The aisles no longer were filled, and there were many empty chairs.

That all the cheer was not yet killed in the convention was made manifest when Mr. Hammond concluded. The loyal sons of the North Star state responded with a cheer, and a number of delegates in Massachusetts and Oklahoma joined in, and soon the convention was in another uproar of enthusiasm. Some of the Georgia delegates mounted their chairs after a few minutes and added their voices to those of the Minnesota men.

Chairman Shows Partiality.

Chairman Clayton was somewhat less tolerant in dealing with the Johnson shouters than he had been with the Bryan followers, and commenced to rap for order while Minnesota was still on its chairs and ended the tide of enthusiasm. The band also failed to respond to Johnson's name and sat silent in their places, much to the wrath of the Minnesota delegation, who sent to Chairman Clayton a complaint of partiality in favor of the Nebraska candidate. The chairman promptly signaled the band, which played two airs.

Uproar Lasts Twenty-five Minutes.

Chairman Clayton, who began to call for order after the first ten minutes of cheering, and who had failed to secure it after the Johnson boomers had maintained their demonstration for more than twenty minutes, sent assistant sergeant-at-arms to quiet some of the spectators in the galleries.

Order was finally restored after twenty-five minutes.

The house electricians, who had dimmed the lights to help stop the Bryan demonstration, again tried the device on the Johnson outburst amid some hissing and applause.

L. I. Handy of Delaware placed Judge Gray in nomination and was greeted with a whirlwind of applause.

Platform Is Presented.

"Gentlemen of the convention," said the chairman, "I now have the pleasure of presenting to you the chairman of the committee on resolutions, Gov. Haskell of Oklahoma."

The governor called forth loud cheers from the convention when he announced that there was no division among the members of the committee and that he represented them all in presenting the report.

Scattering applause greeted the various planks as they were read by Gov. Haskell.

That portion of the plank on finance referring to the guarantee of bank deposits, one of Mr. Bryan's favorite policies, elicited the warmest applause given up to that time.

Cheer Injunction Plank.

The reading of the injunction plank was heard with the deepest attention and the declaration in favor of "a revision of the injunction law" was first applauded, other sections were warmly approved, and when the plank was finished the convention broke into cheers.

The declaration in favor of the election of senators by direct vote was heartily applauded, as was the plank on waterways and that in favor of the independence of the Philippines.

The reading of the platform was concluded at 12:55, Gov. Haskell having read for a few minutes less than one hour.

The platform was unanimously adopted.

Two Sessions Held.

Two sessions of the Democratic national convention, the first at 11 o'clock yesterday and the second beginning at 7 o'clock last night, have advanced the work well nigh to completion and have brought the decisive hours for the consideration of the party's candidates and declaration of principles. The opening session yesterday lasted three hours and brought about the completion of the permanent organization of the convention, with the resounding address of Congressman Clayton of Alabama, permanent chairman of the convention. When the session opened last night every formality of organization had been accomplished, and the decks were clear for the supreme work of adopting the platform and naming the candidates.

Frequent Demonstrations.

The scenes within the convention amphitheater yesterday repeated those of previous days in the magnitude of the gathering and the eager enthusiasm of the throngs. There were frequent demonstrations as the names of party idols of Jeffersonian principles were pronounced, but there was no repetition during the early session of the tumultuous record-breaking demonstration of Wednesday. The address of the permanent chairman, Mr. Clayton, proved to be a of the failure of Roosevelt policies and an enunciation of Democratic doctrine. The ringing voice of the orator and the emphasis of his gestures stirred the listening thousands to frequent demonstrations of enthusiastic approval. At 2:30 o'clock the platform committee was not yet prepared to report, and the convention took a recess until evening, so that all remaining differences of detail on the platform could be reconciled and the document be ready for adoption and the presidential nomination be reached before the adjournment of the night session.

PATTEWAY UP FOR ROBBERY

CLOTHES FOUND IN NEGROE'S ROOMS TAKEN FROM GUARANTEE CLOTHING

THIEVERY OF WATCHES AND CLOTHING MAY NOW BE CLEARED UP

From Thursday's Daily— ...

Aulis Patteway, negro, janitor of the Merchants National bank for a long time was arraigned before Judge Wilde this afternoon on the charge of stealing clothing and watches from the Guarantee clothing store April 22 last the same night of the robbery of the Smith pool room which was laid at the hands of Schuler and Johnson the seventeen year olds.

The police found in the rooms occupied by the negro the clothes now offered in evidence and he is charged also with the robbery of the watches.

The robbery created a great deal of mystery then, being confused for a time with the robbery of the Smith pool room by Robert Johnson and Schnapps Schuler.

The police believe that by the apprehension of Patteway they have unearthed the sourse of the mysterious petty robberies that have been occurring in the city for the past six months. Patteway worked for $7 a week and flashed about among the colored population in the attitude of a sport.

Since his janitorship in the Merchants National Bank $500 has disappeared in the past four months. The shortage was discovered upon the appearance of the bank examiner here three weeks ago which discovery as well as the actions of Patteway gave the first clew to his possible implication. The suit against Patteway on the bank charge will not be taken up for a time evidently from absence of mention of it in the prosecution today It is probable that effort will be made to get him to raise the money.

Patteway was about the bank in the early morning and when the bank opened at which time he could have got in his work.

SENSATION AT FERTILE

A WARRANT SWORN OUT FOR THE ARREST OF OTIS LEE

HIGHLY RESPECTED YOUNG LADY IS THE COMPLAINING WITNESS

From Thursday's Daily— ..

A warrant has been sworn out for the arrest of Otis Lee who is charged with attempted assault, the complaining witness being a well known and highly respected young lady of Fertile, and the residents of that city are greatly incensed.

The affair took place the night of July 4th. A friend of the plaintiff resided just on the outskirts of Fertile, and Lee and the young lady escorted her nearly home. On the return to the village the attempted assault took place.

Lee tried to gag her with a handkerchief and nearly tore her dress off in the struggle, she managed to shriek and a lady residing nearly a block away hurried to the rescue. Lee disappeared in the darkness and is supposed to have hurried to the home of his brother between Fertile and Beltrami and from there left the country as the sheriff's force have not succeeded in locating him as yet.

Lee is well known here, having been employed in the Grill restaurant and has also been chef in the hotel at Fertile. He will be vigorously prosecuted if he is apprehended. While here he had a good reputation.

DITCH MEN NEED RAIN

600,000 YARDS OF CONTRACTS THREATENED WITH LAY OVER

DRY DIGGERS PROVING THEIR VIRTUES FOR FIRST TIME IN NORTH

From Thursday's Daily— ...

The ditchers in the north are in need of immediate rain with which to prosecute their work. The big floating dredges ten in number which are at work on different projects thruout the north may be put out of commission, if within the next ten days a heavy downpour of rain does not swell the volume of the rivers and channels in which they are working. If the machines do not work the projects wil not be completed this year and over 600,000 yards of contracts will be up before the state drainage board and the county boards of the different counties for a renewal of time.

However during the dry spell of the last few weeks the "dry diggers" have been reaping the harvest of dirt. The Arpin dredges near Bronson and the dredges at work about Crookston which move with legs or on rollers are taking out more of the soil than ever before and the team diggers thru out the north watch anxiously every morning's sky for the appearance of threatening clouds and unfortunate rains.

Euclid Ditch Well Along

The big Euclid ditch north of this city and containing about 100,000 yds. of excavation will be completed by the middle of August if the present fine dry weather keeps up. Jas. Sullivan, contractor, arrived in the city this morning to obtain additional teams to place on the work that an early completion before rainfalls be assured. [illegible] teams of horses have been at work on this project since the middle of May and have excavated 53.000 yards.

Teams Succeed

This ditch proved a misfortune to one drainage company which tried to put a floating dredge on the work where now there nothing but the very least show of excess water. However if rains hold off the big dredges and big projects will be the main sufferers and the country will obtain some set back in the big drainage channels which the sooner done the better for the north.

Some Rust Talk

Farmers also say that a fall of rain is needed in many localities and an absence of water may have some effect on the crop. Rust talk is heard for the first time, but it is not considered that any special damage will result about this part of the northwest where the crop has been well diversified.

Tossed by Train at Grade Crossing.

Watertown, S. D., July 11. — Mrs. Arthur Merrill was seriously hurt last evening at the grade crossing of the North-Western. A passing engine caught her and tossed her six feet in the air, dropping her outside the rails.

REBUILDING FORT RIDGLEY

WORK ON MONSTER PRODUCTION PROGRESSING AT STATE FAIR GROUNDS

THIS WILL BE THE GRAND SPECTACULAR FEATURE OF THE 1908 FAIR

For the past thirty days a large force of scenic artists and stage mechanics have been busily engaged in the agricultural building on the State Fair Grounds in building a reproduction of Fort Ridgely as it stood in 1862 an attack on which is to be the big spectacular feature of this year's fair. Great difficulty is experienced by the fair managers in securing photographs of the fort as it stood in that time and a great deal of credit is due Mr. O. G. Hall, of Friday Harbor, State of Washington, who is preparing a book on the attack on Fort Ridgley for the plans and specifications from which the old fort is to be built.

Every effort is to be used in reproducing it just as it stood at the time, and while it is possible that twentieth century imagination will have to be drawn upon for some of the main details the production in the main will be absolutely correct, in fact, as correct as the art of scenic artist and the stage mechanic can make it.

Over 30,000 square yards of canvas will be used and it will take a force of thirty men until the opening day of the fair to complete the work. Heretofore, the small spectacular features that have been produced in front of the grandstand have occupied a space north of the artificial lake between the fence of the half mile track but this year the entire infield of the half mile track will be utilized for the producing of this mammoth spectacle Over 1,000 people will take part in the production, 300 of which are to be Sioux Indians. As usual, the evening performance this year will terminate with a superb pyrotechnical display.

The Minnesota State Fair has grown to such a size that a miniature fire works factory has been established on the grounds, and many of the large pieces are to be manufactured there this year.

SUICIDE IN CITY JAIL

UNKNOWN CUTS THROAT WITH POCKET KNIFE AND DIES

From Friday's Daily—

"I guess there't a dead man in here" mildly volunteered Sever Cliffgard, the city charge who is now in jail, to Officer LaLonde of the city police this morning when that officer opened the jail doors to inspect the condition of things within.

Upon an investigation by Officer LaLonde and Street Commissioner Duval who was there at the time a body was discovered on one of the bunks the head thrown back, the jaws open and the throat one clot of blood. At the side of the victim lay a bloody pocket knife the instrument he used to do the deed.

The transient's name was Herman Nelson of Hallock and he applied to Captain Vonderbeck of the night police last evening at about 9:30 for lodging for the night which was given him. He complained that he was slightly ill and asked the Captain to telephone his brother in Hallock for help and money that he might get home.

Telephone was made, but the brother who answered stated that he could not extend any aid and would not go good for his brother's hospital bill, if he were sent to such a place.

The body was taken to Coroner Chesterman's undertaking parlors and communication was made with Albert Nelson of Hallock, the brother of the deceased who will arrive tonight and receive the body.

MONEY SAVED ON THRESHING OUTFITS

BIG MANUFACTURER ADOPTS A NEW WAY OF SELLING HIS OUTPUT

Heretofore threshing machinery has been sold in a very round-about and expensive way. The factory has had jobbers the jobbers salesmen and dealers, the dealers other salesmen, and then when a man was found who wanted to buy, the factory sent another and a very high priced man to help the local salesman close it up.

The first thresher manufacturer to cut out all this expense and go directly before the buying public is the Cascaden Mfg. Co., of Waterloo, Iowa, who have a big branch house at Grand Forks, where they carry a full stock of the famous Winneshiek Engines and Separators. In this way they not only save freight but are able to make much prompter delivery.

They have adopted the unique plan of advertising direct in the home paper, believing that in this way a great many more will see their announcements and write them.

Elsewhere in this issue their first advertisement appears. Any reader of this paper who is planning to buy a threshing out fit should not fail to refer to the ad. and write them. Address Cascaden Mfg., Co., Grand Forks No. Dak., and learn how you can save a large part of the purchase price.

Oscar Nelson, brother of Herman Nelson, the suicide in the city jail yesterday morning, appeared in the city last night to take charge of his brother's remains and accompany them to Hallock where they will be buried with due honor.

Oscar Nelson gave his brother Herman $75 a week ago with which Herman said he wished to go into the southern part of the state and secure a job. Herman spent the money and wound up by asking the city police for a night's lodging. He did not have a cent on his person when he went to the city hall.

INHERITS MONEY: GETS MARRIED

HOGEN TOLLEFSON GETS $832 FROM FATHER'S ESTATE JUST PROBATED

AND MARRIES MISS GJERTINE MARIE DALE OF FERTILE

From Saturday's Daily—

Hogen Tollefson inherited $832.32 from his father's estate as stated in yesterday's issue of the Journal and straightway appeared before the Clerk of courts office in the county building late yesterday afternoon and secured a marriage license for his wedding to Miss Gjertine Marie Dale a charming young lady of Fertile.

Hogen had long wooed the hand of the south county maid, but the where with did not suggest itself so forcibly to him as when the probate court handed to him yesterday a check signed for $832.32 his share of his father's estate.

His father Tollefson Dahl died in the town of Garden near Fertile on December 4, 1907, without a will. Accordingly the estate was disposed of and divided as prescribed by the state statutes and Hogen received his portion of the $5000 estate and then followed his sudden quest of the woman he loved.

CASE INVOLVES VALUABLE LAND

The time of the district court at Crookston yesterday with Judge Watts presiding, was taken up with a case involving ten acres of land in the vicinity of East Grand Forks. Mary Elizabeth Sprague is suing her nephew, Gilbert Sprague, for the return of the land in question. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant promised to support her and her mother as consideration of the turning over of the land to him, but that he had failed to fulfill this obligation.

The land is situated on Minnesota Point close in, and is considered quite valuable. The case was not finished when the court adjourned last evening. Skulason & Burtness of Grand Forks are appearing for the plaintiff and Skulason & Husband for the defendant.

FINE FRUIT CROP CAN'T BE SHIPPED

A letter has been received here from Mr. E. D. Childs at North Yakima, Washington, stating that all his peach trees and grape vines are laden with fruit and he will have to pick off some of the peaches in order that his trees may not be overburdened. The railroads however have refused to take perishable freight which means fruits, on acount of delay met with by the floods thruout the west and distance to market. The firm is incorporated as the E. D. Childs Sons Co., of Toppenish, Washington at which latter place Mr. Childs has larger fruit ranches. Toppenish is about 12 miles out of North Yakima.

STOUGHTON UP FOR SANITY

EDITOR OF EAST GRAND FORKS VALLEY VIEW UP TODAY

HAS BEEN ACTING QUEERLY FOR SOME TIME PAST

From Saturday's Daily—

W. R. Stoughton, editor of the Valley View a weekly paper published at East Grand Forks, is scheduled for an appearance before Judge Morken of the Polk county probate court this afternoon at three o'clock to be examined as to his sanity. The complaint for examination is signed by Peter Stoughton, a cousin of the examined.

The complaint states that Stoughton has engaged in "childish, nonsensical talk making frequent calls on neighbors during the late hours of the night, disrobing at unusual times and places, imagining unreasonable, unreal and unusual things to be true and permitting his action and conduct to be influenced by such imaginations."

Dr. G. P. Kirk of East Grand Forks made the preliminary examination.

Stoughton was born in Canada 35 years ago and has been one of the prominent figures in the republican conventions in which Polk county has figured for the past 15 years. His appearance at St. Paul on many occasions has been point enough for the cartoonists pen.

He is of immense build weighing over 350 pounds. The sudden warrant for his appearance before the insanity commission is no surprise as his actions for the past three or four months have been the object of much anxiety among his many friends.

HOMESTEADERS GET SOMETHING

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICES SHOW CLAIMHOLDERS REASONABLE ATTENTION

ACT OF CONGRESS UPHOLDS DECISIONS OF CROOKSTON LAND OFFICE

From Saturday's Daily—

The United States Land Office at Crookston has received a decision from the general land office at Washington that will place about 200,000 acres of land thruout the north country in this district alone under private cultivation and ownership.

A decision was made in the Fred Liggett case of January 12, 1907 by the general land office at Washington holding that the applicant for final proof must show fourteen months actual continuous residence on the land immediately preceding the date of proof. A number of commutation proofs in this district were rejected by the general land office after having been approved by the U. S. land office here based on the contents of that decision.

The new order based on the general act of Congress of May 29, 1908 directs the approval of all such proofs where the local office had issued a final certificate prior to the passage of the act of congress and where proof showed eight months residence within the year prior to making the proof.

This however only applies to proofs made prior to May 29, 1908 when the act was passed and only on proofs approved then by the local land offices. The effect of this new condition will be a loosening of the hard bonds that have heretofore hindered the actions of the northern homesteader.

MAN STRICKEN BY HEAT AT FARGO

AGED COLORED BANK PORTER TOPPLES OVER — LATER RECOVERS

With the thermometer registering over 95 degrees and with the large instruments on broadway six degrees above that, Fargo experienced the hottest day of the season yesterday when the pavement sizzled under the blazing sun. Intense heat was suffered more by the Fargoites than for several years, one person being stricken on the sidewalk while bricklayers were forced to abandon their work during the afternoon.

LeRoy Fort, the aged colored janitor of the Fargo National Bank block toppled over at the entrance of the bank.

He recovered.

SLANDERING MINNESOTA

HUGH R. ROBERTSON MAKES A MOST TIMELY SUGGESTION

THINKS SLANDEROUS STATEMENTS SHOULD BE CORRECTED

From Saturday's Daily—

The following suggestion to the Twenty Five Thousand Club contained ina letter received today by Secretary Moore and written by Hugh R. Robertson is a most timely one, and action should be taken at once to rectify the slanderous statements that have been printed by the magazine referred to. Mr. Robertson's letter which is given below in full explains the matter fully:

Crookston, Minn., July 10th, 1908.

Mr. J. H. Moore,
Secretary Commercial Club,
Crookston, Minn.

Dear Sir: As a resident of the Red River Valley for over a quarter of a century, it seems to me that I quite frequently run across articles throwing slurs, no doubt inadvertently, which cast reflections on the vistas which the settlers of that section of the country have in view of the grand possibilities which are in store for them.

The most recent article of this nature which has come to my attention is one in the June number of World Magazine, entitled, "Billions in Swamps" by C. F. Carter. Who he is I have no idea, but the article is supposed to be based on reports from the Geological Department of the Government, and at the end a map is given of the United States, showing the swamp territories which are supposed from the Topographical reports of the Geological Survey to cover an area of 78,473,700 acres, which may be increased from reports of some engineers unofficially to exceed 100,000,000. In this map, almost the whole of MBinnesota is classed as overflowed lands, while the Red River Valley and the territory east along the boundary line, is placed in the same territory as th Dismal swamp of Virginia, the impassable swamps of Arkansas and Louisiana, and t he Everglades of Florida. The writer graphically depicts the difficulties which t he engineers of the Geological Survey had to encounter while making their surveys on the old Red Lake reservation, and says that, "Altho they were provided with tripods having legs seven feet long, their instruments sank so deep among the muskegs that they literally had to grovel in the mud where they pawed away water snakes and pollywogs with one hand, and fought mosquitoes with the other while taking sights." He states that from the surveys thus made of the swamps tributary to Mud River near Thief River Falls, embracing an area of 402,500 acres they could be drained for $1,079,820 and that our worthy representative Steenerson had introduced a bill appropriating $1,100,000 to drain this Mud Lake section, which if carried out, would make the Chippewas one of the wealthiest tribes of their race. However, the Indians and scattered settlers "marooned" among the Minnesota muskegs, have been almost forgotten in the sequel.

While I cannot contravert the fact of there being swamps all around the Red Lake district, I don't believe it is a fair proposition to place the Red River Valley proper in the same catagory. Such articles as these appearing in a reputable magazine must necessarily have a deterent effect when read by parties who may have some thought of settling in the well known and far famed Red River Valley of the Northwest. I don't profess to know how to counteract this effect, but thought I would bring the matter to your attention, and believe if the Commercial clubs of the state could act together and publish some articles which would depict the true situation of the Red River Valley and Minnesota it would be about the only way that the matter could be put before the people of the country.

With kindest regards and every best wish for Crookston and the Red River Valley, I am,

Yours very truly,
—H. R. Robertson.

DEATH STOPS BANQUET.

Supreme Judge Bishop of Iowa Drops Dead.

Waterloo, Iowa, July 11.—Charles A. Bishop, judge of the supreme court of Iowa at Des Moines, dropped dead in Waterloo at 6:30 last night.

He was joking with United States Attorney Fred Faville and Judge Bollinger of Davenport, while awaiting a banquet at the Ellis hotel. A clot on the brain caused him to stop amidst laughter and closed his eyes in death. His tragic end was witnessed by half a hundred members of the state bar association, which opened its annual session yesterday. The banquet, which was ready for the members, was left untasted.

LESSONS IN AGRICULTURE AT SUMMER SCHOOL

AGRICULTURE IN THE SCHOOLS, WAS THE SPECIAL MESSAGE GIVEN BY L. P. HARRINGTON OF CROOKSTON TO THE TEACHERS TRAINING SCHOOL AT BEMIDJI—TEACHERS SHOW ESPECIAL INTEREST IN THE SUBJECT

Prof. L. P. Harrington, principal of the Crookston School of Agriculture who has been giving lessons and lectures on agriculture before the teachers' training school at Bemidji is the author of the following article on agriculture, and its relation to the public schools:

"The elements of agriculture can and should be taught in the rural schools. We must not wait until the schools are ready with thoroly equipped teachers who can take up this work, but we must begin with what we can do.

"Start the agricultural lessons with simple things that can be done by any intelligent teacher. Boys and girls can be interested in this line of work thru testing the seeds and grain at school; learning to make test boxes and perform other simple and interesting experiments of a like nature. The children will become interested in this work and can be readily induced to bring samples of the best corn, grains and vegetables raised on the farm.

"I believe in grain growing contests and the cash prizes offered by the state of Minnesota to the boys and girls under 18 years of age, for the best exhibits of certain lines of farm products. Further particulars may be found in a bulletin which is distributed free to teachers and pupils

'I would also have the teachers teach the children the value of the different grains as compared with the usage of the soil. Show them that rotation of crops is advisable and, if you are fortunate enough to have the school grounds of sufficient size, I would have them plant a part of it as an experiment school in the district.

"It would be well to have the boys and girls learn about the more common and the most dangerous weeds that are found on the Minnesota farms.

"Collect samples of them and teach the children whether or not they are annuals, biennials or perennials. All teachers should know them. The perennials are the most dangerous. Quack grass and Canada thistles are examples of the dangerous perennials. Wild oats and wild mustard are examples of the annuals.

"I would interest the pupils in the extermination of weeds along the roads and highways by getting them to plant clover and timothy to take their place along the roadside.

"This, I consider, can be taught every child in the school and in nine cases out of ten the parents will be more than willing to work in harmony with the children and see that this is done so far as the roads are concerned that border their lands. This will go a long ways towards the extermination of the weed pests.

"Another matter which I wish to call your attention to is the improvement of the school house and the school grounds.

"Arbor Day should mean much to the teacher and children. The play ground is essential, but it should not be so essential as to interfere with the planting of trees, shrubbery and flowers. I also want to call your attention to the school room and say that it should at all times be kept clean and attractive. In so doing the teacher should interest the children in every move that is made along that line.

"In fixing up the school yard see that the boys and girls have a definite aim in planting trees and shrubbery around the school house, see that the school yards are kept neat and tidy.

"You should interest the pupils in getting up good exhibits of fruits, plants and vegetables for state or county fairs; also have them, if practical, raise their own vegetables for this exhibit.

"I believe that the teacher's motive at all times should be to train the boys and girls toward the farm and the workshop, not away from them. Teach them to respect labor and common agricultural employments, as it is the best and most independent life for them to lead.

"Teachers of the rural schools should encourage the work done and keep the boys in school, not permitting them to drop out between the ages of 13 and 14 years, because they are not interested in the work being done. Naturally boys of that age must have something to do, an object to attain or they will lose interest in the work.

'In the graded, semigraded and high school a manual training course for boys and a sewing course for girls may be successfully introduced. This is a step in the right direction and will interest the boys and girls. It gives some importance to the training of the hand. We have time to do this kind of work even in the rural schools.

'I have talked with many teachers who have introduced this kind of work is done in all lines of school work than in the schools which have not introduced these courses. It makes our education more practical.

"When girls leave school they should know how to perform the common duties connected with the home. The girls may know how to play the piano, be able to paint and perform other fine arts, but if she does not know how to cook or sew, in after years she will greatly miss this part of her education.

"I firmly believe that the teacher must, in the near future, be able to take up this class of work in order to secure the up-to-date rural schools.

"Teachers who can readily take up this work are being sought for at this time and the supply is not equal to the demand.

"Teachers, in working along this line make no mistake as the next move in school work will be agriculture and manual training work. To do this work successfully teachers must believe in their work, be interested in new experiments; learn as much as possible from practical experiments on the farm. Simple experiments on the farm would lead up to the regular study of agriculture and make this work a pleasure for the child after he leaves the country school.

"I believe that no class of people has a better chance of moulding the education of the child in the right direction than has the teacher of the country school.

"The farm furnishes an endless supply of material for interesting work. Lucky is the boy or girl who has the farm to draw from for his material in the study of agriculture.

In this line of study the teacher, pupil farmer or citizen who wish to perfect the study of agriculture may have any agriculture bulletin from the department of agriculture, or any of the experimental stations, free upon written application therefor.

"Teachers may get the government year book of agriculture each year for their school library. Apply to the congressman of your district or to the secretary of agriculture for this splendid book. They will be glad to have it sent to you for your school library.

"Teachers who desire to study any particular branch of the agricultural work may secure special helps by writing the experimental schools or the secretary of agriculture.

"School officers, teachers, school patrons and children should work together for the improvement of the rural schools along agriculture lines. The schools of Minnesota are among the foremost in education in the United States and this one move of "agriculture in the school" will have much to do toward their further advancement.

TERRIBLY INJURED

JONAS CARLSON THE VICTIM OF A SERIOUS ACCIDENT

BACK WRENCHED AND INTERNAL INJURIES MAY PROVE FATAL

From Monday's Daily—

Jonas Carlson a farm laborer who is well known thruout this section, having worked on farms thru out the valley for the past 18 years was brought to the city last evening from Big Woods, western Marshall county probably fatally injured as the result of a most peculiar accident, and is hovering between life and death at St. Vincent's hospital.

He was working for a widow near Bigwoods, and last Friday afternoon hauled a big load of grain in sacks to the Big Woods elevator. The driveway of the elevator is covered, and the load of grain sacks was piled so high that Carlson was caught between the roof and the load, sustaining dangerous injuries to his back and internal injuries in the region of his groin which it is feared will be fatal. His flesh was bruised terribly and the injured man suffered excruciating pain. It was over 36 hours after the injury before he was given proper treatment.

TURNED OVER TO STATE

LABORERS WITHDRAWN FROM STEPHENS HALL BY CONTRACT OR THIS MORNING

$35,000 BUILDING ADDED TO EQUIPMENT OF SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

From Monday's Daily—

Contractor H. L. Larson this morning withdrew his laborers from the "Stephens Hall" for the school of Agriculture at the state farm and turned the new building complete over to the state. The formal transfer took place this morning when Foreman Hartford from the office of the State Architect C. H. Johnson at St. Paul completed his examination of the completed building and complimented the contractor highly on the perfection obtained.

With the exception of the interior equipent the building is now ready for the new pupils of the north country the coming fall. The building contains 125 rooms, all except the toilets having two closets apiece. The building is the largest located on the state farm's premises and will provide quarters for 250 pupils of the state School of Agriculture without inconvenience.

TESTED AND PROVEN

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend upon a Well-earned Reputation

For months Crookston readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills and read about the good work they have done in this locality. Not another remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit.

A. A. Olds, painter of 239 Ash street Crookston, Minn., says: "The statement I made in 1898 recommending Doan's Kidney Pills was true in every particular and I am pleased to confirm it not. As I stated at that times I had doctored and used medicines without number for kidney trouble, but found little benefit. I was suffering continually from backache and other symptoms of disordered kidneys, but Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Wallace's Pharmacy relieved me where everything else failed. They practically eradicated my trouble, and in spite of the fact that my occupation causes more or less strain in the back I have had very little kidney trouble since."

ST. PAUL LEADS THE BIG CITIES

Henry Clews, in his regular weekly trade letter of April 13th says:

"The severity of the late crisis is now plainly seen in the reports of bank clearings for the first three months of the current year. All cities of the United States show a decrease of 28 per cent. In New York City the decrease was 35 per cent; in the Middle States, 34 per cent; in the New England states, 24 per cent; in the Middle Western states 8 per cent; and in the South only 10 per cent.

These figures show that the point of greatest depression was New York; they also show what is extremely satisfactory that the other parts of the country have felt the crisis less severely.

St. Paul leads the United States in large cities since the October panic, showing increases nearly every week, and an increase for the whole time as a whole.

BEST DITCH IN COUNTY

MR. SULLIVAN'S CONTRACT WEST OF EUCLID CREATES ATTENTION

HAVE 35 TEAMS AT WORK ON PROJECT—FINISH BY THE 15TH OF AUGUST

From Wednesday's Daily—

Reports coming from unprejudiced sources from the country west of Euclid indicate that M. Sullivan of Crookston, contractor in charge of that ditch is building one of the best drainage constructions ever built in the county and possibly the best in its class in the northern part of the state.

Mr. Sullivan came down last night with Engineer Hinds after blue prints and supplies for continuing the work. 35 teaams are at present employed on the ditch and Mr. Sullivan was consulting with the team owners of the city with the intention of getting 10 or 12 more on the work at $4.50 per day. Mr. Sullivan is convinced that the work will be completed by the middle of August, if the weather does not suddenly become un favorable.

K. K. Austin of Crookston, former bonder and now contractor on Judicial ditch No. 2 southeast of here is complaining of the lack of water and is considering seriously the possibility of the dry weather continuing for any length of time. RAIN PROMISED WHEAT SAVED

TRADE EASY WITH INDICATIONS OF MUCH NEEDED MOISTURE

DAMAGE THRUOUT DAKOTAS NOT NOTICEABLE—POSSIBLY 6 PER CENT

From Wednesday's Daily—

With the forecast indicating rain in the drought area of middle and western N. Dakota within the next 24 hours, the Northwest today felt less uneasiness over the crop prospects. Reports show some irreparable damage in sections of North Dakota, but further injury will be checked by moisture.

The Minneapolis Market Record has received from its 2,000 correspondents in Minnesota and the Dakotas, replies as to the crop conditions in the three states. These reports were received on Friday, the 10th instant, which happened to be the day on which much suffering was reported as occurring in North Dakota. It was deemed prudent to withhold publication of them until the damage done by heat on that day could be located, and an intelligent estimate be formed as to the extent of damage by it. The report at that time showed very little decline in the condition of small grain following the date of the government report. It is found that small grain suffered little by the hot weather of Friday and Sat urday in Minnesota and South Dakota. On the contrary the hot weather of those days helped corn considerably.

The injury inflicted in North Dakota can now be only estimated with little certainty of exactness but taking the reports that have been received since the hot days, it would seem that an average damage for the state might be 6 or 7 per cent for wheat and other crops excepting corn of which there is little yet raised.

Conditions are Good

"Weather and crop conditions," according to the Van Dusen-Harrington Company's report, "have been excellent in Minnesota and the Dakotas except that last Friday was an excessively hot day in North Dakota and did some damage in the James river valley and west. Many reports are to the effect that the damage is serious, but careful observers and those whom we have learned to rely on, insist that so far only crops on light sandy soil are injured. The most serious damage is in the vicinity of Devils Lake and of Jamestown. Rain is very much needed thruout the state of North Dakota. Most of the barley is headed out. Wheat is now heading. The flax looks fine.

CONVICTED OF PIGGIN

LICENSE COMES HIGH FOR SIGHTLESS SWINE IN TOWN OF WINGER

JOHN ARNT MIKKELSON WAS FOUND GUILTY—FINE AND COST OF $100

Before Judge McLean this morning John A. Mikkelson was Convicted of the charge of running a blind pig in the town of Winger and was fined $50 and costs which amounted to over $100 altogether and was promptly paid.

The warrant was sworn out by Thomas Wold and the town board of Winger, and Town Clerk Olson also took a hand, the latter being present at the hearing. Deputy Sheriff Daniels made the arrest last evening, and also secured a few bottles of beer, which the defendant wanted to drink up on the way to Fertile last evening

This is the first case of blind pigging in Polk county since the Tabor cases were tried about a year ago, and the authorities do not propose to allow it in Polk county.

There has been complaint for some time by the residents of Winger and the pigger was finally landed.

WAS NEAR DEATH WHEN RESCUED

GLEN PORTER OVERCOME BY GAS IN BATH ROOM

Glen Porter, aged 15 years, son of W. R. Porter agent of the Great Northern Express company at Grand Forks was unconscious from gas asphyxiation when he was discovered Sunday in the bath room at the A. J. Roddy residence in that city. There was a leak in the gas heater and while he was preparing for his bath the room became filled with the deadly fumes. When he finished his bath and stepped from the tub he was overcome and fell to the floor. An eight-year-old brother who tried to get into the bathroom finally told Mrs. Roddy and she called her husband and son, O. Roddy, when she heard Porter groaning. Porter was found on the floor. A physician was called and he was revived. The physician stated that if he had been left in the bathroom for five minutes longer he would have died.

A SENSATIONAL CASE AT FARGO

EVIDENCE STRONG THAT CRIMINAL OPERATION WAS PERFORMED ON GIRL

A sharp turn was taken in the investigation of the death of Amanda Lund at Fargo yesterday when it was announced by the sheriff that Nurses Nordgaard and Anderson who attended the girl while in the hospital had left the city. No endeavor is being made to implicate them, but their testimony is necessary. It is possible that two men may be held responsible for the alleged criminal operation which has caused a sensation in this city, especially in professional circles. On account of the absence of the nurses who, it was announced at the hospital had gone to Montana nothing was accomplished today and an indefinite adjournment was taken. The officials conducting the investigation announced today that the case was growing stronger as progress was made.

GOOD EXAMPLE OF GRADED ROAD

MESSRS. HATFIELD AND INGERSOLL DO A FINE JOB IN LOWELL

The mile and a half piece of road running west of the mill houses in Lowell township has just been completed and is pronounced by all who have seen it as the finest example of up-to-date road building in this part of the state. The work was done by a New Era grader under the supervision of Mr. Hatfield who is the road overseer of that district.

It would be well for any township that is figuring on roadwork to inspect this piece of grade.

HATFIELD IS VERY MODEST

TES JOURNAL GIVING FULL CREDIT TO HIS NEIGHBORS

SAYS GOOD AND WILLING HELPERS NEEDED FOR GOOD ROADS

From Wednesday's Daily—

In the issue of the Journal of Monday, attention was called to the splendid road leading into Crookston from the west on the south side of the river, and C. A. Hatfield was given the lion's share of the credit for the very fine job, as he superintended the work Mr. Hatfield is very modest and wants due credit given his neighbors. He sent the Journal the following communication:

Editor of Crookston Journal: A lady reader informed me of an article in a recent issue of your paper, highly praising the new graded road leading into the city from the west on the south side of the river. The writer is unknown to me and not by a long way is all the credit all mine. The secret of good road building is plenty of good and willing helpers.

It is well known that the above mentioned road across the township is by far the finest road of any leading into the city of Crookston. It is with regret I say that some of the owners of land in the road districts that live in Crookston seem to think that good roads are built and mantained by wind, for they are unwilling to pay their tax or hire the road tax worked for the simple reason they may have the use of the amount of their road tax till the law compels them to pay it to the county treasurer and then of course it goes broadcast over the township at large.

Returning to the mentioned grade it must be remembered that the conditions of the soil could not be better than at the present time. One of the men at work on the road said a citizen of your city asked him if we knew that we were in the sense of the law laying ourselves liable for doing as we did without orders from the official for that purpose.

Well, so might be the case. Let be as it may. Please tell the readers of your paper where they can find a new grade that will compare with it that was superintended by a high priced official. More often they may be found sitting in an easy chair telling how it should be done, than out ready to help do the work. If the soil and condition were as favorable for good road working in the commuity there would be better roads leading into Crookston and other small towns. Without conditions and disposition of help, good roads cannot be had.

THE GREAT ANNUAL AUCTION SALE

SUPT. BAIRD WILL SELL STATE FAIR PRIVILEGES ON THE GROUNDS AUGUST 1

One of the most interesting events preliminary to the actual opening of the State Fair, is the annual sale of privileges, conducted under the personal supervision of L. D. Baird, superintendent of privileges. This auction sale will be held on Aug. 1 this year, and as is the custom, Mr. Baird will hold the sale for each lot upon the actual location, beginning at 10 a. m.

Last season the total income from privileges and unplatted spaces was over $20,000 and as there has been an unusual amount of inquiry relative to these same locations this year it is presumed that the competition will be keener during the auction sale of Aug. 1 than in any other year during the history of the fair.

TIDINGS FROM DEPARTED BIG MITT MANIPULATORS

CROOKSTONITES WHO SWALLOWED THE "MARCONI WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY STOCK" LINE AND ALL WILL BE INTERESTED IN KNOWING THAT ALLEGED GRAFTER HAS BEEN ARRESTED IN NEW YORK—OVER $5,000 WAS TAKEN IN CASH OUT OF CROOKSTON, WITHOUT EVEN A GILDED STOCK CERTIFICATE AS MEMENTO OF THEIR BEING DUPED

Just a year ago last month, several oily tongued gentlemen appeared in Crookston blew their horns in long and loud blasts, leased the opera house and made a grand spread about selling Marconi Wireless Telegraphy stock, which of course would be worth a fortune in a very short time, but which, by some special dispensation of Providence they were able to put on the bargain counter at a very small percentage of the real value. The stock was represented as far better than United States gold bearing bonds and the usual number of suckers swallowed the hook, bait and all and relieved themselves of amounts varying from $10 to over $300 each. The gentlemen, one of whom went by the name of E. N. Mayer, stated that they represented Munroe and Munroe of New York City and only had a limited amount of the stock to dispose of.

A $5,000 Haul

Bankers of Crookston state that the smooth gentlemen cashed checks and bought drafts while in Crookston to the amount of over $5,000, and every cent of this came from the hard earned hoards of residents of Crookston. They were to get shares of stock later, but the stock has never been delivered. Attorneys have been hired months ago to try and get the stock, the money back or find the standing of Munroe and Munroe, but have not got a cent of the money back, nor the photograph of a stock certificate if there ever existed any such thing.

The Bomb Exploded

On July 9th, the New York Sun published a column article telling of the arrest of Louis Robinson father of Horace and Manny Robinson who compose the firm of Robinson and Robinson who succeeded Munroe and Munroe, both of whom are fugitives from justice.

For the solace of those who were "bit" here a few extracts are given from the Sun which will make it very evident that those who parted with their coin, bade it a fond and eternal farewell. The Sun says in part:

"Thru the arrest yesterday of Louis Robinson a distinguished looking man with a white VanDyke beard, who calls himself the representative of the firm of Robinson & Robinson, bankers and brokers of 80 Wall street it came out that Munroe & Munroe the former Montreal haberdashers and New York wash sales experts, who disappeared from the office in the Lord's Court building last January after the sheriff had seized their furniture, are badly wanted on account of complaints from all parts of the country that they sold shares in the Marconi Wireless Company, Ltd., of London and failed to turn over the certificates for the shares.

"Inspector McCafferty asked Scotland Yard to find out whether Robinson & Robinson had any authority to represent the London company. A reply came that Henry W. Allen, secretary of the Marconi Company of London had said that the company had no connection with Robinson & Robinson.

"When Mr. Robinson was searched at Police Headquarters a letter of recent date from his son at the Hotel St. Francis, San Francisco, was found which read in part as follows:

'My Dear Boss: I received your various telegrams and letters. You know I am broke. I have had the damnedest time of my life in making ends meet. You say you are so ashamed and despondent to go into the bank. Why, the hell should you be ashamed? You calmly look on and see one brother bust and rob the other. When I don't remit it is because I cannot. I have been sick in bed and not been out of my room since the 25th. I must get up and out by Monday because we lecture Monday. This is the last town. Then I am coming home and work, money or no money.

You must remember, father, I have gone busted on brother's account and must pull thru by myself. Since I have been lying in bed I have figured several schemes. I have also seen what a fool I have been. Well, dad, don't let these things worry you at all. Do the best you can with what money I send. We will soon be top-notchers."

BAD PAIR SENTENCED

GRIP THIEF AND A VAG GIVEN SIXTY DAYS BY JUDGE WILDE

ONE STOLE SUIT CASE AND HIS PAL SENTENCED ON GENERAL PRINCIPLES

From Wednesday's Daily—

This afternoon Judge Wilde sentenced W. H. O'Neale and James Kelly to 60 days each in the county jail for robbery and vagrancy respectively, both pleading guilty to such charges.

This forenoon while Herman Schulenberg, representing the French Battery and Carbon Co., of Madison, Wisconsin and who resides at Middleton, Wis., was in the Roholt Hardware Store on North Main street, O'Neale grabbed his suit case which had been left on the sidewalk and made off with it. When Schulenberg came out bystanders pointed to a man who had been with the one who walked off with the suit case.

Schulenberg gave chase and caught up with him at the N. P. depot where O'Neale was standing with the grip. The two crooks headed for the city park on the run with Schulenberg after them. He made them drop the grip and ran back to the depot, phoned for the police who, with the assistance of the eagle eye of E. M. Lancaster soon located the crooks hiding in the brush and towed them to the city lockup. Kelly refused to plead guilty to robbery, but admitted the charge of vagrancy.

CROPS LOOK VERY FINE

SEVERAL AUTO OWNERS MAKE TRIPS OF INSPECTION YESTERDAY

FOUND GRAIN LOOKING VERY FINE AND FARMERS IN GOOD SPIRITS

From Monday's Daily—

Yesterday a well known grain man left in an auto and spent the entire day looking over the crop situation covering over 100 miles to the east of this city, another party drove northwest and still another southwest for the same purpose. The fields were closely inspected and the farmers interviewed and as far as the territory immediately tributary to Crookston is concerned including all of Polk county, a portion of Red Lake county on the east, southern Marshall county on the north, west to the Red River and including a portion of Norman county the crop conditions have not been as good for many years.

In addition to a very good stand, the fields are very free from weeds. and the heads are long and well filled both wheat and barley. Some of the wheat is a trifle short, but this is not general and none seen was too short to be easily handled by a binder.

A few oat fields were passed which are not up to average, but as a rule the oat crop will be better than average.

The barley acreage is noticeably below last year, but the condition is fully 50 per cent better than last year at this time. The stand is very thick and even and the yield will be excellent with harvest a little earlier than usual.

Some of the finest flax fields were seen that have ever been grown in the northwest. The stand is exceptionally heavy and the fields free from all weeds. Most of the flax is just in blossom and from one end to the other the fields are as level as a floor.

The recent rains have improved the crops wonderfully. The color of all grain is very rich and healthy.

The haying is on in full blast. The tame hay crop is about the average but wild hay will be scarcer this yeat than last from 25 to 50 percent, varying in different localities.

WILL INSPECT RED RIVER THIS WEEK

MAJOR SHUNK AND OTHERS ARRIVE FROM ST. PAUL YESTERDAY

Major Shunk and several other officers of the United States engineers' department, passed thru Crookston last evening enroute to Grand Forks from St. Paul and will make an inspection of the Red River with a view to determining its needs. They have been at Bemidji and other points and will make recommendations to the department. They will be looked after by Captain Hayes, who is in charge of the government work on the Red River. Recently the boats have all been repaired and the dredge put in good shape for the work of the season.

ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC 100 YEARS OLD

E. Moeckle of this city is much interested in the account of the centenary publication of the St. Louis Republican which recently celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of its first publication in 1808. Mr. Moeckle was connected with the paper in 1859 and '60 and became well acquainted in the city belonging to several social and business organizations prominent there at that time. His first enlistment when the call came for the ninety day volunteers to put down the rebellion was with a St. Louis regiment. At the expiration of which he went to Wisconsin and re-enlisted.

Mr. Moeckle's reminiscence of journalism of that date are very interesting.

When a man begins by saying: "Of course, it is none of my business, but —it's a sure sign he is going to make it his business and advise you what to do.

BARN BURNED HORSE LOST

PETER SULLIVAN OF NESBIT VISITED BY FIREBUG OR A THIEF

SEVERAL OTHER HORSES BARELY RESCUED IN FIRE LAST NIGHT

From Tuesday's Daily—

Peter Sullivan, one of the well known farmers of Nesbit is in the city today and reports that at 11:30 last night his barn caught fire and burned to the ground, cremating a fine mare which could not be rescued the other horses having been lead to safety with difficulty.

The origin of the fire is a mystery About 11:30 both he and his daughter were awakened by a team driving into the yard and the dog barking. A few minutes later the daughter thought it queer that the dog continued barking so furiously and getting up went to the window where she saw the reflection from the blazing barn.

She roused her father and the men and they rushed to the stable and succeeded in rescuing all the horses but one which could not be reached.

It was a fortunate thing that most of Mr. Sullivan's 48 horses were on another farm, plowing, otherwise many of them might have been burned in the confusion.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. There are two theories, one is that some one deliberately set the barn on fire and the other is that horse thieves came to secure horses, entered the barn and lighted a match to look horses over and were frightened away by the dog and threw the match down carlessly in the straw, thus starting the conflagration.

The loss on the barn was about $800 with $256 insurance and the horse was valued at about $225.

No trace of the robber could be secured and he made away safely with his booty. There was also two other passengers who were relieved of their pocket books.

KID CARTER IN THE TOILS

YOUNG MAN WHO FOUGHT WILSON GIVES HIMSELF UP TO AUTHORITIES

RETURNS TO FORKS FROM BEMIDJI AND FACES PRIZE FIGHT CHARGE

From Saturday's Daily—

Kid Carter, accompanied by his father arrived in Grand Forks yesterday morning from Bemidji and gave himself up to the authorities who have been looking for him since his fight with Fitz Wilson at the fair grounds. Carter claims that it was a harmless boxing exhibition. He is very sorry that he became involved in the affair as he is in no sense a professional pugilist. He furnished a bond and was released. State's Attorney J. B. Wineman will be home today and the date for the preliminary hearing will be set.

So far as the arrest of promoters of the fight have been made: Tommy Maher, James Ober, Henry Bradford and William Green, Pat Purcell of East Grand Forks, who acted as referee will come over and give himself up when called upon, it is stated. Wilson who fought a draw with Carter has evaded arrest.

It is said the state has secured sufficient evidence to make a strong case against the accused. Spectators at a prize fight may be prosecuted under the law making it a crime to aid and abet a fight but the state will not go after those who attended it is said. It is the fighters, their backers and the men who handled the mill who are to be prosecuted.

PRES. MERRIFIELD OF N.D. 'U' RESIGNS

The resignation of President Webster Merrifield of the University of North Dakota was accepted yesterday by the board of regents. The resignation will take effect after the commencement exercises of the 1909 class. It was not unexpected as President Merrifield had stated when he withdrew his resignation a little over a year ago that he would serve no longer than the close of the school year of 1908-1909. The resignation submitted yesterday was formal notice that he intended to carry out the plan of a year ago.

When President Merrifield leaves the university next June he will have served a quarter of century with the institution. He has built it up to be the leading educational institution of North Dakota and it ranks well with the older institutions of learning in the east. It will be no small task for his successor to keep up the good record of President Merrifield.

DRAINAGE LAW SUSTAINED

MAY ASSESS PROPERTY FOR REPAIRS ON DITCHES WITHOUT DELAY

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE HOLDS COUNTY MUST DO THE WORK ASKED

From Saturday's Daily—

The attorney general's department in an opinion written in response to an opinion by the county attorney of Sibley county says that county commissioners have power to deepen and widen drainage ditches and assess the cost against the property.

The county attorney of Sibley county said that such action was unconstitutional and advised the county board not to do it. But a land owner says that the ditch by his farm is too small to be of much use and wants it made larger. The board admits the necessity of improving the ditch, but thinks that they have not the power.

George W. Peterson who writes the opinion for the state department quotes decisions of the supreme court to sustain his contention that improvements to ditches can be made as well as ditches dug, and that the cost can be assessed against the property benefited by the improvement.

The opinion sustains the constitutionality of the statute and says that an action in mandamus will lie against the county board if it refuses to make the repairs.

LAND BUYERS INTO NORTH

HARRY C. PARKER OF WATSEKA ILL., INTERESTS MANY ILLINOISANS

SELLS BIG ACREAGES NORTHEAST OF WARREN TO CHICAGO PARTIES

Harry C. Parker of Watseka, Illinois, 70 miles south of Chicago spent the afternoon in the city yester day on his way north to Warren this morning where he will look over the country of that neighborhood and five sections in particular, a report on which he will carry back to Chicago investors and other Illinois parties.

Mr. Parker was interested in the Canadian boom and got in on the ground floor. He is not a novice in the large calibred land business and has sold enormous tracts of land in Manitoba near Morris north of Emerson. Mr. Parker has heretofore passed thru the Red River Valley on the night trains and had not seen the country. However he had heard much of its fertility and came up last evening on the Northern Pacific day train that he might view some of it from the car enroute.

The interest of many Illinoisans is centered on the north country and especially on the northern part of the Red River Valley and Mr. Parker ventures the conservative remark that many of his clients are interested in the reports that have come from this country especially since it has gained so much fame thru its drainage projects in which the Illinoisans are much interested since they faced the same proposition about fifty years ago.

There are many wealthy Illinoisans about the wealthy territory south of Chicago who will visit the Red River Valley in the very near future.

A nice thing about a vacation is that after it is over you don't have to do it again for a year.

APPEAL FOR GOOD ROADS

ELI STEENERSON APPEARS BEFORE DIRECTORS OF 25,000 CLUB YESTERDAY

URGES ATTENTION TO POST ROADS—COWLEY TAKES DIRECTORSHIP CLUB

From Saturday's Daily—

At the meeting yesterday afternoon of the directors of the Twenty-Five Thousand Club of Crookston, Hon. Elias Steenerson postmaster of Crookston, appeared with an address of considerable depth on the movement for good roads that is going on in the more advanced portions of the United States and the benefit that the 25,000 club could do to the movement, should it adopt the movement among its slogans.

Mr. Steenerson particularly called the attention of the meeting to the post roads of the county and the improvements that could advantageously be made on them. The condition of the post roads has much to do with the development of the country as they furnish both main roads of travel, being selected with that idea in view, and increased facilities of postal service.

The good roads suggestion were referred to a committee with instructions to report at next meeting.

John Cowley was elected director to take the place of John N. Kirsch resigned.

GOOD ROADS AND MAIL DELIVERY

P. O. DEPT. TO CUT OFF RURAL DELIVERY WHERE ROADS ARE BAD

The recent movement inaugurated by the postoffice department to cut off rural free delivery wherever roads are permitted to become bad is far more important than it appeared to be at first glance.

It is intended simply to compel localities having the privilege of rural free delivery to provide the rural carrier with passable roads.

Its effects, however, will go much farther than was contemplated by the postoffice department, and should provide a strong impetus for good roads movement everywhere.

Any country community, having a hundred families living on not more than 25 miles of good road, can get a route established by filing a petition showing that conditions accord with the requirements of the department. After the petition is in an inspector goes over the proposed route to make sure that the required number exist that the route does not exceed the prescribed limit, and unless the appropriation for that purpose is exhausted the department will provide the route.

The privilege is priceless and it has done much to ameliorate living conditions on the farms. The farmer gets his letters and newspapers every day except Sunday, and keeps as closely in touch with the world as does the dweller in the city—closer, on the average, because he reads more and thinks more.

But the free delivery system does not pay. Indeed it is conducted at a large expense, and will continue to be losing venture until the parcels post is extended so that the revenue from this source will overcome the deficit. The system will never be abolished, but it can be curtailed very materially under the plan of the department to insist upon good roads.

In these circumstances the patrons—or rather the beneficiaries—of many rural routes will be confronted with the alternative of improving their roads or of losing the free delivery.

There can be no doubt which horn of the dilemma will be chosen, says an exchange. The farmers do not wish to lose their rural routes and the country does not wish them to lose them. So the roads will be improved.

This provides just the leverage needed, in many cases, to keep the good roads movement going. The department is acting justly with its rural carriers when it insists upon good roads, and by insisting on good roads its policy will materially benefit many parts of the country that are being held back now for the lack of roads over which produce can be hauled to market economically and profitably. The difference between good roads and bad roads often represents the better the road the cheaper the carriage, and the poorer the roads the more expensive the freight cost.

You don't find any widows willing to believe that lightning will never strike twice in the same place.

RAINS FALL OVER NORTH

ENTIRE RED RIVER VALLEY BATHED IN ACCOMMODATING RAINS

BOTH NORTH DAKOTA REPORTS STILL DEPRESSED CROP PROSPECTS

From Thursday's Daily—

Rains of an hour's duration fell generally all over the Red River Valley last night. The weather god smiles on the Red River Valley plains The crops while not in the most desperate condition will gather renewed vigor from the fall of rain and conditions generally will be greatly uplifted.

Rains commenced to fall at Greenbush yesterday noon and the pathway of the rain continued up thru the Roseau Valley The rain there was of short duration but other rains were imminent at last reports. Rain fell over Barnesville and Moorhead neighborhoods and for a great distance north. The rain that fell in Crookston for about an hour last night was of the same army of clouds: Rain fell at McIntosh and at other east line points. Rain was reported at Hallock and St. Vincent as well as at Kennedy and a slight fall at Warren. Rain fell south of here, tho its duration did not exceed a half hour of heavy downfall. Rain was reported at Thief River Falls yesterday morning and a slight shower last evening, but only of slight duration and downfall of rain is reported early this morning east of Ada and about Twin Valley.

Rain Helps Dakota Crops

Rain fell yesterday in nearly every locality of northern North Dakota. In the Red River Valley Grand Forks, and northwest of there, all had rains, according to reports last night Larimore stated that there was a heavy rain. Grand Forks had a fine rain last night.

Minot reported a fairly heavy rain early yesterday. Williston had a heavy rain and Towner fared well. Devils Lake had only a shower, not nearly enough falling to do any good. Munich and Edmore had showers. Minnewaukan had no rain but Brinsmade, Oberon and other towns in Benson county reported heavy showers that will help grain. Bismarck reported rainfall over a large area in that section.

In the central and western sections some of the fields were too far gone to be helped by the rainfall, but it has done a great deal of good and has saved lots of grain from ruin.

Canada's Drouth Broken

In the Canadian northwest several towns report rain. Winnipeg had so much that the races were declared off. Medicine Hat had 1.23 inches. Edmonton reported .64 inches.

The weather forecast says there will be more rain and it may be that the localities missed yesterday may be luckier today.

A Devils Lake correspondent writes that in a trip of 65 miles in an auto thru Benson county discouraging conditions were found. Wheat will not be half a crop even if there should be a great downpour of rain. There is some good flax. North of Devils Lake there will not be more than 50 per cent of a crop.

Damage in Ward

S. H. Sleeper, the Mohall banker, has just completed a long automobile tour around northwestern North Dakota. He reports to his knowledge some slight damage is done to about 20 per cent of the crops. Mr. Sleeper also reports that under the conditions the crops are looking favorable and that any deficiencies in amount will be made up in price this fall.

QUESTION THE DAKOTA RATES

Attorney General T. F. McCue of North Dakota, General Counsel C. W. Bunn of the Northern Pacific road, General Counsel W. R. Begg of the Great Northern, General Counsel A. H. Bright of the Soo line, and J. H. Watson, attorney for the Northern Pacific at Fargo were legal lights gathered yesterday in the office of Mr. Bunn at St. Paul to take testimony in the mandamus proceedings to compel roads operating in North Dakota to put in coal and lignite rates ordered by the legislature in 1907.

The roads ignored the law on the ground that the rates were lower than rates in Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming, Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Neither side was ready to proceed and the time of adjournment was indefinite. The witnesses examined were J. B. Baird general freight agent of the Northern Pacific, L. Faithhorn and W. S. Post, tariff clerks.

A MOORHEAD STORE ROBBED

MOORHEAD HARDWARE CO., ENTERED AND GOODS ARE PLUNDERED

LARGE STOCK OF RAZORS AND KNIVES WAS CARRIED AWAY

From Friday's Daily—

The store of the Moorhead Hardware company was entered last night the safe was rifled and a large stock of razors and knives taken.

Entrance was effected thru a rear window leading into the office. With a sharp knife the sash had been cut away the pane of glass removed and set back carefully against an adjacent building. The safe was not locked, but the cash drawer within was locked and the inner works of the safe were torn apart and the cash drawer broken into. There was but $11.40 in the safe, and this was taken All of the drawers of the desk were rifled and a number of checks were left out upon the desk with a note from the robber saying "I cannot use these things. I'll leave them."

In the main store the only two cases touched were those containing the razors and knives. From the cases, only safety razors and a few pearl handled knives were taken, but from the stock underneath the cases ever razor and every pearl handled knife was taken, the knives and razors being removed from the boxes and these placed carefully back in order, In all a total of 71 razors are now known to have been stolen, and from 6 to 8 dozen Chase Brothers & Torrey's pearl handled knives.

A report was received in the city yesterday from Perley, Minn., a small town 40 miles south of Crookston on the Fargo branch of the Great Northern, stating that the postoffice had been robbed. It is believed that the majority of the booty consisted of stamps, but little if any money having been taken by the burglars. The matter was reported to the government and a postoffice inspector hastened to the scene of action in an endeavor to run down the culprit.

MOVEMENT OF COAL SLOW

ROADS ARE SHIPPING VERY SMALL AMOUNTS TO THE WEST

ANOTHER TRAFFIC CONGESTION PREDICTED THIS FALL AS RESULT

From Friday's Daily—

The efforts of the officials of both the Great Northern and Northern Pacific to induce country coal handlers to lay in an early supply of coal so far have met with little success. It is stated that not 30 per cent of the amount of coal shipped into the West two years ago, has been shipped out this year by the Duluth roads.

With the prospects of a heavy crop movement this fall and the consequent taxing of all available cars on the lines of the West, the officials have exerted every effort to get the coal movement cleaned up before the early fall wheat traffic begins.

Officials say that unless the coal movement is increased heavily within the next two weeks there is sure to be another traffic congesteion such as tied up shippers thruout the West two years ago. All the Western roads have sent out notices to their agents instructing them to inform the merchants and coal handlers of the situation. Unless some heed is paid to this urgent demand on the parts of the roads, the coal movement will be retarded by the heavy wheat traffic.

FAST WORK ON THE ROSEAU

MACHINES MAKING GREATEST PROGRESS IN NORTHERN DRAINAGE HISTORY

From Thursday's Daily—

Captain Jas. A. Beard of the Standard Drainage Company and of the big Windom steam dredge on the Roseau river arrived in the city last evening on Steve Withey's special and remained in the city during the evening on his way to St. Paul and his home at Windom where he will spend three or four days before returning to the big northern project of which he is in charge.

The Windom steam dredge on the Roseau is making progress on one of the big cut offs of the Roseau project and there is no doubt in the old time dredger's mind that the project as covered by his machine will be thru with work by November 15 next without fail. The Sherwood machine on the lower Roseau which is digging the big cut off to come out below the rapids on the Roseau at the international boundary line has been delayed somewhat for the past week, but is now getting under full headway and will probably complete the project on which it is engaged a month before its contract expires.

The big Windom steam dredge has plenty of wood and supplies of all kinds on hand thanks to the attention of the Minnesota state drainage board and State Drainage Engineer George A. Ralph of Crookston who by getting the contracts out early in the year have permitted the dredgers to lay in supplies while the ground was frozen and fortify themselves against the possible happening of the long summers.

IRON DISCOVERED CLOSE TO CASS LAKE

Iron, yes iron, in our midst. Last Monday one of our subscribers came in to give notice that great chunks of iron ore had been discovered in the vicinity of his farm and that his neighbors were reveling in the idea that before another year has passed they and their neighbors will be in receipt of an ample income from the great beds of hematite iron lying near the surface on their farms. At Laporte about ten miles south of these farms iron has already been discovered and drills are in operation to disclose the depth of the beds and the distance to be excavated before the iron is reached. There is no mystery or unusual circumstance about these discoveries It is well known to geological explorers that great beds of hematite iron exist beneath the boulder clay, the sand and gravel, and the only question is, how deep must we dig to reach it. At the time the iron beds of the Missabe were laid down great streams of iron laden water flowed down the gullies and ravines which diversified the landscape between the Missabe and Itasca heights and when in the glacial epoch the great synclinal which reached for more than a hundred miles west of the Missabe was deeply covered with boulder clay and gravel, in many places to a depth of hundreds of feet. That these iron beds will ultimately be discovered and result in productive works is only a question of time. — Cass Lake Times.

PROPER CARE OF SOIL BRINGS BIGGEST RETURNS

If those who drive about our city every evening, breathing the dry, hot city air, would go a little farther north they would see a sight that is worth any person's time and money to go and see. On the farm of Chas. Berg, just north of this city is a field of macaroni wheat, about 40 acres in all, that stands to the shoulder of an average man in height. It is so thick that when it is still you can toss your hat upon it and its weight will scarcely bend the grain. Farmers who have lived here for years, and have passed this field of grain say they never saw its equal, and predict a yield of 40 bushels to the acre. It is only the past two years that Mr. Berg has confined his entire attention to farming, and the result has proved something wonderful. Scarcely a nice day passes in the winter, but what he can be seen with his new manure spreader hauling manure from the different barns in this city and his crops receive the benefit of it. He also has about 70 acres in potatoes this year. The rows are nearly a mile long, straight as an arrow, with hardly a hill missing and scarcely a weed among them. Mr. Berg informed us that farming is a pleasure nowadays and that he intends to do nothing else but farm until his work on this earth is finished.—Barnesville Record Review.

BUT REV. ED LARKE REFUSED TO COUGH UP

Reverend Edmund Larke refused to donate to a charivari party.

In a red hot speech, delivered from the edge of the sidewalk in front of Moren's meat market, the Rev. Mr. Larke defied the crowd and threatened dire vengeance if the noise was not stopped.

Police officer Jones came to the rescue and ordered the noise makers to desist. Thus it remained for a preacher to conquer a Biwabik crowd—never.

Rev. Larke did not mince words in speech-saying:

"You're a gang of rowdies. I won't give you a cent. This is robbery. I don't know you fellows. You'll get nothing out of me if you keep it up all night. If the officer does not protect me I'll take the law into my own hands."

And he said more, but the words do not convey the full meaning of his pent up indignation. But it remained for the policeman to put an end to the hullaballoo.

But the youngsters would not give up. They followed the victim to the Goman residence and made the night hideous until 1 o'clock. But Rev. Larke refused to give up, and the boys were compelled to go home without the price of that which they wanted.

The incident and the outcome caused much comment.

"Did you succeed?" a member of the gang was asked, while on his way home after hope was abandoned.

'Nothin' doin'," disgust predominating.

Rev. Mr. Larke was married on Monday, July 6, to Florence A. Twining, of Toronto, the ceremony taking place in the parsonage of the Pilgrim Congregational church. They remained in Duluth for a few days and then came on to Biwabik for a visit. Later they go on to Bagley, Minn., where he is pastor of the Congregational church.

He was in Biwabik for a year, and has many warm friends here who were glad of the opportunity to congratulate him. He and Mrs. Larke expect to remain here over Sunday. —Biwabik Times.

J. J. HILL AT STEPHENS HALL DEDICATION SOON

Plan to hold biggest demostration ever seen in Crookston. "Jim Hill Day" of past to be outdone if present plans are carried out. A vast throng of visitors expected.

The biggest celebration that has been held in Crookston since James J. Hill was in Crookston and delivered an address, will be the occasion of the dedication of Stephens Hall the new $35,000 dormitory at the State Experimental Farm, the largest building in connection with the School of Agriculture which is operated by the state in connection with the Experimental farm.

It is expected the date will be August 11 providing Mr. Hill finds that date agreeable, but the date will not be definitely set until later.

What is known as "Jim Hill Day" in Crookston about ten years ago witnessed the biggest crowd ever seen in Crookston. Special trains were run from all directions where the regular service did not allow the people from other sections to arrive in the morning and depart in the evening and no circus or fourth of July celebration ever saw such a jam of people in the metropolis of the Red River Valley.

The same scheme will be followed at the dedication of Stephens Hall and efforts will be made to even exceed the former record attendance J. J. Hill will be the principal speaker and there will be a number of other prominent men present to celebrate an occasion which marks an epoch in the better development of the Great Red River Valley.

For the occasion all the automobiles that can be secured from Grand Forks, Fargo and all smaller cities and villages will be centered here to move the crowd, the plan being to have at least 150 autos in service and the crowd will be addressed on the big campus in front of the new building. A grand picnic dinner will also be a part of the plans and the celebration will be participated by the people of the entire 9th Congressional district. It is expected that at least 20,000 visitors will be gathered here on that date.

WHEELS OF INDUSTRY AGAIN IN MOTION

Now that the democrats have nominated Bryan and the election of Taft seems to be a certainty the mills are to be opened and the railroads will boom, it is announced.

It is estimated that, in all, perhaps 3,000,000 men will benefit by the re-employment movement to be inaugurated.

The mills are to open, railroad improvements planned in the boom times are to be pushed, and all lines of manufacturing are to be made active.

The Union Pacific for instance, has about $50,000,000 provided for improvements. The management of the system has already begun to put men back to work, and by the middle of September will have every shop on the system going under full pressure and every man employed on every improvement that it is possible to use to advantage.

Busy in Northwest

The Great Northern and Northern Pacific have provided about $25,000,000 each for the same purpose and will set thousands shoveling dirt in the northwest. The St. Paul is already using thousands of men and will add more on its extension to the coast.

The Lackawanna announces that it will build an extension from Lake Hopatcong to Slateford, Pennsylvania at a cost of more than $10,000,000.

Since the first of January there have been issued by railroads and industrial corporations almost a billion of new securities, fully one-third of which are available for new work.

The government itself is contributing to the campaign by ordering several hundred cars for the Panama railroad and rushing orders for other material which will be needed in time, but the manufacture of which just at this time will tend to restore business confidence.

A year ago, before the semi-panic began there were not enough freight cars to handle business. Now there are 350,000 rusting on the side tracks. There were hardly enough men to do the regular work of the country. Now there are said to be above three million idle.

PRONOUNCED HIS CASE INCURABLE

Whole Body Raw with Eczema—Life was Intolerable—Was Even Incased in Plaster—Discharged from Hospitals as Hopeless.

SUFFERED 14 YEARS CURED BY CUTICURA

"From the age of three months until fifteen years old, my son Owen's life was made intolerable by eczema in its worst form. He was all right until a red rash broke out on his forehead, but we were not alarmed at first. Very soon, however, the rash began to spread over his head and shoulders, and it caused him great discomfort. I took him to a doctor and tried half a dozen other treatments, all with the same result: no improvement at all. The disease gradually spread until nearly every part of his body was quite raw. We had to strap him down in bed, for he used to tear himself dreadfully in his sleep. The agony he went through is quite beyond words. No one thought we would rear him. The regimental doctor, a very clever man, pronounced the case hopeless; at least, he said the only hope was that he might, if he lived long enough, outgrow it to some extent. We had him in hospitals four times and he was pronounced one of the worst cases, if not the worst, ever admitted. From each he was discharged as incurable; in fact he got worse under the successive treatments. At one hospital they incased him in plaster, and this seemed to aggravate the soreness terribly. He looked so badly that no one liked to go near him and his life was a burden to him. We kept trying remedy after remedy, but we had got almost past hoping for a cure. Six months ago we purchased a set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent Pills and persevered with them. The result was truly marvelous and to-day he is perfectly cured, his skin not having a blemish on it anywhere. STOPS LIQUOR SALE ON TRAINS

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL HOLDS THAT IT IS UNLAWFUL

It is unlawful for railway companies to sell liquor in their dining or buffet cars. This is the opinion of the state attorney general's office, written yesterday afternoon, by George W. Peterson, assistant attorney general. The question was raised by N. E. Peterson county attorney at Albert Lea.

If this opinion is sustained by the courts, the railroads are liable for prosecution in every county through which their dinning cars run.

The Possible Income

An interesting state of affairs among the rich has been revealed by Mr. Stuyvesant Fish, supported by corroborative testimony from the Newport butchers and bakers and grocers. Mr. Fish declares that the condition of the rich has been pitiful during the past year, thereby confirming the declaration that the October panic was a rich man's panic and the middle classes and the poor, while they felt the keen edge and feared the worst, really avoided the brunt of conditions. There have been rich persons on the testimony of Fish during the past year who were deprived of the necessities of life, of their kind of necessities. And to clinch the argument Mr. Fish declared that it is much more difficult for a man with a $250,000 income, practically a quarter of a million annually, to come down to $50,000, than it is for a $15-a-week man to come down to $10. Mr. Fish ought to encourage the rich to try a reduction from $15 to $10, if they really wish to be living on Easy street. And we have no doubt there are many fifteeners reduced to the condition of tenners, who would gladly suffer a reduction from a quarter of a million to fifty thousand.

But the proof of the pudding of the rich comes not in the eating, which any carnivorous animal can accomplish—if it but be suet—but in paying for the pudding. And now the Newport and butchers declare that there will be no more credit for the Newport new rich, nor indeed for the old rich, such as the Fishes themselves. There will be no credit given to the "cottage" dwellers on Newport bay; porter house will be paid for the same as rump; and the cakes, which Marie Antoinette recommended to the poor when told they had no bread, will be charged for at regular rates and thru cash sales.

It is such a combine as this which will break up the rich and make their state as pitiful as that of the poor. It is all very well to suffer a reduction from a quarter of a million to fifty thousand a year, so long as one does not have to pay grocer and meat bills Any of us can be a quarter-of-a-millionaire if we do not have to pay our bills, and judging by the revelations from time to time, a great number of those enjoying these quarter-million incomes are doing it at the expense of the grocers, and of the person in reduced from $15 to $10. But when prices are put up, thru a Newport combine of tradesmen from nothing to something, then the weak spots in the rich armor show.

It is unquestionably true that the extravagance of the rich has to be borne by the middle class and the poor. There are people of wealth who pay as they go. But the majority we believe, of the "Spenders" are not payers, and their actual out go is far beyond their income. Somewhere these two things, outgo and income have to be balanced; it is true in every system of political economy. There should not be any one spending for general expenses any quarter of a million a year; we approve the president's advice of the president's salary of $50,000 as sufficient for the needs of any citizen. And while we do not advocate a reduction to the dead level of $15 per week for all, while unquestionably the command of money adds, not only to the comfort of life but to the growth of intellectual and spiritual life, and while leisure and pleasure are absolute essentials in developing the richest life, so also are work and thrift, so also is a consciousness of material limitations. The day laborer could not be more extravagant nor more ridiculous if, with his untutored desires, he was suddenly in command of a quarter of million annually. The salutary effect would come to the spenders compelled to spend not $50,000 a year, but $10 a week.—Minneapolis Journal.

LIQUOR IN DINING CARS

Minneapolis Tribune Thinks Subject Should be Let Alone

The Minnesota statute regulating the sale of liquor is so positive and definite that there is no apparent room for any other conclusion than that of the attorney general's office, that such sales on railway dining cars are forbidden. The law permits no sales in quantities less than five gallons, or in any quantity, in case the liquor is to be drank on the premises without a license, except by a druggist upon a physician's prescription. No great harm is done to anybody when a cocktail is served as part of a meal on a dining car, but the law does not seem to allow it. Every liquor license must specify the exact location of the premises where the business is to be carried on. A license might be procured for a dining car, located in the union depot yards, at St. Paul, but it would be rather farfetched to assert that the car could be moved to another place and that the license would still be valid. The law does not contemplate movable drinking places.

Those who rejoice in any and every possible limitation of the sale of liquor will doubtless be pleased by this enunciation of the law, but there is room for two opinions on the merits of the question. Liquor is not sold to all comers on dining cars but only to such persons as have paid their fares to ride on the train. Every such traveling bar serves only a limited clientele. If the peace and dignity of the state of Minnesota are violated by such transactions, it is done only in a narrow and technical sense, for cases are surely rare in which stimulants, sold with meals in that way, lead to any violence or disorder It is possible that a man may become drunk in a dining car, but it is not common. Quiet and sober people eat in such cars, and respectable women have no fear of doing so. If one man is annoyed because his neighbor is served with a small glass of distilled spirits at the table, the annoyance is largely subjective. It originates in the mind of the person displeased.

If liquor with meals is prohibited in dining cars, the advantage to the cause of temperance will be nominal and not real. The man addicted to such a habit, disapprove it as we may will be exasperated by the denial of his beverage. He will not be moved thereby to let liquor alone, but rather to indulge himself to a dangerous extent as soon as he leaves the train.

The law is silent on the subject of liquor in dining cars. No great harm will come from preserving silence in that respect.—Minneapolis Tribune.

.:. POLITICS .:.

Cal E. Stone, for many years connected with the passenger departments of the St. Paul & Duluth and the Great Northern railways at St. Paul but now engaged in the land businees with offices in St. Paul, has developed political aspirations and has filed as a republican candidate for the house of representatives.

Because of his jovial personality, his long residence in St. Paul and his natural disposition for sociability above all things else, Mr. Stone is one of the best known men in the twin cities, and his acquaintance is of the most general character. The district in which he will run is the 36th, which comprises all the fashion able seventh ward and a portion of the eighth, which is not so exclusive but casts more votes.

LANDLESS MAN SENT TO THE MANLESS LAND

Cold figures show in a striking manner the effective work of the division of information of the bureau of immigration and naturalization in diverting hundreds of poor aliens from the crowded center of the country to fertile farms and other places where there is a big demand for that class of laborers. From the first of February last to the close of June, nearly one thousand aliens and others had been sent in response to applications to various parts of the country. WONDERFUL YIELD OF NEW WHEAT SPECIES

CLAIMED THAT WHEAT RAISING WILL BE REVOLUTIONIZED BY ALASKAN WHEAT PRODUCED BY AN IDAHO FARMER—CLAIMS AVERAGE YIELD WILL BE OVER 200 BUSHELS PER ACRE OF HIGH GRADE HARD WHEAT—STATE CHEMIST OF IDAHO PASSES ON WONDERFUL PRODUCTION

If some one were to tell the average wheat farmer, that it was possible to raise a wheat crop on United States farms in one year, of five billions of bushels, he would brand his informant as a liar pure and simple, and yet had the farmers in America planted a wonderful new wheat seed that has been perfected by Abraham Adams of Juliaetta, Idaho, that is just what the yield would have been this season, based upon the probable crop of the year.

Reads Like a Fairy Tale

Connected with this assertion is the greatest wheat story that has ever been told, far greater than the wildest dreams of the wheat king in the security of his vast domain and the demand for his golden harvest. The United States paid eighty millions of money for Alaska, and yet the great gold payment Alaska has returned, sinks into insignificance when compared with Farmer Adams' Alaska Wheat, which in the secret and far away fields of Idaho, he has gradually brought to perfection until he has given to the world a wheat that will grow under average conditions, two hundred bushels to the acre.

This is a large assertion and hardly believable were it not for the fact that it is backed up by the Idaho experimental station at Moscow, Idaho, and being followed up by other stations, all eager to make a test to see if they can beat the yield of the originator. The yield is only a part of the great discovery, for this Alaska wheat is both a winter and spring wheat, and when planted as either, is a hard wheat that will grade as No. 1. Imagine a hard winter wheat, for the great soft wheat belts of the country, which with this new wheat can compete with the hard wheat lands of the great northwest.

A brief history of this almost miraculous seed, is given in few words by its modest originator, a plain man who farms in a plain way, but who all his life, until old age has lived with and for his wheat and has finally given the world the greatest gift any man has ever been responsible for.

History of the New Wheat

Mr. Adam's first perfect head of wheat, came into realization in 1904 from an experimental plant of the spring of that year. This one head he planted that fall ,as winter wheat, and the next year he secured seven pounds of seed from that planting. From the seven pounds, planted in the spring of 1906, he harvested 1545 pounds, an increase of over 222 times or a basic principle of 222 bushels to the acre. Here comes another remarkable story of this wonderful wheat. The 1545 pounds were sowed in the fall, and that summer there were terrific hail storms which put the club and blue stem wheat so much to the bad that many fields were never harvested, yet from the Alaska wheat plots, there were gathered a crop, which threshed out 53,000 pounds. This when all other wheat was rendered practically worthless.

State Chemist Analyzes It

At about this time the Idaho station became interested in the wheat and asked to make a test. Mr. Adams carried a sample to the station at Moscow, and after a most thoro test, received the following reply:

"Regarding the analysis made upon the sample of Alaska wheat which you brought to this laboratory, I have this to say: The kernels from the fall sown wheat were plump and sound and doubtless will grade as number one. Judging from the chemical and physical condition of this sample I will say it will probably take rank with the best grade of Blue Stem for flour making purposes. The sample grown from spring sown wheat showed by chemical analysis a somewhat higher protein content (this being an indication of its probable strength for bread making purposes.) I am inclined to think that the wheat you have here is equal if not the superior of our Blue Stem for flour making purposes. I should like to make a mill test whenever you can send sufficient quantity for that purpose.

Very truly,
—J. S. Jones,
State Chemist."

New Species Vigorous

In appearance, the standing wheat is strong and vigorous, with a corn like growth. Its head in the bearing part is about four inches long to over that, and an inch to an inch and a half broad at its broadest part. The kernel is about four times the size of hard wheat, and a clear light cream color without a dark spot, as clean as a hulled peanut, in color. It is almost absolutely frost protected and it would be a hard frost that would touch it. Its sturdiness makes it impervious to ordinary storm or light hail. It is originally grown on high dry unirrigated land, and will stand drought as no known wheat will. Add all these qualities to its enormous yielding propensities and it must be admitted that the world has been turned topsy turvey so far as wheat raising is concerned.

Thrives Elsewhere

California, where so much soft wheat is grown, is beginning to take up the Alaska wheat, for they see the opportunity of a hard wheat yield Farmers in Missouri and the east, and in the south, where soft wheat is all that can be raised, with success, are beginning to think of what is in store for them when some neighbor convinces them by making a first trial, that the wonderful Alaska wheat story is not as much a fabrication as the first story of seedless oranges was thought to be. The wheat world is trembling on the verge of a new era, one in which the man with a hundred acres, suddenly finds his farm increased in area to a thousand acres, by the discovery of one old farmer away out in Idaho.

Other Experiments

As a last test, Mr. Adams has sent single heads of wheat to other parts of the country where he had men he could trust to plant and ascertain the result. Reports are just coming to him, and he finds that in other states his Alaska wheat does better than on its home soil. In Alabama a head was planted Dec. 31, was up Jan. 30 waist high April 1, with leaves 7-8 of an inch broad, and July 7 was harvested. It showed to be hard wheat of a fine quality, and the one head yielded the same as the first head planted in Idaho.

$300 Per Bushel

One Oregon experimental station offered the originator $5 for a pound of his wheat, a rate of over $300 a bushel. The old gentleman did not prize the money. He only wanted to be sure that some attache was not striving to get away some of his seed He required a contract that the state would not dispose of any wheat used in the test, and upon securing that sent the seed asked for along. Now the United States experimentors are becoming interested, and next year's report will have much to say about Abraham Adams and his wheat and the old gentleman will at one step come as much into prominence as Luther Burbank, who, altho accomplishing hundreds of miracles with growing things, has been eclipsed by this man who has done what the average farmer will believe is an impossibility.

Fat men's race, Henry Brosseau, prize, a ten pound ham donated by Nels Anderson.

Lean men's race, no entries, there being no lean men belonging to the I. S. W. A., and none could be located, which was taken as an indication that the people of this section are well fed. The prize, 10 pounds of bacon, donated by Ed Erickson, was therefore brought home.

Politicians' race, N. A. Thorson, 1st; John W. Sandberg, 2nd; Orin Daniels 3rd and Geo. Flaten 4th; but he had not crossed the line at last reports and is supposed to be still running. This race created great enthusiasm and was followed by scores of other races for the small boys and girls, tugs of war with special prizes, etc.

The entire day was a grand success, and too much credit cannot be given the various committees on arrangements, refreshments, program, and so forth.

W. O. REILLEY TO BRING BIG MACHINE DOWN FROM GREENBUSH

W. O. Reilley who has been running an automobile livery between Greenbush and Roseau will arrive in the city Wednesday night and start the same line of business in Crookston. Crookston has been in need of an auto livery for some time past, and is the only city in the valley that is without one, most of the villages having them in fact. The travelling men will welcome the opening of an auto livery here in particular, and there is no question but what Mr. Reilley will do well from the start, and in a short time will have a number of machines kept busy all the time.

JONES GUILTY JURY DECIDES

OUT FOR LITTLE OVER AN HOUR LIFE PENALTY FOR THE ACCUSED

VICTIM BRUTALLY SHOT WHEN HE FAILED TO PRODUCE HIS HOARD

From Monday's Daily—

At Minnewaukon Saturday, Paul Jones, alias Fred Trotter, accused of the murder of Nels Halverson, a bachelor was convicted of murder in the first degree. Judge John Cowan gave the case to the jury at 9:40 a. m. and at 11:15 the jury brought in a verdict finding the accused guilty of murder and fixing the penalty at imprisonment for life. The sentence was pronounced soon after by Judge John Cowan.

A very strong case of circumstantial evidence was made.

Helped to Convict Self

The defendant helped to convict himself by his contradictory stories after the murder of Halvorson.

The crime for which Jones was convicted was a most brutal one. He shot Halvorson in his yard one evening last March. Halverson was alone at the time. From the evidence it seems probable that Jones demanded to know where Halverson kept his money. It is rumored that Halverson had quite a lot of cash hidden somewhere on his farm.

Pleaded for His Life

It is believed that Halverson told Jones he had no money and pleaded with him to spare his life. It appears that Halverson even knelt before Jones. He was shot down mercilessly and the slayer dragged his body to a pig pen, evidently intending to throw it in so that the pigs could eat it. The return of Olson, who lived with Jones, prevented the murderer from finishing his work.

Jones was arrested the next day after the murder and has been in jail at Minnewaukon since that time. He is a former resident of Indiana where he spent quite a term in the penitentiary.

Assistant State's Attorney Vic Wardrope was assisted in the prosecution by B. G. Skulason of Grand Forks.

PLANS FOR THE PUBLIC BUILDING

EVERY EFFORT MADE TO RUSH FORWARD THE CONSTRUCTION

Congressman Steenerson has been doing everything in his power to push ahead the construction of Crookston's new $75,000 public building being in constant communication with the department having the different phases of work in charge. Mr. Steenerson this morning received a message from the architect's office at Washington, stating that the revising of the plans was under way and will be forwarded as soon as completed which will take about two weeks.

Bids will at once be called for, it taking usually thirty days before they are opened. The general impression is that the foundation at least will be finished this fall.

HELGELAND AND ANGUS LINE

FARMERS OF N. E. POLK IN COMMUNICATION WITH REST OF US

A co-operative telephone route has been established northeast from Angus into town of Helgeland, serving a number of farmers among them being: Mr. Sande, Mr. Gjerde, Oscar Hauglid, Ole Peterson, Gilbert Aurhaug, Albert Peterson, Christ Solvik, Albert Engen, John Olson, Andrew Olson, Elling Olson, Martin Carlson, Hans Christofferson, John Dobeas and Mr. Seoul.

Are Too Attentive to Thaw.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 22.—Harry K. Thaw, who is in jail here awaiting arguments on his application for a jury inquiry into his sanity, was yesterday locked up in the main prison by order of Sheriff Chanler, who told the jailers that Thaw was receiving so much attention that other duties were neglected.

Horses Cremated.

Pipestone, Minn., July 22.—The barn on the farm of Dr. W. J. Taylor, adjoining this city, burned, including four valuable horses, harnesses and feed, owned by William Ashenmacher, and a threshing machine owned by Bishop Bros. The fire was probably started by tramps.

HURLED DOWN RIVER BANK

THREE YOUNG LADIES FIGURE IN THRILLING RUN-AWAY THIS MORNING

HORSE DRIVEN BY MISS SOPHIE AMUNDSON TRIED TO PLAY CIRCUS

From Wednesday's Daily—

A horse driven by Miss Sophie Amundson, daughter of John Amundson residing 7 miles southeast of this city in Fairfax tried to play chariot race on a rough course this morning and as a result Miss Amundson with Miss Olga Loken, 410 Bridge street, and Miss Plazie Jabe figured in an exciting experience in which they miraculously escaped from being killed or terribly injured.

A Fast Ride

Miss Amundson was taking the other two young ladies for a drive about the city. As they crossed the G. N. tracks on Robert street going east, the horse started to run, and turning south on Main Street started at a breakneck speed, dashed across the Main Street bridge and tried to make the sharp turn to cross the other bridge leading to Broadway.

Hurled From Buggy

The short turn hurled the buggy upside down and the occupants went flying down the river bank almost to the water's edge. Luckily they met no obstruction, and striking on the sofe bank rolled over a few times and escaped with a few scratches and badly disarranged clothes. None were injured to amount to anything.

The Buggy Smashed

The buggy went partially over the bank and this held the horse for a few seconds before he tore loose, and several men caught it by the bridle. The buggy was smashed up some but not beyond repair. It was taken to a blacksmith shop, the young ladies retreated to the home of a friend for slight repairs to their wardrobe.

NEW SCENIC DRIVEWAY

NEW ROAD LEADING EAST OF THE CITY IS BEING PLANNED

BOTH FARMERS AND CITIZENS ARE INTERESTED IN PLAN

If present plans are carried out by the interested parties a new road leading into the city from the east will soon be established that will be unsurpassed for natural scenery. This road will begin on the section line, east of E. M. Walsh's residence, south of the race track barns and go due east three miles, it will pass about 20 rods north of J. M. Stephens' farm buildings, south of the militia shooting range near the Kelly farm buildings, and past Congressman Steeenerson's farm to a junction with the Gentilly road at A. K. Austin's farm.

This route will shorten the road a mile, relieving the necessity of going north a half mile and again south. Much of the road will skirt the river bank, and be therefore lined by large native trees making almost a continuous wooded lane. The road will be somewhat hilly and therein also lies a point in its favor as a driveway in a country where there is nothing but a level surface.

All the farmers affected by the road are in favor of its establishment and no doubt the citizens of Crookston are of the same mind as it will give them one of the finest driveways in the valley.

VIOLATION OF HEPBURN ACT DECLARES CHICAGO U. S. JUDGE

RAILWAY CLAIMED:
That it received a full money value based on schedule rates for the mileage or tickets issued and was not violating law.

STATE CLAIMED:
That the action of the railroad company in issuing such transportation constituted a violation of the Hepburn law.

JUDGE RULED:
That if it be lawful to make the exchange of railroad transportation for advertising then it would be lawful to do the same in every transaction, and the railroad business might lawfully become one of barter and sale, limited only by the demand.

In a decision handed down by Judge C. C. Kohlsaat in the United States circuit court, the jurist enjoined the issuance of transportation by the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway company to the publishers of Munsey's magazine in exchange for advertising.

The decision was rendered in a test case in which the federal authorities brought suit to prevent the carrying out of a contract entered into January, 1907, between the railroad company and Frank A. Munsey and company providing for the issuance of trip tickets or mileage to the value of $500 in consideration of certain advertising space in the publication of the magazine company. The contract was said to be a violation of the Hepburn law.

The petition charged that the action of the railroad company in issuing such transportation constituted a violation of the prohibition against the acceptance of any compensation for transportation "greater or less or different from that named in the published rates."

The railroad company claimed that it received a full money value based on scheduled rates for the mileage or tickets issued and denied that it was committing a violation of the law. In passing upon the question of compensation the decision says:

Values Contested

"The questions as to the value of the advertising is a contested one. Manifestly, there can be no fixed price placed upon it. The number of copies issued, the character of its subscribers and very many other questions enter into the estimate of its worth. It is therefore impossible to say what its cash market value is except by comparison with other advertising rates. It cannot be said that the evidence is conclusive or even convincing on this point. If it is taken at its cash value, why should the transportation be limited as specified in the contract? If the magazine is paying $500 to the defendant, why does it accept transportation both of less and different value than it would accept if it bought its tickets with money? It seems fair to conclude that either the advertising is of less than cash value or the advertisers are grossly imposed upon by the railroad.

After reciting several decisions rendered in somewhat similar cases, Judge Kohlsaat says:

Matter of Interest

"It will be noted that the contract does not require that the advertising must have been furnished before the transportation is given. There is no restriction upon the advertiser to call for his railroad tickets only so far as earned. In the mere matter of interest the rate would be less and different from that which is published.

"There is no mistaking the trend of the lawmaking and constructing powers. Every new step is tending toward a most rigid enforcement of the rule that requires exact equality in the matter of the rates. When by the Hepburn act the word "different" was added to the words "greater or less" it is not unfair to assume that congress intended to make the law more explicit and more difficult to evade. The plain intention is to close every avenue against discrimination. Bearing this in mind the courts have not been and will not be disposed to hesitate in giving insignificance to changes in the language of the statutes as they occur from time to time.

Fixed and Certain

"It is essential to the spirit of the statute the value of transportation be fixed and certain. In no other way can it be held exactly the same to all. If one person may purchase it with advertising another with labor and another with produce the value of which is a matter of agreement between the parties, how can it be said the schedule rate is always maintained. Would not the rate rest in the whim of the carrier? Such is not the intent of the law. To say to one man 'You must pay cash' and to his competitor 'You may pay in services or merchandise at prices we agree upon be it less or more than the market prices' would seem clearly to constitute such a difference in transportation as is condemned by the act.

"Some claim is made that the government's contention would exclude the use of checks and drafts and bills of exchange. This is without weight In practical business usage, these instruments pass for cash. The action of the defendant is in dissonance with the letter and spirit of the inter state commerce act."

Notice of an appeal to the United States supreme court was at once given by attorneys for the railroad company.

AUGUST 1ST WILL BE NEXT BIG MARKET DAY

MARKET DAY COMMITTEE MET YESTERDAY AND FORMULATED PLANS ON A FAR MORE EXTENSIVE PLAN THAN THE FIRST MARKET DAY—AUTO RIDE FOR FARMERS—PRIZES FOR BEST DRAFT TEAM, ETC—FREE AUCTIONEER WILL BE PROVIDED

The Crookston Market Day committee consisting of O. Mercil, Jr., John Cowley and Thomas R. Johnstone, the latter taking the place of Walter Stone, whose duties would not permit of his acting on the committee longer, held a meeting yesterday afternoon, and started the plans for Crookston's next Market Day, which will be Saturday, August 1st. The success of the first Market Day was so pronounced that the business men are enthusiastic about those to come in future. The farmers who were here in greater numbers than ever seen before, were also well pleased and will all be back August 1st together with hundreds who were not here before.

The committee is planning on some special entertainment features, and among other things the farmers with their wives and children will all be given an autoobile ride about the city to the state farm, the cemetery and other points of interest.

Among the amusement features will be a grand tug of war between picked teams from among the farmers and the city. There will be prizes for the best draft team, etc., complete details of which will be published later.

As before the auctioneer will sell anything the farmers bring in free of any charge whatsoever.

Watch for the complete program of Market Day.

SAYS FARMERS SHOULD USE HOME CREAMERIES

The following communication is taken from the Norman County Herald published at Ada and it fits so many people that the Journal believes it is well worth copying:

" To those who do not patronize their home creameries: You are looked upon as a short sighted crank by your neighbors and by everyone who knows you, and I shall try to tell you some the reasons why. First, because you are trying to tear down an industry which as a rule your neighbors have built up with their hard earned money and still you are more or less dependent on these very neighbors for your existence. What will you do without your neighbors? Who is it that built your schools and churches, helped pay your taxes, build your roads and bridges? It is your neighbors or is it the centralizers in the big cities? If you have a poor crop this fall, or hog cholera takes your hogs, or you cannot meet your bills, whom do you ask to sign a note with you; the centralizers or your neighbors? I have my opinion of whom you will ask. But do you deserve your neighbors' help? I guess nit! Go to those whom you help, if you expect help back again.

Tell your centralizer friends that the bridges you cross when you haul your cream to town, that such and such a bridge is out, and that you can't get to town before they come and put one in. Do you think you would ever get to town? I guess nit. Ask some of these people whom you patronize to sign a note with you for the $100.00 you want to buy some fresh cows so you may get more cream for them. They will tell you: I guess nit. But they will tell you to go to your neighbors.

Now aren't you ashamed to go to your neighbors for a favor, when you are doing him dirt in return? No, you generally are not ashamed of any thing. You are very short sighted, you must admit that. You even blow about doing so and so well with such and such a company with your cream, and you try to run the prices of your own goods down. Because every stone you pull from the foundation of a building is going to weaken it. And every patron you pull from the creamery, you weaken it, and the home creameries are the foundations for our butter prices today. The weaker the creamery gets the less the centralizers will pay you for your butter fat for the centralizers are in it for all there is in it. And now Mr. Centralizer patronizer you may want a county office or a state office some day. Do you think you will get it? I guess nit. Your neighbors know you. You are not looking for the benefit of your own pocket. They want men who will at least try to do something good for the country, especially if it does not cost anything to do so, as when you patronize your creamery, I wish all you centralizer patronizers would read this. This is not half of my opinion or your neighbors opinion of you.

Lamberton, Minn.

PLEASED WITH CROP OUTLOOK

J. H. GRIFFIN, INDUSTRIAL AGENT FOR G. N. IS OPTIMISTIC

OTHERS WHO ARE TRAVELING TAKE SAME VIEW OF THE OUTLOOK

From Saturday's Daily—

J. H. Griffin industrial agent of the Great Northern and formerly agent for the G. N. at Crookston, Grand Forks and Hallock prior to that, is spending the day up the St. Vincent line looking over the crop situation. Regarding the outlook Mr. Griffin said to a Journal representative this morning:

"I have travelled over every foot of the Great Northern lines in the northwest and I can say without reservation that in my opinion the prospects for a bountiful crop have not been as good in years. The recent rains have cleared away all doubt on that score. The wheat is a healthy color, the heads are long and filling splendidly, and we are going to harvest a crop that will make things hum.

"Wherever I have been, farmers as well as business men are most optimistic regarding the outlook, and business along all lines is picking up wonderfully."

Wm Lemen the pioneer wheat buyer of Angus who spent last night in the city and says the wheat crop in the township of Angus this year is as good as was ever grown there— and that means that it is as good as was ever raised in Polk County.

Supt. W. B. Sheffield who has been making the territory in all directions tributary to Crookston states that crop conditions are most promising and that there is no foundation for any scare based on damage done by the hot wave of a week ago.

Ed Carlson who has driven about the country surrounding Crookston a great deal stated to the Journal this morning that the fields certainly looked fine and that poor fields were very rare indeed.

CANADIAN CROP WILL BE SMALL

IMPLEMENT MEN OF WINNIPEG DECLARE THE CROP WILL BE SMALL

Special to the Journal:

Winnipeg, Man., July 18—The crop of the Canadian northwest this year will not be a record one even under the most favorable conditions according to the opinions of the leading machine and implement men of this city.

R. H. Potter manager of the International Harvester company, states that the farmers are very backward in ordering machinery and to date orders are not so heavy as last year.

J. W. Whiptneer of the J. I. Case company also complains of a lack of orders for threshing machines and says the drouth put a damper on the farmers and did damage on the Portage plains, around Souris and in the Red river valley.

Implement men generally put the crop at around one hundred million bushels. However these dampening statements are counterbalanced by statements made by Wm. Whyte, second vice president of the C. P. R., and a party returning to the city this evening who place the crop estimate at 125,000,000 bushels or over and say conditions could not be better for the largest wheat crop in the history of western Canada altho the straw crop will be poor.

NEW BAND ORGANIZED BY BYGLANDITES

Bandmaster Riggs returned this morning from Bygland where he organized a band comprised of the progressive young men of that township. There are 31 members all of more or less experience with band instruments, and in a very short time will have a musical organization that will be a credit to that section of Polk County. The Burnham Creek band is a good illustration of what can be accomplished in that line with a little effort. The band is composed of the following well known young men:

Clarionets — Martin Lindem, Adolph Grundyson, Elmer Thompson, B. Danielson.

Cornets—Albert Warden, Knute Sorenson, Tidmand Solstad, Daniel T. Danielson.

Altos—Rolf Olson, Daniel O. Danson, Peter Wardner, Gunnaf Moe.

KEEPS HUBBY IN JAIL FOR SIX LONG MONTHS

Sheriff of Devils Lake tries to get woman to appear in damage and divorce court but fails.

Deputy Frank Frye of the Sheriff's office at Devils Lake, N. D., and Sever Serungard state's attorney of Ramsey county, N. D., arrived in this city last night from the west and drove out to the state experimental farm ditch north of this city where they called on Mrs. Benjamin Regan cook in the ditching camp, in a futile attempt to get her to appear against her husband in a divorce suit now pending before the court there.

In Jail Six Months

For Mrs. Benjamin Regan now of this city, has been keeping her husband for six months in the county jail at Devils Lake on account of her non-appearance.

Benjamin Regan is a wealthy farmer living near Devils Lake and is now under bonds for $10,000 charged with having carnal knowledge of his own daughter. He was arrested six months ago on a charge of having attacked and having broken the nose of his wife, the woman now located at the Wyand ditching camp north of the city.

Straightway after filing this complaint and following the arrest of her husband and his consequent incarceration Mrs. Regan came to Crookston and remained for a time at the residence of Mrs. Emma Rasmussen, 315 North Main street. Then she obtained the position as cook for the John Wyand ditching crew on the contract near the Experimental farm.

Spent Money Freely

About three weeks ago there arrived in Crookston a twelve year old boy having in his possession $127. On account of a promiscuous purchase by this boy of knickknacks about the city stores he was taken in tow by the police. It was found that his name was Regan of Devils Lake, son of Benjamin Regan and that he had been sent by his father with the money he had to Crookston to find his mother and pay her way back to Devils Lake. Chief of Police Vonderbeck sent the child back to Devils Lake with what money he had left ($40).

Stick by Stepmother

However the boy immediately returned to Crookston, bringing with him from his fatherless home his sister and brother, both smaller than himself and now these three children of Benjamin Regan live with his abused wife at the ditching camp.

Mrs. Regan's name before she was married was Stacer. Her husband is now dead. There were no children. The children now seeking refuge with Mrs. Regan here are her stepchildren. They also refuse to leave their present location and stick by their stepmother.

Mrs. Regan is still at the ditching camp.

BEFORE COURT IN RECORD TIME

LODGORD CASE STARTED JULY 9 —HEARING SET FOR JULY 17TH

TEST CASE BEFORE SUPREME COURT BY SPECIAL ORDER

From Friday's Daily—

The case of Edward Lodgord against the ~~city~~ of East Grand Forks to determine whether that city can issue municipal bonds for water works, electric lights and other public utilities over ten per cent of its valuation has established a new record in the courts of this part of the state for fast work.

The general opinion prevails that the machinery of the courts grinds slow however exceeding fine. Attorney Finlayson and Sorley and Judge Watts will now be able to controvert the first part of this statement.

In the case of Lodgord against E. Grand Forks the first papers were filed July 9th and the case was brought before Judge Watts July 10th the next day.

Attorney Sorley for East Grand Forks straightway demurred to the complaint and Judge Watts upheld the demurrer. The evening of July 10th the two attorneys journeyed to St. Paul and appeared in person before the supreme court of the state.

The cases generally for the hearing beforge the judges of the supreme court have to be filed in April, but by special order the supreme court

OLE E. HAGEN A ROSEAU CANDIDATE

FORMER JUDGE OF PROBATE OF POLK CO., WOULD BE COUNTY AUDITOR

Ole E. Hagen formerly of Crookston has filed as a candidate for the Republican nomination for county auditor of Roseau Co., and if the people of Roseau county know him as well as he is known in Polk county he will win in a walk. Mr. Hagen was for years a resident of Polk Co., during which time he edited several papers and is one of the most vigorous and fearless writers in the northwest. He served three terms as judge of probate of Polk county and was a most efficient public official. If elected Roseau County will have a most excellent official filling an important office.

One plank in the democratic platform is made of free lumber but no one can say much for the kind of lumber in the other planks.

U. S. SENATOR NELSON PAYS CROOKSTON VISIT

United States Senator Knute Nelson arrived in the city yesterday afternoon after a week's tour of Canada. In an interview with a Journal representative he said: "I find the crop situation generally good in Canada. Of course there are bad streaks, but speaking generally the fields look fine for a new country. Of course the area is so large that there are great stretches which are not tilled at all, and there are some localities where the fields are tilled but look bad, but I saw many fine fields during my week's trip.

"On the flat land near Winnipeg however, the crops are poor, the straw being short and the fields have a sickly look.

"What the Canadians now fear the most is frost. Last year they were hit heavily, and there is a great deal of anxiety for fear the present crop might be damaged. If the frost keeps off they will have a generally prosperous year.

"I notice a great difference between the cities in Canada and those in Minnesota. Prince Albert, for instance is scattered all over the country and seems to lack that solidity and stability that is apparent with us. They claim 20,000 and I should judge they have about half that number of people.

"I note a wonderful development in Northern Minnesota. I stopped off at Warren on some business with Judge Grindeland and little cities of that size show the result of a steady improved method of farming being adopted in this section. Riding along on the train I noted some splendid herds of cattle which I never saw before in my trips to this section.

"Then too I noted that on the local train on which I rode from Warren to Crookston, that at every station there were platforms full of cream cans to be loaded for shipment to the creameries and to the twin cities. This is the key to your present high degree of prosperity.

"I took a drive about Crookston this evening and could scarcely believe this the same city I visited in 1892 when I was making my first campaign for governor. You are growinw wonderfully and the farms which we saw all looked well kept up with good pastures, fine fields and a general air of prosperity apparent.

"Taft will be elected. I believe he will carry several of the southern states. I do not know how much campaign work will be assigned to me. I am in the hands of the committee and they can send me where they choose. Bryan will have a big fight on his hands in the East.

"From here I go directly home to the farm at Alexandria and watch the pumpkins grow for a while."

A Wonderful Memory

Senator Nelson has a wonderful memory. In conversation with a Journal representative he recalled some of his first visits to Crookston. In the fall of 1892 when he was making his first campaign for governor he was snowbound in Crookston and sat up till day break in Mrs. Rose's restaurant while waiting for a train for Hawley where he was booked for an address. When he reached Hawley the audience had dispersed. They had waited till midnight. The senator remembers where the various business houses were located in the early days and the proprietors.

Recalled Old Timers

Senator Nelson displayed a lively interest in the old timers of the city and asked about scores of them. Mr. Jennings, a brother of I. U. Jennings was running the Sherman House when Senator Nelson first visited Crookston, Zwickey was sheriff and he wanted to know all about the present whereabouts of all the men who were "making the big noise" in the early days.

MADMAN LEAPED FROM FLYING G. N. TRAIN

From Tuesday's Daily—

Last evening William Cyr, who was adjudged insane in Judge Monken's court here yesterday afternoon, leaped across the body of a sleeping priest and jumped thru a car window, headforemost, to freedom five miles below Barnesville last evening.

Leaped Thru Window

Cyr was being taken to Fergus Falls by Deputy Sheriffs Louis and George Gonyea. He had been perfectly quiet up to the time of his awful leap for liberty, and was being lead to the closet, Louis Gonyea walking ahead of him and George at the rear. A priest was asleep in a double seat and had the car window up. Cyr saw his chance, and springing like a tiger dived thru the window headforemost the whole transaction taking less time than it takes to read it.

The Chase Started

The train was brought to a sudden halt and the deputies and one of the brakemen started back to look for Cyr. They searched high and low for him at the point where he jumped, but there was no trace of the man to be found. The three then walked back to Barnesville, George Gonyea returning to Crookston this morning, the brakeman boarding No. 8 and catching No. 6 farther down while Louis Gonyea hired a livery rig early this morning and started back to a hay camp near where Cyr had leaped from the train, to search for the madman at large.

The Madman Landed

A telephone message from Deputy Sheriff Louis Gonyea from Barnesville this afternoon is to the effect that the prisoner was landed early today and that he was not injured at all as the result of his thrilling leap from the train. Cyr will be taken to Fergus Falls tonight.

Sucidal Tendencies

Cyr was arrested yesterday afternoon on complaint of one of the Capistrans for whom he had been working for the past three days. He had been working around here for the past three years, his parents residing at Grand Rapids, Minn. He had been writing a book recently in which the central thought was that every hand was raised against him.

He had also muttered vaguely about suicide and Drs. Kjelland and Just who examined him decided that his mind was unbalanced as the result of acute melancholia.

It was feared that in his frame of mind he was apt to committ any terrible deed that struck his fancy of mind and he was accordingly ordered committed to Fergus Falls.

JOINED CO-OPERATIVE CREAMERY ASSOCIATION

Chas. A. Morse, of Sauk Centre, secretary of the Minnesota Co-operative Dairies Association, spoke at Clearbrook and Gonvick July 9th, at Weme July 8th at Bagley and Shevlin, July 10th. His mission was to explain to the farmers the advantages and benefits derived foom this association by the creameries. The result, as far as we have been able to learn was that all the aforesaid creameries joined the association, Berner had already enrolled. Co-operation in Clearwater county is manifestation of success.

MANY SCHOOL MA'AMS ATTENDING SUMMER SCHOOL

The attendance at the Marshall Co., summer school at Warren has passed the eighty mark and is still climbing. Good work is being done by the student-teachers and their instructors, work that will make for better teaching in the rural schools. The County superintendent has introduced the study of agriculture, and finds that it is creating a great deal of interest. Edna L. Glenn, Emelia Lewton, Ina Mae Phillips, Ada H. Tofslv, Christine Ulseth of Crookston are in attendance.

Worry Worse than Fatigue

More people worry themselves out than wear out by work and then when they begin to grow thin from worrying over other things, they worry becouse they are growing thin. The best thing for nervousness is the regular use of a good malt tonic at mealtime. Take a glass of golden grain belt beer with your meals and at bedtime. It builds up overworked nerve tissues and insures renewed health to body and brain. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

ROAD WORK IS ILLEGAL

NONE DONE THIS YEAR IN POLK ACCORDING TO LAW OF 1907

POSTMASTER STEENERSON ADDRESSES BOARD—ACTION WILL BE TAKEN

From Monday's Daily—

This afternoon Postmaster Elias Steenerson appeared before the county board of commissioners and called their attention to the fact that none of the repairs on public highways this year had been in accordance with the provisions of the law of 1907 which provide that all work be done under the general supervision of the county superintendent of highways, Johannes Beim of Fosston for Polk Co., and under the direct supervision of the township inspectors of highways.

Postmaster Steenerson appeared in behalf of the rural mailcarriers who some of whom have complained about the method of some townships in throwing dirt in the middle of the highway and making it almost impassable.

There are six mail carriers, serving practically all the farmers within a radius of 15 miles of Crookston, and they draw $900 a year each and spend it all here. They are entitled to consideration, and the government provides that good roads are one of the requisites of rural mail service.

Postmaster Steenerson called the attention of the board to the fact that under the old system practically all the road work was done in a haphazard and unsystematic manner, and that chapter 458 of the laws of '07 should be enforced.

The county board took the same view of the case and will instruct County Supt. of Highways Beim to notify the township inspectors at once that future work must be done under his supervision and in a systematic manner, and that all roads which are being repaired must be smoothed down with a roller, acme harrow or a split log drag.

Thus far all those doing work on roads have in reality been trespassers, having no right whatever to do work under the old plan.

The action of the county board, if the plans are carried out as they should be, will mark an epoch in the history of roadmaking in Polk county and the commissioners as well as Postmaster Steenerson are to be congratulated on starting the ball rolling in that direction.

COULTER HOME IS BURNED TO GROUND

LOSS $3,000 WITH SMALL INSURANCE—ORIGIN OF FIRE A MYSTERY

At 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning the George Coulter residence, five miles south east of East Grand Forks was burned to the ground with the greater part of its contents. The fire had gained great headway before it was noticed and nothing could be done to stop the work of the flames The origin of the fire is a mystery and it will never be known just how it started.

When the fire broke out two of the men were working near the house and the children were in the yard, Mr. Coulter having gone to E. Grand Forks on business. The fire started in the back part of the residence which was a large one made up of two houses spliced, as it were, together. It would seem that the blaze started somewhere near the stove but as there was practically no fire in the stove this is not a satisfactory explanation, according to Mr. Coulter, who is at a loss to account for the origin. No explosion was heard by those in the vicinity of the house. When the hired men saw that they could do nothing to save the building considerable of the furniture was carried out the family assisting in the work. Some of the most valuable articles in the house, including a magnificent buffalo robe valued at $100 were in storage and could not be saved. A telephone message failed to reach Mr. Coulter, who was already on his return trip and he found the home which he had left but a short time before in total ruins. Coming at this time the loss is felt all the more as the farm is a big one and farm hands and farm work must be taken care of. Mr. Coulter secured a tent for temporary use as a dwelling. The house tho not a modern one, was large and roomy and the loss with furniture will be about $3,000. This is covered by $800 insurance which is on the building alone.

AUTO TURNS A SOMERSAULT

MRS. GEO. F. CARPENTER SUFFERS BROKEN LIMB IN AN ACCIDENT

AUTO JAMMED UP SOME—MR. CARPENTER ESCAPED WITH SCRATCHES

From Monday's Daily—

Sunday afternoon while riding in an automobile 7 miles west of the city the machine slewed in some sand while rounding a corner and ran off a culvert, over turning the machine and pinning Mrs. Geo. F. Carpenter underneath it, breaking one of her limbs and bruising her up badly.

Mr. Carpenter who was driving the machine was thrown several rods but aside from a bad shaking up and the loss of a little skin, escaped uninjured.

Mrs. Carpenter was at once removed to the farm house of Jos. Farley and Dr. H. H. Hodgson drove from this city and reduced the fracture after which the injured woman was brought to her home in this city in a hack and is doing as well as could be expected after such a shaking up. While the auto was turned bottom side up the machine was going at a high rate of speed it is almost miraculous that both occupants were not crushed to death instantly.

Mr. Carpenter earlier in the afternoon had taken the children out riding but had left them at home when he took Mrs. Carpenter, there being no one in the auto at the time of the spill but Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter. Had the children been in there would without doubt have been further injuries, if not, indeed fatalities.

VIENNES SAVANT ENCOUNTERS HARDSHIPS TOURING AMERICA

WANTED CIGARETTES, NOTHING DOING—WONDERS WHAT IS THIS "LAND OF FREE"

From Wednesday's Daily—

America is unwittingly putting into effect a virtual exclusion act against the foreigner who must drink with his meals. This is the grave warning promulgated yesterday by Dr. Adolf Cluss professor of Vienna university and agent of his government on a trip of inspection of agricultural methods of the United States who was in Crookston on a tour of the Northwest.

"This is what they call 'the land of the free and the home of the brave', yet some places I cannot buy cigarettes and places I cannot get anything to drink with my meals," said Dr. Cluss at the Hotel Crookston. "Yesterday I was in Fargo, N. D., he smiled and put his hand to his throat swallowing as tho it was still dry. "I had to go across the river to get anything to drink.

"This is a most interesting country but I would not like to have to stay here. I cannot eat without something to drink with my meals. It is by this way you are keeping many people from abroad out of this country. They do not wish to have to put up with these things. One hears it everywhere abroad. 'What do you think of America?' you ask. And those who have been here smile and say, 'It is not such a very free country as it sounds.'"

Dr. Cluss has been in the United States for six months studying agricultural methods and in that time has been almost all over the country from east to west and even into Florida and Cuba. As to his investigations he preferred not to talk, saying that he was reserving the results of his observations for his report to his government.

MORE FARMERS HAVE PHONES

FARMERS' UNION TELEPHONE LINE COMPLETED 16 MILES NORTHWEST

OVER SCORE MORE OF PROGRESSIVE FARMERS CAN TALK TO CROOKSTON

From Monday's Daily—

The Farmers' Union Telephone Co., has completed their new line running from Crookston to Key West, covering 16 miles of line and connecting with the farm homes of over a score of the most progressive of Polk County farmers. The telephone is one of the greatest instrumentalities in removing the most objectionable feature of farm life, isolation, and the farmers on the new line can now order their groceries, get market quotations for butter, eggs, pork, etc., and know to a cent what they will receive for any produce they may have to bring to the city, and sell it before they leave home, saving much bother after arriving in the city. Following is the list of progressive farmers on the new line and more will be connected later:

C. C. Brown, Wm. Brown, J. Brown, Wm. Samson, Louis Wentzel, Aug. Wentzel, Wm. Wagner, Chas. Wagner, Adolph Wagner, D. H. Nesbit, Hans Rasmussen, John Ross, Chas. Ross, Jos. Retzner, Nels Woodstrom, N. Shankey, Robert Voelker, Julius Voelker, Wm. Reitmeier, E. Rayburn, J. Parmenter.

MAGER SECURES A DIVORCE

WIFE FIRST BROUGHT SUIT BUT THE HUSBAND WAS SUCCESSFUL

At Pembina Judge W. J. Kneeshaw has granted a divorce to John F. Mager, who is a well known flour mill man of Walhalla, from Rose Mager. Mrs. Mager brought the suit for divorce but Mager succeeded in showing the court that he was the one entitled to a decree. The evidence in the case was the most sensational that has ever been submitted in Pembina. Detectives told of Mrs. Mager's escapades, involving many well known people. There were trips to Grand Forks and other points and lots of the evidence could not well be published.

LIGHT ON FUNDS OF STATE G.O.P.

REPUBLICANS WILL DISCUSS PUBLICITY TODAY AT ST. PAUL

COMMITTEE WILL ALSO DISCUSS JACOBSON'S STUMPING CAMPAIGN

From Wednesday's Daily—

J. F. Jacobson, republican nominee for the governorship of Minnesota will be called upon today to decide how and where the campaign funds shall be solicited. This will be one of the most important matters to be considered by the executive committee of the state central committee at its meeting in St. Paul.

The demand for publicity relative to contributions to campaign funds has been recognized by both the republican and democratic candidates for the presidency and in certain states has taken the form of legislation requiring campaign committees to file itemized statements of receipts and expenditures.

Heretofore in this state campaign managers have accepted contributions from all possible sources, with and without strings and have made no further accounting than to report that all the money obtained had been spent.

Members of the executive committee realize that the people want to know more about the inner affairs of the republican organization than they have been permitted to know in the past, and particularly do they want to know who the largest contributors are. To what extent the public will be admitted to the confidences of the committee will depend largely on Mr. Jacobson himself. If he wants to refuse money from any source it will be for him to say, and his wish will be respected.

Another important matter will be to map out a tour for Mr. Jacobson. He expects to take the stump himself but how hard he will work will depend partly on the style of a fight put up by his democratic adversary.

Mr. Jacobson spoke yesterday in Lac qui Parle county, an dthis was his first public address, since the state convention. The occasion is not understood to have been of a political character, and Mr. Jacobson was not expected to make a real campaign talk.

OAT HARVEST THIS WEEK

WM. BENNING HAS FIELD THAT IS READY FOR THE SICKLE NOW

WILD OATS AND OTHER FOUL WEEDS WILL BE CUT BEFORE RIPE

From Monday's Daily—

Wm. Benning is in the city today from his farm in the township of Fairfax just south of Marin Station and brought with him a fine sample of Early Champion oats which are ready for the harvest. He will start cutting them about Wednesday, tho they could be cut at once if it was necessary.

Mr Benning sowed these oats from the 6th to the 9th of April thus it took them about 100 days to mature. They will be harvested and the ground plowed before the other grain is ready, which will be almost as good for the land as summer fallowing it.

In addition to this the early harvest of oats cleans the land of all foul weeds. The wild oats are not yet ripe and will be so light they will all be blown out with the chaff when the grain is threshed, and the same will be true of all other foul weeds, none of them will be ripe.

The sample brought in, which can be seen in the Journal window is a very fine one. The heads are well filled and the oat Kernels are large and fat.

Mr. Benning says this variety, which he has raised for the past ten years thrives in this section, and is one of the surest crops he has ever raised, in addition to having the peculiar advantage of thriving when sown very early, thus maturing before even the earliest barley.

CROOKS TRY TO WORST CREW

DECLINE TO GET OFF G. N. TRAIN FROM FARGO TO [illegible]RAND FORKS

ABOUT SIXTY OF T[illegible] ARE FORCED TO LEAVE TR[illegible] AT HILLSBORO

From Tuesday's Daily—

A Great Northern train crew ha [illegible] exciting time Sunday night [illegible] about three score crooks and hobo who were anxious to get from Fargo to Grand Forks to take in the fair there. They climber on a freight train at Fargo and defied the trainmen. When Hillsboro was reached the conductor got instructions to put them off without fail. With the assistance of Hillsboro officials he succeeded in putting the men off, but they were ugly and inclined to storm the train and come on anyway. The conductor decided to fool them. He pretended that he had orders to sidetrack for a passenger train and backed his train up quite a distance. Then the train came ahead and dashed past the outlaws on the platform at a terrific rate of speed. They were unable to get aboard.

Will Meet Them

Grand Forks officers have been instructed to give the invaders a warm reception if they came there.

Freight trains have been crowded for several days with men who are stealing rides to the harvest fields and some of the trainmen have exciting experiences with them. Mingled with the workers are a lot of tramps who admit that they are not looking for work. They decline work in the hay and harvest fields at good wages.

Will Keep Lid On

The lid is to be kept on tight during the four days of the Grand Forks fair, it is announced by State's Attorney Wineman. The police have been ordered to seize any liquor or gambling outfit that may be found on the grounds.

Last night several sharpers who had planned to open up there left for Casselton, where there was a carnival. They were informed that they could not work there and decided to take a chance in the Cass County town.

BUCKMAN'S HAY LOADING APPARATUS

CROOKSTON MAN DESIGNS AND CONSTRUCTS NEW HAY STACKING CONTRIVANCE

Joseph Buckman of east Fourth Street has designed, constructed and tested a new hay stacking apparatus that is proving to be a great labor saver and will have it patented.

Mr. Buckman's hay stacker is in two parts, a buckrake and elevating shute. The buckrake is made almost the same as any strawbucker with the exception that the forward prongs are on hinges and can be released by a lever to let the load drop when it reaches the top of the incline or elevating chute. The later is built like any ordinary chute, it can be raised and lowered at will. The buck rake is pulled by two horses and follows the rows made by the hayrake and when loaded is dragged to the stack, slid up the elevating chute and dumped on the top of the stack. Stacks of any height can be made by this contrivance. Mr. Buckman believes that he has invented a great labor saver that is simple in construction and can be made very cheaply.

OLD RESIDENT DIED AFER LONG ILLNESS

This morning, shortly before noon, Mrs. A. Capistran breathed her last after a long illness at the family home near the Glenn residence. She was 51 years of age and died of a complication of ailments with which she has been troubled for some time past. She leaves a husband and six children. The funeral announcements will be made later.

You could never make a man see that it is not mere generosity that moves him to send home to his wife a box of the special kind of fruit he likes.

BINDER TWINE OUTPUT LARGE

GRADING FOR NEW PRISON AND ERECTION OF THE BUILDINGS

MAKING GOOD PROGRESS AT STILLWATER—FIFTEEN MILLION POUNDS MADE

From Wednesday's Daily—

The output of binder twine at the state prison will be larger than intended even a few weeks ago and will exceed that of last year by at least 2,000,000 pounds. It was intended to quit working overtime in the factory at the end of this month but orders have been received that will cover more than the possible product up to Aug. 6 and still orders are coming in.

The manufacture thus far has exceeded 14,500,000 pounds and will run up to a considerable amount more. Warden Wolfer is not yet able to determine when the factory will quit working overtime. The harvest is a little late in some sections and it is a big one. The shipments of twine are being made now as fast as manufactured, the storage supply having been exhausted some time ago. There have been orders received from North Dakota but the Minnesota farmers are being given the preference. The indications are that the prison could sell the product of a much largely increased twine factory.

The two buildings at the new prison site are going up rapidly. The work on the walls is in progress with a large force of men. One of these buildings will be used for additional twine making machinery. The regular factory at the old prison will go on steadily after this season making binder twine and to that will be added the product of the new factory so that next year there will be a greater output altho it is not expected to even then meet the requirements.

Warden Wolfer has a force of eighteen teams and twenty-five men busy grading for additional buildings to be erected next summer.

GOLD MEDAL FOR DR. C. S. PUTNAM

MUSICIANS PRESENTED LEADER WITH AN ELEGANT TOKEN

When the members of Putnam's band were assembled at Stone's hall Saturday evening receiving their bouquets for the week's engagement at the state fair, G. Oliver Riggs, leader of the Crokston band who acted as assistant director and cornet soloist in the Putnam organization, took the floor and in a characteristic speech, presented the genial doctor with an order for an elegant gold medal the design to be selected by the recipient On account of the lack of time the members of the band were unable to get just what they wanted and an order was placed with a local jeweler.

Putnam's band was composed of the best players in the Red river valley. —Fargo Call.

It was a high compliment to the Crookston band that Bandmaster Riggs was selected as Assistannt Bandmaster and that James Heng was one of the performers selected. Other members of the Crookston band were asked to play but could not leave the city.

HISGEN INDEPENDENT PARTY PRESIDENT

Massachusetts Man And John Temple Graves Are Independence Party Candidates.

Chicago, July 29.—President, Thomas L. Hisgen, of Massachusetts; vice president John Temple Graves of Georgia.

The above ticket was last night nominated by the Independence party at its first national convention.

The nomination of Mr. Hisgen was made on the third ballot his chief competitors being Milford W. Howard of Alabama and John Temple Graves of Georgia. Reuben B. Lyon of New York received a complimentary vote on the first ballot, and William Randolph Hearst had 49 friends who voted for him on the first two ballots. The nomination of Mr. Graves was made unanimously all other candidates having been withdrawn.

Chicago, July 29 — The Independence party today adopted its platform and perfected its temporary organization. Tonight it will proceed to the nomination of the presidential ticket But little work was accomplished at the first session because of the protracted debate among members of the resolutions committee on the question of how the currency plank should be expressed.

The main floor of the hall, in which some of the largest gatherings are held in this city, was filled by the delegates. There were no alternates. The galleries were crowded with a throng which entered heartily into the spirit of the proceedings, and throughout the night applauded vigorously whatever met their approval.

Demonstration for Hearst.

At a few minutes after 8 o'clock the delegates came trooping into the hall, New York heading the column. New York cheered every other delegation and the other delegations cheered New York, then they cheered each other and then themselves until the hall rang again and again. The demonstration lasted about fifteen minutes and continued for some time after the delegates were in their seats.

The entrance of George McCasker, whom the Illinois delegates are supporting for the gubernatorial nomination, was a signal for cheers "for the next governor of Illinois." This outburst had scarcely subsided when the arrival of W. R. Hearst started a delirious demonstration.

Delegates Parade Hall.

The hall was in an uproar as he mounted the steps leading to the platform. He took no notice of the demonstration but after remaining on the rostrum for about three minutes in consultation with the secretary of the convention, descended into the body of the hall, taking a seat with the New York delegation. His action was a signal for renewed cheering, and the delegates shouting, "Hearst! Hearst!" immediately started on a parade around the hall, chanting continuously the name of the New York editor. The parade continued for several minutes before quiet was restored.

Call Is Read.

It was thirty-five minutes past the scheduled time when the temporary sergeant-at-arms rapped for order. Milton W. Howard of Alabama took the gavel and introduced Charles A. Walsh of Iowa, secretary of the provisional national committee, who read the call for the convention. This document declared the purpose of the gathering to be the foundation of an independent party and the nomination of candidates for president and vice president. Father O'Callahan of Chicago delivered the invocation.

Hearst Is Chairman.

Mr. Howard, at the conclusion of the invocation, announced the names of the temporary officers of the convention. His mention of the name of Mr. Hearst was received with an outburst of applause, and Mr. Hearst when he mounted the rostrum was given an uproarious welcome. When quiet had been restored he began his address as temporary chairman of the convention.

Mr. Hearst delivered his address with intense earnestness, driving home his points in an emphatic manner that carried the convention with him from the start to the close of his address. His description of Mr. Bryan as the "Knight in Motley" called forth great laughter and applause, and his allusions to other Democratic leaders also excited the cheers of his hearers. At the conclusion of his address he was given an ovation that continued for several minutes.

Committees Are Named.

Mr. Reuben B. Lyon of New York was called to the chair and directed the secretary to read the membership lists of the various convention committees.

After an address by C. A. Windle of Chicago, the convention adjourned until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The committee on rules and permanent organization, which met immediately after the convention, selected Charles A. Walsh of Iowa as permanent chairman and adopted a rule that no speech from the platform should exceed five minutes in length and that no delegate should be heard upon one subject more than once.

The committee on resolutions organized by electing Howard S. Taylor of Chicago as chairman.

STATE SCHOOL LAND SALES

$300,000 HAS BEEN ADDED TO THE STATE SCHOOL FUND

LANDS BRING GOOD PRICES — 35,000 ACRES SOLD — 2,500,000 ACRES LEFT

From Wednesday's Daily—

As a result of the sale of state lands which ended at Fergus Falls, about $300,000 has been added to the school funds of the state. A little of the land was university or swamp land, but most of the preceeds will be turned into the school fund.

Not so much land was sold as during the sales of last year, but the average price has been better. About 35,000 acres are sold at an average price of $7.50 an acre. The buyers included a large number of men from Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska. Much of the land is excellent grass land and proved rather attractive to the men from other states.

State Auditor Iverson conducted the sale at Fergus Falls Friday and disposed of 340 acres on small offerings. The total amount sold last week was about 8,000 acres and the average price was $10 an acre. The highest price last week was $16.25 for a quarter section in Mille Lac county.

Despite the fact that more than 35,000 acres was disposed of during the last series of sales, the state still has more land than it can easily count, the remaining state land being estimated at 2,500,000 acres. Most of this is not tillable at present, however.

The average amount taken by each purchaser has been about 80 acres. The law prohibits the sale of more than 320 acres to one buyer. It is required that the buyer pay 15 per cent on the day of the sale and interest on the balance to June 1. He can then take forty years to pay the rest with interest at 4 per cent.

The heavy rains in the early part of the summer discouraged many people from looking at the land who might otherwise have been found in the list of buyers.

THE SCHOOL BANK AN INNOVATION

A COMMENDABLE SYSTEM RAPIDLY GROWING IN FAVOR IN MANY TOWNS

The habit of saving is steadily growing as shown not only by the bank reports as published from time to time, but also by the reports of the adoption of Penny Savings by several of the public schools thruout the country. One of the latest cities to consider this method is Sioux City, Iowa, as disclosed in a dispatch the other day as follows:

"Sioux City public schools are likely to adopt the penny savings system now in use in Des Moines and in the cities. Director Henry G. Gardiner is one of the members of the school board who is anxious to instill a spirit of saving into the more than 7,000 little folks who attend Sioux City's public schools. He will write to presidents of penny provident associations in different parts of the country. He intends to find out the inside workings of the plan and present it at the August meeting of the board of education."

FINE WEATHER FOR HAYING

ALL THE FARMERS BUSY—HAY CROP NOT UP TO THE AVERAGE

Practically every farmer in the Red River Valley is busy with the hay harvest. The tame hay in places is a good crop but as a rule is light, and the wild hay is all much lighter than last year, and hay will be hay the coming year.

However the weather has been ideal for putting up hay and all there is will be saved. Some of the farmers are having some trouble in securing necessary help but men will be more plentiful from now on as they are beginning to arrive for the harvest and will work in the hay fields till the grain is ripe.

MUST HURRY TO GET LAND

NORTHERN PACIFIC RESERVING TRACTS UNDER THE LAND GRANT ACT

WILL NOT SECURE WITHIN 3,000,000 ACRES OF ITS ALLOTMENT

From Wednesday's Daily—

Renewed activity is being shown by the Northern Pacific in locating and securing for itself land to which it is entitled, according to the grants made by the government at the time the charter was issued and at later dates. Employes of the road are visiting the various government land offices and looking up vacant land lying in the vicinity of their line, with a view to securing it for their road.

Officials of the road state that the extensive forest reserves recently set aside by the government in the states of Montana, Idaho and Oregon have so reduced the area of the land from which they expected to make selections that they have felt it necessary to make every effort to secure all they could.

At the time the Northern Pacific was chartered the federal government gave to the road a land grant which embraced every alternate section in a tract extending twenty miles on each side of the line thru the states of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Oregon, and forty miles each side in the then territories of Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Washington. To indemnify the road for any losses which might accrue from the land within the original grant, having already been taken up by settlers, or being set aside for Indian reservations, the road was to be allowed to select an additional strip of land extending ten miles further whenever necessary.

By an act passed May 30, 1870 the grant was extended ten miles more on each side to provide for losses in the original grant between the time it was made and the time the land was surveyed and definitely located.

Still another 10-mile strip was added to the land from which the road might select to make up for losses due to the finding of large tracts of mineral lands within the old grant which the road was prohibited from appropriating.

Under Last Extension

It is under the provisions of this last named extension that employes of the land department of the Northern Pacific are now working to secure more land and it is this activity that has led to a report that the road had been given an additional grant at the last session of congress thru a "joker."

"Up to within the past few years the Northern Pacific has been resting easy in the matter of land believing that with all the land open to it there would be little difficulty in securing all the land to which the road was entitled," said an official today, "but since the western country has been settling up so rapidly and so much land has been set aside by the government for forest reserves and Indian reservations the road has been making strenuous endeavors to locate all the land possible. As it is under the most favorable conditions the road will be some 3,000,000 acres 'shy' on its grant.

HEAVY YIELD EARLY GRAIN

NOTHING BUT A CALAMITY WILL PREVENT BIG RETURNS TO FARMERS

LATE SOWN GRAIN NEEDS SOAKING RAIN TO MAKE AN AVERAGE CROP

From Saturday's Daily—

The progress of the crops during the past week has been just fair. The early grain is coming on in excellent shape and is beyond the point where dry weather will affect it and is certain to make a big harvest barring two possible calamities—hot winds during the critical period of filling and maturing, and hail. Nothing outside of these two things can prevent a big yield of all early wheat, oats and barley and the early flax is also a big crop.

During the past week however the late sown grain has not made much progress on account of lack of moisture. A good soaking rain is needed to bring the late grain on to make a fair crop. Late grain will not yield heavily under the most favorable conditions from this time till harvest, but an average yield will result if a good rain falls within a few days.

A careful survey of the conditions in this section the past two days has developed the fact that there are to be found some fields which will yield very poorly, but those are the exception and not the rule.

The coming week will witness the harvesting of a good many barley fields. Several farmers cut small fields this week, and a few harvested their oats, but they were of an exceptionally early variety. The oats and barley cut were all heavy straw and above average yield.

DEPORTED TO RED LAKE FALLS

ASLAK SALVESON MINNESOTA RESIDENT WILL BE TAKEN FROM N. D. ASYLUM

The N. Dakota board of insanity held a meeting yesterday and ordered the removal of Aslak Salveson from the asylum in Jamestown to Red Lake Falls, Minn. Salveson was sent to Jamestown from Grand Forks a few weeks ago. At the time it was thought probable that he was a resident of Minnesota but his condition was such that he could not longer be held in the county jail. The board of control of Minnesota has admitted that Salveson is a resident of Minnesota and Sheriff O. G. Hanson left for Jamestown yesterday to get Salveson and return him to Red Lake Falls.

LARGEST CROP YET HARVESTED

IS THE OUTLOOK FOR DAKOTAS AND MINNESOTA SAYS JONES

BUSINESS OUTLOOK FOR THE NORTHWEST VERY ENCOURAGING

From Saturday's Daily—

Herschel V. Jones returned to Minneapolis yesterday from the country with word that from present indications the northwest will this year produce the largest all round crop of grain in its history.

"I have traveled over all parts of three states. The prospect is for a good all round crop. There are no sensational features in sight. The crop promises well for wheat, oats and barley, with a possible decrease in flax. Oats and barley will increase considerably over last year and it is reasonable to expect the largest yield of all grains, taken together, the northwest has ever produced. The acreage of all grains is very large. Some new acreage lying in the far west counties will not be very productive but its product will help swell the production total.

"There are great changes taking place in the crop area of the northwest. Counties that a few years ago were large wheat producers have turned almost wholly to other crops and to dairying. On the other hand, counties that a few years ago were giving small averages of spring wheat, due to the natural dryness of the soil, are now heavy producers of durum wheat This crop has been objected to but it it not fair to criticise it as a crop for dry soils. It has its place at that point, but in my judgment it is not adapted to black soils.

"From a business standpoint, I should say everything is very encouraging in the northwest. There will be a few places where crop returns will be small, but, on the whole, the promise is so generally good as almost to warrant the statement that all sections are ready to do business. I believe there is enough produce to move in the northwest to make a car shortage by December."

Despite such assurances as this and the bumper crop prediction by James J. Hill yesterday, the Minneapolis bulls are making good use of whatever bad crop news there is. Today they ran the September wheat price above the dollar line.

George LeCount of Bradley, S. D. who is watching the crop developments in North Dakota for Finley, Barrel & Co., writes:

"There is no use of talking about bushels yet, as much of the wheat is in the blossom. Some of the earliest has the berry well formed, but it is only water yet. The oat crop has suffered the same as wheat, but where the wheat is good, the oats are also good. And if the weather is favorable when they are filling, the grade will be good and some localities will make a heavy yield, but the oat crop in general is poor thru Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Minnesota.'

SOME POOR CROPS IN KITTSON CO.

The St. Vincent New Era is of the opinion that there are some poor crops along the Canadian border, the issue this week containing the following reference to conditions there:

'Mr. Alec[illegible]ner Sr., one of our oldest and most experienced farmers, who was the first white settler in this end of Kittson county, and now lives in the village, after a careful investigation is of the opinion that the grain crop in this section is the poorest for many, many years. The wheat, in many fields will scarcely pay for harvesting and the wild oats in other fields destroy the profit on the crops. Barley, unless heavy rains fall soon, will not be worth cutting the only fair crop is oats.

'It is reported to this office that the Reid farm will plow up 90 acres of barley, Mr. R. W. Griffith 100 acres of barley, Mr. J. Diamond about the same amount, Mr. Alex Turner has cut for feed 18 acres of wheat and many other farmers are plowing up late sown grain. Potatoes will be a lost crop from present appearance."

SMALL FORTUNE IN STATE WOLF BOUNTIES

EXCURSION TO STATE FARM

BELTRAMI, CLEARWATER AND POLK COUNTY FARMERS GO TO GRAND RAPIDS

WILL THOROLY INSPECT DAIRY AND GRASS GROWING DEPARTMENTS

From Saturday's Daily—

An extra coach was attached to the Duluth train this morning to be used by the Clearwater, Eastern Polk and Beltrami county farmers to go to the State Agricultural Farm at Grand Rapids. The Itasca County Independent refers to the meeting as follows:

"Supt. A. J. McGuire of the state farm is preparing to entertain a large delegation of farmers from Clearwater county to show them the way they do things at the state farm. The Clearwater county farmers have had but little of the advantages in the way of timber and chances to go to work right at their doors which the farmers of this section have had, and consequently they have gone to work on their farms with the result that many have farms opened up which would do credit to much older sections. They have heeded the advice of Mr. McGuire and have gone into dairying and they already have four or five creameries in the county, and are reaping good profits from them right along.

The delegation will consist of farmers from all over Clearwater county and some from Beltrami and Polk counties. They will arrive here on the morning of Saturday the 25th, and will go at once to the state farm where they will be entertained. They will be served with picnic dinner and supper, and will return to their homes on the night train. A very profitable and pleasant time is expected.

The couple boarded the local train from Warren last evening, and drove from the station here directly to the Presbyterian manse. After the ceremony the bridal party was driven to Lundbergs ice cream parlors where refreshments were served. Miss Meda Chesterman played a wedding march and Messrs. For the edding spread all the flowers available were banked on the table occupied by the bridal party, and all the rice that could be purchased at the restaurants later decorated the hats of the bridal couple who were riced all the way to the Hotel Crookston.

This morning Mr. and Mrs. Wittensten left for Maple Lake where they will spend a week after which they will return to Warren where they will make their future home.

LEONARD HAS GREAT FIRE

$50,000 WENT UP IN SMOKE IN FIRE STARTED BY LIGHTNING

GENERAL STORE, RESIDENCE, HARNESS SHOP AND OFFICE BUILDING BURNED

From Friday's Daily—

The most disastrous fire in the history of Leonard a village on southwestern branch of the N. P., 25 miles from Fargo occurred yesterday morning when $50,000 went up in smoke on which there is not more than $20,000 insurance. The fire started at 2 p. m. when the Moran, Booos & Porter general store was struck by lightning. The fire was not discovered until 5 o'clock when smoke was seen pouring out of the windows and doors of the two story brick block.

The fire fighting apparatus in the little village is limited and some time was consumed in sounding the alarm and arousing the citizens who were powerless in staying the flames which spread rapidly to the adjoining buildings and it was only by heroic work that the entire village was saved from destruction. Four buildings were totally destroyed including the Moran, Boos & Porter block and a stock of general merchandise valued at about $3,000; the Oakide harness shop valued at about $1,500 and the office of Dr. Sopker valued at $2,000.

TORTURES OF ECZEMA YIELDED TO CUTICURA

"Cuticura Remedies are all you claim them to be. I had eczema for over two years. I had two physicians, but they only gave me relief for a short time and I cannot enumerate the ointments and lotions I used to no purpose. My ankles were one mass of sores. The itching and burning were so intense that I could not sleep. I could not walk for nearly four months. One day my husband said I had better try the Cuticura Remedies. After using them three times, I had the best night's rest in months unless I took an opiate. It is now a year since I used Cuticura, and there has been no return of the eczema.

RED LAKE COUNTY HAS SOME NICE CLOVER

M. O. Sortedahl had on display Tuesday a bunch of clover raised on the Wm. Vague farm in Popular River. There were twenty-one stems measuring four feet on one root, while another measured five feet and one inch. The yield is encouraging to Mr. Vague as it shows well for the county as a clover section. Considering that this has been a dry year this is indeed a remarkable exhibit and at that is only one of a possible hundred fields of clover in this near vicinity. All farm products have done well this year and our rural friends are more than pleased with their crop prospects.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

This is the largest amount ever paid to the patrons in one month since the creamery was organized in April, 1901. PENNED AND PILFERED

Those "merry widow" hats would make fine circular saws. In Charles Ohio, one of em blew off the head of a careless young thing, and rolling madly down the street cut off a dog's tail, pared a slice from the handle of the town pump, and making a dash along the hitching pole near the public square cut the tie strap of 47 teams, liberating them for one of the maddest runaway mixups the place has ever experienced. The hat then fell over on the crown part and set to spinning until it wore a large hole in the pavement and completely disappeared. The next morning an oil well spouted up where the hat went down and the mayor sent to Chicago by telegraph for four dozen merry widow hats to be used in oil well prospecting. — Western Publisher.

A young man called on his sweetheart at her Houston Avenue home the other night to take her out for a drive, but when the stunningly attired girl saw the horse and rig which he had selected with the greatest of care at one of the liveries, she feigned a headache and explained she could not go.

"Why don't you go?" asked the astonished mother, after the young man sadly departed.

"What a question to ask, mother!" exclaimed the girl. "How could I go out driving when the horse he had didn't match a single thing I had to wear?"

When a woman does it at home she calls it the "wash" but when she sends it down town she calls it the "laundry".

FAKE SCHOOLS OF CORRESPONDENCE

TWO SMOOTH GRAFTERS GET OVER $2,000 IN STORY COUNTY, IA. —SCHEMES TO GET MONEY EASILY—SIMILAR SCHEMES HAVE BEEN WORKED IN POLK CO.—BEWARE OF CROOKS WHO HAVE CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL AND READING CLUB — WARNING FROM SUPT. CASEY

Two smooth grafters worked the teachers of Story county, Iowa, recently for a course of study to be pursued in the home together with a reading club to be located at Ames.

Supt. Casey says the same scheme is being worked to some extent in Polk county and warns all teachers and students to beware of the graft.

Regarding it an exchange publishes the following under date of March 14, 1904:

"What promises to prove an extensive swindle came to light in Ames yesterday. The alleged fraud numbers as its victims two hundred school ma'ams of Story county. Two silver tongued grafters secured the signatures of two hundred county teachers to notes of $12.50 in payment or membership in Ames by the National Reading club next summer. The members were to receive ten books besides a course of studies. The smooth agents had secured the recommendations of County Supt. Welty, which they used in roping their victims in. The swindlers discounted the notes at the banks for $11.50 clearing up $2,300 and decamping. The swindle was first suspected when it was found that the notes were altered from a year's time to sixty day notes."

County Supt. Cobb when speaking of the fraud perpetrated in Story county, said it was surprising that the public can be worked by people who sell courses of study and represent the National Reading Club. The business itself is not well established and there are doubts whether members could gain material advantage even if the companies carried out their contracts. In this connection it may be interesting to read the following article sent out by a school man from Montevideo, Minnesota:

It is singular in this day of free schools and free libraries in every township and city that schemes may be worked successfully under a pretence to promulgate education. However, such is the case and some of the people in this county are paying dearly in the school of experience, of which it is said that "fools will learn in no other." The scheme is to make young people believe they need not attend schools and colleges to get an education, but instead may buy memberships in a school of correspondence and get any kind of an education, wanted at home without paying railroad fare to and from college and a board bill at the dormitory It is immaterial whether the education wanted is to be professional or mechanical, whether the courses to pursued are scientific, pedagogical, literary or philosophical. In fact there is a balm for all in Gilead, no matter how dense the ignorance of the person who will part with his money, in order to obtain a membership in the organization that professes to spread its light of wisdom.

There are companies in Chicago, Philadelphia and other cities in this country that promote these so-called schools, and in order to secure patronage send out a class of shrewd men and women to make people believe that a course of study followed in this way can be pursued and good results obtained no matter how poorly the student is prepared in the common branches.

The Faith Cure in Business

E. C. Simmons of St. Louis, president of the National Prosperity association announces that in the St. Louis district, where, since June 1, some 26,000 men have been re-employed, 12,000 more that are now idle will be taken back August 1.

When the National Prosperity association was organized it made public its intention of getting out of the public mind the notion that conditions in this country were other than prosperous. While it had a definite working plan and the financial standing of the men behind gave substance to it, interest in it was held largely because of the use in connection with its activities of the "faith cure" argument. "Nothing is the matter with the country," was the statement upon which it built its house of hope. Just get the people over the notion that they are not prosperous, and very soon the wheels will turn again and the black smoke will come out of the big chimneys.—Minneapolis Journal.

The association, when it sent its representative to Washington to present its idea of how to set things right, came in for some share of ridicule. Nevertheless, men, today, are actually going back to work and conditions are improving.

We expect to see great capital made of this. Faith will move mountains. No one doubts that thinking you are all right, helps to make you right.

We expect then to see the cold-blooded statistical high-brow, with financial history ready on tap, come forward with a sneer and show that it was the obvious thing that conditions should improve at this time. Such argument would show that history is but repeating; that it is just as natural conditions should pick up as that a strong healthy man should get up again after he has fallen down; that the political situation and the monetary outlook all warrant preparation for better times ahead; that, if the National Prosperity association never had been heard of, just as many men would be going back to work today, and that what may be made to look like a wonderful case of faith cure, is really but a case of being able to see that what happened in former years would happen again, and getting in just ahead of it with an association ready to claim credit for having brought it about.

After all, it makes little difference. Whether we are asked to believe that an association of business men, by saying that things are right, can make them right, or whether we are witnessing the grabbing of credit for achievement by an association entitled, by virtue only, of having made a loud noise when it saw it coming, the fact remains that conditions are much better, prosperity is on the way with steady march, and that is all we care about, after all.

Electricity Scores Again

Electricity as a motive power, which Mayor Busse has urged should be used on the trains entering Chicago to do away with smoke of locomotives, has just scored a new triumph in being instituted for steam in the longest submarine tunnel in the world This is the St. Clair tunnel under the river connecting the United States and Canada at Port Huron, Michigan and Sarnia, Ontario.

This is on the direct line from Chicago to eastern Canada, on the Grand Trunk railroad and the first electric locomotives have already been put into service at the tunnel on trains running to and from that city. The electrification of the tunnel marks a great step in the progress of the electrical science as applied to transportation. The mighty steam moguls which used to handle trains thru the tunnel have been replaced by compact, powerful electric engines driven by 250 horse power alternating current motors. The frames of the novel locomotives are similar to those of steam moguls on the frame there being a cab of structural steel provided with doors at each end and each side. The engines are built as two units, each with three driving wheels, and these units can be coupled up to one when desired, with free passage thru the doors from one section to another.

Inside the cab is the electrical equipment. Practically the entire operations connected with the running of the trains are carried on by electricity. A motor-driven air compressor is installed in the cab and supplies compressed air not only for the operation of the brakes on the engine and the train service but also for the working of the various devices on the locomotive for which compressed air is used, including the operation of the trolley bow and the electrically controlled switches, the ringing of the bell, the sanding of the track and the setting of the circuit breakers. The tunnel has been in existence about fifteen years and is now one of the most important gateways of traffic between Canada and the United States, and hereafter will be one of the smokeless ones.

STATE PRESS

Cheer up Joel

A casual reading of that interesting paper, the Northfield News, leads to the suspicion that Bro. Heatwole is not entirely, wholly and unreservedly pleased with the action of the recent republican state convention. Of course it is somewhat annoying to have some thousand odd delegates disagree with Joel P., but he has been in the game long enough to know that the public has mighty little interest in the sore toe of a politician. Brace up and cheer up, Joel, and you will be a heap happier and more useful.—St. Cloud Journal-Press.

Only a Ripple in Minnesota

Providence has been generous to those living in the northwest. They were not aware that they are in a "Slough of Despond." The farmers and merchants all are enjoying the bounty acquired during years of plenty and thrift. Their prosperity has too much depth to be seriously affected by surface disturbances. The wave that engulfed Wall Street last fall was nothing more than a ripple when its effect reached Minnesota. — Bemidji Pioneer.

Learn a Trade

It is not a crime to be without a trade but it comes pretty near it. The records of American prisons show that the overwhelming majority of our criminals are young men. They show, moreover that about 75 per cent of felons are untrained in any honest and useful trade. In our reformatories more than 90 per cent have never learned a trade.—Aitkin Age.

Continue to Discontinue

Newspapers in various sections of the country continue to discontinue because the merchants in the towns where they are published use the short-sighted policy of refusing to advertise when business is dull. The time to go after business with advertising is when business is a laggard and not when you have more of it than you can handle.—Anoka Herald.

EAST GRAND FORKS PASTOR LEAVES CITY

Rev. C. F. Bronson and family left East Grand Forks last evening for Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., where they will stay for some time, at least until both Mr. and Mrs. Bronson regain their health. During his pastorate in the Mendenhall Memorial church of that city, Mr. Bronson has made many friends and would have liked to continue his work in this field but Nature ordained otherwise. Ever since coming to that city the health of members of the family has been very poor and this fact finally forced the change of climate. Mr. Bronson has not decided where he will preach after leaving Sault Ste. Marie, but his services are in demand and he will doubtless be well situated in a short time.

CHILD FATALLY CUT BY BINDER CYCLE

While cutting barley on his farm near Cayuga, N. D., Wenzel Ariz ran into his little son, aged three years, who lay sleeping in the tall grass and the sickle inflicted injuries that will likely prove fatal. The cries of the child told him of the accident. Doctors found that half of the right thigh had been cut off, taking flesh and muscle and leaving the bone bare, the left knee was laid open and the flesh torn from the bone of the left arm is broken and the wrist is cut half off. The child lives, but there are slight hopes of its recovery and he will be crippled for life.

RACY DOINGS IN EASTERN CLAY COUNTY

Eastern Clay county is keeping up its record for unsavory cases, and comes forward now with a defamation case from Goose Prairie township. Alvin Wenner champions the cause of his wife, Olga Wenner, whom one Hans M. Jacobson is said to have openly and criminally stated to have been far from virtuous before her marriage, citing certain specific acts which Jacobson thinks proves his statement. The parties to the action appeared before Judge Malloy but owing to the delay in arrival of the trains from the east, the hearing did not progress very far. It is on this afternoon, County Attorney C. G. Dosland representing the state and Sharp & Chapin representing Jacobson. The case excites a great deal of interest in the locality in which the parties reside.—Moorhead News.

In Danger.

Women should be careful how they remain in the same room with a spider. Their only safety lies in flight, and if there is a table in the way the proper thing for them to do is to jump over it and not take chances.

Spiders, although they appear to be small in size, are really desperate creatures. They have been known to eat a lady up at a single mouthful and, not satisfied with that, to begin at once looking for more.

When a lady sees one of these dangerous monsters in the far corner of the room ready to spring on her and devour her right then and there, if there are no police in sight that she can call she should steal stealthily from the room and wait on the front porch until her husband arrives. He will save her. Spiders, being particular in their taste, do not eat men.

Save $600 to $1,000 on a Threshing Outfit

Write Today for Big Free Thresher Book and Wonderful Factory-to-User Offer

Threshermen everywhere are saving hundreds of dollars by taking advantage of our wonderful offer which is fully explained in the book.

This offer is so liberal, and makes it so easy to save and make money that even individual farmers are clubbing together and buying our Threshing Outfits for neighborhood use.

They are doing their own threshing when most convenient, and are making big money around home after their own threshing is done.

We can't tell you in this ad how liberal our offer is, but it is such a big opportunity that every Farmer, every Thresherman should get our Free Book and learn fully what it means to them whether they ever thought of owning a Threshing Outfit or not.

Please Remember This

We are not making this offer, (which saves $600 to $1,000 on every purchase) on something new or untried. Our Winneshiek Traction Engines and Separators are in use in every state in the Union where threshing is done, by the most successful threshermen in the United States. Experienced threshers know them and respect them.

The many patented features of both Engine and Separator make the Winneshiek outfits by far the simplest, most durable and most economical that can be bought at any price. The Free Book fully illustrates all these labor-saving and grain-saving patents.

10% to 15% More Grain

One single patent—our Oscillating Device—puts 10 to 15 per cent more grain into your bins. This amount is wasted—carried out unthreshed in the straw with other separators. This device works on the principle of the old-fashioned flail, 250 strokes a minute. It gets out every kernel of the grain. Flax is not crushed and timothy seed is not hulled. What would it mean to you in dollars to get 10 to 15 per cent more grain each season? Yet this is but a single patented feature of the famous Winneshiek Separator.

How to Save $850.75

On the outfit illustrated below you would save $850.75 on our plan over an inferior Engine and Separator of equal capacity. This will give you an idea of what our Free Book and our Wonderful Offer means to you. Sit right down now, before you forget, and write us for this book. It means so much to you in dollars and cents that you can't afford to put it off. Get a pencil and write a letter or postal card NOW.

SUMMER INSTITUTE

TRAINING SCHOOL OPENS IN HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING YESTERDAY

SEVENTY ONE TEACHERS ENROLLED—PROF. E. T. REED CONDUCTOR

From Wednesday's Daily—

The summer training school for teachers opened at the High School building yesterday and at noon today there was an enrollment of 71 which may appear somewhat small but this is easily accounted for as Supt. of Schools Casey is this year adopting a new method in that the work this year runs but one week and the work is along the lines of a professional training for the teachers in the best and latest pedagogical ideas known to the profession, and consequently a large number from this county are taking a longer course in the adjoining counties.

The teachers to the number of about 150 are scattered in the training schools being conducted at Red Lake Falls, Bagley, Bemidji, Warren and at the Moorhead Normal where the work is being conducted along different lines and continues for a month, preparing them in a better manner for the examinations.

The school here is under the charge of Prof. Edwin T. Reed who teaches English and rhetorics at the Moorhead Normal assisted by Prof. N. A. Thorson Science teacher of the Crookston high school. The sessions begin at 7:30 a. m. and continue until 12.30 p. m. each day and will close Saturday. On Monday examinations begin and will continue for three days.

Students' Notes

Many of those in attendance are teachers of experience and good scholarship.

The spirit of the institution is excellent and the daily attendance and the attention to lectures are quite exemplary.

Especial interest was awakened on Wednesday morning by the address of Dr. Morley on the care of pupil's eyes and ears. He sketched several practical devices for detecting defects or diseases of these vital organs and indicated the most effective means of dealing with such cases.

Another notable event of Wednesday's session was Supt. of Schools Casey's address on penmanship, together with illustrative exercises for teaching the subject. His address illustrated by his own deft demonstration on the blackboard was most inspiring, practical and effective. He was roundly complimented by the members of the institute.

IRON ORE FIND CREATES STIR

FIND IS REPORTED SOUTH OF SHEVLIN COVERING THOUSANDS OF ACRES

STEEL CORPORATION'S FINE WORK—THREE DRILLS IN OPERATION ALREADY

From Wednesday's Daily—

Iver Krohn a former well known resident of this city but who is now conducting a prosperous general merchandise business at Shevlin besides conducting the Shevlin Herald one of Clearwater county's best newspapers, was in the city on business matters.

Mr. Krohn was very enthusiastic over the outlook in Clearwater county and thinks it one of the coming dairy centers of the state. Last spring a creamery was built at Shevlin as an experiment and it is meeting with unusual success and is far exceeding their expectations.

He tells an interesting story of the smooth work of a representative of the Steel corporation coming in there last spring and buying up thousands of acres of land south of Shevlin and near Mallard postoffice most of which is across the line in Hubbard County. Coming in dressed in the garb of a plain woodsman he became a frequent visitor at most of the settlers in that locality and finally began buying up what land he could paying $5 per acre for the same, one dollar an acre being paid down as an option for one year and in this manner secured thousands of acres. He disappeared all of a sudden and nothing more has been seen of him but shortly thereafter three large iron ore drills were brought into that locality and put to work immediately in different portions of the tract secured and now a good many of the settlers are beginning to realize what a golden opportunity they missed.

The drills are being operated by the U. S. Steel Corporation but as their work is always of a secret character nothing can be learned as to whether or not any ore is being found or what the quality or quantity is. That ore exists in that locality is a well known fact but whether or not in sufficient quantities to warrant mining it remains to be seen.

Mr. Krohn will spend a number of days in this vicinity as he has a large quantity of cord wood which he is desirious of disposing of.

TWO BANDS FOR MARKET DAY

BURNHAM CREEK BAND TO BE ADDED FEATURE ON MUSICAL PROGRAM

Arrangements have been completed whereby the Burnham Creek band will render a concert during the day which will be an interesting feature added to the day's program. The band is composed of sixteen pieces and the members are all young farmers residing in the locality of Burnham Creek and are said to be equipped in better shape than most of the bands in the state in the way of fine instruments of which each member owns his own and is of the best make to be secured.

The exact location or time when the concert will be held will be announced later. This band will be an interesting feature for both the business men and the farmers who are here for the day in showing that the farmer boys are capable of rendering some choice selections.

MANY SEEK NEW LANDS

ADVICES FROM WASHINGTON SPUR ON THOSE WANTING TO FILE

JOSEPH LEWIS OF HIBBING IS NO. 1 IN CASS LAKE LINE

From Wednesday's Daily—

There was a great surprise yesterday at Cass Lake, when the local men received notice from Washington that 46,000 acres of forest reserve would be opened to settlement Sept. 15. As soon as this became known the land office was flooded with landseekers, who with chairs, tents and bedding settled down to await the opening.

Joe Lewis of Hibbing, is No. 1, Capt. Wilson the veteran of the other line, is No. 6 and seems well satisfied All told there are thirty now waiting It was thought that this land would not open until next summer. Land officials have not been notified yet of the new deal but according to the notice they will be as soon as the booklets of instructions are issued. The notice seems to indicate that "squatters" will again have the same rights as filers.

RETURNED FROM TRIP TO ROCKIES

JAKE IDE VISITED MOUNTAIN HOME, IDAHO, AND MAKES COMMENTS

Jake Ide has returned from a three weeks' trip spent in the mountain fastness of Idaho. Mr. Ide spent most of his time at Mountain Home where he owned some property and was disposing of the same.

He says there are many complex questions regarding the future welfare of that section of the west. The water supply now available for irrigation isn't sufficient to supply the demand and another river miles away will have to be tapped. Mr. Ide further says that he spent the better part of his life on the prairies and nothing looked better than they did when he got back.

PLAN GREAT EXHIBIT AT STEPHENS HALL

A SCHEME ON FOOT TO SHOW JAMES J. HILL THAT THE ADVICE HE GAVE TO FARMERS IS BEARING FRUIT—AN IMMENSE AGRICULTURAL EXHIBIT TO BE ARRANGED FOR WHEN STEPHENS HALL IS DEDICATED, LATER TO BE SENT TO THE STATE FAIR—EVERY COMMISSIONER DISTRICT TO COMPETE

The plans for the impressive dedication of Stephens Hall at the State School of Agriculture on the Experimental farm here have been broadened to include the biggest agriculture exhibit ever seen in the northern part of the state. The dedication, at which James J. Hill will be the central figure will include a display of agricultural products, including grains, vegetables, dairy products, etc., and a grand stock parade which will be as near as possible a realization of the application of the advice of the railway king given to the farmers of the northwest every time Mr. Hill has delivered an address in the northwest.

A Lively Contest

The board of county commissioners has decided to make a liberal appropriation for the exhibit at the present session, and to add to the zest of the contest, each of the five commissioner districts will vie with each other in an effort to secure the best exhibit. Assurances have been received from every part of the county, and all the surrounding towns to participate in the contest and aid the excellence of the exhibits in every way, and Fertile alone will send an entire carload of prize winning stock.

A Compliment to Hill

This grand feature will serve two purposes. One as a special diversified farming principle, as showing him to what a large degree and with what success his advice has been followed, and at the same time it will result in the gathering of a splendid exhibit which will be re-arranged and sent to the Minnesota State Fair as an exhibit of the products and resources of Polk County.

The elaborate plans for the great gathering are being rapidly worked out and the event is arousing a vast amount of enthusiasm. Special invitations are being sent out to every county in the 9th congressional district and assurances have been received from leading residents who are specially interested in work being done at the experimental farm here, and the school of agriculture, that the gathering will be one of the most significant ever held in the northern part of the state as marking a new era in the development of the valley.

County Commissioner Ben Clements last evening said: "I thing the plan for a big exhibit at the dedication of Stephens Hall is a most excellent one, specially as the exhibit can be utilized for a Polk county exhibit to the state fair, thus serving a double purpose. Let everyone take off their coats now and work like beavers to make this a grand success."

From Friday's Daily—

+ +

St. Paul, July 24—James J. Hill will be in Crookston September 17 to deliver an address at the dedication of Stephens Hall at the School of Agriculture on the State Experimental Farm.

+ +

The above telegram confirms the announcement made several days ago exclusively in the Journal to the effect that Crookston would have a chance to welcome Mr. Hill at the dedication of Stephens Hall, but that the date would not be set till it was known what time would best suit the convenience of Mr. Hill.

"Jim Hill Day" in Crookston about ten years ago is still vividly remembered by every resident of Crookston as it was the occasion of the gathering here of the largest crowd that ever assembled in Crookston and every effort will be made to make the forth coming visit of Mr. Hill the occasion of an even greater gathering. His visit, in view of the manner in which every minute of his time is occupied, is an honor which cannot be too highly estimated.

TWO CASES DISMISSED

SENSATION IN ROSEAU COUNTY COMES TO A SUDDEN END

CROSS EXAMINATION DESTROYS VALUE OF GIRL'S TESTIMONY AGAINST YOUNG MEN

From Thursday's Daily—

The summer term of the district court has closed at Roseau. The sensation of the term was the indictment of Julius Tostenson and Harvey Wilcox, two young men of Roseau, charging each with carnal knowledge of 14-year-old Grace Cravens. There were two indictments against Tostenson and the trial of one began Saturday, on which day a jury was empanneled and the case continued over Sunday. Senator Dunn of Albert Lea an old friend of the Tostenson family, appeared for the defendant assisted by R. H. Medicraft and the state was represented by County Attorney Stebbins.

The testimony of the little girl was in all particulars strong in support of all the allegations in the indictment in her examination in chief, but upon the cross examination her statements were so contradictory and wholly at variance with her testimony in the examination before the justice of the peace and before the grand jury, that the county attorney asked for a dismissal of the case and also of indictment against Wilcox.

In spite of the frightful manner in which they are imposed upon, women live longer than men.

PLAN A BIG GRAIN EXHIBIT

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS WILL CO-OPERATE WITH COMMERCIAL CLUB

PRIZES TO BE GIVEN THAT WILL INSURE MAGNIFICENT DISPLAY

From Friday's Daily—

There was an enthusiastic meeting last evening in the office of President Misner of the Commercial Club attended by many business men and the full board of county commissioners. H. J. Stair was elected chairman and it was decided to hold a big grain exhibit in Crookston on Wednesday, August 19.

The county will be divided into five districts, each commissioner's district participating in a contest to furnish the best exhibit of grains, and the county commissioner from the respective districts was named as a committee of one to secure the exhibit from his district. The district furnishing the best exhibit will be awarded a magnificent silver cup which will be competed for in future years in a similar contest.

President Misner was instructed to name a committee of three to have full charge of the finances, arrangements, prizes, etc., and to co-operate with the commissioners in the appointment of the judges to pass on the exhibits. This committee will be named in a few days.

Aside from the district competition there will be substantial prizes for the best individual exhibit of grains.

After the exhibit in Crookston, the committee in charge will re-arrange a big exhibit for the state fair which will be a credit to Polk County.

The county commissioners have appropriated $350 for the fair in Crookston and further prizes will be offered by the business men.

THE CLEARWATER COUNTY FAIR

SEPT. 10, 11 AND 12 DATES SET FOR THE ANNUAL FAIR

At a meeting of the Bagley Commercial Club it was decided that the Clearwater county fair to be held at Bagley this fall should be held on September 10, 11 and 12 and these dates were accordingly set. This brings the fair just one month earlier than last year, a fact which will be quite generally agreeable to the farmers of the county. The exhibits this fall are expected to far outdo those of the first year and the farmers of Clearwater county will without doubt see to it that the expectations are fulfilled.

Notice of what is looked upon by many as the forerunner of similar action on the part of practically all the small railroad systems in Minnesota was received in St. Paul yesterday, when the Minneapolis, Red Lake & Manitoba Railway company filed notice with the railway and warehouse commission that it intended to ignore the 2-cent passenger fare law.

"Effective Aug. 1, 1908, we will charge 3 cents per mile for carrying passengers," read the letter received by A. L. Molander as general manager, and the contents was the exact wording as given above. There was no other explanation. The Minneapolis, Red Lake & Manitoba is- or rath, er was, a logging road, and runs from Bemidji to Red Lake. It is practically owned by C. A. Smith the Minneapolis millionaire lumberman, talked of, prior to the republican state convention, as a possible candidate for governor. According to members of the railway commission, John Lind former governor, is its principal attorney. If he is acting in such capacity, there is no doubt that he sanctioned the road's latest step, otherwise it would not have been taken.

The road some time ago, on representation that it could not do so with a profit and that it would accept the two-cent passenger fare law, was exempted from making the reduction in freight rates ordered by the legislature. This concession was granted by the railway commission which is endowed with such powers, and when the letter was received today that it intended to ignore the two-cent fare law the indignation of the commission was great.

"The enforcement of the two?-cent

"The enforcement of the two-cent law does not lay with us," said Judge Mills of the commission, to-day, "but we can not stand idly by and see it ignored in this fashion. I think we will get busy without delay. The law is a general one and any one charged more than the rate prescribed by the law has right to obtain relief. He can sue if more than two cents is asked."

The St. Paul roads asked Judge Lochren for an injunction restraining the enforcement of the two-cent law which was refused and they will have to await the outcome of the present suits, but in the case of the smaller roads, they are not so handicapped. It is hinted that in the action of the Smith road steps have been taken which mean a general attempt to overthrow the whole two-cent fare law, in which attempt, all of the roads operating in the state have agreed to interest themselves to the extent of paying their share of the costs.

REGAN HAS A HEARING

PLEADS GUILTY TO ASSAULT CHARGE—OTHER CHARGES DISMISSED

From Thursday's Daily—

B. B. Regan who has been confined in the county jail at Devils Lake for some time past on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill, upon his wife, had his hearing in the district court yesterday afternoon and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of assault and battery, the charge of intent to kill being omitted on account of the complaining witness refusing to appear to prosecute the case.

Mrs. Regan who had her husband arrested on the charge, had left the state and Mr. Serumgard the state's attorney, has been trying for the past two weeks to locate her and it was only thru circumstances that he was able to learn that she was at Crookston, and last Friday accompanied by a deputy sheriff, came here and located her cooking for Wyand's ditching crew about two and one-half miles from the city. Papers were served on her but she refused to return to Devils Lake to appear in the case and on account of the statutes of the state it is impossible to compel her to return to the state to testify unless she is willing. On this ground, the state's attorney was willing to submit to the plea of assault and battery the other charge not being prosecuted on account of not having Mrs. Regan as a witness.

No one need fear that Jacobson will buy his election by private bargains for official favors.

OLD RESIDENT'S DEATH NATURAL

CORONER CHESTERMAN DECIDES AN INQUEST NOT NECESSARY

Wm. Husk, one of the pioneer residents of East Grand Forks was found dead in his room shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday by J. W. Erickson. He had been in his usual health and was seen by Mr. Erickson just before noon. Mr. Husk had been a sufferer from rheumatism for a number of years and was unable to do any work but was able to be up and about. It is supposed that the rheumatism, together with heart trouble, is responsible for his sudden demise. Coroner Chesterman was notified and went over yesterday afternoon, but decided an inquest not necessary.

Mr. Husk had lived alone for a number of years occupying a small room over the office of J. W. Erickson's feed barn the use of which he was allowed thru the kindness of Mr. Erickson. He was about 65 years of age and had lived there for nearly 25 years. He was a plasterer by trade.

COUNTY BOARD OF EQUALIZATION COMPLETES MUCH WORK

REAL ESTATE VALUES SHOW AN INCREASE OVER LAST ASSESSMENT

The Polk County Board of Equaalization has 70 assessment districts to review. For weeks prior to their convening assessors in each one of these districts are gathering statistics that they compile into blanks for that purpose, later compiling these many items into books that report every piece of realestate and personal property.

The latter are divided into thirty different classes, from a kitten to a threshing machine, yard of ribbon to an elevator full of grain. All must be carefully itemized and valuation placed thereon. The local governing boards review the work of the assessor to see that it has been done in an impartial manner, that all individual property has been properly listed.

But very often town officers do not place enough importance on this duty and it is not thoroly reviewed so when it comes to the county board the task is a large one.

At the meeting of the assessors last spring a schedule of farm lands was arraigned that has worked very satisfactorily, so that only two changes were found necessary at this meeting. Woodside was raised from class five to class four and Badger reduced from class five to class six.

The classification of farm lands has been divided in seven classes according to the value from which the assessments are based. Class one is assessed at $2.75 and fifty cents is added to each class. Number seven the highest is assessed $5.75.

The total valuation of property as assessed in the county not including the city of Crookston, for the year 1908 is, real estate $6,542,089, personal $1,515,369. Add to this the city and the total will amount to, real estate $7,630,994, personal $2,021,640.

A comparison with the assessed valuation of real estate in 1906 and personal of 1907 shows very little change The real estate at that time amounted to $7,394,857, personal $2,030,865, an increase of $300,000 in real estate and decrease of $100,000 in personal property.

UEEN BESS COUGHED UP

OT HER $85 TO CARRY $50 BELONGING TO R. PINKERTON ONE DAY

PSY CLAIMS PINKERTON HAD TRIED TO MAKE LOVE TO HER HIGHNESS

rom Saturday's Daily—

Queen Bess, of a Gypsy band, lown also as Bessie Gills was arrest yesterday afternoon just west of and Forks, by Deputy Sheriff Johnn of Grand Forks county and Dety Sheriff Orin Daniels of Polk unty, Minn., after a sensational ase from Crookston. The Gypsy een was charged with stealing $50 om Rufus Pinkerton two miles west Crookston yesterday morning.

Cost Her $85

When brought before Judge Mcean this morning at 10 o'clock ueen Bess after much palaver greed to plead guilty to petty lareny, returned Pinkerton's $50 paid ie costs and a small fine costing her l all $85 and was released and with er husband, King Jewhillicum and er father and several more of the and who came over on the train this aorning had a few beers about town nd will return to Dakota tonight.

Gypsies Fled

The crime was committed at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and the sheriff's office was not notified until 10:45. At 11 Deputy Sheriff Daniels was on the trail. The Gypsies broke camp right after Pinkerton lost his money but the deputy succeeded in trailing them. They kept off the main road and zig-zagged the sections wherever possible. On Minnesota Point Deputy Daniels learned that they had crossed to the Dakota side. He trailed them to Fourth street and then called on Deputy Sheriff Johnson to aid him. They followed them and arrested the queen, despite the strenuous protests of her subjects.

Felt Like Resisting

For a time it seemed likely that there would be bloodshed as the Gypsies were in an angry mood. There were about a dozen women in the party and they crowded around the officer. The queen was taken the carriage brought by the officers.

At the Grand Forks county jail she claimed to know nothing about the robbery. She agreed to go over on the east side. She was anxious to see Pinkerton and evidently had an idea that a settlement could be brought about.

Claims to be Honest

"He say me take feefty dollar—I can proof me did not," she wailed. "Me travel in North Dakota three years and seven years altogether, and never have been in jail before.

She claimed that Pinkerton had made love to her and she had repulsed his advances to Gypsy royalty.

Frenzied Finance

According to Pinkerton the queen was rather smooth in securing funds. When he gave her $1 to tell his fortune she asked that he give her, temporarily his entire bank roll. He took out a bunch of bills, amounting to $140. While she was handling the money and counting it, the queen's sister started to tear a $5 into pieces and scattered the fragments in the air. The other members of the band yelled that she had gone crazy and there was lots of excitement. Pinkerton did not know it was a game. In the excitement the fortune teller gave him back his money. He put it in his pocket and went up town. Then he counted it and found $50 was missing. On his return to the Gypsy camp he found they had vanished. He later notified the sheriff's office and the chase commenced.

SWEETHEART FAITHLESS; HER REASON HAS FLED

From Friday's Daily—

A touching story of years of patient labor for love, a recreant lover who did not remain true when Fortune smiled on him, and the sad result, the flight of reason was told here by the presence of W. A. Breedlove who was taking Miss Mary Lindsey from Argyle, Washington, to her old home at Epworth, Ia., the former home of the families of both.

Lighthearted Lovers

The story learned by the police ran like this: Mary Lindsey left for the west many years ago for Washington with several others from near Epworth. Among them was a young man to whom she had plighted her troth. The two built air castles about a happy home when sufficient money had been saved up. She was a school teacher and saved every dollar and her young lover was ambitious and a hard worker and also saved every cent he made.

Lust for Gold

When the wonderful tales of gold in the Klondike startled the world they had saved up enough to buy a farm and were about to get married. The young man however caught the fever, and taking what money he had earned, with her consent, tho reluctantly given, he headed for the gold fields.

Luck was against him. He ran out of money. His sweetheart furnished him with more. Again and again she sent him money from her little hard earned hoard.

Fortune Smiled

Then his luck changed. He made a small fortune, and wrote glowing letters of a bright future and an early return to his faithful sweetheart. Then came another big strike and a bigger fortune.

Then came a change. His letters were farther between and less fervent Then they ceased altogether. He returned from Alaska, but he did not return to his affianced at Argyle.

A Pathetic Ending

The light began to fade from her eyes, the bloom from her cheeks. She grew despondent, morose and finally was incapacitated for work. Then came the total nervous collapse and it became necessary to send her back to her old home at Epworth, and Breedlove, a friend of both families undertook the task. By missing a connection they had to remain in this city all day yesterday. At intervals a shadow of the light of reason crossed the brain of the unhappy woman but most of the time she is childish. It was with difficulty she was induced to get on the train for the journey to relatives.

The recreant lover is enjoying his wealth in Seattle.

WAS BREEDLOVE HER BETHROTHED

From Saturday's Daily—

It develops that there were some interesting details relative to W. A. Breedlove and Miss Mary Lindsay who spent day before yesterday in Crookston at the Palace hotel.

Breedlove was not very long on funds, and Miss Lindsay had $50 wired to her from Argyle, Wash. She was out of her head completely while here and of course could not call at the bank and get the money. D. D. Clark finally endorsed the draft and Breedlove got the money.

Miss Lindsay did not care for the money but with her arms about Breedlove kept asking him if he was sure he loved her.

To some Breedlove said he intended to marry her as soon as they reached Epworth, her old home. To others he said maybe he would and maybe he wouldn't. The matter will be looked into. Whatever he was going to do later, he was getting her money as he went along.

NEW FIRM AT EUCLID

THEODORE NEIERS BUYS HALF INTEREST IN GENERAL STORE

FIRM WILL NOW BE STUHR & NEIERS — A STRONG FIRM

From Saturday's Daily—

Theodore Neiers has purchased a half interest in the general store at Euclid of Peter Stuhr and the firm name hereafter will be Stuhr & Neiers. The store has been doing a splendid business and is the oldest place of business in Euclid, tho it has changed hands several times.

Mr. Neiers has been making his home in Crookston since last fall, but prior to that bought wheat at Shelly for several years and a number of years ago was a resident of Euclid. He is a hard worker and a good business man, and as Mr. Stuhr already enjoys a big trade and widespread popularity, the new firm is certain to do well from the start.

STEPHEN MARKET DAY BIG SUCCESS

There was an immense crowd present, the business houses all did a big business and the farmers disposed of all their produce, stock, etc., at good prices and were well satisfied. Special entertainment was provided for the farmers and their families and they appreciated what was done for their benefit.

LOW RATES TO STATE FAIR

WESTERN ASSOCIATION TAKES ACTION WHICH WILL INSURE

BIG CROWDS AT HAMLINE FROM AUGUST 31 TO SEPTEMBER 5

From Saturday's Daily—

The Western Passenger association has consented to an excursion rate of a cent and a half for the round trip to the Minnesota state fair. This will serve more than anything else to produce a record breaking attendance at the annual fair.

The officers of the state fair association have been laboring for about two years in an effort to secure a return to the old rate which was in force before the legislature enacted the 2-cent fare law. When the regular rate was 3 cents a mile the roads were accustomed to grant an excursion rate of one fare for the round trip during fair week. When the 2 cent law was put in force they refused to make any concessions or reductions from the regular rate, and the result was that last year's attendance at the state fair fell below the mark set in 1906.

The rate for this year of a fare and a half on the 2 cent basis, is equivalent to the one-fare rate on the 3 cent basis.

This will make the cost of the round trip ticket from Crookston $8.50.

LOST MEMORY LAST MONDAY

This morning Farmer Olson of Onstad township drove to the city and brought a man named Abraham Jacobson with him. Jacobson appeared at the Olson farm last Tuesday without hat, coat or vest. Mr. Olson tried to talk with him but Jacobson would not come close enough. He hung around the farm buildings for two days and this morning Olson finally managed to approach him. Jacobson talked only half intelligently. He said he lost his memory last Monday and did not know where he had been since. He did not know where his hat or other clothing was.

City Physician Randolph examined him, and was of the opinion that a few days' treatment at the hospital would bring him around all right and Commissioner Ben Clements ordered him taken to the Bethesda hospital where he will be given proper care.

CO-OPERATIVE CREAMERIES BEST FOR THE FARMERS

AN EXTRACT FROM THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE BUREAU OF ANIMAL INDUSTRY SHOWS THAT SUCH CREAMERIES GIVE FARMERS ON AN AVERAGE OF 8 CENTS PER POUND MORE FOR THEIR BUTTER FAT THAN THE CENTRALIZERS — KANSAS, NEBRASKA, SOUTHERN IOWA AND OTHER SECTIONS ARE IN THE COMPLETE GRIP OF THE MONOPOLY — FARMERS SHOULD STICK BY THE SMALL CREAMERY

Following are a few very interesting and pertinent extracts from the report of the chief of the Bureau of animal industry for 1907:

A special investigation has been made of economic and commercial conditions in the creamery business and information has been secured showing that there is practically a monopoly of this industry in some sections, while in others the business is largely conducted on a co-operative basis or there is fair competition, the result being that under the latter conditions the farmers are receiving from 6 to 8 cents a pound more for their butter fat than in territory controlled by the monopoly. This difference is due partly to the methods of the so-called "centralizers and partly to the inferior quality of the butter produced by those cencerns, because the cream is collected over a wide territory and much of it is received in a stale condition.

Farmers Lose Millions

That a very large percentage of the butter found in the market is below grade, selling for less than market prices for fine butter, and that the farmers in a very large area of butter-producing territory receive much less than a fair price for their product, are both matters of record. That the losses from these sources amount to millions of dollars annually to the farmers of the country is easily demonstrated.

Four Classes of Creameries

For convenience in designation, the creameries are divided into four classes. Co-operative creameries are owned and operated by the patrons—that is, the persons who [illegible] cream—and the entire receipts, less actual running expenses and sinking fund are divided among the farmers in proportion to the amount of butter fat delivered by each. Individual creameries are those owned and operated by private interest and doing local business. When three or more individual creameries are owned or controlled by the same interests, they are designated as combination creameries. The fourth class—"centralizers"—is composed of creameries that receive cream from greater distances than it can be hauled in by wagons the distances extending up to 400 or 500 miles. The plants are usually large, and an extensive system of agencies for the purchase of cream is maintained.

Co-operative Creameries Best for the Farmers

The investigations show that the co-operative creamery yields the largest returns to the farmer for his butter fat. The individual and combination creameries, usually being located in close competition with the co-operative creameries, pay very nearly as much.

The centralizers, where they have gained a monopoly, pay as little as the farmer will accept. Reports for July, 1907, show that in Kansas and Nebraska where the monopoly appears to be complete, the farmers received only 17 to 18 cents a pound for their butter fat, while in northern Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois where the co-operative creameries have the field, the prices were from 25 to 26 cents.

Reprehensible Methods

The methods of the centralizers are sometimes very reprehensible. Where these concerns have come into competition with small creameries they have raised their prices to a point that made it impossible for the small concerns to continue, and have thus forced the latter out of business. Competition having been destroyed and a monopoly secured, the prices paid to the farmers were lowered. The large concerns operating over a great territory, with here and there a competitor that they wished to put out of business, could in one locality raise the price paid above that possible to pay with profit, and at other places decrease the price so little as not to be apparent and more than offset the loss. This ability to destroy competition without inflicting self-injury has been used effectively in many localities.

Unjust Discrimination

Perhaps the most potent factor, however, in restricting the business of the small creamery has been the special low rates reported to be granted by the railroads to the big creameries. These rates were understood to be much lower than for any similar commodity, being only about one-third of the rate on butter. In Nebraska, the best territory, the gross earnings for hauling cream were but 13 cents per car mile, while the settling basis between railroads for hauling empty cars was 15 cents per car mile.

Fangs of Monopoly

The system of killing the small creameries has been carried on to the fullest extent in southern Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, and Nebraska. Taking Kansas as an illustration, it is found that the number of creameries declined from 133 in 1900 to 67 in 1905, while in Minnesota in the same period there was an increase from 582 to 905. The decrease in Kansas is attributed to dissatisfaction and distrust on the part of the farmer with the central creamery, to the low prices paid, the poor quality of the butter, the killing of the small creameries, and the looss of all immediate contact between the farmer and the owner of the business. The increase in Minnesota can be accounted for by just the reverse set of conditions. The loss to Kansas farmers during the last year on account of the low prices alone is estimated at $1,000,000.

Kansas' Lost $12,000,000

If Kansas had made 50,000,000 pounds of butter, as it should, instead of 17,000,000 the income to the state would have been, on the same basis of valuation, at least $12,000,000 greater than it [illegible] year and there would have been no less wheat, corn, alfalfa, beef, pork, or any other crop raised. The reason why Kansas is not on a par with Minnesota, Iowa, and other great dairy states is because the industry has been promoted from the centralizer standpoint and not for the interests of the farmer. Fifteen years ago Kansas and Minnesota stood nearly equal with regard to the creamery industry. Now Minnesota is not only far ahead in volume of production, but the Minnesota farmer gets 6 and 7 cents a pound more for butter fat than does the Kansas farmer. What has been said of Kansas applies in general also to Missouri, southern Iowa and Nebraska.

Whole Milk Butter Best

Investigation has shown that the highest grade of butter is made only from whole milk delivered to the creamery fresh every day. This is possible only where there are local creameries at convenient distances. The longer the time between milking and churning the poorer the quality of the butter. Shipping cream by railroad except for very short distances is detrimental to the quality of the butter.

Farmers are the Losers

The centralizers, on account of receiving cream from long distances are unable to turn out as high-grade product as the local concerns that use fresher cream, but they are usually managed so as to get every possible cent of revenue from their material. They use the most improved methods of manufacture, get a maximum overrun, and prevent loss in every possible way. The small creameries, on the other hand are often very lax in these matters, but by reason of the superior quality of their product and their practice of giving full returns to the farmers they are still able to pay 6 or 7 cents a pound more for butter fat. By no means do all of the small creameries make fancy butter, however. Some of them have doubtless succumbed largely because of losses which might have been prevented by better methods.

Bad for Everybody

There can be no doubt that the tendency of the centralizing system is bad for both the farmer and the public. The effect is to exact high prices from the consumer and to pay low prices to the farmer, the profits going to the large operators who control the situation. The small local co-operative creameries should be encouraged. The dairy division is already endeavoring to assist the creameries to avoid losses by low overrun, loose methods, etc., and to improve the quality of their product where this is defective, by its service of inspecting and reporting on the butter as it arrives on the market, as hereinbefore described. In order that the farmers may receive proper returns for their product there should be a material improvement in the quality of the butter as found upon the market. This can best be accomplished by encouraging local creameries, better methods of manufacture, and, greatest of all, a discrimination as to quality in the markets. Butter is not bought on the basis of quality, as it should be, but the tendency is more and more in that direction.

Lack of Inspection

The chief handicap is a lack of inspectors. The work of the division already shows that national supervision of interstate trade in butter would operate greatly to the benefit of the creameries. The cost of Federal inspection would not be as great as might be at first supposed. A careful estimate based on experience already gained shows that 25 men could handle without difficulty this work. Part of these men could be detailed to work in the field with the creameries to give personal instruction to those most needing it. Such instruction will be needed, especially in the centralized territory where the small creameries will be established if conditions make it possible. It is the belief of many interested in this work that the increased returns to creameries thru such supervision and inspection would result in millions of dollars saved to the farmer each year.

Benefit of Publicity

Publicity as to the prices received by farmers in various sections for their butter fat would be a powerful agency in enabling the farmers to obtain better returns from the "centralizers." The department could gather this information and disseminate it. New York, Chicago, and Elgin quotations on butter are not printed in the papers published in the territory most affected by the centralizers. Only local quotations are published, and these are several cents below the actual market prices. The farmers in that territory have no way of finding out what the farmers of other sections are getting.

CROPS AT DEVILS LAKE CUT F HAY, RAILROAD MAN SAYS

ALONG SOO AND G. N. LINES PORTS ARE FAVORABLE IN TENOR

From Tuesday's Daily—

Crop conditions and prospects North Dakota are very much mix according to G. M. Bowman and G. Thompson, traveling passeng agents for the Chicago, Milwaukee St. Paul who have just made exte ive trips thru the Flickertail sta Hot winds have struck the state spots, and wherever they have p vailed wheat and other grains ha been badly damaged, while elsewhe everything is in splendid condition.

"Along the main line of the S clear to Portal and the territo along the Great Northern everywhe except at Devils Lake things are fine shape," said Mr. Bowman, " Devils Lake the crops are all bu ed out, and the farmers are cutti their grain fields for hay and plo ing them under. There will not over half a crop in that vicinity. Fr Plaza out to Dodge on the branch the Soo the same thing is true."

Mr. Thompson stated that along t main line of the Northern Pacif from Valley City to Bismarck, a along the Cooperstown and Jamestown Northern branches the crops were badly damaged, while the Red River valley generally was in good condition.

"The country along the Great Northern between Casselton and Larimore and that along the main line of the Soo has the best crops this year," he added, "but if there are no more hot winds and some rainfalls the crop on the whole will be a splendid one. There was some rain during last week but it did not strike the places where it was most needed. Where the soil is light there is the greatest trouble.

It is said that the hot winds which prevailed in some portions of North Dakota two weeks ago caused the damage.

MUNCH GETS POACHERS AFTER THRILLING CHASE

THREE INDIANS AND A WHITE MAN LANDED IN RED LAKE COUNTY YESTERDAY AFTER DEPUTY GAME WARDEN MUNCH AND THE SHERIFF OF RED LAKE COUNTY HAD TRAVELED THREE DAYS AND TWO NIGHTS WITHOUT REMOVING THEIR CLOTHING AND GOING 200 MILES BY BOAT—THE QUARTETTE OF GUILTY ONES FINED AT RED LAKE FALLS YESTERDAY, HAD KILLED 5 MOOSE—FINES AGGREGATE $230 WITH COSTS ADDITIONAL

From Tuesday's Daily—

After traveling with the sheriff of Red Lake county for three days and two nights without sleep, or removing their clothing and traveling over 200 miles by boat, Deputy Game Warden Wm. Munch yesterday made the biggest "killing" made by any game warden in the north half of Minnesota in several years when he arrested three Indians and one white man in Red Lake County, brought them to Red Lake Falls and convicted the entire bunch of killing moose out of season the three Indians drawing a fine of $60 each or 60 days in jail and the white man $50 and costs making a total of $230 in fines besides the costs

Warden Munch last week convicted another party in Red Lake County and has been quietly working on the other cases for some time past getting conclusive evidence against them

Killed 5 Moose

In all they had killed five moose that he knew of positively but he did not want to flush the game till he had the entire party rounded up, and managed to get witnesses in every case without arousing any suspicions on the part of the poachers, who had they had the least intimation would have fled.

Had Musical Names

The names of the Indians are May-qua-me-wap (Sitting on the ice), Mac-ee-nock (Snapping Turtle), Note-ne-be-ness (Windy prairie chicken) the last two being also known as Big Oak and Lone Oak respectively, both of whom live on the reservation and have a wife and two children each. [illegible] sold the carcasses of 5 moose to John Sundblad of the Town of Hickory, Red Lake County at 7 cents a pound, who retailed the meat.

The arrest of this bunch of poachers will have a most salutary effect thruout that section of the country in the protection of wild game, and in making the haul Game Warden Munch holds the record for clever work. The poaching was done on the outskirts of civilization where it is all but impossible to secure evidence. However Warden Munch has a line of "spy skirmishers" which it is all but impossible to get away from and as soon as suspicions are aroused he takes the field himself and runs down every clue.

Defied Arrest

The gang that he has landed has heretofore defied arrest, but fell into his net and the gang is now effectively broken up and as a result there is no danger of further killing of big game in Red Lake or adjoining counties. To effect the capture of yesterday and the one made last week, Warden Munch has spent over two weeks in the woods, living the life of a hermit and undergoing all manner of hardships and his success is extremely gratifying to the sportsmen of this entire section of the state, who are standing behind him to a man in the enforcement of the game laws.

Made Threats

Among the poachers in Red Lake County, the feeling has run high against Warden Munch because he has enforced the law for the protection of big game to the letter, and threats have been made that he would be "accidentally" mistaken for a moose himself if he did not refrain from too great a degree of activity. The threats however, did not deter him and his last big haul of yesterday will put a quietus on poaching in Red Lake county for some time to

COLORED MAN IS CRUSHED

A CROOKSTON RESIDENT TERRIBLY SQUEEZED IN TRAIN VESTIBULE

AT FERGUS FALLS AND IS NOT EXPECTED TO SURVIVE

From Monday's Daily—

A negro who gives his name as Mose Brown was picked up on the Great Northern track at Fergus Falls Saturday after the passenger train which is due at 3:41 had passed thru that city. He was found by officer Osland and was bleeding terribly from ears and nose. A piece of canvas was secured and he was carried to a hospital.

Brown states that he was coming from Crookston—apparently stealing a ride—and attempted to squeeze out thru the vestibuling which had parted between two cars. The cars came together again, and he was terribly crushed.

He states that he was born in Iowa, and that he had been traveling more or less, having just come from Crookston. He states that he has a brother Dr. G. G. Brown in Atchison Kansas, and a sister, Mrs. Arthur Gray, in Washington, D. C. He is about 25 years of age, and unmarried.

His skull is fractured at the base of the brain and his recovery is in doubt.

CREAMERIES ARE THRIVING

He says the crops about Middle River are looking fine, and that the creamery there is thriving. Altho it is a small one, the business is increasing rapidly and good checks are being paid to the farmers. Last Friday alone, $2700 was paid out in cream checks. He says the dairying industry has a great future in that section of the country, and the farmers are all getting into it on a steadily increasing scale.

BOLD THIEF ON FARM

CLARENCE BALL IS HEAVY LOSER FROM HIS BED FELLOW

FREDERICS GOES THRU HIS POCKETS AND MAKES GOOD HIS ESCAPE

From Tuesday's Daily—

The Anderson ranch on Sec. 11 of Crookston township is showing up of late with its share of sensations. Mr. Anderson hired a man to him unknown, about 6 weeks ago. The contract was to work till Dec. 1st by the month. The hired help which consisted of some day men who were assisting in putting up hay and a couple of men who were doing concrete work, slept in a house across the road from the main farm dwelling.

On Sunday evening the 2nd the monthly hand did not go to bed as early as the others. Clarence M. Ball son of J. M. Ball of this city who was working in concrete and with whom Frederics the monthly man slept, was dozing off to sleep when he noticed that Frederics was fumbling with his pants and then went out.

Ball felt for his watch to ascertain the time and failed to find it. He then gave the alarm and a search revealed the fact that Frederics had skipped taking with him about all of Ball's belongings which consisted of a new gold watch worth $26 and a chain, a family heirloom worth $55, a double barreled shotgun worth $55 and $6 in cash.

It was at first thought that he had taken with him one of the horses from the pasture but a thoro search showed that the fugitive had preferred to foot it.

Information was filed with the sheriff for the capture of the thief but no trace has yet been found of him.

It was but 11 o'clock when this was discovered and the other men were roused and a search started. As the men were dressing they heard a horse gallop away and supposed Frederics had stolen a horse also from the pasture, but the horse had been secured elsewhere or Frederics has a pal. Anderson and some of the men notified the police and sheriff at once, but thus far no trace of the bold thief has been found. All that Ball is sore about is that he lay in the same room and noticed Frederics frrisking his clothes and did not get suspicious till it was too late.

Passengers who arrived in Grand Forks yesterday morning from the west on train No. 2 the Oriental Limited of the Great Northern reported heroic work of George Thompson a rancher to prevent the destruction of a bridge near Buford by fire. The bridge is a long one and it is understood that the company will suitably reward the rancher.

DEMAND WILL BE HEAVIER

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY LUMBER MAN MAKES ENCOURAGING FORECAST

THE CHEAP PRICE OF LUMBER WILL NOT LAST MUCH LONGER

From Wednesday's Daily— ...

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman says that there will probably be a heavy demand for lumber during the remaining months of the year is believed by most people who have watched the trend of business. Since last fall building in the large cities of the country show it and if figures were available, it is probable that the falling off in the use of building materials in the country would be shown to be fully as great.

The volume of trade at the retail lumber yards indicates it, and the demand on the stocks of the manufacturers pointed the same way. Naturally the demand for lumber is less in a campaign year, but everything else argues for renewed activity this fall, and the retailer who is ready will gather the largest harvest of business.

The price of lumber has probably reached a lower point than it will ever reach again. The country is rapidly recovering from the business revulsion of last fall. Lumber is the only staple commodity that has declined materially in price and it is not going to stay down.

TRADES NAG BACK DURING THE NIGHT

George Rosenberger a farmer residing near Gilby made complaint yesterday to State's Attorney Wineman that Mike Feldman a Grand Forks peddler had traded horses in his pasture without his consent. The men had a horse trade some time ago and Rosenberger turned the new horse into a pasture. A few nights ago his old horse was left in the pasture and the new one taken away. Feldman has been given until tomorrow to return the horse. It is believed that he got the worst of it in the first deal.

TERRIBLE FOREST FIRE IN BRITISH COLOMBIA

FERNIE IS WIPED OFF MAP

Fate of Four Other Towns Is in Doubt, All Communncation Being Cut Off.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 4.—The town of Fernie, B. C., is wiped off the map as a child cleans a slate. Michel, fourteen miles distant, is in flames, and the fate of Hosmer, Olson and Sparwood, intervening towns, is in doubt, they being cut off from all communication.

Over a hundred lives are known to have been lost, seventy-four of them in Fernie alone.

A territory of one hundred square miles in extent is a seething mass of flames. Through it are scattered hundreds of lumbermen and prospectors, so that the actual loss of life will not be known for days.

The properties of the Canadian Pacific and the Great Northern railways are destroyed, their bridges and rolling stock burned, so that it is impossible either to enter or leave the burning area.

People Fleeing in a Panic.

The inhabitants of the towns have fled to open districts in the vicinity in the hope of safety. From towns to the east and west the inhabitants are escaping as rapidly as possible. The railway companies have placed all available trains at their disposal.

Unless there is change of wind within the next twenty-four hours the whole of the Crow's Nest pass country will be left to the flames.

There is no possibility of estimating the loss of life and property which will result, for the flames are driven by a half gale, making it impossible to put up a fight against their advance

The conflagration is the greatest which has ever visited Canada, and ranks only with the San Francisco disaster.

Flames Sweep Over Fernie.

For the last month forest fires have been raging in the mountains of the Elk river valley country, but they have not been considered seriously. Saturday morning a heavy wind sprang up from the west, and early in the afternoon the flames appeared over the crest of the mountains to the west of Fernie. They ran down the mountain side, and before a fire guard could be organized had entered the town.

Within an hour the town was doomed and the inhabitants sought safety in flight, leaving their all behind them. All night and yesterday morning the exodus continued, the destination being a small prairie in the valley, three miles south of the town.

Three Thousand Refugees.

At present 3,000 people are camped there in the open, their only protection being shelters built of brush or blankets, while a constant shower of sparks from the burning area keeps falling through the pall of smoke by which they are surrounded.

For a time communication with towns to the east was kept open, but with the burning of the bridge across the Elk river this was closed. Scattered through the valley are many small prairies, and all of these have their groups of refugees. The hills in all directions are a seething mass of flames, cutting off every avenue of escape.

THOUSANDS ARE HOMELESS

Territory of 100 Square Miles in Crow's Nest Country Seething Mass of Flames.

Starvation Threatens Refugees.

Cranbrook, B. C., Aug. 4. — Fire is not the only danger which the people of the burning area have to face. Starvation has been added to the terrors. When the people left their homes for the protection camps little or no provisions were taken, and now there are some six thousand on the prairies with nothing to eat. The mayor of Fernie has sent out a call for assistance, which is being readily responded to.

A special meeting of the council of Cranbrook was held yesterday afternoon, and within an hour a car was being loaded with provisions, clothing and tents. Other cars will follow as rapidly as they can be loaded.

Word has been received from Vancouver, Calgary, Medicine Hat and Lethbridge that cars are also being loaded there, and several of them will be at the end of the steel by morning. Calgary is sending two cars, Medicine Hat two and Lethbridge one.

Rough estimates place the financial loss at $3,000,000 and loss of life at over a hundred.

Appeal to Premier for Help.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 4.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier received the following telegram last evening from Cranbrook, B. C.:

"Disastrous fire in Kootenay valley. Fernie, Hosmer, Crow's Nest and other places almost completely burned. Not less than 55,000 people homeless. Canadian Pacific railway carrying them to Elko and Cranbrook. Every effort is being made locally, but the people are utterly without food or shelter. Fire covers seventy miles. Seventy lives lost. Immediate relief required. Telegraph instructions at once."

The premier will consult his colleagues the first thing in the morning.

Cause of the Fire.

The cause of the fire has been traced to the burning of "slashings" in the camp of the Cedar Valley Lumber company, near Cranbrook. A great pile of light branches had been set on fire and the wind, suddenly rising, carried the flames into the forest.

The lumbermen saw the danger and made efforts to beat out the fire. Two of the men fell, overcome from smoke, and were lost, and all the rest were beaten back, while the fire began its march on Fernie and in the direction of Frank.

Relief for Sufferers.

Trains bringing in supplies have dumped their goods on the ground and they have been apportioned without confusion, the weak and helpless receiving their share as well as the strong.

Reports sent out from Calgary and widely circulated, to the effect that the death list will reach between 800 and 900 and the injured to some thousands, is most emphatically denied from all points in the stricken territory. The consensus of opinion is that the dead will not number more than a hundred when full details are known.

A wise man is apt to know when he has enough before he gets it.

SAW MILL BURNS AT BEAUDETTE

Shevlin-Mathieu Lumber Company Plant Is Destroyed With Loss Of $225,000.

The Shevlin Mathieu Lumber Co.'s big saw mill at Beaudette was destroyed yesterday afternoon by a fire which began at 3 o'clock. A blaze was first seen at the northwest part of the mill near the log slip and is thought to have originated from sparks from a burner.

Owing to the wind blowing strongly from the northeast the firemen were unable to check the flames before the main part of the mill was destroyed. However, the fire was under control before the lumber piles caught and by hard fighting the planer mill office and the company's house near the mill were saved from the flames. The estimated loss is $225,000 with insurance amounting to $113,000.

Tom Shevlin Jr., who passed thru Crookston this morning stated that the loss was not overestimated in the above statement.

Mr. Mathieu was formerly a resident of Crookston, at one time being connected with the active management of the Crookston plant.

PRIMARY LAW IS APPROVED

SENTIMENT IN N. D. IN FAVOR OF MEASURE FIRST TRIED LAST JUNE

SOME AMENDMENTS ARE NEEDED ACCORDING TO GENERAL OPINION

North Dakota's new primary law was tested on June 24, when candidates were nominated for state and county offices and for seats in the legislature. The law differs from the South Dakota statute in several respects, chiefly in the selection of United States senators. In South Dakota the primary was the basis for the operation of the machinery used in selecting delegates to the national conventions; in North Dakota the delegates were selected under the old caucus and convention system.

North Dakota sentiment, no doubt, approves the new law, but the need of amendment and improvement is poited out by nearly every person interviewed on the subject. The legislature will doubtless undertake to make many changes in it next winter. Its friends assert that all defects can be cured and that the general framework of the law will never be seriously threatened.—Minneapolis Journal.

MRS. REMI FORTIER ENTERS FINAL REST

DEATH CAME SATURDAY NIGHT AT 11 O'CLOCK AFTER TWO MONTHS' ILLNESS

Saturday night at 11:30 o'clock Mrs. Juliea Fortier wife of Remi Fortier passed away at family hame 629 Hunter St., after an illness of 2 months the cause of death being a complication of liver and heart troubles. She had not been in rugged health for some time past, but it was not expected that dissolution would come so suddenly.

Deceased was 58 years of age and came to Gentilly from Canada 31 years ago, since which time the Fortier family has been one of the most prominent in the French colony in this section.

Mrs. Fortier was born at Pembroke Can., her maiden name being Juliea Thebeau and in 1871 she was married to Remi Fortier. The family resided there until October 1878 when they removed to the Red River Valley and settled on the homestead near Gentilly which Mr. Fortier had taken the year before. They resided on the farm until December, 1906, when they removed to Crookston and have resided here ever since.

Mrs. Fortier was a woman devoted to her family. She was a woman whose life was completely wrapped up in her husband and children, was a neighbor beloved by all and a friend to all those in trouble. Her death has caused widespread sorrow and the sympathy of the entire community goes out to the stricken husband and children.

She leaves a husband and 11 children to mourn her death, one other child having died in infancy. All of the sons are married and reside in this vicinity excepting Joseph who is west in Washington, and the daughters all reside at home excepting Anna who is a nun in the Sacred Heart convent in Duluth, Mrs. Jos. Amiot of Fairfax and Mrs. Jos. LeFave of Terrebonne. The children according to age are Josephine, Remi Joseph, Ston liaus, Celina (Mrs. LeFave), Isadore, Olive (Mrs. Amiot), Medric, Anna, Ellen and Mary Louise, all of whom were at the bedside of their mother excepting Joseph who cannot come.

Mr. Fortier is completely prostrated by the shock, and was unable to see any of his friends Sunday and some apprehension is felt regarding his condition. He has been very prominent in politics in this section for years, having served as county commissioner for years, and this year has spent practically all his time as a state ditch viewer in St. Louis and other northern counties.

PRAIRIE FIRE RAGED SUNDAY

160 ACRES WERE SWEPT CLEAN BEFORE A HIGH WIND THAT PREVAILED

WIND VEERED OR FARMER JOHNSON WOULD HAVE LOST HAY STACK

From Monday's Daily—

Yesterday a prairie fire raged for some time on section 5, Fairfax township 3 miles southeast of the city and 160 acres of land was swept as clean as a board.

The fire started from a G. N. engine it is thought, and as there was a lot of old grass in the bottom it burned readily.

The wind veered just in time to save a hay stack belonging to farmer Johnson which was at first directly in the path of the fire. No damage was done but a lot of weeds were destroyed.

A prairie fire on the 2nd of August is a very uncommon occurrence in this section, but everything is as dry as tinder.

Monday afternoon south of Shirley midway between this city and Euclid a prairie fire was raging and burned over a 320 acre tract and the fire could be plainly seen from this city last evening lighting up the heavens to the north. This fire is supposed to have started from the engine of a passing Great Northern freight train.

In the territory near this fire there are hundreds of hay stacks which have not yet been plowed around and unless rain falls at once there is grave danger of heavy losses in this direction.

The hot weather, coupled with drying winds has made the grass like tinder, and wherever there is a little dead grass from last year to give the fire a start it will burn readily.

This is the earliest that prairie fires have been recorded in the history of the country according to the pioneers. None of the grain is ripe enough to burn barring a few barley fields and there is no danger to the grain as there is no last year's growth close to the ground thru which a fire could get food to run on.

WORK OF MINN. DAIRY AND FOOD COMMISSION

BULLETIN NO 28, EDWARD K. SLATER, COMMISSIONER

An apparently wide-spread opinion prevails that there is no genuine blackberry brandy upon the market. This is not strictly true, altho the department inspectors continue to find considerable quantities of so-called blackberry brandy which is very inferior in quality.

It is quite generally known that there are large quantities of the above named products upon the market which are made from waste material, such as grape pomace which is the refuse after the juice has been pressed from the grape and the waste products of canning factories. Too much cannot be offered in condemnation of the product which has for its base such material when it is sold to an unsuspecting public as pure blackberry brandy.

Some of the so-called blackberry brandies and blackberry cordials are being sold in this state bearing upon their labels the guarantee of the National Food & Drugs Act of June 30, and in some cases instances the added statement that the product has been analyzed by the Minnesota Dairy & Food Department and declared legal. The retail dealers are warned not to buy or sell products bearing a statement that they have been analyzed by this department. There is no provision in the state law authorizing such use of analysis made by the state chemist and where such a statement is used prosecution will be instituted against the dealer offering the product for sale. The courts will be asked to determine the legality of the misbranding law, which prohibits any statement on a label which is misleading.

Frequent notices to dealers and the public have been issued from this office as to the worthless character of these products and many prosecutions of offenders have been made, but notwithstanding this, it is evident that more stringent regulations must be made for the protection of the consumer.

It is therefore required that a product labeled "Blackberry Brandy" shall be a distilled product of the fruit of the blackberry bush and the label must bear the name and address of the manufacturer.

"Blackberry cordial" shall be the juice of the blackberry and may be sweetened with cane or beet sugar and fortified with neutral spirits. The label shall also bear the name and address of the manufacturer.

"Imitation, Compound Blackberry Cordial," or Artificial Compound Blackberry," may be manufactured from other fruit juices and may contain cane sugar, beet sugar or glucose, and be fortified with neutral spirits. If added coloring matter is used, this fact must be stated upon the label. If made up from refuse materials, such as grape pomace, or from fragments or trimmings of other fruits, a statement of such facts shall also appear upon the label as well as the name and address of the manufacturer.

"Blackberry Wine" shall be composed of the fermented juice of the blackberry and may contain cane or beet sugar, provided that a statement to that effect appears on the label, together with the name and address of the manufacturer.

The use of preservatives, coal tar colors and sacoharin is prohibited by law.

All descriptive matter on labels must be printed in type not less than 18 point, bold faced, Gothic capitals for bottles and similar containers, and in letters at least one-half inch in length on barrels, kegs and similar containers. When the product is removed from the original package the container in which it is sold shall also bear a similar label.

In view of the fact that blackberry brandy is often used for medicinal purposes, and that it is very necessary that its purity be above suspicion this department desires that the fullest publicity possible be given these rulings. The consuming public can assist greatly in the enforcement of the law if they will give particular attention to the labels of the product when it is offered to them.

People who dwell in paper houses should refrain from casting insinuations.

About all you have to do to make a boy hate any particular kind of food is to tell him that it is healthful.

PRISON MOWERS ARE TESTED

PRISON MADE MACHINES ARE PROVEN TO FULFILL ALL THE REQUIREMENTS

WASHINGTON COUNTY FARMERS SAY IT LEADS ALL OTHER MACHINES

From Friday's Daily—

Reports have been received by Warden Henry Wolfer from six farmers of Washington county who have tried the "Minnesota" mower made at the state prison as samples for experiments with a view to the general manufacture of such machines and harvesters in the prison. The results of all the tests were highly gratifying.

The farmers who used them in addition to the one third on the prison farm, were: Charles Lund of New Scandia; J. P. Perkins, Denmark; Peter Thompson, Langdon, and Andrew Richmond and Robert Harrington both living near this city. They say it is the best mower they ever used. It has simplicity of construction is durable will work perfectly in tangled and down clover or other grass, and will not clog up in wet meadows.

Rush work is going on in the prison shop to get other harvesters ready to be tested. They will be ready in time to use in the late harvest in the northern part of the state.

AUTO PARTY WENT INTO DITCH

Messrs J. H. Maybury, Ernest Rolsch, and Carl Riedesel started for Grand Forks today as guests of Harry Falk in the big touring car. When three miles from Fisher Mr. Falk started to turn on a road leading west when Mr. Rolsch shouted that the road straight ahead was much better. Mr. Falk turned the machine back to the first road but because of the grass at the end of the culvert, thought the culvert extended farther than it did.

One front wheel went off the end of the culvert, stopping the machine with a sudden jerk which threw the entire party out. Mr. Riedesel struck on his face and lost several teeth and also sprained his wrist. Mr. Rolsch lit on his knees and his right leg is severely injured, the other two occupants escaping injury. The car was moving slowly at the time or the accident would have been more serious. A farmer drove them to Davidson and they came in on the N. P. and were taken care of by Dr. Dunlop.

WATER WORKS CO. WINS IN SUIT BROUGHT BY ARTES. WELL OWNERS

Ed Erickson, respondent, vs. Crookston Waterworks Power & Light company, appellant.

Syllabus: First—The rule announced in Erickson vs. Crookston Waterwork Power & Light Co., 100 Minn. 481, that the law of correlative rights applies to the use of artesian waters by adjoining landowners, is adhered to.

Second—What constitutes reasonable use is a question of fact to be determined from the facts and circumstances of each particular case.

Third—Appellant is a corporation, organized for the express purpose of furnishing water to the inhabitants of the city of Crookston for domestic and municipal purposes.

Fourth—For a number of years the water for such purposes was taken from the Red Lake river and distributed thru a system of mains and hydrants and used indiscriminately for domestic purposes and for flushing sewers, sprinkling streets, extinguishing fires, running elevators, etc. The river water having become contaminated, appellant was obliged to resort to the artesian basin underneath the city to secure suitable water for its purposes and in so doing, altho it installed the most economical and approved method of pumping the waters, it resulted in lowering the head of respondent's well so that it became necessary for him to resort to the use of artificial power.

Pumping by appellant from the artesian basin for the purpose of furnishing water to its inhabitants for domestic purposes does not constitute an artificial taking as distinguished from the right enjoyed by private well owners. Both stand upon the same basis, subject to the rule of correlative rights.

The court was not justified by the evidence in limiting the use of artesian waters by appellant in its present system of mains so that it should not lower the head of water in respondent's well below the point of fifty feet from the surface and in further finding that it would be an unreasonable burden to require respondent to resort to the necessary means of pumping the water from a depth of more than fifty feet. Whether respondent and others similarly situated may be required to lift the water in their wells from a point below fifty feet, depends upon whether it is reasonably necessary for appellant to reduce the head of water below that point in order to furnish the inhabitants of Crookston and the municipality with water for all the purposes mentioned.

The evidence did not justify the trial court in finding that it was commercially feasible and practicable to install in the city an independent system of mains and pipes for the purpose of furnishing river water for other than domestic purposes.

Reversed. —Lewis, J.

The above decision was handed down yesterday by the Supreme Court of Minnesota in the famous appeal case of Erickson and others in a suit brought to restrain the Crookston Water Works Power & Light Co., from lowering the head of artesian water to such a point as stopped a flow from their wells, and, as they claimed, practically ruined their water supply. In his decision Judge Watts issued an injunction restraining the Water Works Co., from lowering the head of water more than 50 feet below the natural head, and the Supreme Court reversed this decision for the reasons stated in the above syllabus.

This is a complete victory for the Water Works Co., as it is held that they might have the right to use the water for furnishing a supply to the residents of Crookston thru the mains and also holds that no showing was made to the effect that it was practicable to lay another set of mains for flushing of the streets, fires, etc.

The plaintiffs in the suit, who were the respondents in the appeal, have not determined as to whether they will fight the case further, and their attorneys will not be able to decide until they have received the full text of the decision in the famous case, which has aroused more interest in Crookston than any other municipaly litigation in the history of the city.

ENTERED PLEA OF GUILTY TO ATTEMPT BLACKMAIL

HAROLD WOLD OF HALLOCK FACES TERM IN PRISON FOR USING THE UNITED STATES MAILS TO GET $100 FROM J. KITCHEN, A PHOTOGRAPHER OF WALHALLA, WHOM WOLD CLAIMS IS GUILTY OF A SERIOUS CRIME—WOLD THREATENED TO TELL WHAT HE KNEW UNLESS KITCHEN CAME OVER WITH THE COIN—TO FERGUS FALLS TONIGHT

From Saturday's Daily—

United States Marshal H. A. Rider of Little Falls arrived last evening from Hallock having in custody Harold Wold who is charged with having used the United States mails in an attempt to blackmail. J. Kitchen photographer of Walhalla, N. D. Wold wrote a letter in which he demanded $100 at once or he would tell of an occurrence in the photograph gallery at Walhalla 2 years ago.

Wold claims that the incident was an attempted statutory crime on the part of the photographer which the Wold boy would not permit. Wold is well connected and the affair has created a big sensation. Postoffice Inspector Hughes secured the evidence against Wold who had a hearing before United States Commissioner C. H. Mix today and admitted his guilt. Wold was at once held to the United States Court at Fergus and bail was fixed at $500 which he could not furnish, and he will be taken to Fergus to await sentence today.

Wold is a young man of very good appearance and speaks good English tho he has been from Norway but four years. He evidently did not realize the seriousness of his crime, and did not have any advice to waive examination, having no attorney. When informed by Commissioner Mix that he would have to go to jail unless he furnished bail the tears streamed down his cheeks.

Following is the tell-tale letter which he admitted writing:

"Hallock, Minn. June 11. Mr. J. Kitchen, Walhalla, N. D. Dear sir: This proof represents boy who had a picture taken in to your shop at Walhalla about two years ago. The proof is sent to you to look and see if you can remember what you done to him in the wash room when the chap had his picture taken. I am the boys father and never had any idea about your business until now when the boy came to me and told me about it. We also got strong witness on you as he is not the only one you had in your business around that vicinity. I have been searching and have found them good and strong. Now I ask you to send me $100 in spot cash inside the 28th of this month if not will have you arrested and you know your place will be in the state prison. So if you want to save your position and little of honor, you better settle with given amount of money inside of given time. It is no use for you to skip as there is a party at Walhalla notified to watch you from leaving the city. Judge with yourself now what you will do rather go to state prison before this month is out or settle with money.

Respectfully,
—Harold Wold,
R. F. D. No. 1 Box 23 Hallock, Minn.

STATES WILL GET BENEFIT

ESTABLISHING OF FOREST RESERVES WILL NOT RESULT IN LOSS OF TAXES

RESOURCE OF FORESTS ARE PRESERVED BY WISE GOVERN'T SUPERVISION

From Saturday's Daily—

In addition to the benefits secured by fire protection and by regulations which control the use of timber land and range so as to insure permanent supplies for local wants, the states having national forests now receive under the new Agricultural appropriation bill 25 per cent of the gross proceeds derived from the sale of the national forest resources. This amount according to law, goes to offset any losses to the states thru withdrawal of forest areas from taxation and is devoted to public roads and schools.

Several years ago complaints were made that the withdrawal of timber lands for forest purposes reduced the taxable areas of the states in which the withdrawals were made. The Forest Service quick to see the justice of these complaints, recommended at first that 10 per cent, and later that 25 per cent, of the gross proceeds from the national forests should be paid to the states. As a result, the states are assured of school and road funds, doubtless more certainly than they otherwise could have been, since the permanence of the forest resources is now secured by conservative management. Had the forests never been established, their resources would undoubtedly have been exhausted by hasty and improvident methods of exploitation leaving the land wasted and unproductive.

A SAD CASE OF INSANITY

YOUNG MOTHER OF SIX CHILDREN TAKEN TO FERGUS FALLS LAST NIGHT

MRS. BERTINE MARUM OF SLETTEN THE UNFORTUNATE WOMAN

Yesterday afternoon in the office of Probate Judge Morken, Drs. Holte and Nelson declared Mrs. Bertine Marum insane and she was taken to Fergus Falls last evening by Deputy Sheriff Daniels and her brother, Jens Vedvig of Cavalier, N. D.

The unfortunate woman is the wife of Peter Marum of Sletten, and is the mother of six children the youngest of whom is 10 months old. Extreme nervousness, which weakened her mind and gave rise to all manner of suspicions regarding plots against her was the cause of her trouble. She is 30 years of age and her husband 60.

The case is a very pathetic one in every respect. Mrs. Marum is the woman who created a scene on the street Tuesday night when relatives and friends tried to get her to go to the home of a friend for the night during which she got very angry and threatened dire vengeance to a student minister who was assisting her brother in taking care of her.

P.M. WAS SHORT TECHNICALLY

Sven S. Moen postmaster at Shelly was brought before U. S. Commissioner C. H. Mix today by Deputy U. S. Marshal Ryder charged with the embezzlement of U. S. postal funds, and waived examination and was bound over to the U. S. court at Fergus Falls under $500 bonds which were furnished by L. M. Hanson and L. J. Hetland, both of Shelly.

The complaint recites that on Sept. 28 last year defendant was short $250. There is no shortage now and the postmaster claims there never was any, but that the money was deposited in the bank at Shelly in his name instead of in the name of the United States. The examiner sent in the alleged shortage which was turned over to him by Postmaster Moen from the bank at that time, so that it was merely a technical mistake on the part of the postmaster in not forwarding the money to a U. S. depository instead of depositing it in the bank of Shelly.

NO SPECIAL ELECTION

SHOULD MAYOR McPHEE BE NOMINATED FOR SHERIFF HE WILL TIME

RESIGNATION SO SUCCESSOR CAN BE ELECTED ON DATE OF FALL ELECTION

From Friday's Daily—

There has been considerable talk going the rounds which emanated from certain candidates, to the effect that if Mayor J. D. McPhee was successful in securing the nomination as the Republican candidate for sheriff, the city of Crookston would be put to the expense of holding a special election, which would cost the city several hundred dollars.

The Journal interviewed City Attorney O'Brien regarding this matter to see what the conditions would really be and learned from him that while a special election would be necessary in case Mayor McPhee resigned, that the council could call it on the same date as the general election in the fall, and that the only additional expense to the city would be the printing of the separate ballot which would cost about $2.

City Clerk Childs was also interviewed and made the same statement The city council must call a special election not less than 20 nor more than 30 lays after the reignation of the mayor, and if the election was set on the same date as the general election, the same judges and clerks would do the work as officiated at the general election, and the same poll lists would govern.

Mayor McPhee was next seen and stated to the Journal that in case he was nominated as the Republican candidate for sheriff he would time his resignation so that the council would call an election on the same date as the general election and that he was willing to stand the cost of the extra ballots, the munificent sum of $2, out of his own pocket.

Thus he would not necessarily tender his resignation until the first week in October and still be in plenty of time for the election of a successor at the general election, and this will be some time after the result of the primaries which will be held Sept. 15, are known.

His resignation can be tendered to take effect any time between the time he tenders it and the first of the year.

This disposes definitely of any objections to his candidacy because of entailing extra expense or trouble to the city or citizens.

PENPUSHERS HAVE RETURNED

MINNESOTA EDITORS RETURN FROM TRIP THRU WESTERN CANADA.

EDITOR IVES HAD SET-TO WITH A FOUR-FOOTED ELK

From Thursday's Daily—

The party of 120 Minnesota editors and their ladies who left St. Paul on the afternoon of July 17, for the annual summer outing of the Minnesota Editorial association, returned to their homes today, after what every member of the party declared to be the most strenuous and at the same time one of the most delightful journies the association ever made.

The itinerary covered a distance of 3,460 miles and lay thru Northern Minnesota and Canadian provinces of Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. The stopping points on the way were Duluth, Fort Francis, International Falls, Winnipeg, Dauphin, Kamsack, Humboldt, Prince Albert, Battleford, Lloydminster, Vermillion, Wetaskiwin, Red Deer, Calgary, Banff, High River, Macleod, Lethbridge, Cardston, Medicine Hat, Moose Jaw, Regina, Davidson, Saskatoon, Strassburg, Virden, Brandon, Portage la Prairie and Winnipeg.

A Grand Trip

The editors declared that what they experienced on the journey amounted to a revelation.

The editors made their journey on a special train, secured from the Great Northern and never changed cars once during the journey. There were but two railroad accidents, both rather slight. While the train was moving westward one night from North Battleford, Saskatchewan, on the Canadian Northern, at about 25 miles per hour, the tender suddenly left the track.

The engineer quickly threw on the air brakes, and brought the train to a stop, but not until the wheels of the tender had torn up the ties for several rods and broken one steel rail. The rest of the cars remained on the track. The passengers experienced scarcely any disturbance, and few of them woke until next daylight, when they found their train at a standstill. A section crew was early on the scene and the track was repaired. Only the wheels of the tender left the track at all.

Accident to Engine

The other accident occurred early in the day while the train was speeding along the Great Northern track towards the Twin Cities from Emerson The train crew had undertaken to make a new record, and the train was rushing at a tremendous rate of speed It had passed the Winnipeg flyer and at 2 a. m. was nearing Fergus Falls when a flue in the boiler burst. The rushing engine quickly slowed down and the engineer found that it was entirely out of commission. The train was brought to a standstill and had to be pushed to Fergus Falls by another passenger train. By 5:20 another engine had been procured and once more the train was tearing along at a tremondous rate. The distance from Fergus Falls to Sauk Center, 70 miles, was made in an hour and 25 minutes. About the same rate was kept up as far as Minneapolis.

Two Elks in Conflict

Another exciting diversion was experienced by the party at the fair grounds at Brandon, Manitoba. H. E. Ives, editor and proprietor of the St. Hilaire Spectator, himself an Elk, tried to take a picture of a four-footed elk, when the animal charged on him. Mr. Ives grabbed one of the animal's horns and pushed his head aside, but the elk struck at the editor with a front hoof tearing a portion of his coat off. Mr. Ives rushed out of the pen, while the animal stamped on the piece of coat. A few minutes later the elk started to walk away and Mr. Ives pluckily went back into the pen secured the missing piece of coat, and got the coveted snap-shot of his assailant.

During the last banquet of the party, which was given yesterday afternoon by the officials and citizens of Winnipeg at the Hotel Alexandria in that city, the association presented to the president and to each member of the executive committee a beautiful token of the high esteem in which these officers were held by the association, and of the high appreciation that the party felt for the skill and success with which the trip had been managed. To the president, W. M. James, editor and proprietor of the Breckenridge Telegram, was presented a large box of table silverware. The three members of the executive committee, C. C. Whitney, of the Marshall News-Messenger, F. J. Meyst of Kellogg's Newspaper Union, Minneapolis, and W. E. Easton, of the Stillwater Daily Gazette, each received a fine traveling bag equipped with a water heater.

PUBLIC EXAMINER FINDS HANDS TIED

LACK OF FUNDS CRIPPLES HIS WORK — STATE OFFICERS FEEL THAT BANKERS' ASSOCIATION WAS NOT FAIR IN RESOLUTIONS PASSED AT CONVENTION, AND EXPLAIN HOW AMENDED LAW CUT $10,000 FROM EXAMINER'S WORKING CAPITAL

From Thursday's Daily—

State officers who are familiar with the plan of handling state funds feel that the public examiner's department suffered injustice in the resolutions adopted in the convention of the Minnesota bankers at Duluth.

They feel that criticism of the examiner and his department is implied in the portion of the resolutions relating to state affairs, and this, they say is unjust in view of the fact that the department is being conducted this year on $10,000 less than the legislature intended it to have.

What Bankers Said

The full text of that portion of the resolutions is as follows:

'Inasmuch as there has been a large increase in the number of state banks in Minnesota—there being something in excess of 600 such banks at the present time within our state—and also the large increase in the volume of business with which the public examiner is now charged other than that in connection with the examination of banks.

Therefore be it resolved, That we recommend to the state legislature that it create a state banking department to be under the supervision of a competent superintendent, whose business it shall be to properly supervise the examination of state banks, and further that the legislature provide him with sufficient funds to procure adequate and competent help, to the end that all state banks may be examined twice each year.

Be it further resolved, That we favor the passage of a law making it obligatory for all state bank examiners to pass a rigid and thoro examination to establish their competency to perform the duties required of such office.

"If the purpose of that resolution is to cast a slur upon the present administration of the public examiner's office, it is not fair," said one of the state officers yesterday. "We all know that the contingent fund for that department has been reduced to $9,000 or $10,000 less than was expected. The difference results from a new ruling of the state auditor whereby collections from examinations of financial institutions now go to the general fund of the state treasury instead of into the contingent fund of the public examiner's office as formerly.'

Schaefer Explains

Anton Schaefer, state public examiner, when asked to explain financial conditions in his office, said:

"Under the old law all collections from examination of banks and other financial institutions were allowed to go into the contingent fund of this office, but in the revised laws of 1905 that plan was changed and it was provided that the money from that source should go into the general fund. The old plan was allowed to continue until this year, and it was not until four months after the legislature had adjourned that the auditor took up the question and required that from that time all collections from examinations should go to the general fund.

According to Law

"The new rule is according to law, of course, but the legislature in fixing the appropriation for this department figured that the collections amounting to between $9,000 and $10,000 would go to our contingent fund, and made its appropriation accordingly. That is the principal thing that has hampered the department in its work.

'I agree with the state association as to the desirability of [illegible] ial attention to examination of [illegible]. Of course, if the object is to provide more state offices the plan of dividing the department is all right, and it might be carried even further to establish one department for banks, one for counties, school districts, and townships, and a third for corporations. But I do not believe that the interests of the people would be served best by that plan and my idea would be to have three branches of the same department, all under the supervision of one head and each conducted by a man competent in his own line of work."

SAINT PAUL IS TO MAKE BID

ST. PAUL KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS AFTER NEXT NATIONAL CONVENTION

Knights of Columbus will make a strong bid to bring the convention of the order to St. Paul next year. This year's convention opens in St. Louis next week and the 1909 meeting place will be selected at that time.

George Redington, clerk has been chosen as the St. Paul delegate and he intends to take with him a quantity of advertising matter which will help to land the convention. He will probably be accompanied by a representative of the Commercial club.

The convention of the Knights of Columbus generally draws about 5,000 delegates from all over the country. Montreal, Detroit, Denver and Seattle are in the field trying to land the next meeting.

THE JAG FARM IS O.K.'ED

HOSPITAL FARM FOR TREATMENT OF INEBRIATES HELD LEGAL

Minnesota may now have its hospital farm for treatment of inebriates The supreme court in an opinion filed upholds the constitutionality of the law of 1907 providing for such an institution and requiring that every municipality of the state shall contribute annually 2 per cent of its collections from liquor licenses to a fund for the installation and maintenance of the farm.

After a greater number of the cities of the state had made payments to the state treasurer under this law the city of Morris refused to pay and attacks the law on the ground that it would impose a tax on public moneys and that the state had no right to designate the funds of a municipality for any such purpose.

In the name of the state board of control suit was begun by the state against the city of Morris, and Judge Flaherty of the court of that district held that the law was constitutional. The opinion of the supreme court filed affirms the judgment of Judge Flaherty.

There is $30,476.87 in the state treasury, to be applied on the farm.

The Approaching Primaries

The primaries will be held the 15th of next month—only a little over a month ahead——and it behooves the voters of Polk county to inform themselves regarding the candidates who are in the field. The people have been clamoring for a primary election law, and now that they have one they should exercise the privileges they have of selecting the candidates they wish regardless of the dictates of any real or alleged party bosses.

Polk county this year has a large number of candidates in the field for the various offices, the candidates for the nomination for Sheriff on the Republican ticket being the most numerous. This gives the voters a chance to choose from among the candidates for the various offices the ones they believe will serve the people the most faithfully coupled with efficiency.

Every voter has the opportunity of voting for the candidate whom they personally prefer, and it is their own fault if they do not exercise this right

In choosing a candidate the voters should weigh carefully the fitness of the candidate to perform the duties that will devolve upon him if elected, and if the candidates are equally fitted for the position they seek, then the record of the candidate should be closely inspected, and the one whose past work would entitle him to preference.

There should be a big vote out at the primaries. No good citizen will remain away from the primaries unless prevented by some good citizen. It is one of the duties of good citizenship, and practically a full vote should be polled.

The X-Ray On Hearst

Under X-ray analysis the roster of delegates to the Independence League's first convention at which William Randolph Hearst uttered the keynote war cry against things in general, bore an interesting resemblance to the payroll of the Hearst publications.

It was noticed that there were many vociferous voices among the delegates which reminded one of those which cry "Extry" on the street corners of many cities. In explanation it was stated that in the Texas delegation Tracy Adams, a newspaper "hustler" or circulation "pusher" was an active delegate. "Chi" Red, who draws pay from the Hearst coffers for the same sort of work, was an important delegate from Maine. Tom Butts, a circulation man from Indiana, was a delegate from that state. "Mose" Annenberg whose work is securing subscribers to the Hearst papers in Wisconsin, also was a delegate. "Tommy" Brasky, newsboy who is well known about Clerk and Madison streets in Chicago, acted as a dignified representative of Missouri. Eddie Burke a central district driver, also was present as a delegate, cheering whenever the upraised voice of a speaker indicated that Hearst employes were expected to enthuse. "Dummy" Higgins driver of one of the Hearst newspaper wagons in Chicago, and his brother "Al" were delegates from Kentucky.

The narrative of Jacob I. Sheppard of Fort Scott, Kas., the man who tried to nominate Bryan, told after he had applied arnica to his bruises and new clothes to his back, was a sidelight on the Hearst uplift in behalf of the "common people". He related how he was seized for ejectment, how he was "roughhoused" and finally rescued from the delegates by the detail of police present. It was he who charged that the platform was changed before submitted to the convention The start which "independence" made was novel.

America's Future Industrial Rival

The real power of the near future in Europe is Germany, France and England, Russia, Austria, Italy and Spain all realize that the young Teuton giant is rapidly climbing far, far above them. In cash resources, in the vital matter of increasing population, in commerce and in manufacture Germany is leaving the rest of Europe behind.

Thus President Falliers visits England and King Edward visits the Czar and all hubnob and plan how to compete with her.

Germany in 1908 has 63,000,000 inhabitants, against the 44,000,000 of Great Britain. This is 50 per cent more man power on the side of Germany. Britain has a big percentage of unemployed, and Germany never shows a percentage of men out of work because they can't get it. She needs workers. Germany is the only European power which has more immigration than emigration. Her work men are increased every year by new comers. England loses by some 300,000 each year what she had the year before. Great Britain is going back Germany is coming forward. The distance in 10 years more will be vastly in favor of the German giant as against Great Britain and Ireland.

Germany's chemical and electrical manufacturers now greatly exceed Great Britain's similar output. In the manufacture of steel Germany, which 10 years ago produced one-half as much as Great Britain, in 1907 turned out twice as much as England, Ireland and Wales combined.

In her colonies Germany has been sinking countless millions and she will shortly reap the benefit of this investment in a greater carrying trade on the ocean and vaster exports.

In shipbuilding and cotton manufactures Germany is still far behind England but the future holds great possibilities. Sooner or later the continental nation, with its vaster population will overawe the island empire. France already has acknowledged that any regaining of Alsace-Lorraine is out of the question. The Germans can put several millions more men in the field than the French can They can arm them better, pay them better and support them far easier.

Germany is admitted by economists as the future industrial rival of the United States. The two nations present many features in common, altho of course this country has a tremendous advantage over Germany in natural resources and a more protected and vaster stretch of territories from which to draw supplies.

American Clothes Abroad

The London Tailor and Cutter sends a word of cheer to the American clothing maker. The American tailor is reprieved. His creations are "less objectionable" than usual. Ordinarily the American tailor gets very little sympathy in London. His coats fit too well. His seams are too snug. His pockets are too remarkable for their aptness at decoration as well as their usefulness.

There are many objections to the American tailor. But the most obvious one is that if the American tourist does not have it constantly borne in upon him that home-made clothes are outre, he will not spend his dollars in London just before sailing.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Bryan Volunteers

The Bryan Volunteers of Minnesota are beginning to wonder where they stand. The action of Bryan and his committee in placing Governor Johnson and F. B. Lynch on the two most important committees of the campaign would seem to indicate an intention to recognize the state administration and the party organization in the state, rather than the original Bryan men, and they are beginning to get busy and inquire what it all means. The Volunteers are much impressed with the prospects of Bryan's election and have been very confident all along that in that event their organization will control the federal patronage. Of course, they would let the Johnson men have the core, provided they would be real good, but the meat of the federal appointments would have been picked out by the Bryan wing. "It looks as tho Bryan was going the limit to placate those reactionaries," said one of the volunteers today. The Volunteers insist that Bryan is only giving Johnson and Lynch recogition as a piece of diplomacy, and that their influence after election will be nil, but they are beginning to realize that Bryan is willing to play smooth politics to be elected, and the prospect may well cause his original supporters in this state to feel nervous assuming that there is a chance of Bryan's election.—Charles B. Cheney in the Minneapolis Journal.

Hearst is Glib

W. Randolph Hearst is quite glib in saying that the republican party is the handmaiden of the trusts, but his hearers are justified in doubting that statement. After prosecuting the Rockefeller, Harriman and other interests for violations of the law, passing a new law to prevent rebating and make "midnight schedules" impossible, another law to forbid and punish the misbranding of food articles, and another to secure cleanliness in the meat packing business, the trusts themselves have a different opinion of the party.—St. Paul Dispatch.

NORTH DAKOTA EQUALIZATION BOARD CONFRONTS PROBLEMS

The North Dakota state board of equalization will convene at the state auditor's office today. The proceedings of the board this year will be followed with considerable interest particularly when it comes to equalizing the assessment of public utility corporations, because of the fact that the last session of the legislature created a public service commission which has gone to considerable work in the way of gathering data in the shape of values of railroad properties within the state, and it will be interesting to know whether or not this commission has been able to gain sufficient acts in that respect to warrant the board of equalization in raising the assessment of the railroads now operating within the borders of North Dakota.

GAME WARDEN NABS INDIAN SLAYERS OF BIG GAME

The slayers of big game are in hard luck. Game Warden Loman of International Falls landed two more Indians last night in the village bastile having caught them red handed in the possession of both moose and venison recently killed.

Mr. Loman in making a tour of the Rainy Lake country surprised a camp of five Indians on the main land at the head of Jackfish bay. By a neat bit of strategy as well as courage, he secured the two leaders and seized a good portion of the meat, including a head containing a fine pair of antlers

PLANT INDUSTRY BUREAU FINDS DAKOTA GOOD FIELD

Dr. Bell of the bureau of plant industry who is going about over Richland county on horseback has so far noted about 300 different species of plants there, and 60 of birds. He states that the only species now considered a genuine pest is the English sparrow. Their worst behavior is crowding other birds' eggs out of their nests and discouraging them from nesting in any locality where the sparrows abide. Hence the mischief-loving sparrow should be placed in the same category as the rat, and both kinds of life should be exterminated.

TURTLE MOUNTAIN LAKE N. D., SUMMER RESORT

Some idea of the substantial development that has taken place at Fish Lake may be obtained from the fact that there are now more than 25 cottages dotting its shores valued at from $200 to $2,000. The average cost of the ground and buildings of each lot is not far from $600. These cottages are owned by citizens of Cando, Rolla, Rolette, St. John and homesteaders. There are five gasoline launches on the lake and two more that will soon be completed. Of boats there are 50 or more. Lots with a water front of 50 feet have an average of $50 each and most of the desirable lots are sold. Fish Lake is no longer an experiment. It is destined to become one of the permanent attractions of the northern part of our state.—Rolla N. D., Star.

MURDER TRIAL AT TOWNER

MAN WHO SHOT CONRAD STEENERSON BEING TRIED—CLAIM JUSTIFICATION

E. R. SINKLER OF GRAFTON ASSISTING PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

From Wednesday's Daily—
Special to the Journal:

Towner, N. D., Aug. 5.—A jury was secured yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the trial of Whittaker for the murder of Conrad Steenerson son of Knute Steenerson formerly of Climax.

The trial commenced this morning. The case was outlined this afternoon by E. R. Sinkler of Grafton who is assisting State's Attorney Gerger in the prosecution of the case.

The attorneys for the defense are Tillman Smith, of Upham, graduate of the law department of the University of North Dakota in 1906; D. J. O'Connell, of Towner and W. J. Courtnay, of Page.

The state's claim is that it is a case of premeditated murder. The defense will set up a plea of justifiable homicide and will make an effort to show that Steenerson followed Whittaker about the day of the shooting and provoked him at various times during the day and was in the act of assaulting him the second time when shot. Defense will also contend that before the shot was fired Whittaker had retreated more than 30 feet and was making an attempt to escape from Steenerson thru the back door of a pool hall, while Steenerson was following him and threatening him.

SUDDEN SUMMONS OF MRS. GOSSMAN

PASSED AWAY AT 5:45 LAST EVENING AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

The entire city is shrouded in mourning as the result of the sudden death late yesterday afternoon of Mrs. L. E. Gossman at the family residence 405 Hunter street.

The announcement of the sad death came as a double shock because of its unexpectedness. Mrs. Gossman had not been feeling well for some time past, but was about the house and down town until the middle of last week. Last Thursday afternoon she took a turn for the worse and was confined to her bed from that time till the end came. Her condition yesterday morning was such as to arouse alarm, and it was intended to remove her to St. Vincent's hospital but she grew worse so rapidly that she could not be moved and sank steadily till the end came at 5:45.

Martha Ann Glenn was born Sept. 28, 1868 in New Jersey, and was in her 40th year when death came. With her family she removed west to Decorah, Ia., where her parents were residing at the time of her marriage to Mr. L. E. Gossman at Canton, Minn., April 27, 1892.

At that time Mr. Gossman had been practicing law in Crookston for nearly two years and they at once came to this city and started housekeeping.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from the house, and at 9:30 from St. Mary's church, Father Smiers officiating assisted by Rev. Father L. A. Gossman, brother of the bereaved husband who will arrive tomorrow morning from his home at New Richmond, Minn.

The interment will be in the Catholic cemetery, adjoining Oakdale.

WAS RUN OVER BY THE DULUTH TRAIN WHILE BOTH WERE DRUNK

From Wednesday's Daily—

Last night the Duluth train, No. 36 ran over a drunken Indian about a mile from Deer River, completely severing his head from his body.

The Indian known as Little Ben, had been at Deer River with his squaw and both got gloriously drunk and lay down on the tracks or as she says, beside them.

This morning when she awoke she pulled at her husband's clothing to awaken him. He did not respond, and she called, then got up and was horrified to see a headless trunk the head lying about a rod away between the rails.

The train crew did not know they had struck any one.

PENNED AND PILFERED

Protection for Bachelors

"No bachelor on earth can hope to acquire a working knowledge of even the rudimentary principles of feminine blandishments. If he is to be protected, it must be by laws such as Assemblyman Glenn proposes, to make the ladies play the game fairly to make them stop stacking the cards and dealing from the bottom.

"A bachelor, who is about to enter the matrimonial race must expect to be handicapped and to carry some weight, but he should not be led to the post blindfolded and doped." So says the Pioneer Press, sometimes known as the "old woman of Robert street." If old maids and bachelor preachers are to be accepted as authority on the sex problem the raising of children and race suicide, then we submit the Pioneer Press knows what it knows.

It is not alone, however, in supporting the bill of Assemblyman Glenn of Georgia for the protection of unsuspicious not to say uninquisitive, bachelors. They need it on more subjects than matrimony. Any man who is so self-centered and so out of harmony with nature as to live sufficient unto himself, surely needs the protection of the law, lest some designing woman should finally steal from him his ego.

The Glenn bill provides, "that if any woman, whether maid or widow, shall betray into matrimony any unsuspecting male subject of the state by scents, paints, powder or perfume, cosmetics, waters, artificial teeth, false hair, iron stays, corsets pads, or padding, hoops or high-heeled shoes, V-cut waists, lace, variegated drop-stitched or rainbow hosiery, or by any other deceitful means or artificial practices the marriage, upon conviction shall be null and void.

And why not? Marriage is a lottery anyway, in which both sides usually draw blanks, and then play the game of outward appearance for the satisfaction of seeing the next pair "stung." It is like an Eden Musee hoax where the crowd waits to see the next victim banfoozled.

A woman leads a man on until, bewildered he steps in the trap. She does not have to accept him, but once he has spoken he has no redress, tho he may find he is married to only a half or a third of the girl who wooed him; that he indeed is wedded to faith which is the belief in that hoped for and the "evidence of that unseen". But there is no hope for the repentant, unless some such law as this opens a way to salvation.—Duluth News Tribune.

Down at Fergus Falls, if the statement of a traveling man is to be believed, they have a horse that resembles one of the geysers at Yellowstone National park. He is almost a perpetual spring.

The unfortunate equine had some accident to his thorax in his young and unsophisticated days. He was out with the other colts one night and drank a little too much. Now he has sworn off from all drinking and is obliged to go almost entirely without water. Some people don't think this any particular hardship — but it is, just the same.

As soon as this unfortunate animal gets a good gulp of water it comes out thru his nostrils. This is said to be a fact; not a rank out and out nature fake. There is not a question of a bulldog licking a moose in this tale.

The only way the horse manages to get a little moisture into his system is to hang around upon rainy days and breathe deeply of the mist laden atmosphere. At other times he tries to drink thru force of habit learned in his younger days, but only on rare occasions does he get a particle of water into his system. Like "old faithful" at the Yellowstone he can be depended upon to spout every so often.

The horse remains healthy and happy, despite the lack of water. The man owning the unfortunate animal cannot justly be accused of watering his stock. Here's hoping happy days to the horse that goes longer than the camel without taking a drink. You know few people envy the camel.

An appetite for Chinese dishes including chop suey, which recently cost Chicago over $2,000,000 a year, now is rapidly diminishing. Four of the big chop suey restaurants, which bore the oriental names of "King Yen Lo," "Joy Yet Lo," "King Joy Lo," and "Wee Ying" have closed their doors within a few weeks and others are on the verge of it. According to common report the "suey" sauce is either imported or made from imported Chinese seabeans, but an essayist discussing the lack of a national taste in food in America, declared that the "oriental" sauce, like many other curious specialties is made at the stock yards in Chicago. The sudden change of fickle fancy has left the queued chop suey men puzzled and with some highly decorated and expensive furniture and furnishings on their hands, some being elaborately inlaid with mother pearl. Concerning the matter of food the essayist said: "American taste in food has been depraved because of the cosmopolitan population. The chop suey habit, so called, is the most recent manifestation of American degeneracy in food. Chinese food is not bad, it is scientifically better cooked that the American sausage, but it forms one more link in the chain of the degenerate American appetite."

A man in the northern part of the state is raising chickens and obtaining money under false pretenses. He made his hen coop air tight and put curtains at the windows. At noon he draws the curtains, making the hen house perfectly dark, so that the biddies go to roost, and at one o'clock he raises the curtains letting the light in. The hens think another day has dawned and proceed to lay another egg. It is a darn mean trick equal to the man who put green spectacles on his horses and then fattened it on rye straw. The green spectacles made the poor horse thing it was hay. —Waukon Republican.

$200,000 WORTH OF HORSES BOUGHT FOR INDIANS

There has just been delivered to the Indians on the Standing Rock reservation in North Dakota some $200,000 worth of horses, some time since contracted for by the government. About $140,000 of this sum goes to the stockmen in the vicinity of Dickinson in exchange for bands of horses numbering from 25 to 200. THE MONTH OF HARVEST

GREAT BULK OF ALL GRAIN WILL BE HARVESTED DURING AUGUST

EARLY BARLEY ALREADY IN SHOCK—WHEAT HEADS PLUMP AND LONG

From Saturday's Daily—

The ushering in of August during which month the crop in the Red River Valley will be practically all harvested, is accompanied by continued excellent prospects. The wheat reports from all directions are most favorable, only a small percentage of the wheat which was sown late being poor. A local wheat expert returned last evening from an extended trip and got out into the fields and examined the heads closely and stated that in many fields the heads averaged from 28 to 34 good plump kernels which is a remarkable showing. The cool weather continues, and is most favorable to a heavy yield of wheat. The early barley will all be cut the coming week and is a good crop, tho the acreage is below that of last year The very late barley is short and some of it will be lost because it will be difficult to bind it where the straw is so extremely short. The early oats will also be harvested the coming week. A few fields of barley have already been harvested and the land plowed.

BABY GIRL CRIED AND SCRATCHED

All the Time—Torturing Eczema Covered Her Body—Could Not Sleep—Doctor Said Sores Would Last for Years—Skin Now Clear.

CURED IN THREE MONTHS BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I take great pleasure in telling you what a great help it was for me to use Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for my baby niece. She was suffering from that terrible torture, eczema. It was all over her body but the worst was on her face and hands. Her hands were so bad that she could not hold anything. She cried and scratched all the time and could not sleep night or day from the scratching. I had her under the doctor's care for a year and a half and he seemed to do her no good. I took her to the best doctor in the city and he said that she would have the sores until she was six years old. But if I had depended on the doctor my baby would have lost her mind and died from the want of aid.

"I used all the remedies that everybody told me about and I tortured the child almost to death. Then I saw in the paper how Cuticura was the thing for irritating skin. I bathed her with warm water and Cuticura Soap and used the Cuticura Ointment. She was cured in three months. Now her skin is as clear and smooth as it could be. I shall recommend the use of Cuticura wherever I see the skin in bad condition. Alice L. Dowell, 4769 Easton Ave., St. Louis, Mo., May 2 and 20, 1907."

SOME COW STATISTICS

RELATIVE VALUE OF COWS PRODUCTIVENESS AS PRODUCER AND FETILIZER

SOME INTERESTING FIGURES FROM STATE FARM SUPERINTENDENT AT GRAND RAPIDS

A. J. McGuire superintendent of the state experimental farm at Grand Rapids in the eastern part of Itasca Co., makes a statement regarding value of dairy cows and the natural favorable conditions of this section to dairying that should be read carefully by all of our farmers, which in part is as follows:

Dairy farmers the world over are the most prosperous farmers and there is a reason for it. A dairy cow is the most productive of all farm animals. The common cow is capable of producing 5,000 pounds of milk yearly, or over two and one half tons To one who has never kept a record with his cows this may seem incredible but this amount is only common. Well bred dairy cows produce 8,000 lbs. of milk yearly on an average and in exceptional cases cows have produced over twice this amount.

Aside from the productiveness of the cow there is another reason why dairy farmers are generally prosperous. In raising $8 to $12 worth of soil fertility is sold from the farm in every ton of grain, but when this grain is fed on the farm and the products sold in the form of butter less than 50 cents worth of the fertility is sold. The ton of grain containing $40 worth of fertility sells at from $20 to $35. The ton of butter containing less than 50 cents worth of fertility sells for over $500.

SECOND MARKET DAY A SUCCESS BEYOND ALL ANTICIPATIONS

From Saturday's Daily—

Crookston's Second Market Day was a more pronounced success than the first one by large odds. Farmers came in with their families by the hundreds from all directions and brought loads of produce with them which they dispose of at very satisfactory prices. They also brought in stock etc., and machinery which was sold at auction for good prices.

The farmers were greeted upon their arrival by the Crookston band which played till noon in various parts of the business districts, and after dinner the Burnham Creek band gave a most excellent concert. The people of Crookston as well as the visitors were pleasantly surprised at the splendid showing made by the band from west of Crookston, of which their community may well be proud.

The Sport Program

The sport program was started in the morning with the race down Broadway between the fast horses of Jos. Eckert and C. L. Brennan. The latter's horse fell towards the finish, marring the race, which was won by Eckert, but fortunately Mr. Brennan was not badly hurt, tho his horse has a badly bruised knee.

In the Auto race which followed on Main street Mr. Christianson came in slightly ahead of Mr. Parr, both men running auto liveries in the city.

Draft Team Prize

The prize for the best draft team owned by a farmer went to the handsome pair of blacks owned by August Reitmeier northwest of the city, as handsome a pair of horses as were ever seen on the streets of Crookston and the second prize went to L. Capistran who also has a very fine team. There were scores of others with most creditable horseflesh.

Farmers Won Tug of War

The Crookston team did not have a lookin in the tug of war. The local team selected failed to show up, and another one was chosen but the farmers pulled them all over Broadway The two teams lined up as follows:

Farmers' team:

Messrs Omer Sauve, Wm. Chappious, Isadore Dubuque, Joe Farley, Thor. Amundsen, Berdine Spokely, Knute Swenson, John Demarais, Andrew P. Johnson, Pat McGlynn, Eugene Prudhomme and Pat Kelly.

City Team:

Messrs. Vonderbeck, Lalonde, Maurice Brosseau, Thygeson, Henry Brosseau, John Sundet, Ole Sundet, Pete Gramer, Fink, Johnson, Timbeck, Torgerson.

Crowds Well Fed

At noon the farmers and their wives and children were all guests of the business men of Crookston at a fine spread in the Auditorium where the Womans Relief Corps had the table loaded with enough for an army and none went hungry. This was a popular feature as it gave the people from country an opportunity to get together and discuss matters of interest, crops, etc.

A Fine Address

Senator A. D. Stephens made a very interesting address to the farmers at the Auditorium during the noon hour. He dwelt on the fact that the interests of the farmers and the business men were mutual and that one could not prosper without the other. He spoke of the value of a market day to both, and pointed out the advantages the farmer who was diversifying his crops and produce had over the one crop farmer. His remarks were received with great enthusiasm and he did not fail to boost the school of agriculture which aroused still more enthusiasm.

Free Auto Ride

One of the very pleasant features of the day was the auto ride given the visitors. There were a large number of machines and they were given a free ride to points of interest in the city and vicinity and were kept busy till late in the afternoon in seeing the sights. The ride was thoroly enjoyed and will serve to take the point off the antipathy felt towards the "devil wagons" by some of the farmers, caused to some extent by careless driving by chauffers.

Minor Features

The other sports for the benefit of the farmer boys and girls also created much amusement and the day thruout was a grand success. Too much credit cannot be given to the market day committee consisting of Messrs. John Cowley, O. Mercil Jr., Thomas R. Johnstone, and Walter Stone together with all others who were in any way connected with the program for the day.

BACK FROM FINE EUROPEAN TRIP

C. C. STRANDER HOME FROM A TWO MONTHS' JAUNT ACROSS WATERS

ENCOUNTERED NO ACCIDENTS—MANY INTERESTING THINGS TO TELL

From Saturday's Daily—

C. C. Strander returned this morning from a two months' trip to Europe. He is looking fine after the trip and enjoyed every minute of it, tho he is glad to return home again and get back in to the harness in God's country. On a portion of the trip Mr. Strander was accompanied by A. Holmboe, of this city, who returned with him as far as Alexandria where he will spend a few days before returning to Crookston.

Mr. Strander went over on the Oceanic one of the big boats of the White Star Line, making the trip in seven days, and returned on the Kron Prinzessin Cecelia, of the North German Lloyd line, making the trip in less than 6 days. The weather was fine with the exception of a few days of rough weather on the return trip. When interviewed by the Journal, Mr Strander said in part:

"The weather was fine and cool during the entire trip. I only met two people from the States whom I knew, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Bratrud of this city who will be home next week.

"In practically all the European countries the financial conditions are closer than usual, but conditions are improving steadily. I noticed that in Germany, England and France the papers were all dwelling on what they termed the dreadful financial conditions in America, the evident purpose being to stop emigration to this country as much as possible.

"Wherever I went I heard complaints that the tourist travel from America this year was much lighter than usual, but at that we met tourists wherever we went and large numbers of them. The hotels in Norway all seemed to be fairly well filled and doing a good business.

"While such a trip is thoroly enjoyable, any one making it is more thoroly impressed with the advantages of our own country than ever before, and while I had a fine time, and saw many interesting sights, I am glad to get back to Crookston again, and prefer to live right here to any place I visited in Europe."

Mr. Strander came from Hamar, Norway to Minnesota 20 years ago and this was his first trip back. He visited the haunts of his youth, and spent several weeks in Norway and Sweden. He crossed one of the highest ranges of Norwegian mountains, and had the pleasure of throwing snow balls in July.

He also visited London, Paris and points of greatest interest in Germany and other European countries. He returns in the best of health and is ready to get down to business again.

TO PROSECUTE ALLEGED SLAYER

WHITAKER WHO KILLED STEENSON IN A SALOON ROW WILL PLEAD IN SELF DEFENSE

HAS ENGAGED CHICAGO ATTORNEY TO DEFEND HIM—JURY HARD TO GET

From Saturday's Daily—

E. R. Sinkler, of Grafton will assist State's Attorney Weber, of McHenry county, N. D., in the prosecution of Whitaker, the man who killed Conrad son of Knute Steenerson formerly of Climax but now located in North Dakota. Whitaker has secured a Chicago lawyer for his defense and will claim self defense.

The crime for which Whitaker will be tried was committed in a pool room. Steenerson and Whitaker had had trouble on a couple of occasions, and, it is claimed by Whitaker's friends, Steenerson slapped Whitaker a much smaller and older man. Whitaker armed himself and when Steenerson again appeared in the pool room and threatened to attack him he was shot. Whether Whitaker was justified in shooting under the circumstances is a question that has been debated freely in McHenry county and it will likely be a difficult matter to secure a jury.

District court will convene in Towner on Tuesday and it is probable that the Whitaker case will be the first one called.

It was reported that Attorney Sinkler would defend the prisoner, but this was an error. He was engaged by the commissioners of McHenry county to assist in the prosecution.

Conrad Steenerson, the boy killed, was in Crookston a few days before the fatal shooting, having just returned from a claim in the Roseau country where he has been with his cousin from Climax for the greater part of the winter, and stopped off here to visit a few days with relatives and friends before proceeding to McHenry County, N. D., where he was killed a few days later by Whitaker.

FERTILE RIGHT IN THE LINE

ITS COMMERCIAL CLUB WILL HELP BOOST THE COUNTY EXHIBIT

MESSRS. L. E. GEORGE, H. L. GAYLORD AND T. O. PROPP ARE HUSTLING COMMITTEE

From Friday's Daily—

J. H. Stair was here Tuesday from Crookston as a representative of a committee of that place appointed to solicit donations from the different cities and villages in the county for a county exhibit at the state fair, says the Fertile Journal.

It is proposed to raise $1,200 or more for this purpose, $350 having been donated by the county and $150 by the state and the balance to be raised by subscription. Crookston raised $500 and the Fertile Commercial Club after listening to Mr. Stair's proposition decided to help a good thing along and donated $50.

The Club instructed its president to appoint a committee of three to look after securing exhibits of grain grasses, vegetables and fruits, and he appointed H. L. Gaylord, Theo. O. Propp and L. E. George as such committee.

The committee is desirious of getting good samples of the above and wants the co-operation of the farmers in procuring the same. They would deem it a great favor if farmers would bring in good sized bundles of rye and barley at once, also of other grains, grasses or vegetables that have matured.

Wheat harvest, and rye, barley and oat threshing was commenced in this vicinity today, and the threshing operations are about the earliest on record.

N. C. Hanson the progressive farmer on section 34, Lowell township 2 1-2 miles west of the city who has about 70 acres of grain cut, this morning started threshing rye, the field yielding 27 1-2 bushels to the acre and he sold it on the spot for 80 cents per bushel which nets him just $22 per acre which is doing pretty well on $35 land in one crop. Mr. Hanson has 22 more acres of Rye to thresh which is a most profitable crop this year.

He also started threshing oats and barley today, the yield of both being very good, but as he did not finish the fields he cannot yet give the average per acre. Last year he began threshing on August 20, so he is 16 days earlier this year, and will have his land plowed where his early grain was sowed, before many farmers have started cutting.

First Wheat Harvested

This morning Ed Lanctot, who resides in Gentilly township between the old Gentilly bridge and the village, started in cutting a field of 180 acres of wheat which J. M. Stephens who inspected it yesterday says is as fine a field as he has ever seen and which will yield from 25 to 30 bushels per acre.

This wheat of course was not "scratched" in. It was sown on land which has been cultivated, seeded down to grass regularly every so often and its vitality kept in good shape. It was seeded early, got a big start from the early spring and summer rains and was beyond damage from dry weather before the dry weather set in.

While a few small fields of wheat have possibly been cut, this is the first field of any size being harvested that has been reported to the Journal office. Barley harvesting is on in full blast however, and considerable wheat will be cut before the end of the week.

WILL NAME FULL COUNTY TICKET

DEMOCRATS PROPOSE TO MAKE A FINISH FIGHT IN NOVEMBER

WILL NAME FULL COUNTY TICKET AT CONVENTION HERE SOON

From Tuesday's Daily—

The Democrats of Polk county will this year put a full ticket in the field, and the candidates will all be named when the county convention is held in Crookston by the democrats to name delegates to the state convention.

The party leaders have come to the conclusion that as this is presidential year, and with a good county organization, there is a good chance of electing several officials, and will therefore name a ticket on which every portion of the county is represented, and will endeavor to select men of ability who are at the same time vote getters.

If this plan is followed, it will serve to add materially to what already is certain to be a lively campaign.

JOHN SAUGSTAD BOASTED

THE FOLLOWING FROM THE "RED RIVER REVIEW", OF JUNE 26TH 1908, WILL BE READ WITH SPECIAL INTEREST BY POLK COUNTY VOTERS:—

"John Saugstad has filed for representative in Polk county. The writer, as a clerk in the last legislature, had the opportunity of watching Saugstad's work, and were we a voter in Polk county he would have no more enthuciastic supporter. Saugstad is on the square. He votes on each proposition on its own merits and does not vote for measures of doubtful value just to get the other fellow to vote for his bills. He is not a vote trader. The trading of votes is one of the biggest evels in every legislative body. The member who refuses to do it may not pass his bills the first session, but he gains the respect of his fellow members—even the most persistent traders—and Mr. Saugstad will be a power in the next house, if elected—which he will be if the Polk county people know his record." 1td

ROBBERS BUSY AT E. G. FORKS

WELL KNOWN CARPENTER TERRIBLY BEATEN AND ROBBED OF $85

ROBBERS SCARED AWAY FROM REAR OF FINLAYSON RESIDENCE

From Monday's Daily—

Saturday night and Sunday were busy days for foot pads at East Grand Forks without doubt being the closing activities of the hangers on of the Grand Forks Fair. Saturday night while enroute to his home Jos. Lancas, a well known carpenter about 55 years of age was held up by two men close to his home in the south end of the city and terribly beaten. He was robbed of $85 in cash and when he recovered consciousness crawled to his door step where he was found by his family a little later. No clue to the crooks. He was terribly hurt about the head and kicked about the body.

Last evening about 9 o'clock Mrs. Chas. Kellar noticed two thieves trying to enter the rear of the Geo. Finlayson residence and frightened them away by making an outcry. Before she could notify any one the two crooks disappeared around a corner.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES

Kidney Diseases Cause Half the Common Aches and Ills of Crookston People

As one weak link weakens the chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down.

Overwork, strains colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ill. Crookston cures are the proof.

John P. Freeberg, tailor, of 601 Hunter St., Crookston, Minn., says: "In the summer of 1898, I had occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills and from the good results obtained from their use I gave a statement in which I strongly recommended them to anyone suffering from weakened kidneys I am pleased to confirm that testimonial at this time. I suffered for years from kidney trouble, the action of the kidney secretions being too frequent and disturbing my rest at night. The many remedies I used proved of little value until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at the Wallace Drug Co. The action of the kidneys was regulated by their use."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Glacier Ice from Alpine Mountains

The introduction of electric railways into Alpine districts has been the means of establishing a new and somewhat strange industry namely; the quarrying of glacier ice for distribution in large cities, says a consular report. High as the Alps in quality is golden grain beer. It is brewed from the best of nature's products in a better way than other beers and deserves a place on the home table. IN DEFENSE OF NORWAY

NORWEGIAN WRITES INTERESTING ARTICLE ON FARMING IN NORWAY

SAYS MANY FARMS ARE LARGE AND OWNERS PROGRESSIVE—RICH RESOURCES

The following communication has been received for publication by the Journal, from a native of Norway who is of the opinion that an article published recently did not do Norway and Norwegians justice. The communication follows:

Editor Journal:

The alleged statements of C. C. Strander in a purported interview in Monday night's "Crookston Times" in regard to farming in Norway, might have been meant as a joke on the good farmers of that beautiful and fertile country, or it shows that his observations in the farming districts there have been limited to the most mountainous parts, as for instance, a person from Norway would take a trip thru the Rocky Mountains in this country and on his return home would tell his people about farming in U. S. instead of telling them about farming in the Rockies.

Norway is not a small country with the exception of Russia being one of the largest in Europe. Many of the farms are very large and campare favorably with farms in this country, but they are unfortunately not cultivated like gardens as Mr. Strander states. The majority of the farms in Norway are not yet cultivated to a great extent for the reason that Norway has so many other resources such as timber, mining, fishing, —— dairying, sheep and goat raising, ship building and highway and rail road building for the laboring class, that cultivating and reclaiming vast land areas have up to the last decade been greatly neglected.

The government in later years has done a great deal to encourage farming, draining swamps and planting trees on prairies and valleys not suited for agriculture.

Norway today has some of the finest farms in the world, not a few of the farmers owning their own electric light plants and waterworks, flour and saw mills, and employ scores of laborers of both sexes the year round. A well stocked and cultivated farm in Norway compares favorably with an ordinary village in this country. If Mr. Strander had been in Christiania last year, during the summer and fall agricultural fairs, and seen the products of farming in Norway, he would not wonder so much about how the great number of people subsist on the small patches. They grow as fine barley, oats, wheat and potatoes and as much per acre as anywhere in the world. Their vegetables compare in quality and variety with the products of this country.

Fruit raising, especially in the western part of Norway is advancing so fast, that no one will believe it until they have seen it, or read the government reports. Apples, pears, plums prunes and cherries are of fully as good quality as we raise in our own Wenatchie and Yakima valleys, the trees growing just as fast, bearing just as much and as often. Strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, blueberries and many other wild varieties are as fine as anywhere in the world. Flowers and house plants are also grown a great deal and find a ready market, as the people of that country are great lovers of such.

The progressive farmers in Norway are well provided with all kinds of machinery and tools, some imported but most of it manufactured there, using the American makes a good deal for models.

They have large agricultural colleges and experimental farms and they keep the farmers well posted in regards to farming in all branches. The agricultural branch of the government has agents all over the civilized world studying different methods and obtaining anything and every thing that may be for the betterment of the Norwegian farm. Besides this the government has traveling experts in all branches of agriculture, visiting every farm in the country, teachhing and instructing free of charge.

The most difficult problem for the Norwegian farmer to solve is the labor question. The young men and women, as soon as they are able to work out, get what they call over there the "American fever" and some way or other they manage to get enough money for a steerage passage and in due time arrive in this country ready to take up the battle of life for better or worse. Norway in the meantime is looking for young and strong men willing to cultivate the soil, the government doing all in its power, offering inducements to stay home, and discouraging emigration.

Respectfully,

Oliver Olafson,

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 4th 1908.

OLE SUNDET BREAKS LEG IN RUN-A-WAY ACCIDENT

TEAM WHICH PUT ON RUNAWAY STUNT WEEK AGO DUPLICATED IT YESTERDAY—LINE BROKE TEAM STARTED ACROSS DITCH AND MR. SUNDET LEAPED TO GROUND WITH WIFE IN HIS ARMS —COMPOUND FRACTURE OF LEG RESULTED, THE BONE BELOW THE KNEE PROTRUDING THRU THE FLESH

The livery team which ran away with five waitresses from the Hotel Crookston one week ago Sunday evening, nearly killing two of the occupants, duplicated their performance Sunday morning and as a result Ole Sundet is in Bethesda hospital in this city with a compound fracture of the leg, and if he does not lose the leg he will at best be laid up for a long time.

With his wife Mr. Sundet started on a drive to Climax at 8 o'clock Sunday morning and when about four miles out of town the horses began kicking and rearing and evidently had determined on another runaway. Mr. Sundet, who is a powerful man did not care for that kind of entertainment and laid back with all his might on the reins and without doubt would have held them had not one line snapped. This resulted in a violent jerk on the other rein which pulled the team, which was now going at a good clip, into the ditch.

Seeing that he could not control the team, Mr. Sundet seized his wife and jumped from the rig as the team leaped across the deep ditch by the roadside. He lit in a depression in the ditch which turned his ankle and the bone snapped just below the knee and the end of the bone protruded thru the knee.

The blood spurted from the ugly wound and his wife would have been distracted had not a man who was walking down the railroad track seen the accident and rushed to her assistance. He at once ran to a farm house and telephoned to Dr. Smith who jumped into his automobile and was soon at the scene. After staunching the flow of blood he brought the injured man to the city and the fracture was reduced. It is believed the leg can be saved if no complications set in.

Mrs. Sundet escaped with a severe jar and a bad fright. The team after crossing the ditch swung back on the road again and started on South at a brisk trot and were overtaken and brought back to the city with no damage to the rig at all, the one broken line having been the extent of the breakage. The team evidently did not care to run after the occupants of the rig had been disposed of.

SOLD $2,000 WORTH OF GOODS

AUCTION SALE BY C. A. HITCHCOCK LAST SATURDAY A HUMMER

HORSES, COWS, MACHINERY, BUGGIES AND FURNITURE WAS SOLD

From Monday's Daily—

One of the Grand successes of Crookston's Second Market Day Saturday was the free auction sale conducted by C. A. Hitchcock. The popularity of this feature is increasing steadily and on Saturday over $2000 worth of stock, machinery and household goods was sold, the prices as a rule being very satisfactory to both buyer and seller.

This is a feature of Market Day that is destined to grow steadily. It is a sort of clearing house at which the buyers and sellers get together disposing of what they have to sell, and buying whatever they need that is offered. Later on there will be still more stock brought in for sale and the result will be the best stock market in the northwest, as outside buyers will compete with local buyers in the bidding on both horses, cattle as well as pigs, sheep or anything else in that line.

CUCUMBERS PROFITABLE

OTTER TAIL COUNTY FACTORY IS DOING GOOD BUSINESS IN CUCUMBERS

220 FARMERS NEAR PERHAM ARE RAISING THEM THIS SEASON

Perham Enterprise: The M. A. Gedney Pickling Co., opened their local factory yesterday, with H. F. Holst as manager. The first cucumbers received were furnished by M. J. Palubicki, who lives on the outskirts of the village. The weather of the past two weeks has been very favorable for the growth of cucumbers and a good crop is anticipated. The factory has facilities to handle over 14,000 bushels.

The Gedney people are well pleased with the manner in which the farmers in this locality respond to their request to raise cucumbers. The total number who are raising cucumbers is 220. The amount which each one has planted varies from a half an acre to three acres. Under present circumstances, the returns promise to be very encouraging. The company will pay 90 cents a hundred for cucumbers from 1 to 3 inches in length 30 cents a hundred for cucumbers from 4 to 5 inches long and 20 cents a hundred for crooks and nubs. It is very important that cucumbers be pickled while they are small as in that way the highest price will be secured

BLUEJACKETS TAKEN CARE OF

Entertainments, Excursions and All Manner of Amusements Provided for Men.

Auckland, New Zealand, Aug. 12.—New Zealand to-day again, with a lavish hand, showered its hospitality upon the officers and men of the United States Atlantic battleship fleet. The chief event of the day was the reception of Rear Admiral Sperry and his officers, given this afternoon in Drill hall by the mayor and mayoress of Auckland. To meet the naval officers had gathered all the officials, civil and military, and hundreds of citizens. Numerous women, gowned in the latest winter fashions, also attended the function, which was a brilliant one in every respect.

Admiral Sperry Entertains.

After the reception Admiral Sperry entertained the members of the legislature at luncheon on board the Connecticut. Speeches on both sides were felicitous to a degree and expressive of the warm friendship that exsists between New Zealand and the United States.

Shore leave was granted to 1,000 bluejackets this morning. They were taken in hand by various committees, whose duty and pleasure it was to see that they had a good time. And they had it. Theater parties and other entertainments had been arranged, and decorated electric cars conveyed the men of the fleet to the numerous beauty spots in the suburbs.

Take Part in Rifle Matches.

Shortly after noon the men were taken to various places, where the committee had arranged elaborate luncheons for them.

This evening a brialliant state ball will be given in honor of Admiral Sperry and the officers of the fleet by Lord Plunkitt, the governor, at Government house.

Prime Minister Ward has waived the regulations which prevent the landing of an armed force in order that the Americans may compete in the rifle matches here. The principal match in New Zealand will take place to-day and the American marksmen are hopeful of making a good showing.

Burlington, Iowa, Aug. 12. — F. P. Mapes, the alleged forger who was arrested in Omaha several weeks ago on account of charges he made against his former wife, implicating her in forgeries charged to him, refuses to eat, and Sheriff Williams is disturbed over the matter.

Several days ago Mapes attempted to escape from prison, using a table spoon in an effort to dig his way out, but he failed. He was put in solitary confinement and is now refusing food.

Duluth, Aug. 12.—Word reached Duluth early last evening that a man named John Walker had been killed by a Duluth, Missabe & Northern train near Arnold station. BIG DAMAGE IN SOUTH DAKOTA

SECOND SUNSTROKE FATAL.

Young Farmer Succumbs When Heat Again Overcomes Him.

Osceola, Wis., Aug. 12.—Joel Hanson, a progressive young farmer, is dead from sunstroke. On July 24 he sustained a slight stroke, but felt its effects only a day or two. The second stroke, while he was working in the harvest field, however, caused him to die almost instantly.

Anthrax Epidemic Spreads.

Yankton, S. D., Aug. 12. — Anthrax still continues to cause great uneasiness in this county, and the dread disease has appeared in stock only three miles from town. Vaccination is being used in a wholesale manner. The loss has been heavy and the custom of leaving cattle that have died of anthrax in pastures or burying them in shallow graves is helping to spread the disease.

Nearly a Cetenarian at Death.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Aug. 12.—One of the oldest residents of South Dakota, Mrs. Mary Dokkula, has just died at her home on a farm in Hamline county. She was ninety-six years eight months and one day old at the time of her death. She had resided in South Dakota many years.

Some people can hardly believe a word they say.

Nine Counties [illegible]k by Terrific Hail Storm—Many Farms Swept Clean.

Aberdeen, S. D., Aug. 12. — Nine counties extending from Campbel to Codington including Walworth, McPherson, Edmunds, the southwest part of Brown, the northeastern part of Faulk and Spink and the north part of Clark were struck by a hail storm yesterday which, at some points, was forty miles in width. Reports indicate that the loss to cereal crops will range from 25 per cent to total. It is impossible at this time to give the value of the crops destroyed. The loss would be enormous were it not for the fact that much of the grain is cut. The heaviest damage reported is in the stretch of country from Ashton to the Clark county line, where harvesting had not been progressing fast. Mound City, in Campbell county, reports twenty-five farms swept clean by hail.

Attention, Asthma Sufferers.

Foley's Honey and Tar will give immediate relief to asthma sufferers and has cured many cases that had refused to yield to other treatment. Foley's Honey and Tar is the best remedy for coughs, colds and all throat and lung trouble. Contains no harmful drugs. Sold by all druggists.

BIGGER FLOW OF GRAIN REPORTED BY RAILROADS

A Tonnage Exceeding That Of 1907 Is Now Being Gaththered.

Tonnage greatly in excess of that produced last year is being gathered from the grain fields of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and the effect of this must soon be felt in business circles generally. The railroads are assured of a heavvier call for equipment, for, altho the bumper crop prospect of July 1 was scaled down, there is a total production of all grains well ahead of last season.

The Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Soo roads are receiving late harvest reports with satisfaction. The Milwaukee, North-Western and Omaha are already getting the first run of the new coarse grains. First country loadings of consequence are reported along the Minneapolis & St. Louis and Chicago Great Western. The big movement of wheat will not start for some time yet.

Durum Yielding Well

Durum wheat where cut and threshed, is yielding well, and some spring wheat has been threshed, tho no new wheat has yet been received at terminals. The crop is spotted bad in places and therefore somewhat misleading. Some South Dakota counties have the finest crops for years and in the districts from whence come the less favorable reports there are enough good fields to offset losses materially.

Where grain is ripe farmers are rushing work, as the weather has been very favorable. High prices have made the farmers feel good. Much effort is being made to get in the crop while the weather holds clear, but there appears no general anxiety to rush grain to market, as there seems more confidence in the stability of values than in former seasons when the movement began with the price range high.

Advices from the Missouri slope where it was very dry thru July, say that the wheat is turning out better than was expected and that the rains of the latter part of July brought it to maturity.

H. V. Jones' Report

H. V. Jones, who predicted satisfactory crops a short time ago, has not changed his view. He believes that the better distribution of the crop is a highly favorable factor. Mr. Jones said: "I can only repeat what I said a few days ago—that, in my estimation, the northwest has the best all-around crop in several years. There is a heavy increase in the oats and barley acreage and while the yields of these crops will not be heavy in localities, the large acreage will roll up into big totals as compared with a three or four years' average. Then the crop is better distributed. It occurs usually that where a locality has a failure, or a partial failure, the district is affected quite uniformly. It is not so this year, except in occasional instances. A farm may give only a small wheat return, but the same farm will carry a good flax crop or a good barley crop. This will give a return to the farmers that will assist him in meeting obligations, which is materially different to him from a failure of all crops.

CANADIAN STRIKE SITUATION QUIET

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 12—The local strike situation is quiet.

C. P. R. cut down freight tonnage by 20 per cent here and at Kenora. There are rumors that with the exception of the Molders International other internationals are not supporting the strike.

The company has cancelled all the passes issued to the men over the railway lines for the time being, so many men who thought they would take a holiday during the strike, will have to pay their own transportation fare in full.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 12.—The first act of violence since the Canadian Pacific railway strike was instituted in Winnipeg took place last night about midnight, when almost all the windows in the passenger coaches and several panes of glass in other cars were broken by stones hurled through them by unknown persons in the St. Boniface yards across the Red river from here. The passenger train was sent to be turned and the missiles were thrown while the train was in motion on the return trip to Winnipeg. Many of the stones were as large as a man's fist and were found all over the floor of the cars. Trainmen say that the sound of crashing glass was all over in a minute and several persons were implicated in the act.

Beyond this, greatest interest is manifested by the strikers in the actions of the company and at all hours the main entrances to the yards are surrounded by men who take note of all that goes on within. Three entered the yards and were promptly arrested by special police and escorted to the police station. They were released by the magistrate with a warning not to repeat the offense.

Local strikers emphatically deny that the engineers are not in sympathy with them. They assert the engineers' union will support them.

The strikers say that in another week many of the trains will be unfit for the road.

CAN'T CHEW GUM OR CANDY.

"Hello" Girls Also Must Stop Conversing With Admirers.

Watertown, S. D., Aug. 9.—The candy and chewing gum business of the state received a staggering blow yesterday when the Dakota Central Telephone company issued an order to its hundreds of "hello" girls in South Dakota forbidding the chewing of gum or eating sweetmeats during working hours. Conversation with visiting admirers also is prohibited, and fair "Central's" vocabulary will comprise but "number" and "line is busy."

DR. FORCE IS PAROLED.

Former Vice President of Insurance Company Secures Liberty.

Stillwater, Aug. 9. — Dr. Jacob F. Force of Minneapolis was granted a parole from the state prison by the board of control yesterday. No relative or other person appeared in his behalf. The action was taken at the regular monthly meeting. The doctor was received at the institution March 30, 1907, under a sentence of three years and six months for alleged misappropriation of money during the insurance scandal investigation by the state.

FATAL TO TEN PERSONS

Trolley Cars Running at High Rate of Speed Crash Together Near Piqua, Ohio.

MISTAKE IN ORDERS IS CAUSE

Cars Come Together With Terrific Force, One of Them Being Completely Telescoped.

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 12. — Five persons are dead, five are probably fatally injured and fully twenty-five others sustained minor injuries last night when two trolley cars crashed together between Sidney and Piqua, on one of the lines of the Western Ohio Traction company.

The north-bound car out of Piqua was running on time, while the south-bound car out of Sidney was late and running at great speed. The cars met almost directly in front of the Shelby county infirmary, to which the dead and injured were conveyed. Physicians and surgeons were hurried to the scene in automobiles from Sidney.

Mistake in Orders.

Mistake in orders caused the wreck, it is said, which is the worst that has occurred in this section of the state in many years. Both cars were running at a high rate of speed. While rounding a slight curve each motorman caught sight of the approaching car. Bailey, who was a new motorman, tried to jump from his car and was killed. The two cars came together with terrific force, the impact completely telescoping the south-bound car, in which the majority of those killed and injured were passengers. Owing to the remoteness of the point at which the accident occurred relief was slow. It is said that several persons may die as the result of their injuries for lack of proper care.

Revenue Cutter Men in Row.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 12.—The revenue cutter Tuscarora cleared from here last night, en route to Milwaukee, after a two-day stay in port. Several of the sailors of the boat got into trouble in Hancock late Sunday night, but no arrests were made, although the officers were summoned.

GIANT TREES IN DANGER

FIRE RAGING IN VICINITY OF GREAT GROVE IN CALAVERAS COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

FINEST GROVE OF TIMBER IN THE WORLD IN DANGER OF FIRE

Sonora, Cal., Aug. 12.—Fire is raging in the vicinity of the great grove of big trees in Calaveras county, some twenty miles north of this place. Although the flames have reached the south grove, wherein are some of the giant sequoia gigantae, it is not believed the big trees are in danger, as they stand in low, marshy ground, where the fire could scarcely find dry material upon which to feed. A large force of men has gone to fight the fire, however.

SIEZE KITS FOR MAKING BAD COIN

Secret Service Agents Get Direct Evidence Against Donnerstag, Wis., Youths.

Rhinelander, Wis., Aug. 12.—Secret Service Agents T. R. McManus of Milwaukee and Thomas Porter of Chicago secured additional evidence yesterday in the counterfeiting case which has resulted in the arrest of the three Donnerstags, Hugo, Rudolph and Albert. A search of the premises by the officers located $1,035 in counterfeit gold coin, $20 in silver quarters, half dollars and dollars and two plaster of paris molds for gold coin, also lathes for knurl and special work and a complete gold and silver plating outfit, together with all necessary apparatus for counterfeiting.

The Donnerstag home was searched and molds for $5 gold pieces were found. The mother of the boys in custody jumped into a boat as the agents were searching the house, but was ordered back by Detective McManus, who held a .45-caliber revolver on the boat and threatened to sink the craft if she did not come back. The mother and daughter were taken in by the officers, but owing to the illness of the daughter, who had recently undergone an operation, were left at Woodboro.

Efforts have been made to destroy incriminating material at the old Donerstag home, but the United States agents caught on in time.

ITCHING ECZEMA FIFTY-FIVE YEARS

Suffered Torments from Birth — Boils Formed as Big as Walnuts —In Frightful Condition and Could Hardly Work — Tried All Kinds of Remedies to No Avail — At Last

WHOLLY CURED IN 8 MONTHS BY CUTICURA

"I had an itching, tormenting eczema ever since I came into the world, and I am now a man fifty-five years old. I tried all kinds of medicines I heard of, but found no relief. I was truly in a frightful condition. At last my blood was so bad that I broke out all over with red and white boils, which kept growing until they were as big as walnuts, causing great pain and misery. I thought they would take the skin off my whole body, but I kept from scratching as well as I could. I was so run down that I could hardly do my work. Mr. Nelson R. Burnett recommended the use of Cuticura Remedies, telling me he was confident they would benefit and, in time, cure me. I used the Cuticura Soap, Ointment, Resolvent, and Pills for about eight months, and I can truthfully say I am cured. I cordially recommend Cuticura Remedies to all who are afflicted the same as I was, believing that, if they will use them according to directions, they will find them all they are represented to be. Any one doubting the truth of the above can write to Mr. Burnett, who will cheerfully vouch for my statements.

"Hale Bordwell, R. F. D. 3, Cedar Corners. Tipton, Ia., Aug. 17, 1907."

"I cheerfully endorse the above testimonial. It is the truth. I know Mr. Bordwell and know the condition he was in. He never tires of praising the Cuticura Remedies.

CHEESE BY THE CARLOAD

CHEESE IS A RED RIVER VALLEY PRODUCT — CHEESE SHIPMENTS MADE

SHIPPED OUT OF COUNTRY JUST THE SAME AS SMALL GRAINS

From Saturday's Daily—

A carload of Red Lake county cheese was shipped from Red Lake Falls thru Crookston this week to the twin cities. The car contained 24,000 pounds of as fine cheese as was ever marketed in the state, and the same was supplied by the several factories in this vicinity. Our cheese makers are establishing fine record for their product, as a duplicate order from the same place would indicate. Polk and Red Lake county products are always well to the front in the precession when not carrying the banner, and to them we attribute the reputation of "high class" our county is making thruout the continent.

FOSSTON BUSINESS MEN OFFER PRIZES FOR POLK COUNTY EXHIBIT

Fosston Thirteen Towns: As noted last week, Polk county will make an extensive exhibit of grains and other farm products at the approaching State Fair, and this eastern portion of the county is in position and is expected to furnish a fine lot of exhibits to assist in making up the grand total.

These exhibits must be in Fosston by next Thursday, Aug. 13th, at the latest. Many have either brought in or promised exhibits of merit and the committee in charge of soliciting are actively engaged in bringing together a fine display to represent this section.

In order to encourage farmers to bring along samples of grain, etc., for show purposes, a number of business men of Fosston have offered valuable prizes for the best in different classes.

STRANDED AMONG STRANGERS

Stranded in Minneapolis without money, tottering with age and sick with grief, Albert Lomax a veteran of the Civil war was picked up on the streets yesterday by Patrolman Frank Zalusky and taken to the court house where he told his story.

The old man who has been living with a daughter near Crookston, received word on July 14 that another daughter had died at North Platte, Neb. He at once went to North Platte to attend the funeral after which he started for home. He had gone as far as Austin, Minn., when his money gave out. An old soldier then furnished him transportation to Minneapolis.

After hearing his story Minneapolis members of the G. A. R. gave him enough money to complete his return trip to his home at Crookston.

NEW MILLION DOLLAR DEPOT

Within a year Saint Paul will have a new million dollar Union Depot. The matter has been hanging fire for the past five years but it now appears that construction will be started on the new building in a very short time.

It was thought for a time that the railroads did not wish to build a new depot for Saint Paul. Then the stringency and the falling off of railroad receipts set in, and there was no chance for the new building.

The only matter that now stands in the way of the new building is a trackage plan at the present site of the depot. Up to date the roads have not been able to figure a plan that will accommodate all the trains running into the depot. If no plan can be found the Union depot will be moved.

It is understood that plans have already been drawn for the building itself altho this is considered the smallest part of the undertaking.

BOTH ROBBERS NOW IN TOILS

SECOND NEGRO HAS BEEN CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS—HEARING TODAY

MYSTERY OF GRIP STOLEN AT G. N. DEPOT SOLVED—GOODS FOUND ON NEGRO

From Friday's Daily—

Charles Dejournet, colored, was arrested yesterday afternoon at Larimore by Chief Dick Fadden of that place on a charge of being a confederate of Martin Hill in the robbery of John Olson of $17 in the G. N. Depot here Wednesday night. Dejournet denied that he had any money. He was searched and a $10 bill and $1 in silver was found concealed on his person. He had a bottle of whiskey. It was evident that when the money from the robbery was divided Dejournet received $12 and Hill $5. Dejournet spent $1 for the liquor.

Olson was at the Great Northern depot when Chief Fadden arrived at Grand Forks with Dejournet. He identified the negro as the man who took his money while Hill held him.

Hill and Dejournet were hurried over to East Grand Forks in a hack by Deputy Sheriff Daniels of Polk county, who was waiting at the Grand Forks depot. From East Grand Forks they were brought to Crookston on the evening train.

Deputy Sheriff Daniels returned to East Grand Forks this morning where a hearing is on at the municipal court this afternoon.

Grip Mystery Cleared

On Dejournet's person was found Mrs. Rose's wedding ring which she had in her grip and which was also stolen in Crookston. It will be sent to Mrs. Rose.

OLD RESIDENT IS DEAD

EDWARD MILLETTE DIED SUDDENLY AT ROUND-UP, MONTANA TODAY

HAS BEEN THERE FOR PAST YEAR—WAS COMING HOME IN TWO WEEKS

From Friday's Daily—

Will Millette received a telegram this afternoon announcing the death of his father, Edward Millette at Round Up, Montana, where he has been working at the carpenter trade for the past year.

The family had no intimation that he was ill, and in fact he could not have been ill for more than a day or two, as they had just received a letter from him announcing that he intended to come home in about two weeks.

No details were received, and it is possible that he was the victim of an accident which proved fatal.

Aside from his son Will, deceased leaves a wife and several daughters here. He is one of the oldest residents of Crookston, the family home being on North Main street, above Meng and Garvick's butcher shop.

The remains will be shipped here for interment.

TAKES ISSUE WITH SEC. WALL

FRANK LUHRS PREFERS INSPECTION TO PASTEURIZATION

Frank A. Luhrs of South St. Paul, who has for many years been identified with the speed department of the Minnesota State Fair, has taken issue with Secretary W. W. Wall of the State Dairy and Food Department who urges the pasteurizing of milk and cream at dairies. Mr. Luhrs maintains there can be but one solution to the problem of tuberculosis among the cattle, and that is to "draw the dead line in front of the dairyman's door" by prohibiting him from marketing any milk or cream from uninspected herds.

Mr. Luhrs gives it as his opinion that "it is not probable that the members of our legislature will put a premium on the raising of tubercular cows by appropriating money for the pasteurizing of milk and cream."

The St. Paul Pioneer Press editorially endorses Mr. Luhr's position, and says, "there is unquestionably need of a remedy to prevent communication of tuberculosis from the cow to man thru the medium of infected milk and cream and dairy products made therefrom. But that remedy does not lie in pasteurization, for even if it were practicable to enforce pastuerization the practice would as Mr. Luhrs points out, put a premium upon carelessness as to the health of dairy herds. The present system is neither economical nor effectual, and the state to protect its own pocketbook should put a stop to the introduction of infected cows into the "clean herds."

POULTRY LICE AND MITES

Furnished by the Minnesota Farmers' Institutes, St. Anthony Park, St. Paul, Minn., by Clarence H. Welch.

The lice and mites of the poultry house are entirely different, altho often spoken of as tho they were the same creatures. Both of them breed in the filth and damp corners of the houses, so that cleanliness is the greatest help in getting rid of them. The lice are found on the walls, roosts and nests of the house, but spend a great deal of their time on the fowls. Cleanliness in the house and thorough whitewashing twice a year, in addition to the furnishing of dust baths for the fowls and use of insect powder on setting hens, will usually, keep the house pretty free from lice. The little chicks can be treated with a small amount of lard rubbed on head and throat and under the wings.

The mites are harder to kill and need more vigorous treatment. They visit the fowls only at mealtimes making their raids at night, and then returning to their hiding places. Kerosene emulsion gives the best results in fighting them. It is made as follows: Shave a half pound laundry soap in a gallon of soft water and boil. Remove from the fire and while hot mix in two gallons of kerosese, stirring with a paddle or churning with a force pump. This will make a thick emulsion. Use one part of this stock emulsion to ten parts soft water and apply to every portion of the house with a spray pump or whitewash brush. Give a second dose three or four days later, and still another three or four days after the second. The emulsion will kill every mite and louse it touches and the second and third doses will get those that hatch after the previous applications.

Dirty dropping boards are the greatest breeding places for vermin. Clean off the boards frequently, especially during warm weather. After each cleaning apply air slaked lime fine dirt or ashes to the boards. This not only helps to keep down the vermin, but will assist materially in removing the droppings the next time.

PROHIBS PLAYING A VERY SLICK GAME

MURRAY COUNTY OFFICIAL MAKES SOME RATHER NASTY CHARGES AGAINST THEM—SAYS THEY HAVE A CAMPAIGN FUND OF $60,000—PROBITIONISTS URGED TO VOTE THE REPUBLICAN TICKET AT PRIMARIES AND PROHIB TICKET AT ELECTION—$6,000 FOR POLK

The St. Paul Dispatch says:

"The state republican leaders and officials at the state capitol are interested in a scathing arraignment of the prohibition party leaders and their methods in some of the counties of the state by L. S. Nelson county attorney of Murray county.

"Over his own signature and published in a Slayton paper, County Attorney Nelson declares that the prohibition party leaders have descended to methods unworthy of the cheapest ward heeler in the state, and declares that they are violating the election laws of the state to an extent that merits censure and prosecution. He credits Minneapolis with being the stamping ground of those engaging in the tactics complained of.

"The voters of Murray county, according to Mr. Nelson are being importuned by university students imported from Minneapolis to vote at the primaries for the republican candidate pledging himself to county option and to then desert him at the regular election in the interest of the prohibition candidate. As the latter has no opposition, one or two votes, it is pointed out will be sufficient at the primaries to get his name on the regular ballot while the casting of the major vote for the county option candidate will effectively diminish any chances of the republican candidate who refuses to pledge himself, getting the nomination. Then by rallying to the prohibition candidate at the regular election, a vote will be piled up which even if not successful in landing the dry candidate will at least compel the attention of the national committees to the extent that their demands will be given attention when the next party platforms are drafted.

"Not only are these tactics advised by the agents of the prohibition party now in the Murray county field, but Mr. Nelson says they were openly commended and advocated at a late prohibition rally held in Slayton. Participation in the primaries, Mr. Nelson points out in his exposure of the game, is a clear violation of the law, in that every one so engaged is guilty of perjury. Even the advocacy of such measures he holds, makes the parties concerned amenable to the law.

"The story has been brought to the attention of republican leaders that the prohibition and anti-saloon forces have a campaign fund of $60,000 and that $6,000 of it is to be spent in Polk county alone.

"The one feature of the anti-saloon and prohibition campaign is that where a candidate for the legislature fails or refuses to sign the pledge put up to him by their leaders, he is considered "wet". What he may be as a man or a citizen is not allowed to interfere. He must sign or he is considered an enemy to the cause."

BRAINERD WILL ACQUIRE WATERWORKS BY COURT PRO.

The city council took the first definite steps toward acquiring the waterworks plant of the Minnesota Waterworks company Monday evening when it voted to instruct the city attorney and special counsel to commence condemnation proceedings. The movement to acquire the plant was bitterly fought by the Socialist members of the city council who demanded that the city parallel the existing mains and make no effort to acquire the present plant. The council also voted to issue $120,000 in 5 per cent bonds to erect a power plant to run the waterworks and electric light plants and also to improve the electric light and water plants if the latter is acquired.

ONLY DRAWS THREE BREATHS PER MINUTE

Dr. Mitchell of Mapleton, has at the present time a most remarkable case under his care and one which is almost beyond parallel in the annals of medicine. A 9-year-old patient is suffering from meningitis and for some time past has been so low that he has only drawn three breaths per minute. Medical books say that sometimes patients under anaesthetic treatment of a severe kind draw as low as six breaths per minute but when this point is reached there is extreme cause for fear.

Upon his return home he was "held up" at the depot with a message to come to Thief River Falls and play with the White Earth Indian team. He was accompanied upon the last trip by his brothers, Verne and Ralph, and E. G. Buse and C. E. Peterson, all of whom played with the Indians. PENNED AND PILFERED

How times have changed! When we were young, people who had bad colds soaked their feet in hot water and got well. Now they have the grip take quinine and are sick all summer. Then they had sore throat and wrapped a piece of fat pork in an old sock and went to work next day. Now they have tonsolitis, a surgical operation and weeks in the house. Then they had stomachache took castor oil and recovered. Now they have appendicitis, a week in the hospital and six feet due east and west and perpendicular. Now they labor. In those days they wore underwear. Now they wear lingerie. Then they went to a restaurant for dinner. Now they go to the cafe. Then they broke a leg. Now they fracture a limb. Then they got crazy. Now they have brainstorm. Mininsters preached hell fire straight from the shoulder then. Now they read an essay on "The flowers that bloomed on Mohammed's grave." Politicians then paid good, hard cash for newspaper support. Now they send government garden seeds.

A very fat lady got on the train at Fosston and as she was taking the seat in front of two young men the would-be funny man said, "Look at that fat woman in front of us, she's been eating yeast." And at this joke they both enjoyed a hearty laugh. At Mentor the joker got off, but as he passed the fat lady she stopped him and said: "Young man, if you had eaten more yeast you would have had better raising and been better bred." And this joke the other passengers are still repeating.

Another story of the evolution of a name: Mary went to school in Crookston and when she got to the eighth grade changed her name to May. When she went into the high school she changed again, this time to Mae. She went away to boarding school and soon surprised her friends at home by signing her name Marie The dear girl finished at the boarding school and came home. She soon married and after a year's time everybody on the place went to calling her Ma.

Do you know that you can write your name on the metal of your farm tools? You can. Just take a little tallow or beeswax melt it and spread it over the place on which you want your name; write your name down thru the wax with a big awl or a needle and pour a few drops of nitric acid over the letters you have made Leave a short time. Then wipe off the wax and your name will be on the iron.

Do you know that an editor or a reporter for a newspaper can in his rounds stop and ask a hundred persons "What is the news?" And ninety out of the hundred will reply, "Nothing special," and yet fifty out of that number know something that if not found in the next paper will astonish them greatly and disappoint them more, and perhaps makes them madder than hornets. Don't be afraid to let the newspaper man know it.

That Swamp Resurvey

What is intended to be a resurvey of the swamp lands in the Indian reservation of the state was brought to the attention of Governor Johnson and State Auditor Iverson last week when they were notified that survey crews will shortly be sent into the disputed sections.

The crews will be in charge of S. J. Collier field agent at Duluth, and he has notified the state that if they want to send two representatives along they will be accommodated. The Indian agents at the several reservations will be similarly notified. The inspection began last Monday The lands in question aggregate about 185,000 acres, and have been in dispute since 1903.

Gov. Johnson, or rather those in charge of the executive department during his absence, have written to the interior department at Washington protesting against the resurvey of the swamp lands of the Indian reservations of the state. The suggestion is made that if a survey is to be made that all swamp lands be surveyed and the whole controversy be put at rest.

If the field notes covering the lands in the Indian reservation are in doubt then the executive holds that the entire survey is worthless, and in fairness to both state and nation the whole survey should be gone over again.

In the patenting of lands to the state the field notes have always governed in determining whether they were swamp or not. It is hinted that these notes were not always made with care, and possibly all concerned have been defrauded in the process.

Should Be Billy-ized

This morning several farmers from up the northline telephoned the Journal office to hire a number of harvest hands and send them up on the first train. This looked easy as there are all kinds of men in the city who pretend to be looking for work. Scores of them were seen but they wanted to know all about the wages they were to receive, how far it was to town, what about the grub, where they were to sleep, what was the nationality of the hired girl, how many children the farmer had, did he have horses or mules, were there any Canada thistles in his grain, and a lot more darn fool questions which demonstrated that many of them didn't want to work.

Finally a bunch of likely looking fellows from Minneapolis were hired and sent to the fields. They asked no questions further than to find out if they would be paid the going wages. They really wanted work. They came here to work and proposed accepting the first offer they had.

The police should make the rounds and give every loafer to be found in Crookston an application of the big stick. There is absolutely no excuse for idleness. The farmers are crying for men. Angus alone wanted over 20 men right near the village, and still there are loafers hanging about the saloons that haven't a cent and are laying around trying to "spear" a few drinks when the harvest fields need hundreds of men.

Any farmer wanting men should apply to the police and they will either secure the men needed, or there will be some well warmed coat tails in this vicinity. The men who won't work will be driven out of the city in short order.

A Power For Good Roads

It is an indisputable fact that there is a prejudice in the minds of some of the farmers against the automobile This comes to a certain extent from the fact that many automobile drivers have no respect for the rights of others when driving in the country. If they see a farmer's team half scared to death, they rush by and pay no attention to the trouble they may be causing.

This however, is the exception, not the rule. Most auto owners are careful regarding scaring teams. On the other hand many of the farmers have an idea that the auto drivers have no rights. Yesterday on a trip to Grand Forks several teams met were held right in the middle of the road, and the auto drivers had to go into the ditch or stay behind.

The road hog, whether an auto owner or a farmer is entirely wrong Both farmers and auto drivers have rights—the right to half the road and no more. They should give half the road at all times, and when the automobilist sees that a farmer's team is scared he should slow up at least, and stop dead and shut off the power entirely if necessary.

On the other hand the farmers should welcome the travel of the autos in the country. They are a power in favor of the betterment of country roads. The owners will not only do all in their power for the improvement of all main highways, but the fact that they use the country roads with their broad tired machines, serves to crush all lumps, eradicate ruts, and improve the roadways in every way.

There is no need for any ill-feeling between the farmers and the auto owners, and there should be none. Their interests are mutual in every respect, and they should pull together.

The Blunder Of Concealment

Virtually the public is asked to restrain, not its curiosity, but it's certain indefinite right to know the causes which brought about the embarrassment of the Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mill company, until the receivers shall have made their report to the court. Such a restraint may possibly work out to the best ends but the condition is a little anomalous, says the St. Paul Dispatch.

No statement has been vouchsafed by any officer or stockholder of the company that carries with it an explanation sufficient to throw any light upon the underlying cause of the trouble. Direct questions to the officials are evaded, but large connected interests on the outside content themselves with a mysterious shake of the head that suggests much, but declares little.

Inevitably, in the absence of positive information, the public is inclined to put the worst possible interpretation upon the situation, to exaggerate the conditions and to declare there was something radically wrong which is now being concealed. And this emphasizes the assertion that in this, as in other cases, a blunder was committed in not, as a part of the very first move, having made a complete and frank statement that would have placed the public in possession of all of the information to which it is entitled.

Such an extraordinary condition of affairs as now confront the largest milling company in the world, with such vast resources and sources of income and revenue, demands an extraordinary explanation. It will necessarily be forthcoming when the receivers, at the expiration of ninety days must make full report to the courts which created them, but in the meantime if the public is held out of confidence, it must not be censured if its deductions are erroneous, its views exaggerated and its conclusions unwarranted.

For years, the names of Pillsbury and Washburn have been synonyms of personal and mercantile honor, handed down as heirlooms far beyond the price of the material wealth which accompanied them. The public is now loath to attribute wrong-doing to any institution bearing and coupling these names, but at the same time marvels that the owners of the names should not be the first to vouchsafe the positive and emphatic information that would convince that this embarrassment comes from explainable commercial causes, entirely free from the taint of personal or official misconduct; that would still the public whisper and substitute misfortune for wrongdoing in the explanation now busy in the public mind.

MINOT WILL HAVE A BIG GUN CLUB SHOOT

The big meeting to be held under the auspices of the Minot Gun Club promises to be a most successful one from all standpoints. The meeting will be open to all comers and nearly $1,000 in prizes will be offered. Many shooters from North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana will probably be in attendance and some fine shooting is promised. The meeting which will be held in Minot will be held just a few days before the field meeting at Berwick and many of the shooters will therefore come here before attending that meeting.

CLAY COUNTY DITCH IS SHY OF BIDDERS

A meeting of the Clay County commissioners was held yesterday at Moorhead when the matter of opening the bids for the construction of a drain in the township of Kragnes. The proposed waterway is 40,000 feet long and in a section that is decidedly damp in some seasons of the year. The fact that there were no bids, resulted in a postponement of the meeting. It happens that all of the ditch contractors are decidedly busy this season throwing dirt, too much so to consider new jobs.

SAW MAN 50 MILES AWAY CLIMBING MOUNTAIN

A remarkably clear mirage was seen at Maxbass the other day. Buildings in Lansford were clearly visible. This reminded a local man of another mirage that had been seen some years ago. A Mr. Dawson one of the old settlers, saw a man climbing up the Turtle mountains, 50 miles away. The man was carrying a set of double trees, and Mr. Dawson clearly saw the clevis drop out, and he was so impressed with the apparent proximity of the man that he shouted to him to call attention to his loss. Unfortunately the gentleman who saw this wonder is dead, and probably there is now living person who ever saw anything like it.

LOOKS GOOD TO LAND MAN NOT ON ASSESSOR BOOK

County Commissioner Emerson of Ward county, N. D., in which Minot is situated, is a diplomat. While the 'steen real estate companies at Minot were proving it to their customers that the Ward county land was the most productive and valuable on earth, Emerson was over at Bismarck saying things to the equalization board and whittling the assessment value of Ward county lands down to $3.28 per acre.

HARDY AND SOUND WESTERN HORSES FOR ARMY

George M. Frye, of Dickinson, N. D. received a check the other day from the war department for $206,580 in payment for 1,152 horses for the cavalry service of the army. The horses had to pass a very close inspection to meet the requirements of the department and no horses raised outside the Dakotas or Montana were accepted.

THE MORAL IS TO KEEP THE ROADS GOOD

A Traill county jury awards Edward Solberg a thousand dollar verdict against Schlosser because the latter left some dirt in the middle of the road and thus caused Solberg's load of straw to upset, dumping George overboard and causing injuries to his anatomy which were assessed at that amount.

TIMLIN AFTER LICENSE WILL RUN HAAS PLACE

P. F. Timlin formerly of Grand Forks, Moorhead representative of the Hamm Brewing Co., is said to have applied to the Moorhead council for a license to sell liquor in the old Haas stand in Moorhead. Mr. Timlin has a ten-year lease on the property. Haas recently lost his license.

The Lovliest Hedges in the World

Globe trotters agree that the most beautiful hedges in the world are found in the Azores. On the island of Fayal roads and fields are apt to be bordered with the blue-flowering hydrangea which grows to a size unknown in other countries. The intelligent public in general agree that for a pure, wholesome table beverage nothing can equal golden grain belt beer. Serve this delicious liquid bread at the home table and enjoy its benefits. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

MIXUP AT MOHALL NOT UNLIKE SLAUGHTER HOUSE

One of the pool rooms in Mohall was the scene of a mixup over a shake of dice and before the door could be kicked in by the authorities the battle had progressed to such fury that all the participants were badly bruised up; one had two ribs broken in the melee, while another was hit over the head with a billiard cue. Those who got a view of the mill before the door was opened depicted it as having the appearance of a slaughtering house more than anything else. Clothes were torn off their bodies and a panoramic view of the participants and the battle ground would have pleased the eye of a Nero.

CANDIDATE FORGETS THE CAMPAIGN—"IT'S A GIRL"

One would have thought that election was over and P. L. Renne had been elected clerk of court by the broad smile noticeable on his countenance Saturday morning as he strode up town with his chest expanded further than usual and—we believed he could have walked on thin ice without breaking thru. When questioned by our reporter as to what he felt so "de-lighted" about Pete drew forth from his pocket and handed us a pure Havana, remarking "It's a girl."—Shevlin Herald.

STUDY OF AGRICULTURE ADDED TO REGULAR COURSE

Prof. Pomeroy who had been engaged as principal of the school in Hendrum has sent in his resignation and the school board expects to engage Otto Gergh in his place.

The Hendrum school is to take up agriculture as one of the studies in its regular course. That is one thing that must come, to keep up with the times, and if the Hendrum school is the first one in the county to do so—so much the better. Plenty of others will follow. We know of no course that would be of greater benefit to the pupils of the school. —Hendrum Review.

$60 AN ACRE IS THE PRICE PAID FOR 320 ACRES

All. records for the sale of Grand Forks county real estate were broken yesterday by the transfer of 320 acres located in Washington township, Grand Forks County from Gustave H. Melaas to Ed. S. Johnson for $19,200. This is $60 per acre. Higher prices have been paid for land located on the edge of Grand Forks, but for purely agricultural land this beats the record. There are good buildings on the land and it is a fertile tract.

George's many friends in this city will be glad to hear that he is improving.

STANDARD OIL IS TOO HARD A BOSS

The Standard Oil company is having all kinds of trouble in keeping its agents thruout North Dakota. Seven agents recently resigned, asserting that the trust would not pay them living wages. After ordinary expenses are paid there is nothing left they say. A demand made recently in Grand Forks for an increase in commission was turned down.

NINTH DISTRICT HOLDS BANNER FOR PROGRESS IN DAIRYING

Congressman Steenerson has just received advance information from National Dairy and Food Commission of vast importance to the 9th Congressional district in that it shows the wonderful progress made in the advancement of the dairying industry in this section of Minnesota.

Great Record of Gain

In 1904 the dairies in this district produced 2,874,918 pounds of butter, and the patrons were paid $415,431.

In 1906 the creameries of the 9th district made 6,274,971 pounds of butter and the patrons were paid $1,131,032.88, a gain in pounds of 3,400,153 and a gain in cash paid the farmers of $715,601.59.

9th District Holds Banner

This is the greatest progress made in any congressional district in the United States during that period according to the official reports of the United States Dairy and Food Department's official statisticians.

A 300 Per Cent Increase

The most important part of the showing of these figures however is that they simply indicate the progress made since 1906, which has been three times as great as that of the two years from 1904 to 1906 inclusive. The progress during those two years was over 300 per cent increase, and during the years 1907 and 1908 the increase will net at least 500 per cent according to State Dairy Inspector A. O. Storvick and others including M. J. Cort, the recognized authority of creamery supply sales in this territory.

People Highly Elated

The showing made by this district according to the government report is a matter of genuine satisfaction to those who have been championing the dairy industry, and shows that the Red River Valley and adjacent territory is on a more stable basis than ever before, and making still greater strides along the line of progress in the dairy line.

Will Lead Entire Country

From the present indications this section of the state will very soon lead the entire United States in its production of butter, and the corresponding increase of wealth among the farmers which invariably goes hand in hand pro rata with the butter production.

On top of this is the fact that butter from this section brings a premium in the New York market.

SOLD GOODS AND WHAT SOME OF THEM ARE MADE FROM

From Wednesday's Daily—

State Food Inspector Heiberg of St. Paul offices is well satisfied with the success of his exhibit of pure and impure foods at Thief River Falls during the fair there Aug. 6, 7, and 8 and at Warren at the present time.

Inspector Heiberg gives short lectures on the analysis and tests for discovery of impure foods. The tests performed before the people at the Thief River fair included maple sugars, adulterated by cane sugar, and syrups adulterated by cane syrup and glucose, imported cherries preserved with salicylic and colored with coal tar dyes and containing large amounts of benzoate of soda and salicylic acid; jellies, jams and preselves of higher grade fruits made up of apples and corn starch and glucose with coal tar dye coloring and salicylic acid preservative; candies, all eastern goods, colored with powerful coal tar dyes; pickles colored with copper sulphate, pickles sweetened with saccharine, strawberry pop with coal tar and saccharine adulterants; port wines and blackberry brandies made from water, coal tar color and preserved with salicylic acid, and a half dozen impure patent medicines.

Flavoring extracts made of wood alcohol, coal tar color and containing no trace of the flavoring essences which they are advertised to have came in for their share of the exhibit. Spices and peppers were shown containing 90 per cent ground olive stones and 75 per cent sawdust, and alum and cornstarch mixed together and called cream tartar. The department has lately discovered catsups containing as high as two per cent of benzoate of soda, when the most that the law allows is one-tenth of one per cent.

The train was traveling probably at a speed of fifty miles an hour when within two miles of Allard station it rounded a curve and ran into a burned bridge about 150 feet long. Prahl, Wilton, Minn., injured back; William Newman, Great Falls, Mont., burned and internal injuries; D. W. DOLLAR WHEAT SOUNDS GOOD

RISE IN MARKET DUE TO THE SHORTAGE IN THE WORLD SUPPLY

AND NOT TO CONDITIONS IN THE RED RIVER VALLEY

From Thursday's Daily— ...

A combination of conditions and circumstances has produced in the Crookston grain market lately the consummation so delightful to the farmer and so full of the potentialities of prosperity—dollar wheat. September wheat reached the dollar mark several days ago, and after slipping a peg or two under it temporarily, regained that level Saturday and again Monday.

A dollar is a good price for wheat. It means good profits to the farmers, and when the farmer prospers everybody in his neighborhood shares in his prosperity. That means that the Northwest is going to market a lot of wheat at high prices this fall, and htat as a result Duluth and the Northwest will receive an invigorating bath of good times.

While on the face of the market reports it might seem as though this high price of wheat was at the expense of considerable crop damage in the Northwest, that does not truly represent the case. Underlying it all is the fact that the world faces a wheat shortage, and that even if the United States should produce bumper crops, it will be able to place all its surplus in the world's markets at profitable prices. The current export demand for wheat is unprecedentel and bids fair to continue. The alarms of the hopeful gentlemen who had sold wheat 's'hort" have had something to do with the advance, and the gentlemen from whom they have had to buy in their wheat have made the most of the hot weather and the reports of rust. Their estimates must not be accepted without salting. Even tho the Northwestern crop may be injured in spots, in general it will be large and will bring a flood of new money into this section from which general business will imbibe new life and energy.

REGAN GETS OFF EASY

FINE OF $25 AND 15 DAYS IN JAIL FOR THE WIFE BEATER

WIFE GOT DIVORCE AND FLED TO CROOKSTON—REFUSED TO PROSECUTE

From Thursday's Daily— ..

Some time ago B. B. Regan was arrested near Devils Lake on charge of assault with intent to commit murder. The complaining witness was his wife, Eleanor Regan. She said that Regan attacked her at night and that it was only by the merest accident that she escaped with her life to the home of a near neighbor. The next day when she appeared before State's Attorney Serumgard at Devils Lake for a warrant her face was a solid mass of bruises, her eyes were swollen nearly shut and she said her body was also badly bruised. Her appearance was so horrible that her photograph was taken for use at the trial.

Before the case came to trial Mrs. Regan had secured a divorce and came to Crookston—beyond the jurisdiction of the court and was later followed by her children. State's Attorney Serumgard made a special trip to see her and plead with her to return and give her testimony. She said Regan would plead guilty to simple assault and battery, but that if he refused then she would return and be a witness against him on the charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

There was nothing to do but accept a plea of guilty of assault and battery and at the opening of the present term of court Regan appeared before Judge Cowan and plead guilty. Judge Cowan pronounced sentence on Regan and it was a fine of $25 and a sentence of 15 days in jail.

Mrs. Regan has been cooking at Wyand's ditch camp near the state experimental farm. Her husband is one of the wealthiest farmers near Devils Lake.

THIEF RIVER FAIR FINE

TODAY IS LAST OF THREE DAYS PROGRAM WHICH PLEASED THE CROWDS

MIXER TOOK SECOND MONEY IN FAST RACE OVER HEAVY TRACK

From Friday's Daily—

A large crowd from this city journeyed to the 7th annual fair of the Red Lake county agricultural association at Thief River Falls yesterday specially to attend the races in which several Crookston horses participated. The fair has the largest attendance in its history with the best live stock grain and dairy exhibits, and 32 fast horses are participating in the races, double the number that ever congregated there before, and excellent time was made over a rather slow half mile track. In the 2:35 trot or pace yesterday, purse $250, Noon Bells, Maloy, 1st; Della Wood, Bond, 2nd; Brownie Mac, Newby, 3rd; Blackford Jr., Keenan 4th; Muscomar, Martin, 5th; Ray Panic, Mapes 6th. Time 2:21½, 2:21 1-4, 2:21.

In the 2:17 pace or trot the horses finished as follows, it taking 5 heats to decide the race. 1st, Bessie Barolite, Newby; 2nd Mixer, Eckert; 3rd Luke Vernon, Martin; 4th Bettor, Bradford; 5th Lockstep, Keenan. Time 2:19 1-4, 2:19, 2:24 1-4, 2:23, 2:26.

Mixer, Lockstep, and Blackford, Jr. are all Crookston horses belonging to the W. S. Lycan string.

The fair closes today with a record breaking attendance. Yesterday the crowd was the largest that had ever attended the fair, but today's crowd is still larger, people coming from all the surrounding country and from the cities and villages in all directions, many going up from here.

The agricultural and stock exhibits are the best and the fair proper is a decidedly good one. The farmers have taken a great amount of interest this year and are showing to the people of the outside world what the lands of the Thief River country will produce.

Yesterday afternoon as the C. C. Patten Carnival Co., which is furnishing the attractions at the Thief River fair were filling their big balloon for the daily ascension, a sudden gust of wind carried part of the guy ropes away and the baloon went up a-piece partially turned over and caught fire practically ruining it before it was pulled down again. Considerable excitement was created by the accident, but no one was injured.

All Very "Civil."

In certain sections of the country there are much favored words which are required to do duty with a wide variety of meanings. Such is the word "smart" among Yankees and up along the Labrador shore the word "civil." The following conversation between two natives was overheard by a traveler:

"We are goin' to have lots of dirt today," said one, glancing at the sky.

"Naw. It'll be civil," replied his companion.

"How did you get on with the captain?"

"Oh, he got civil to hunting deer by and by. When he went out he didn't know nothing, but he got civilized."

"Did you go down the Ketchee?"

"Naw. It's too civil for him. He wanted lots of rapids, so we went down the Boomer. Them's about as civil rapids as I want to see."—Youth's Companion.

ROBBING THE SOIL

SOME MIGHTY POOR FARMING IS HELPED OUT BY RECENT TIMELY RAINS

MUST RAISE MORE STOCK AND PAY MORE ATTENTION TO CREAMERIES

From Monday's Daily— ..

Walhalla Mountaineer: The rains the past week have materially improved the crop outlook in this vicinity. One and two weeks ago the early sown crops were headed and ready to fill and had the drought continued, serious damage would have been the result, but now it seems as tho we were really to get what was promised by the early and the favorable spring, a good average crop. By this we do not wish to be understood a twenty bushel crop to the acre. Ten years ago the states statistical report gave Pembina, Cavalier and Walsh counties an average of from thirteen and a half to fifteen and a half bushels. There is no improvement in the soil conditions and it will be useless to hope for better crops as long as the present system of farming is continued. It is only a question as to how long before our farmers realize this and adopt the newer and non-retrograde methods of mixed farming. Stock of all kinds with healthy patronage of the creamery is the one true hope of the country, supplemented by more scientific farming along the lines laid down by the experimental farms under the government supervision. It may seem "rank" to say this to old farmers who have made money and grown rich in following their old system—but they all will acknowledge that their ways are not producing the results they once did. Simply as a proof that the time has come here as it has come to all "new" countries in time, when the change in methods must be then made.

KILLS HERSELF AFTER DISGRACE

MISS JERDIS HOLT TAKES STRYCHNINE AT TOWN OF SHERBROOKE

WHEN FOUND IN ROOM WITH MAN — DIES IN GREAT AGONY

Overcome with shame when she was discovered with a man in her room at Sherbrooke, N. D., Miss Jerdis Holt committed suicide in the hotel of Mr. and Mrs. William Oxton. When Marion Oxton went to Miss Holt's room to call her in the early morning hours she found a man in the room and supposed him to be a burglar. She set out to arouse the neighbors. Several persons hurried to the room and found ZZ. A. Cochrane hiding behind a chair.

A few hours later and before the return of Mr. and Mrs. Oxton Miss Holt took strychnine. She died in terrible agony in a few minutes.

An Exchange of Presents That Was Not Wholly Satisfactory.

John Mitchell, the labor leader, was discussing on one occasion a labor struggle of the past.

"You see, they didn't give us a fair deal," he said. "It looked fair on its face, but really it was like the deal of Harvey Barr of Braidwood.

"Harvey Barr, a successful lawyer, had a wonderful talent for getting the best of people. Even at home he kept this talent in play. His wife said to him one morning:

"'Harvey, dear, this is the fifteenth anniversary of our wedding. What are you going to give me?'

"'This is what I am going to give you,' Harvey answered affectionately, and he handed his wife $15 in crisp, fresh bills.

"'Oh, thank you! And what shall I give you?' the gratified wife asked.

"'That meerschaum pipe I've been admiring so long,' Harvey promptly announced.

"In the evening on his return home the pipe awaited him. It had cost just $15. He lit up and began to color it carefully. But as the evening wore on his wife seemed ill at ease.

"'Where is my present, Harvey?' she said at last fretfully.

"'Why, my dear,' Harvey explained, 'you gave me a pipe. I gave you $15. Don't you see? We're just even.'"—St. Louis Republic.

"Mary," said the lady of the house, "you didn't put any salt in this bread."

"But," replied the new girl, "didn't the master say yesterday he wouldn't have nothing but fresh bread on his table, mum?"

The trouble with the fishing at most summer resorts is that the fish have become so used to the yarns of the press agent that they won't take any bait.

NORTHERN R.R. STAND PAT

REDUCED RATES TO STATE FAIR NOT FEATURED BY N. P. AND G. N. ROADS

SOUTHERN ROADS ARE MAKING RATES — NORTHERN LINES WILL NOT BREAK RULES

St. Paul, Aug. 6—Refusing to follow in the footsteps of the lines belonging to the Western Passenger association the northern lines will apparently make no special reduced rate for the state fair. Since the passage of the two-cent fare laws the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Soo have refused to go into the rate cutting business for any occasion whatever, and it is evident from a statement made today by Second Vice President Hannaford of the Northern Pacific that they are determined to adhere consistently to this policy as long as possible despite whatever action may be taken by the southern lines.

"We did not put in any special rate for the state fair last year and I do not know of any more reason for putting one in this year than there was last," said Mr. Hannaford. "The legislature fixed a rate of two cents a mile as being fair and reasonable in this state and we are making very few variations from it."

While admitting that there might be some indirect benefit to the roads derived from the visits of the farmers to the state fair where they secured new ideas regarding agriculture which helped to make larger crops, Mr. Hannaford said it was a question whether this indirect benefit would compensate the railroads for making reduced rates. In addition he evidently thought the making of a reduced rate for the state fair would establish a bad precedent, as it would be a violation of the rule which the Northern lines have adopted not to make any special reduced rates since the 2-cent fare is in effect. The rule once broken could be broken many times.

"I do not think the roads can afford to make these low rates," said Mr. Hannaford. "If we make them for the state fair there is no reason why we should not make it for everything in the same way the Southern roads are doing.'

A pleasant thing about expecting money is all you can plan to do with it until it comes and your family gets it.

Only a Mask

Many are not being benefited by the summer vacation as they should be. Now, notwithstanding much outdoor life, they are little if any stronger than they were. The tan on their faces is darker and makes them look healthier, but it is only a mask. They are still nervous, easily tired, upset by trifles, and they do not eat nor sleep well. What they need is what tones the nerves, perfects digestion, creates appetite, and makes sleep refreshing, and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Pupils and teachers generally will find the chief purpose of the vacation best subserved by this great medicine, which as we know, "builds up the whole system."

CHARMING FISHER-PITKIN WEDDING

Mr. Ira Benson Fisher United in Marriage to Miss Elizabeth May Pitkin Last Evening—Nuptial Ceremony one of the Most Pleasing Ever Performed in Crookston—After Honeymoon Spent at Lake Plantagenet Popular Young People will Begin Housekeeping in Highland Park—Magnificent Wedding Gifts Attested High Regard in Which Principals Were Held.

From Thursday's Daily—

Last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Pitkin 324 South Ash street, their daughter, Elizabeth May, known to all her intimate friends as Miss Trixie Pitkin, was united in marriage to Mr. Ira Benson Fisher, Rev. Willard S. Ward officiating.

The ceremony performed in the presence of a company of sixty relatives and friends, took place at 6 o'clock, and was one of the most charming weddings ever solemnized in Crookston. The ceremony was performed in the front parlor in an alcove, formed of sweet peas crysanthemums and potted plants, the bridal couple standing beneath an immense bell of white sweet peas with dashes of green sprays.

The bridal party marched down stairs and entered the parlor to the strains of a beautiful wedding march played by Mrs. G. O. Riggs. First came the ribbon girls. Adelaide Marin and Alice Lundberg, and both looked very sweet dressed all in white carrying a basket of flowers each, and stringing the white ribbons from the archway of the parlor, where one end of the streamers were fastened, to the alcove, forming an isle for those following.

Next came the ring bearer, Little Eva Hurlbut, of Warren, niece of Mrs. M. B. Milligan of this city, who was also dressed in pure white and carried the ring in the midst of a very dainty but magnificent basket of flowers. With her came Rev. W. S. Ward and finally came the bride on the arm of the groom and her hand rested on his arm while the words were spoken which unite them for life. The bride looked very sweet and girlish in a most becoming gown of white Persian lawn trimmed with Cluny lace and carried bride's roses.

Following the ceremony congratulations were extended after which an elaborate course wedding dinner was served. Two long tables were spread in the dining room, the younger folks being all seated at once. The dinner was faultless, and Mrs. Pitkin was assisted in serving by six intimate friends of the bride all attired in white. They were Misses Bertha and Edith Wyand, Ida Stone, Agnes Montague, Maymie Fournet and Ina Phillips.

The wedding gifts were magnificent costly and useful, including cut glass, silverware, china and furniture, and included a piano from the parents of the bride.

Among the out of town guests were Miss Clara Fisher sister of the groom of Minneapolis, Mrs. Harvey Misner of Pasadena, Cal., Mrs. Geo. Leedham of Park River, N. D. and Mr. Fred Homeyer of Winnipeg, Manitoba. The entire home was beautifully and effectively decorated with a profusion of sweet peas intertwined with green and chrysanthemums and potted plants.

The bride and groom left on the Duluth train last evening for Lake Plantagenet where they will spend a two weeks' honeymoon, after which they will return to Crookston and begin housekeeping at once on Manitoba St., Highland Park, in one of the cosy Walsh residences opposite the new courts of the Crookston Tennis club.

There was an immense crowd to see them safely on their journey at the Great Northern depot last evening, and rice was strewn all over the train and platform. In addition several very touching ditties were sung lead by Mr. Ralph Carter.

The bride has been a resident of Crookston for several years, prior to which she resided at Euclid. She is a most charming and accomplished young lady and the possessor of a very sweet voice which has pleased many Crookston audiences. She has been prominent in social circles and has taken an active part in church work, affiliating with Congregational church where she is a member of the choir. Her many graces and sweet disposition has endeared her to an exceptionally large circle of warm friends. Mr. Fisher has been connected with the Ruettell Clothing Co., for many years, and is a member of the firm. He is an energetic and successful young business man, with high ideals who has gathered about him a large coterie of warm friends. That success and much happiness may attend the newly wedded couple is the wish of the entire community.

SHEEP FOR THE VALLEY

THOUSANDS OF ACRES WILL BE SEEDED TO GRASS AND PASTURED

SHEEP CAN BE BOUGHT FOR A SONG ON SCORCHED RANGES OF WEST

From Saturday's Daily—

L. H. Kaste, the bonanza farmer of Hallock, who crops thousands of acres, spent yesterday in the city and stated that crop conditions in Kittson county were just fair on an average. He says on new land, summer fallowing and timothy and clover sod the wheat was magnificent, as good as was ever raised in Kittson County, but that on land that was run down the wheat was thin and the crop would be very light, so that there would be but an average crop taking the county as a whole.

Will Buy Sheep

Because of the marked contrast between the old land and the land that had been seeded down to grass and plowed up last year for crop this year, Mr. Kaste determined to seed down large acreages every year hereafter, and in a few weeks will leave for Idaho and Colorado where he will purchase several thousand sheep, and hereafter will keep large numbers of them.

Can Buy Cheaply

He is now interesting other farmers in the same plan, and 40 or 50 of them will probably go west together. They will leave as soon as possible as Chas. Deacon of Breckenridge, who went west for the purpose of looking up some sheep has just returned and states that they can be purchased for almost anything in several states because of the drought prevailing there. He states that in New Mexico sheep were dying by the thousands for lack of water. The ranges are burned up and there is neither grazing nor water for them, tho they could get enough to eat to sustain life if they could get water.

Many will Purchase

Deacon will canvass the section to the south, and Kaste to the north with the intention of either sending an expert sheep buyer west to purchase 50,000 or 60,000 sheep for a pool of farmers, or a committee of farmers will be sent out to make the deal. There is no question but what fully that number of sheep can be disposed of in a comparatively small radius, as a vast amount of land will be seeded down by the valley farmers this fall because of the magnificent crops that have been raised this year on land that had been pastured, which gave no evidence of lack of moisture, where other land was baked dry.

NEWS FROM GRAIN FIELDS

HARVEST IS ON IN FULL BLAST THRU ENTIRE R. R. VALLEY

SOME REPORTS FROM BARLEY AND RYE THRESHING—YIELD GOOD, FINE QUALITY

From Saturday's Daily—

The harvest in the Red River Valley is on in full force. Considerable wheat has been cut this week, and a great deal of rye, oats and barley.

The yield where threshing has been done has been very satisfactory and the barley that has been threshed is of exceptionally fine quality. Following are a number of notes on harvesting and threshing gathered from various sections of the valley:

Wheat Harvest General

Wheat harvest is general today for the first time and next week, with good weather the bulk of the wheat will be cut.

N. P. Stenshoel, northeast of the city finished threshing his barley yesterday and reports an average of but 25 bushels per acre. It was of good quality and weighs heavy.

Thief River Falls

On quite a number of farms in this vicinity barley, rye and even wheat fields have been cut this week and it will not be long until harvest will be in full swing. The general report is that local crops are good, altho some of the ridge fields and others of late sown grain are not up to standard. But most fields of wheat, rye and barley are fine and will yield better than for years past. Among the farms where good rye fields are being cut are the Rhodegaard, Barzen and Oscar Peterson farms on rural route No. 1.

Has Finished Wheat

Louis Johnson west of the city has finished his wheat harvest and estimates an average of 30 bushels per acre. His is an exceptionally fine crop and he is the first farmer to complete his wheat harvest. He will thresh his wheat next week.

Barley 50 Bu. Per Acre

John Peltier, also west of the city finished threshing his barley Friday and his crop averaged 48 bushels per acre of perfect barley. From the time it is cut till it was in the granary it did not receive even a heavy dew, and is therefore perfect in color and weighs heavy.

Nels C. Hanson in the same vicinity has finished threshing his rye crop and the average yield was 22 bu. per acre.

Fergus Falls

H. E. Webber threshed a field of thirty-five acres of barley on what is known as the Safford farm, a short distance east of the city Thursday and secured a yield of 21 bushels to the acre. This is rather a light yield for barley, but the quality is exceptionally good. The outlook was for a fair yield. This is the first threshing report that has come in from this immediate locality. Mr. Webber states that the wheat crop on the same farm will be ready to harvest next week and promises a very good yield.

Fosston

For a number of days past the weather has been ideal for the ripening grain in the fields. Cool days and nights the days frequently cloudy, allow the heads of wheat to fill abundantly and the outlook for an excellent yield and high grade is most promising. Barley and rye is mostly in shock and in good condition. Oats is being harvested in many places and wheat cutting will commence next week.

Harvest is earlier than last year by at least two weeks, possibly three.

PATTEWAY BOUND OVER

HELD TO DISTRICT COURT FOR GRAND LARCENY

CHARGED WITH STEALING $400 FROM MERCHANTS BANK LAST SPRING

From Tuesday's Daily—

At a hearing before Judge Wilde yesterday afternoon A. Patteway, the colored porter who worked in the Merchants National Bank was held to the district court on a charge of having stolen $400 from the bank.

Patteway at the hearing was shown to have changed all manner of small change at Burkhardt's for money of a larger denomination, bought a horse for $150.50 at Grand Forks and paid for it in silver dollars, bought feed and paid for it in small change, and had an unusual quantity of small change on him at all times.

Had Cash Buried

It was also shown at the hearing that a colored woman had accompanied Atty. C. O. Longley to the C. D. Billings barn at the rear of Billings store on North Main street, and dug up a large amount of cash in one corner of the barn which Patteway had directed her to do. This money she said she had not counted. It is understood there was from $200 to $400 in the plant.

Bonds were fixed at $2,000 which Patteway could not furnish.

NORTHWESTERN POLK HAS GOOD SEASON

TOWNSHIPS OF TABOR, NORTHLAND AND KEYSTONE HAVE BIG CROPS

Ex-alderman M. Sullivan is at home a few days from the big ditch, nursing a very bad case of neuralgia that requires treatment before the tooth can be extracted. He reports work on the ditch in Keystone and Tabor on which he has the contract progressing very satisfactorily, this having been an exceptionally good year for that kind of work.

Mr. Sullivan says there is a fine class of farmers in that section of the county. They all are diversified farmers and as a result the fertility of their land has been kept up, and the crops are going to be above the average this year.

Every farmer in the Red River Valley is rushing the grain harvest. The clickity-click of the reapers can be heard from early morning till twilight is falling. While many farmers were harvesting all last week, and some threshing was done, some few did not start till today, and during the present week, with good weather the great bulk of the wheat will be cut.

MINN. BISHOP IS HONORED

BISHOP MORRISON DELIVERS A SERMON IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY ON INVITATION

AN HONOR THAT IS SELDOM CONFERRED ON AN AMERICAN PRELATE

Right Rev. James Dow Morrison, D. D., L. L. D., bishop of Minnesota preached Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in Westminster abbey, London.

This is an honor seldom conferred on an American, and it is with no little pleasure that his friends in the Northwest will learn of it.

Bishop Morrison has been in England several weeks attending Lambeth conference, which was concluded Thursday. He has already spoken in a number of the most prominent Episcopal churches and cathedrals in England and by his forceful and sincere manner received many compliments. It was this fact which secured him the invitation to preach at the morning service in London's famous church out of the 250 bishops at the conference.

July 12 Bishop Morrison preached at Waterbury, Kent, and July 26 he occupied the pulpit of St. Paul's church, Camden, London. Aug. 12, (today) he will preach at Truro cathedral and Aug. 14 will address a large missionary meeting at Manchester. While in England Bishop Morrison will be elected a member of the pan-Anglican committee on "Missionary Extension." He will return to Duluth Sept. 11.

RAILWAYS PUT MEN TO WORK

FULL FORCES PUT ON IN SHOPS IN TWIN CITIES—PAYROLLS INCREASED

Minneapolis Tribune: Beginning this week every railroad shop in the Twin Cities is working a full force of men the regular trick of 54 hours a week. This information was given out in the offices of the Soo line, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Great Northern, the Minneapolis & St. Louis and the Northern Pacific railroad companies.

Since the money tangle of last October and the depression of business the railroad companies have been retrenching their forces. At the same time the shop men were reduced the full 54 hours a week schedule to 40 hours. This reduction meant a diminution in each week's pay roll of several thousand dollars.

DITCH CONTRACT WAS NOT LET

TWO LOWEST BIDDERS WERE TIED AND AUDITOR DEFERRED LETTING CONTRACT

The bids for ditch number 78 a small county ditch in the town of Lowell was opened in the auditor's office this morning. There were three bids offered, Joe Lariviere's bid called for 11 3-4 cents per cubic yard John Collier of Frazee, Minn., and Helge Tofsley of Lowell town, bids were 11 cents per yard. As the two lowest bids are the same the county auditor did not let the contract. Mr. Collier, one of the bidders was not present and the matter was deferred until next Monday when the commissioners meet.

THE INSURANCE AGENTS MEET

The state convention of the Minnesota Association of Local Fire Insurance Agents is being held in St. Paul today. Because of the big national convention of local fire insurance agents which will meet in St. Paul the next three days, this meeting is considered of relatively small importance and the time will probably be spent in making final prepartations for the entertainment of the delegates to the national gathering.

W. A. Marin of this city is one of the officials of the association but will not be able to attend owing to other engagements. There will probably be a number of the local agents go down to attend both conventions.

Chicago Has 2,425,000 People.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Chicago has a population of 2,425,000, according to the 1908 city directory, which will be issued to-day. This is a gain over last year of 58,000 and is considered by a publishers a very conservative estimate.

COLORED PEOPLE NEVER SO THICK

NEGROES WERE NEVER AS EVIDENT IN NORTH AS THIS YEAR

MANY OF THEM WILL NOT BE ABLE TO SECURE ANY WORK

There were never as many colored people in the northwest in the history of the country as there are at the present time and just what is responsible for the condition is something of a problem to police officers and other people handling this class of people. During the fall and summer there are usually a few negroes that wander through this section in their search of work.

A call for laborers much greater than needed, was made by the railroads early this season with the result that there are plenty of white laborers to handle the crop. It is a fact that white men usually refuse to work in crews where colored men are hired and this fact gives the white preference. The result will be that the majority of colored men will be without work and with an extraordinary number, the condition will be far from pleasant.

THE LUMBER CO. HOLD-BACK CASE

JUDGE WATTS SUSTAINS THE DECISION OF JUDGE WICK FOR PLAINTIFF

Judge Watts of the district court yesterday affirmed the decision of Justice Wick, in the case of Folik vs. the Grand Forks Lumber Co. This is one of the hold back cases. The plaintiff claimed 30 cents a day in addition to the wages paid him by the company until his term of service had been completed. The defendant claimed that the extra amount was to be in the nature of a bonus in addition to his wages provided he remained with the company to the end of the season. The decision is one of much interest to the laboring men of the city.

Accused of misconduct with about a dozen little girls, Ebner Brown piano tuner was arrested last night at 10:30 in his room in the Odd Fellows' block, Grand Forks, by Chief Overby and Captain Sullivan of that place. In the room with Brown were Sarah Frazier, aged 13 years, Lucile Frazier aged 11. Brown was locked up at the city hall and the little girls told N. D. State's Attorney Wineman enough about Brown to make it certain that he will face several serious charges when he is arraigned. He was unable to furnish a bond and was locked up. His hearing will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Brown is said to have been run out of Minot for misconduct in that city. The authorities of Grand Forks county are determined he shall be punished this time.

Brown is addicted to the use of liquor and it was his boasts while intoxicated that brought his case to the attention of the police here.

JUDGE WATTS IS UPHELD

SUPREME COURT HANDS DOWN DECISION IN FAMOUS BUSE-BANK CASE

FROM RED LAKE COUNTY WHICH HAS BEEN IN LITIGATION FOR YEARS

From Monday's Daily—

The supreme court of Minnesota has handed down a decision in the famous suit of Ernest Buse vs. the First State Bank of Red Lake Falls, the First National Bank of Red Lake Falls and J. I. Wyer, the First State Bank having appealed from the decision of Judge Watts.

Buse sued to recover for usury, for the value of 800 cords of wood and for collateral notes, in all over $10,000. Judge Watts held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover for usury, something less than $2,000, but held against the other two alleged claims which amounted to about $8500. It appears that the First National Bank, which was succeeded by the First State Bank, had charged as high as 20 per cent interest, and Judge Watts cut that down to the legal rate, and gave plaintiff judgment for the balance. Following is the decision of the supreme court:

Supreme Court Decision

Ernest Buse, respondent, vs. First State Bank of Red Lake Falls, appellant.

Syllabus: First—A bank which purchases a note from another bank paying therefor the face value, with knowledge of the fact that payments have been made and not credited on the note, can collect from the maker of the note only the amount actually due thereon.

Second—A, being indebted to a bank, deposited as collateral security certain notes and other property. Various renewals of the notes were made. The bank ceased to do business and sold and transferred the notes, with other property, to another bank which was organized for the purpose of continuing the business. The officers of the first bank became the officers of the second bank. Before the transfer the first bank collected certain money upon the collateral notes, and, instead of applying it to the payment of the debt, applied it to the payment of interest thereon at the rate of 20 per cent per annum. After the second bank acquired the notes it realized upon the balance of the collateral. The second bank paid for the notes the full face value thereof, but its officers knew at the time that the money collected upon the collateral had been misapplied to the payment of illegal interest, instead of being properly applied to reduce the notes. Held that it could retain thereon only an amount necessary to pay what was actually due on the notes at the time they were purchased from the first bank.

FERDINAND SAMPSON SUDDENLY CALLED

DEATH CAME SUNDAY MORNING FOLLOWING OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS

Sunday morning at 1:20 at Bethesda Hospital, Ferdinand Sampson breathed his last following an operation for appendicitis which was performed last Friday night. The death will come as a great surprise as deceased had not been ill but a few days. Last Wednesday he was helping thresh on the N. C. Hanson farm and Thursday he complained of a pain in his side occasionally. On Friday the pain continued however, and after an examination it was found an operation was necessary at once. The young man was still strong, however, and walked up three flights of stairs at the hospital and submitted to the operation that night. Deceased would have been 20 years old on the 24th of August, and was the fourth son of Hon. B. Sampson, having been born on the old Sampson homestead August 24th 1889. He had never been sick until last spring when he had a run of small pox while at Duluth and was detained in the pest house there for three weeks. He was a bright young man, and held in high esteem by all who knew him.

"I AM NO GOOD ANYWAY, GET A BRICK & FINISH ME"

WM. McKINNEY HAD BOTH LEGS BROKEN AND ONE SEVERED BELOW THE KNEE SUNDAY MORNING ON SIDE TRACK BEHIND WHOLESALE GROCERY HOUSE — INJURED MAN DIED TWO HOURS LATER FROM SHOCK AND LOSS OF BLOOD — HAS A BROTHER IN CALIFORNIA AND FRIEND IN OTTER TAIL COUNTY—HAD DOLLAR LEFT IN POCKET—DID NOT APPEAR TO BE INTOXICATED

From Monday's Daily—

Shortly after midnight Saturday night Wm. McKinney was found lying beside the Great Northern side track which runs at the rear of the Finch-Winslow-Carlisle wholesale grocery with one leg cut off and the bones in both legs terribly crushed. He was taken to St. Vincents hospital where he died two hours later.

His moans had been heard by some carnival attaches and Will Emmerich had his attention called to it. He at once aroused Night Baggageman Brosseau in the G. N. restaurant and the police summoned a hack and physicians.

McKinney had wonderful nerve, and when help arrived he said:

> "Let me alone. Somebody get a brick and finish me. I'm no good now anyway and I'll die game."

McKinney refused to tell his name or where his relatives were until the hospital was reached and he was told that he must die. Then he gave his name and said he had a brother, Alphonse in California, and a close friends, J. B. Hump, of Deer Creek, Otter Tail county. The latter was notified but no answer has yet been received. Meanwhile McKinney's remains are being held at Chesterman's undertaking parlors.

He was about 45 years of age and had evidently seen much of the world. Whether he laid down on the track and went to sleep, or fell there intoxicated, and was knocked down, is not known. He had a dollar left when found, and the physicians did not smell whiskey on him.

The night yard crew did not know they had killed a man till notified later. McKinney had been seen by the police around here for several days.

BIG PROFIT IN GOOD HO

MRS. N. F. WOODSTROM NETS $122 FROM TWO THOROBRED SOWS

JOHN SYLVESTERSON HAS FINE LOT WHICH GAIN 1 1-4 LBS. NET PER DAY

From Tuesday's Daily—

For some time past the butchers of Crookston have been making an organized effort to induce the farmers in this section to improve their breed of hogs and wellbred hogs not only thrive better on lose food, but make much finer pork. In this they have been partially successful and some excellent examples of the big returns from thorobreds have resulted. Last winter Nels Anderson purchased two breeders at the Scrivseth auction sale and sold them to Mrs. N. F. Woodstrom who is engaged in the hog raising business quite extensively but who had mostly scrubs. The sows were thorobred Poland Chinas. Their litters came in April and Mrs. Woodstrom just sold 11 of the pigs from the two sows for $60.00 even and sold the two sows for $47 making a total of $107 which upon deducting $35 which she paid for the sows leaves her $72 clear profit on two sows in six months and in addition she has 5 of the thorobred pigs left which are worth at least $50 at the present time making her real profit $122. This is an illustration of how profitable hogs are when the thorobreds are raised instead of scrubs.

John Sylvesterson who resides on the old Emil Himmelsbach farm has an elegant lot of hogs also. He has about 60 this year and will wager $50 that his spring pigs when butchered a little later on will have gained 1 1-4 pounds per day, dressed at eight months old. Mrs. Woodstrom sold her pigs at an average of 2 months old.

People who have seen Mr. Sylvesterson's hogs state that they outclass anything in the Berkshire line that was exhibited at the Grand Forks fair, and if this is true they are certainly beauties.

This is an example of the difference in the profit between scrub and thorobred hogs.

Mr. Sylvesterson has a fine lot of spring pigs 90 days old which weigh on an average of 135 pounds, which means a gain of 1 1-2 pounds per day —a cracking good record.

BLACKSMITH HAS IDEAS

PROGRESSIVE BLACKSMITH HAS ARRANGED A UNIQUE LABOR SAVING DEVICE

USES ELECTRIC FAN WITH HOME MADE APPARATUS INSTEAD OF BELLOWS

In all small blacksmith shops it is the custom to use the ordinary bellows to supply a draft at the forge. This, of course, requires that the blacksmith work, or pump, the bellows while heating the iron. Mr. Carl Tonsager of Moorhead believed that this is out of date and he proceeded to rig up a device which not only saves him and his men labor, but also saves time. He purchased a one-sixth horse power motor and fan, and by a simple arrangement of pipes ran the draft under his two forges. A turn of a lever turns on the fan, and another lever, home made, opens the valve in the pipe leading to his forge. The expense of the electricity is small and the time formerly used in pumping the bellows is saved for other work.

SUBSTANTIAL DONATIONS

The State Fair Exhibit Committee has received donations of $75 in cash each from East Grand Forks and Fosston. This is in addition to the efforts the business men of both places have made to secure some splendid exhibits which have also been forwarded from their respective portions of Polk County.

Now it is up to some 33rd degree knocker to criticise J. H. Stair for securing such substantial contributions in cash and enlisting the hearty cooperation from all part of the county to assist in making the Polk County exhibit a splendid success.

CO. BOARD ADJOURNED

SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 278 ANIZED IN FAIRFAX AND RUSSIA

NO ACTION TAKEN IN VINELAND TOWNSHIP DIVISION PETITION

From Thursday's Daily—

The county board completed their labors for this session last night and adjourned considerable business of importance was transacted during the two days. The petition of Fred Baatz and others to have sections 34, 35, 36 in Fairfax and sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 8, 9, and part of 10 in Russia set apart for a new school district was granted, the district will be No. 278.

The auditor was ordered to advertise for 150 cords of dry white poplar wood delivered at the court house.

The town of Chester was given $150 from the Road and Bridge fund.

Commissioner Clements was authorized to investigate the repairs necessary on ditch number 15.

The auditor was ordered to draw a warrant in favor of the state for $5,000 which is the county's share towards the payment for improving the channel of the Grand Marais, the state paying a like amount.

No action was taken on the Vineland division petition. No evidence was shown that the petitioners contained two thirds of the legal voters of the township.

The petition of C. A. Kjos and others for a road in the towns of Hill River and Chester was referred to Commissioner Ecklund, Driscoll and Thoreson who will go over the ground and report at next meeting.

G. Fredrickson was appropriated $20 for a bridge built by him over ditch number 19.

A petition was presented to enlarge the channel outlet on the south end of the Grand Marais was acted on and the state will be asked to provide for part of the expense.

Besides the above the commissioners did a lot of routine business.

Three of the store houses of the company are at present filled with new barley, being the Bygland, Anderson and Bentru elevators. The barley will be brought in as rapidly as possible.

MURDEROUS THUGS COWED BY MILITIA

MANY RIOT CALLS SENT IN AND SOLDIERS ARE WORKED TO DEATH BUT NO DAMAGE DONE—WHAT WILL HAPPEN WHEN TROOPS GO IS QUESTION AGITATING SPRINGFIELD PEOPLE

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 19—Today's session of the grand jury was devoted to hearing the witnesses in the case of the assault of Mrs. Mabel Hallam. George Richardson the negro whom Mrs. Hallam identified as her assailant, altho not positively, was indicted. Mrs. Hallam, the members of her family including Mr. Hallam and the police who responded to the call for help after the crime, were the witnesses. Richardson protests his innocence. The grand jury will meet again tomorrow morning to begin its investigation into the riots.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 19.—Following the addition of two victims to the death list, sporadic outbursts of lawlessness in various parts of the city and increased symptoms generally that the mob spirit rule still rules Springfield, Gov. Deneen last night issued proclamations offering rewards aggregating $1,200 for the arrest and conviction of the murderers of the riot victims. The death list up to the present time numbers seven. Another death is expected momentarily. W. H. Rowe, one of the most popular citizens of Springfield, is slowly sinking from the effects of the bullet wounds and the beating which he received from a crowd of negroes Friday night.

Threaten Vengeance.

Rowe's friends have warned the authorities that "Billy" will be avenged and the event of his death will cause a redoubling of vigilance by the troops' commanders.

"Wait until the troops go," is the word that has been passed around town, and recognizing the strength of the undercurrent, the state, city and county officials are taxing every effort to turn public opinion toward law and order.

Evidence is not lacking that many citizens who were known to have important testimony regarding the mob and its leaders have been deterred from offering this to the state's attorney because of threats of violence made against them anonymously.

Police Gather Evidence.

The gathering of evidence began in earnest yesterday. Policemen in plain clothes were sent to search the houses of prisoners and suspects, and as a result the police station looked like a general store last night. Naturally, many arrests followed.

Five of the arrests made yesterday are considered as important by the police. It was in the homes of these men that most of the loot was found. A sixth person is being sought by the police, who aver that when he is arrested practically all of the ringleaders of the mob will be in custody.

Suspects Are Fleeing.

"We have the thugs on the run," said Evan Jones, chief of detectives here, and he added that many suspects are leaving town to avoid arrest.

What will happen when the national guardsmen leave? This is the question of paramount importance in the minds of local citizens. It is generally agreed that so long as Gov. Deneen wields the mailed fist trouble of a serious nature is not probable. It is practically certain that the military will remain here until the special grand jury summoned yesterday has completed its report.

Town Thoroughly Policed.

The force on hand will not be added to, however, the 4,200 soldiers now encamped in the public squares and streets being sufficient to cover the city so thoroughly that there is slight chance for a mob to storm any point.

The exodus of the negroes from Springfield seems to be permanent. A visit to the former "black town" yesterday brought out the fact that the homes so quickly deserted Saturday are still vacant and promise to remain so.

Fired on From Ambush.

Two privates of Company D, Fifth Infantry, of Bloomington, Earl Ashley and Guy Duncan, were fired upon at 11:45 o'clock last night from ambush. They were not hit. Two troops of the First cavalry were ordered to the place to make arrests if possible. Shots were heard from other points in the vicinity. Five men were arrested at Eighth and Ash streets.

GRAND FORKS MYSTERY SOLVED IN CROOKSTON

MRS. MABEL HURD WHO DISAPPEARED FROM GRAND FORKS LAST THURSDAY LOCATED IN CROOKSTON BY CHIEF ECK—WOMAN REFUSED TO RETURN HOME WITH HUSBAND, BUT HE FINALLY SECURED POSSESSION OF THE 14 MONTHS OLD CHILD—WOMAN IS VERY YOUNG AND HAS A PRETTY FACE

From Monday's Daily—

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Mrs. Mabel Hurd, wife of H. B. Hurd of Grand Forks who left her home at Grand Forks last Thursday with her 14 months old baby causing a great sensation was solved when she was located in this city Saturday by Chief Eck. Her husband arrived Saturday evening in search of her and Chief Eck directed him to the missing woman and her child at the home of Mrs. Zeb Lusian.

The woman with her child arrived here Thursday and the first night was spent at the Columbia hotel after which she applied to Mrs. Lusian stating that she was out of funds and wanted a place to sleep for a few days till she got work. She was also accompanied by a young girl 13 years of age who secured a position in the Golden Grain Cracker factory, and the two figured they could eat on $3 a week if they had a place to sleep.

Mr. Hurd is heart broken. The young woman was located Saturday night but as the Lusian house was dark Chief Eck advised Hurd not to arouse them.

Sunday morning he called and his wife, who is a handsome young woman not more than 20 or 22 years of age gave him an audience. He pleaded with her to return but she was obdurate. Finally in despair he asked her for the child, but she said she would drown both herself and the child before she would allow the little one to be taken back if Hurd's mother was to be given the custody of it. She finally agreed to allow him to take the baby on his promise to give it into the keeping of his aunt at Grand Forks and he departed Sunday evening with the little babe for his home.

Hurd claims there is a man in the case named Douglas and some color is given to his story from the fact that Mrs. Hurd asked Chief Eck to locate a man named Douglas who had been here a short time ago. The woman will be closely watched and Hurd's course will be determined by the manner in which she conducts herself. He states there are apt to be some sensational developments in the very near future.

The woman fails to make any very substantial accusations against her husband. She says he does not drink or use tobacco, but that he stays out occasionally till an unholy hour playing pool.

Hurd is a plasterer at Grand Forks and Douglas was also there in the same line of business. Hurd says that recently he left for work and was expecting to be gone all day, but running out of material he returned home and found Douglas there with his wife and did not relish the condition of affairs.

Douglas evidently did not think the climate of Grand Forks healthful and suddenly disappeared. Mrs. Hurd thought he came to Crookston, and Hurd does not know where he went.

Mrs. Hurd told Mrs. Lusian that the 13 year old girl was her sister, but the girl later stated there was no truth in this statement. She is not related to Mrs. Hurd, but has been living with her for some time past, and Mrs. Hurd was talking of adopting her.

FINE PROGRESS BEING MADE

MANY FARMERS TAKING A MOST COMMENDABLE INTEREST IN FAIR EXHIBIT

NELS C. HANSON HAS BROUGHT IN MAGNIFICENT GRAINS AND GRASSES

From Tuesday's Daily—

The collection of the Polk County exhibit for the Minnesota State Fair is progressing very nicely, and already the showing made has exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine—and the busy workers have yet a great deal to do in getting the exhibits sent in and collected in the best possible shape.

The farmers are taking great interest in the exhibit, and many of them are taking great pains and going to a great deal of trouble voluntarily in aiding the committee in every way. One of the most enthusiastic farmers in this respect is Mr. Nels C. Hanson who farms 300 acres on Section 34 in the Town of Lowell, the old Demarais farm. He has brought it up to a high state of cultivation.

The collection of the Polk County exhibit to the state fair demonstrates that there are some of the most magnificent crops grown this year that Polk county ever produced and Mr. Hanson has brought in several loads of exhibits.

His barley exhibit, selected from his best field, but at random, averages 800 kernels from each grain sown. It is six rowed white barley and as fine as ever raised in this section. He has exhibits in the sheaf and threshed.

He has rye that also averages 800 kernels to each one sown and of very high grade.

He raised a crop of Minnesota No. 6 oats, originated at the St. Anthony Park school that was never surpassed and yielded very heavily and has brought in a very fine exhibit of it.

His Siberia Millet is immense, the heads averaging from 7 to 10 inches in length and has a fine sample for the fair exhibit.

A FOSSTON MAN GETS FIRST PRIZE

FOSSTON BUTTERMAKER GETS FIRST PRIZE IN STATE MONTHLY CONTEST

The official report of the state creamery butter contest for the month of August places the name of our Fosston creamery buttermaker, H. A. Lidenberg, at the first, he having tied for first with the Freemont buttermaker in the hand separator class, both scoring 95 points on their exhibit

In this state-wide monthly contest, all the leading professional buttermakers take part, and to secure the highest score made is a credit envied by every other creamery man in the state, much sought after but seldom realized.

COMMITTED TO HOSPITAL

Wm. Ball, a former employe at the planing mill of the Crookston Lumber Co., who has been despondent of late and required watching constantly was taken before Judge Morken late yesterday afternoon and committed to the hospital at Fergus Falls, Deputy Sheriff Daniels taking him down last evening. It is understood that illness for the past few months finally affected his mind.

His case is so mild it is expected a complete cure will be effected in a few months.

Deputy Daniels returned this morning and proceeded to East Grand Forks where he secured Gust Swenson who will also be taken to Fergus Falls this evening. He has been there before, but was released on parole and was finally discharged, but is now suffering from another bad spell. He has considerable property in East Grand Forks.

How to Avoid Appendicitis

Most victims of appendicitis are those who are habitually constipated. NAKED BODY OF UNKNOWN MAN FOUND IN THE RED RIVER

HAD BEEN IN THE RIVER SEVERAL DAYS—WAS BADLY DECOMPOSED

From Tuesday's Daily—

The naked body of a man about 30 years old, five feet six inches in height, with gray eyes was found Sunday lodged in a clump of bushes in the Red River about 12 miles north of Grand Forks by the crew of the steamer Grand Forks.

The body was brought to Norman's undertaking rooms at Grand Forks where the coroner held an inquest. There was nothing to identify it and the coroner decided it was a case of accidental drowning. He had not been shaved for a couple of days before death. His hands indicated that he was a laborer.

It is believed that the man went in bathing and got beyond his depth. His identity will probably be established if his clothing is found.

From Friday's Daily—

The Polk County convention of the Democratic party for the election of 15 delegates to the Democratic State Convention which will be held in St. Paul tomorrow to nominate a state ticket was held today at the court house and was a harmonious gathering from beginning to end.

The convention was called to order by Remi Fortier, chairman of the county central committee and the call read.

F. R. Hamel of Crookston was elected temporary chairman and Prof. B. J. O'Brien was elected temporary secretary without opposition and the following committees were then named by the chair.

Committees

Credentials—Daniel Hughes, J. E. Morrisey and Neil Norman.

Permanent organization—Wm. Anglim, J. R. McKinnon, Remi Fortier.

Resolutions—J. E. O'Brien, W. E. Black, George Cannon, J. E. Carpenter, C. Nelson.

Selection of Delegates—H. Quigley, A. J. Kirk, Joel Fogelberg, W. Lemon, F. E. LePage, J. E. O'Brien, H. G. Ebbighausen.

Made Permanent

The committee on permanent organization reported in favor of making the temporary organization permanent, and the report was adopted unanimously. Following this and after preliminary discussions the convention adjourned till 3 o'clock this afternoon.

A Full Ticket Favored

Inquiry among the delegates developed the fact that practically all of them were favorable to the nomination of a full county and legislative ticket, and the resolutions included a clause favoring this plan.

A. G. Schmidt was recommended as the member of the state central committee from this county.

Resolutions

The Democratic convention in and for Polk County in session assembled this 14th day of August, 1908, does hereby resolve:

We the representatives of the Democracy of Polk County, in County Convention assembled re-affirm our belief in and pledge our loyalty to the principles of the party.

We rejoice in the increased signs that party lines are to a great extent obliterated thruout the country, and that the masses will be guided by the principles laid down in the platforms of the respective parties.

We have no doubt that when the Judgment of the American people is given the admirable platform of principles, adopted by the National Democratic convention at Denver will have scored a splendid triumph.

We unqualifiedly endorse and approve each and every principle as declared in said platform.

For the past twelve years the matchless advocator and greatest living champion of these principles has done more to bring about the reforms that have been partly accomplished, or attempted by either party than any other living man.

To this constructive statesman we believe should be given the place in the affairs of the nation that will enable him to direct the enactment of laws so necessary for the well being of our country.

We heartily endorse the nomination of the Hon. W. J. Bryan for President and the Hon. John W. Kern for Vice President, and pledge them the support of the united democracy of Polk county.

Be it further resolved that in the administration of the office of Governor of this state the Hon. John A. Johnson has discharged the duties of that office in manner that reflects honor to himself and credit to our party.

He has given Minnesota a prominence among the states of the Union that we heretofore failed to attain.

He has taught the people of this state that an ideal administration of its affairs can best be accomplished by the election of men to office who represent democratic ideas.

His advocacy of reforms in this state and the accomplishment of many of them has made him a national figure where he will exert an influence that will be limited only by the extent of our great country.

Be it further resolved that the interests of the party in this county would be best served by the nomination of a complete county ticket.

Respectfully submitted,

—J. E. O'Brien,
—W. E. Black,
—J. E. Carpenter.
—Geo. J. Cannon.
—Claude Neilson.

BRYAN'S SYNOPSIS OF DEMOCRATIC ISSUES

A SHORT REVIEW OF THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM AS INTERPRETED BY DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE IN HIS SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE AT LINCOLN.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 14.—Under the burning rays of an almost tropical sun and in the presence of a vast assemblage which cheered him to the echo, William Jennings Bryan yesterday received from Henry D. Clayton of Alabama formal notification of his nomination for the presidency of the United States.

Thrice honored by the Democratic party as its standard bearer, Mr. Bryand plainly exhibited the pleaseure it gave him once gain to proclaim the principles for which he stood.

Policies Grow in Popularity.

His nomination for a third time, he declared in his speech of acceptance, could only be explained by a substantial and undisputed growth in the popularity of the principles and policies for which he, with a multitude of others, had contended.

"As these principles and policies," he said, "have given me whatever political strength I possess, the action of the convention not only renews my faith in them but strengthens my attachment to them."

Non-partisan Ovation.

The ovation accorded to Bryan as he rode through the streets of Lincoln on his way to the state house, where the exercises were held, was non-partisan. It was the homage of the citizens of a western city of the plains toward a distinguished neighbor. Almost the entire Republican administration was represented, Gov. George I. Sheldon and many state officers lending their presence, both in the parade and on the platform. Before coming to Lincoln from Fairview, over four miles distant, Mr. Bryan received over fifteen hundred visitors. To one and all he extended a cordial greeting.

Lincoln in Gala Attire.

His arrival shortly after 12 o'clock at the Hotel Lincoln, where he and John W. Kern, the vice presidential candidate were the guests of honor at a luncheon to the committee on notification, was the signal for an outburst of cheers and applause. He immediately was surrounded by a great crowd and was kept busy for some time shaking hands. Never before had Lincoln streets and buildings presented such a gala appearance; never had such a profusion of banners, streamers, bunting and photographs flashed forth to dazzle the eyes of the myriad visitors.

Mass of Humanity.

The state house grounds were a mass of humanity and Mr. Bryan's appearance on the platform was greeted with vociferous cheers and handclapping. The ceremony of notification was conducted on the north front of the capitol building. The balconies and every window were jammed to overflowing. Not a single incident occurred to mar the proceedings. The police arrangments were excellent. Realizing that the force was not sufficient to cope with the great crowd, the adjutant general of the state, at the request of Mayor Frank Brown, ordered out Capt. Lum's company of the Second Nebraska regiment, and with their assistance perfect order, not only along the line of march but within the capitol grounds, was maintained.

Kern Makes Short Speech.

Before the notification and acceptance speeches were delivered, Norman E. Mack, chairman of the Democratic national committee, who acted as presiding officer, called upon John W. Kern, the vice presidential nominee, to make a speech. Mr. Kern responded in a few felicitous remarks, in which he praised unstintedly the nonpartisan character of the exercises.

The speech of Mr. Bryan concluded the ceremonies, and he and Mr. Kern retired to the capitol building, where they held a public reception.

Mr. Bryan's Speech.

In accepting the nomination Mr. Bryan spoke in part as follows:

Our platform declares that the overshadowing issue which manifests itself in all questions now under discussion is, "Shall the people rule?"

No matter which way we turn; no matter to what subject we address ourselves, the same question confronts us: Shall the people control their own government and use that government for the protection of their welfare, or shall the representatives of predatory wealth prey upon a defenseless public, while the offenders secure immunity from subservient officials whom they raise to power by unscrupulous methods?

President's Indictment of Party.

In a message sent to congress last January, President Roosevelt said: "The attacks by these great corporations on the administration's actions have been given a wide circulation throughout the country, in the newspapers and otherwise, by those writers and speakers who, consciously or unconsciously, act as the representatives of predatory wealth — of the wealth accumulated on a giant scale by all forms of iniquity, ranging from the oppression of wage earners to unfair and unwholesome methods of crushing out competition, and to defrauding the public by stock jobbing and the manipulation of securities."

Is the president's indictment true? And, if true, against whom was the indictment directed? Not against the Democratic party.

Mr. Taft Indorses the Indictment.

Mr. Taft says that these evils have crept in during the last ten years. He declares that during this time some "prominent and influential members of the community, spurred by financial success and in their hurry for greater wealth, became unmindful of the common rules of business honesty and fidelity and of the limitations imposed by law upon their actions;" and that "the revelations of the breaches of trusts, the disclosures as to rebates and discriminations by railroads, the accumulating evidence of the violations of the anti-trust laws by a number of corporations, and the overissue of stocks and bonds of interstate railroads for unlawful enrichment of directors and for the purpose of concentrating the control of the railroads under one management"—all these, he charges, "quickened the conscience of the people and brought on a moral awakening."

During all this time, I beg to remind you, Republican officials presided in the executive department, filled the cabinet, dominated the senate, controlled the house of representatives and occupied most of the federal judgeships.

Why No Tariff Reform?

The president's close friends have been promising for several years that he would attack the iniquities of the tariff. We have had intimation that Mr. Taft was restive under the demands of the highly protected industries. And yet the influence of the manufacturers, who have for twenty-five years contributed to the Republican campaign fund and who in return have framed the tariff schedules, has been sufficient to prevent tariff reform.

A few years ago the Republican leaders in the house of representatives were coerced by public opinion into the support of an anti-trust law which had the indorsement of the president, but the senate refused even to consider the measure, and since that time no effort has been made by the dominant party to secure remedial legislation upon the subject.

Why No Railroad Legislation?

For ten years the interstate commerce commission has been asking for an enlargement of its powers that it might prevent rebates and discriminations, but a Republican senate and a Republican house of representatives were unmoved by its entreaties.

Mr. Taft complains of the overissue of stocks and bonds of railroads, "for the unlawful enriching of directors and for the purpose of concentrating the control of the railroads under one management," and the complaint is well founded. But, with a president to point out the evil and a Republican congress to correct it, we find nothing done for the protection of the public. Why?

The Publicity Issue.

An effort has been made to secure legislation requiring publicity as to campaign contributions and expenditures; but the Republican leaders, even in the face of an indignant public, refused to consent to a law which would compel honesty in elections. When the matter was brought up in the recent Republican national convention, the plank was repudiated by a vote of 880 to 94. Here, too, Mr. Taft has been driven to apologize for his convention and to declare himself in favor of a publicity law.

How can the people hope to rule if they are not able to learn until after the election what the predatory interests are doing? The Democratic party meets the issue honestly and courageously. It says:

"We pledge the Democratic party to the enactment of a law prohibiting any corporation from contributing to a campaign fund, and any individual from contributing an amount above a reasonable maximum, and providing for the publication, before election, of all such contributions above a reasonable minimum."

Next to the corrupt use of money, the present method of electing United States senators is most responsible for the obstruction of reforms.

Through a Democratic victory, and through a Democratic victory only, can the people secure the popular election of senators.

House Rules Despotic.

The third instrumentality employed to defeat the will of the people is found in the rules of the house of representatives. Our platform points out that "the house of representatives was designed by the fathers of the Constitution to be the popular branch of our government, responsive to the public will."

Our party demands that the "house of representatives shall again become a deliberative body, controlled by a majority of the people's representatives and not by the speaker," and is pledged to adopt "such rules and regulations to govern the house of representatives as will enable a majority of its members to direct its deliberations and control legislation."

STORVICK WILL WATCH CREAM

WHEN IN CITY HE WILL INSPECT EVERY CAN OF CREAM IN TRANSIT

HE WILL INSIST THAT CREAM SHIPPED IS IN GOOD SHAPE

From Friday's Daily—

Dairy Inspector A. O. Storvick left this morning for Kennedy and other points north, and tomorrow will attend the Kittson County fair at Hallock where he will score the butter exhibits. When departing Mr. Storvick said to a representative of the Journal.

"Farmers must be careful of their cream shipments. This time of year cream must be handled carefully or it is totally unfit for anything whatever, and a menace to the public health.

"It is extremely hard to keep cream in proper condition during the very hot weather, and the farmers would be money in pocket if they hauled or shipped to the nearest creamery when their cream is in danger of spoiling on long shipments.

"Of the nine cans I condemned the first of the week at the G. N. depot in Crookston, all were totally unfit for making butter. The cream was not only confiscated but prosecutions may follow. I will certainly have shippers arrested and fined on a second offense, and may yet prosecute in one or two aggravated cases in the shipments which were condemned here.

"The laws governing the shipments of cream were made to be enforced, and not simply to decorate the statute book. They were made to protect the health of the public, and I shall do all in my power to see that they are enforced.

"When I am in Crookston I shall inspect every can I see in my travels."

ALL PROMPTLY CURED BY "WONDERFUL OINTMENT"

"Some years ago my three little girls had a very bad form of eczema. Itching eruptions formed on the backs of their heads which were simply covered. Before I heard of Cuticura, I used to try almost everything, but they failed. Then my mother recommended the Cuticura Remedies. I washed my children's heads with Cuticura Soap and then applied the wonderful ointment, Cuticura. I did this four or five times and I can say that they have been entirely cured. I have another baby who is so plump that the folds of skin on his neck were broken and even bled. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and the next morning the trouble had disappeared. I am using the Cuticura Remedies yet whenever any of my family have any sores. I can never recommend Cuticura sufficiently; it is indispensable in every home. I cannot find its equal. Mme. DAKOTANS POACHING

ALLEGED THAT THEY ARE KILLING CHICKENS ON THE MINNESOTA SIDE

PROMPT STEPS ARE TO BE TAKEN FOR THEIR ARREST AND CONVICTION

From Thursday's Daily—

Complaints have been received from several sources during the past two or three days to the effect that hunters from North Dakota have been shooting chickens on the Minnesota side of the river for the past week and killing young chickens promiscuously for the purpose of getting their dogs in fine trim when the hunting season opens in North Dakota.

It is alleged that most of the illegal shooting has been done close to the river in western Polk and the poachers could get on Dakota territory if they were spotted in short order.

Steps will at once be taken to investigate each and every charge and it is safe to say that there will be some arrests and vigorous prosecutions if the allegations made prove to have been correct.

In years gone by this practice has been indulged in, and the men who have indulged in it are certainly a cheap and unfair lot of sports. The better class of sportsmen of Grand Forks would not countenance anything of the kind, and can be depended upon to assist the Polk county Sportsmen's Association as well as the deputy game wardens in the arrest and presecution of any hunter who is so eminently unfair as to shoot chickens or any other game during the closed season.

HESTENGAARD ENRAGED BECAUSE HE DID NOT GET HIS TICKET

From Friday's Daily—

Elling Hestengaard cursed the Grand Forks county insanity board and the county for hours after his hearing on a charge of insanity at Grand Forks yesterday. Hastengaard wanted the board to furnish him with a ticket to Norway. He had stolen a cow near Manvel and explained the theft by a statement that a resident near Manvel had told him he would be furnished with transportation to Norway by the county if he stole a horse or cow.

He compared Grand Forks county unfavorably with Polk county, here he says he was given four months for mortgaging property he did not own, but when he finished his term he was given a new suit of clothes, hat and shoes.

Hestengaard will be taken to Jamestown Saturday, it is expected. The board will hear one more witness today and then give a decision.

PAIN MADE JOHN SMITH OBLIVIOUS TO APPROACH OF THE TRAIN

Smith who was struck early Tuesday morning at Island Farm on the Duluth Line by a Great Northern train, to Superior, John McCullum by whom Smith was employed, journeyed to Duluth to see if he could find any clue to where the dead man's only known relative, a daughter, can be found.

Smith was a foreman on a land clearing job on G. G. Hartley's Island Farm, and had suffered from a toothache all Monday night, and early on Tuesday morning, driven mad with pain, he walked a mile to the Great Northern tracks to catch a train for Duluth, where he hoped to get the pain relieved. He was walking along the track holding his head in his hands, entirely absorbed with his suffering, when he was struck by an inbound Great Northern train. His neck both arms and both legs were broken and his skull crushed.

Smith was 63 years old, and a widower. He had often been heard to speak of a married daughter, May Josephine Smith whom he had not heard from for several years, but who was living in Ogsdenburg, N. Y., his old home, when he had last heard from her.

The father leaves a $400 accident policy payable to her.

HON. GUNDER KROSTUE THE VICTIM OF MOST PAINFUL ACCIDENT

FINGERS WERE CAUGHT IN HARVESTER SICKLE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

From Thursday's Daily—

Yesterday afternoon Hon. Gunder Krostue, the Fisher banker was the victim of a most painful accident as a result of which he may lose one of his fingers of the left hand. He was watching the progress of the harvest on one of his farms near Fisher and when one binder started bucking he reached over the platform apron to remove some weeds which were clogging the sickle when suddenly the horses started and his hand was caught by the knives terribly lacerating his fingers. A piece of the bone was chopped out of his second finger and the end of the finger was hanging by only a little flesh, and the third finger was nearly cut off.

Brought to Hospital

Dr. Norman happened to be in Fisher from this city and the wounded man was hustled into E. W. Robbin's automobile accompanied by Mrs. Krostue and a record run made to St. Vincents hospital here and the wound dressed. It is feared the second finger will have to be amputated but every effort will be done to save it. Mr. Krostue was very weak from the loss of blood, but was able to return to Fisher last evening on the late train.

Mr. Krostue displayed gritt of the first order. The bones of the second finger had to be thoroly scraped to remove any splinters and foreign matter, and the artery had to be tied up, but he stood the painful operation without any anesthetic at all, sitting in a chair and prefering not even to get on the operating table.

The news of the accident will be received with genuine regret by the many friends of Mr. Krostue in this city, who will join in the earnest wish that no amputations will be necessary.

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

BOYS HEAD CRUSHED

PAUL JOHNSON AGED 6 YEARS, KILLED YESTERDAY AT EAST GRAND FORKS

THIRD SON TO MEET A TRAGIC DEATH WITH A FEW SHORT YEARS

ONE BURNED TO DEATH, ANOTHER DROWNED AND PAUL CRUSHED BY BINDER

From Friday's Daily—

Little Paul Johnson is dead as the result of a most lamentable accident which occurred about 3:30 yesterday afternoon and the entire city of East Grand Forks is in mourning in sympathy with his bereaved parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Johnson.

Paul, aged 6, was playing in front of his home on South Third Street with Stephen Enright when a team and wagon passed by with a binder attached to the rear of the wagon, enroute from Smith & Sinclair's barn out to the farm, east of the city. Remarking to his companion that he was going to "catch a ride", Paul ran and climbed on the tongue of the binder probably with the intention of clambering into the driver's seat.

In some way he lost his hold and fell to the ground and before he could make his escape was caught by the heavy drive wheel of the binder, which passed over his head, cutting a frightful gash over his face. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken into his parents' house and physicians hurriedly summoned.

He expired in his mother's arms before the hospital was reached without regaining consciousness.

Twice before have Mr. and Mrs. Johnson been bereaved by accidental death of a son. Some nine years ago their son Howard was burned to death, thru his clothing catching fire. On the 27th of April 1907, their son Ralph was drowned by the overturning of the boat in which with several companions he was riding. A little daughter was nearly killed in an accident which occurred some time ago and left her disfigured for life.

Arrangements for the funeral of Paul have not yet been completed but it will probably be held on Saturday afternoon.

Buttermaker Whirry Gives Advice To Valley Farmers

How many farmers thought of their cows last spring and put in some corn fodder to help out in August when the grass is short?

Now a very important thing along the dairy line is to not let your cows run short of feed. You cannot expect to have a cow keep up milking if she has nothing but a little old dried up grass to eat.

All you need to do is to think of this in the spring and save a little piece of good ground to plant your fodder corn on as there is no better place on this good earth than in the Red River Valley to raise fodder corn for there is nothing that will pay a farmer better than cutting fodder corn at noon 15 or 20 minutes and nothing that will make the cow feel better. And when you sit down in the evening to milk the old cow will fill your pail with good rich milk.

Now all of those farmers who have not provided for feed this year can see where they are at and next year look out.

Good cream makes good butter and good butter brings a good price.

A good cow will make good money and is worth her value in weight to a good farmer that gives her good corn.

It is a pretty hard matter to convince a farmer that it is his duty to take a team out of the field and haul his cream to the creamery or station but it will pay him not to neglect the best thing on the farm where he is sure of the cash.

Patronize the creamery and get your cash and go where you please and buy what you please.

There is but one way to farm in the Red River Valley and that is to diversify; raise more stock, produce, more manure and spread it on your ground, and next year you can raise better crops.

A farmer should farm his ground and farm it right and he will make more money with his labors. You never see a good farmer farming an over abundance of land for if he farms what he can, and does the work right, he gets a greater return for his work.

"Alaska" Wheat Is A Freak

The publication in a widely circulated weekly paper (the Saturday Evening Post) of an article by Oscar F. G. Day of Minneapolis, on "Alaska" wheat has called forth an official statement from the department of agriculture relative to this cereal. The statement says in part:

"A variety of wheat under the name "Alaska" is being widely advertised as capable of yielding at rate of 200 bushels to the acre under ordinary soil conditions. It is stated that this variety was found growing wild on the eastern coast of Alaska. In consequence of requests for seed."

The department states that this type of wheat has been known for many years, both in this country and in Europe. It has been tried at several state experiment stations in western United States, but nowhere have yields been high enough to merit attention. The wheat has been grown to a very limited extent on certain heavy, undrained soils in France for many years. In such locations it is said to yield rather better than ordinary wheat, but it is one of the poorest wheats known for making flour. It is never grown where ordinary varieties of wheat will thrive.

Dr. Galoway chief of the bureau of industry, said this same wheat had been referred to in reports back as far as fifty years ago, when it was called "miracle" wheat.

Dr. Galoway describes it as a "freak" wheat and said it could never be made valuable commercially.

A local paper published the article from the Post last Saturday and in addition to this letters boosting Alaska wheat have been sent broadcast from certain parties in Minneapolis, and have been published in hundreds of papers. If the wheat had been as represented and would give the wonderful results attributed to it, it would revolutionize farming.

It is supposed that who ever is behind the scheme has some of the Alaskan wheat for sale and that after giving the alleged wonderful wheat all possible publicity the man who has the wheat for sale opens communications with the farmers thru the mails and endeavors to unload at fancy prices, selling the wonderful producer at so much per kernel.

The statement from the department of Agriculture at Washington above should be a warning to the farmer as to the worthlessness of the Alaskan wheat commercially.

The Danger Of Worrying

The society editor of the St. Paul Dispatch says very truly that most people's lives are such a continual rush that they seldom have time to do anything well. Even their houses have to keep up appearances beyond their income, and so their lives, instead of being natural and healthy, are forced very often beyond their strength.

Try and look on your homes, however small, as your kingdoms, and order them on natural, simple lines, and never allow anything to be ostentatious either in yourselves or in your children, and bring them up to realize that real, true simplicity thru life will carry us nearer to what Providence meant us to be than anything else.

One more little suggestion: Good temper is invariably a sign of good health, and if you find yourselves tired, cross and inclined to make all duties a labor, take a stitch in time and a rest, even if it is a difficulty, as it will probably save your own health and your children's respect, as such is human nature that, tho we may be forgiven once or twice, continued ill temper estranges us from those we love more than anything else, and after a time even those who love us must get tired of hearing the same excuse, that we are weary and overdone. Persons who are constantly complaining of their ill fortune and regretting this, that or the other, become in time a positive terror and nuisance to all surrounding them.

.:. POLITICS .:.

The Second and Eighth districts are the battle grounds in the Minnesota congressional districts. J. Adam Bede is opposed by C. B. Miller and the fight is waxing warm. The newspaper report is to the effect that Bede has refused to declare against Speaker Cannon and that Miller's friends are making capital out of it, and it is anybody's fight yet with the Anoka and Princeton street fairs to be pulled off to decide matters. McClary, Gutterson and Ewert are the candidates for the republican nomination in the Second district.

The matter of funds with which to run the campaign seems to be bothering the political parties of all creeds. The prohibitionists have been making a house to house canvass in Brainerd this week soliciting cash subscriptions for the purpose of carrying on the temperance movement in politics in this state.—Brainerd Dispatch.

In fifty years no Democratic candidate for president, has been elected who did not carry both New York and Indiana. Since Jackson's day no Democratic candidate for president who carried both New York and Indiana has been defeated.

Four members of the present city council of Fergus Falls have filed for the legislature, and the Journal thinks the council will either have to call a special election after January 1st or quit business.

ENGINEER GOODRICH WAS CRUSHED TO DEATH

And Three Crookston Railroad Men Injured In A Disastrous Collision Near Moorhead In Heavy Fog.

From Monday's Daily—

Without a word of warning or sight of the approaching danger, F. Goodrich, Neche, N. D., engineer on the Great Northern railroad was crushed to death in the collision between a switch engine and a work train on the Moorhead and Barnesville branch 2 miles east of Moorhead shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday morning. Four others of the crews as given above were injured some of them seriously, in the disaster.

Crash in Fog

Under orders to work between Barnesville and Moorhead from 6:00 a. m. to 7:30 p. m. the work train pulled out of Moorhead, running carefully where the fog was thick and speeding up whenever it lifted. The switch engine coming in from Barnesville had no orders against the extra and was backing up at a good speed. The two trains struck about three miles east of the town, the switch engine crashing thru the tank behind it and striking the heavy work train engine with terrific force.

Engineer Crushed to Death

The men in the cab of the work train engine did not see the switch engine until it was on top of them, on account of the thick fog. Engineer Goodrich was standing in the gang way between the engine and the tender at the time of the crash and was crushed when they telescoped. He died instantly.

The fireman, Murry was sitting just behind Yardmaster Bledsoe on his side of the engine and neither of the two men saw or heard anything until the crash came.

Sprayed with Hot Water

Occupants of the engine cabs and members of the work train crew were thrown into the air and into the pile of debris that accompanied the crash. Water pouring from the punctured boilers flowed over the semi-conscious bodies of the injured ones. It was but a moment of horror but in the darkness of the fog and the snuffing of impaired engines alone three miles from assistance, the wreck one of the most disastrous in the annals of local railroad wreck history.

Conductor McElroy who was in charge of the work train arrived this morning with his two brakemen. The brakemen escaped serious injury, being but slightly bruised, but Conductor McElroy has a bad gash on the back of his head as a memento of the occasion.

Fireman Escapes

The tender of the switch engine was completely crushed and the engineer and fireman escaped with but a few severe bruises. They were considerably cut up by breaking glass in the cab. The switch engine and the front end of the engine on the work train were both badly damaged.

No Blame Placed.

The blame for the wreck cannot yet be placed, but it is assumed that it was mostly due to the dense fog that obscured the track to within a few feet of the engines. The work train had orders for an all day's work on the line between Moorhead and Barnesville but were expecting to meet with some other trains on the way and were keeping a sharp lookout. The switch engine, it is said, was not warned as to the presence of the work train and was coming backwards. If it had been heading in, it is assumed the wreck would never have occurred.

The conductor and brakeman on the rear end of the work train were thrown off by the shock and badly shaken up. Conductor McElroy receiving a severe scalp wound as he fell.

JURY HELD IT ACCIDENTAL

From Wednesday's Daily—

Conductor Wm. B. McElroy returned last evening, and Brakeman Osmonson and Corrigan returned this morning from Fargo where they were called day before yesterday to attend the session of the coroner's jury which was called to investigate the wreck on the Great Northern two miles out of Moorhead last Sunday morning between a work train in charge of Conductor McElroy and a switch engine coming from Barnesville.

The jury which heard all the evidence regarding the wreck had the train orders read by the trainmen, and had them interpreted by Supt. Nicholson of the Dakota Division, returned a verdict that Engineer Goodrich had met his death in a collision between two trains and did not place any blame on anyone.

Mrs. Charles Deenis and Mrs. Simon Aeschlimann called on Mrs. John Gerber last Wednesday.

Last Sunday the Key West baseball team was ready to play any team that they should happen to meet. They were longing for a game with the Sherack fans. But the manager of Sherack after seeing the Key West team did not seem to care to meet them on the diamond, for what reasons no one knows. Key West then played a game with some boys in the neighborhood. The game was interesting throughout, nothing more serious happening than a crushed toe which was caused by one gentleman stepping on it and which caused quite a sensation for a while. The score being 20 to 16 in favor of Key West. Who says that Key West will never stand a show when another team is in sight?

Mr. and Mrs. John Gerber and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Aeschlimann drove to Grand Forks last Friday.

Matilda and Mildred Aeschlimann celebrated their birthdays last Sunday, Mildred was one year old and Matilda five.

✦ SHERACK ✦

Mr. W. J. Baars called on Mr. and Mrs. B. Tiedemann last Sunday.

Miss Bessie Brantl called on her friend Miss Rose Kotek last Tuesday.

Mrs. B. Tiedemann called on Mrs. G. H. Horn last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Giese and children visited with Mr. and Mrs. Tiedemann last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Horn and Miss Lillian Henricks drove to Grand Forks last Wednesday.

One of the most interesting games of baseball that has been seen for some time was played last Sunday at the John Genber farm between Sherack and Key West the score being 18 to 16 in favor of the latter. The Sherack team has of course mostly boys while the Key West team consists of men and high school students. The Sherack boys say "Never mind, we would rather have 16 scores and win them honestly than to have 18 and win them dishonestly." (Ed. Note—We do not know what the Key West boys say, but will probably hear later on.)

FEELEY JUDGE HAS BUSY DAY

KILLS BEAR AND MARRIES FEELEY COUPLE ON THE SAME DAY

MAN WHO PILOTS CROOKSTON HUNTERS HAS STRENUOUS DAY

To kill a big black bear while enroute to a nearby wedding, where he expected to tie the nuptial knot was probably a little more than Justice of the Peace Hymen who is also postmaster of Feeley, Itasca county and known to some of our citizens who have hunted and fished in that locality, bargained for but he proved equal to the occasion. As the story is told here Judge Hymen received an invitation to marry Mr. Wrichway and Miss Myrtle Reed at a point about three miles from Feeley a few days ago. While enroute to the scene of the wedding he came across an immense black bear. Fortunately the judge had a weapon and he blazed away, promptly putting the brute out of existence. He then proceeded to the scene of the wedding where the ceremony was duly conducted. Enroute back to Feeley he was accompanied by the bridegroom and the blushing bride. The bridegroom gallantly assisted the judge in carrying the animal to the judge's home where the scales showed it weighed 200 pounds.

BEMIDJI BOND ELECTION

DOUBTFUL WHETHER BONDS CAN BE SOLD ACCOUNT OF SMALL VOTE CAST

WERE FOR PURPOSE OF WATER WORKS SYSTEM FOR THAT CITY

The special election held in Bemidji Tuesday for the purpose of voting on the proposition to bond the city of Bemidji in the sum of $50,000, the money derived from the sale of bonds to be used in constructing an adequate and modern waterworks system, in connection with the waterworks system which the city already has, was evidently of little concern to the residents of Bemidji, judging from the very light vote which was cast on the proposition.

A total of but 283 votes were cast while the customary vote of Bemidji will total in the neighborhood of 800 218 were in favor of bonds and 65 against.

PENNED AND PILFERED

Many years ago when one up-to-date person met another, he looked at him cockily and remarked "Ah there?" The phrase traveled all over the land and finally wore itself out. One of the first popular phrases I can remember was "Whoa Boliver." It started from a circus clown who used it on a trick mule named Boliver. Then there was "Whoa, Emma", and "Shoot the hat," or "Where did you get that hat?" At another time it was considered au fait to ask "Where's the fire?" whenever a person came out in a new suit of clothes. Another early bit of slang was "What, never?" from Pinafore. "Ring the bell on him" followed the chestnut bell, so popular in the eighties, and was the logical forerunner of "Give him the hook." Almost everyone can remember "Go chase yourself," "O, go lay down," "Rubber neck." "Get an ax," "What 'tis," "Forget it," "Tell it to the policeman".

Some badly worn late ones are "Aint it awful Mabel?" and "Well, what do you know about that?" But they are now shopworn. The country is sadly in need of a new phrase and a new popular song. We never know when or where one of these is to break out. But either will be joyously welcomed.

A young local society man was out driving the other evening with his girl. The conversation turned to fortune telling; he asked her if she believed in palmistry. She looked up demurely and naively said: "Well I don't know, but I think I could foretell with pleasure if I saw the lines in one of your hands." The young man was slow to comprehend her meaning, and sat with low bowed head and wrinkled brow until at least two miles had been traversed when a great light broke upon him and an expansive smile illuminated his features. He took the lines in one hand and grasped the situation.

TOMAHAWKED POT HUNTERS

INDIAN DEPUTY GAME WARDEN HAS THREE FINED AND ARRESTS 5 MORE

WERE FINED $10 EACH AND THEIR GUNS WERE CONFISCATED

From Saturday's Daily—

Deputy Game Warden Munch about ten days ago appointed Star Bad Boy of Mahnomen as deputy game warden for that region and evidently made a very "live" selection as yesterday Star Bad Boy brought 3 poachers before a justice at Mahnomen and had them fined $10 each and had their guns confiscated, and later in the day arrested a party of five more who will have their hearing today. They had one prairie chicken in their possession

Star Bad Boy is a half brother of Eddie Carl, the pitcher for the Crookston independents, and a half brother of John Carl who is county auditor of Mahnomen County. He made a splendid start as a deputy game warden and is peculiarly fitted for excellent work. The hunters will very soon learn to obey the law in that section, a lesson they have all learned in this vicinity.

SUGGESTS A FLAG FOR CITY

A LOCAL MAN PICKS UP A NEW IDEA IN CLEVELAND

A local man has just returned from the east with the suggestion that Crookston should have a city flag. The idea grew from the fact that the Ohio city has a flag which is of an attractive design, and which is used to good advantage on many occasions. Several other leading cities have flags.

The idea of the man in question is to have the city call for designs for an appropriate emblem of the sort, and to offer a liberal prize to the man or woman whose design is accepted. He believes that in this manner a suitable flag could be secured. Several of the European cities have flags of their own.

MARSHALL CO., WILL HAVE FULL CO., AND LEGISLATIVE TICKET IN FIELD

From Saturday's Daily—

Editor R. D. V. Carr of the Middle River Pioneer spent the night in the city enroute home from Warren where he attended the Democratic convention yesterday. He says it was the most enthusiastic and largely attended meeting held in ten years delegates being present from all parts of the county. Resolutions were passed endorsing the national platform and praising Bryan, Kern and Gov. Johnson.

The sensation of the day occurred when a radical resolution was passed favoring county option. Resolutions also favored stringent laws for the control and eradication of noxious weeds and more liberal appropriations for drainage and roadbuilding.

A full county ticket will be placed in the field. C. A. Tullar was endorsed for the state legislature and Kittson County will name the other candidate. Delegates were elected to the state convention as follows:

C. A. Tullar, J. J. Olson, Albin Young, P. A. McClernan R. G. Marlotte, Aug Lundgren, Robt. Tell, R. D. V. Carr, Thomas Mack. L. M. Mithun.

Elephants Hate Camels.

Elephants in Africa have the bitterest enmity to camels. When the camel scents the elephant it stops still, trembles in all its limbs and utters an interrupted cry of terror and affright. No persuasion, no blows, can induce it to rise. It moves its head backward and forward, and its whole frame is shaken with mortal anguish. The elephant, on the contrary, as soon as he perceives the camel elevates his trunk, stamps with his feet, and, with his trunk thrown backward, snorting with a noise like the sound of a trumpet, he rushes toward the camel, which with its neck outstretched and utterly defenseless awaits with the most patient resignation the approach of its enemy. The elephant, with its enormous, shapeless limbs, tramples on the unfortunate animal in such a manner that in a few minutes it is scattered around in small fragments.

GRAND STAND SEATS ON SALE

NEW PLAN FOR CARING FOR THE STATE FAIR CROWDS

TREASURER E. S. MATTSON HAS PUT NEW PLAN INTO PRACTICE

Announcement of a change in the system of handling the grandstand crowds during the state fair of Aug. 31 to Sept. 5 is made by Treasurer E. L. Mattson who has evolved a plan which he believes will avoid all confusion heretofore incident to getting 35,000 people into one enclosure in record making time.

This year a separate ticket, good only for the paddock and bleachers will be sold to every person entering the grandstand gates, the price for which will be 25 cents. There will also be sold an additional ticket calling for a reserved seat in the grandstand at 25 or 50 cents, according to the choice of the purchaser.

All grandstand tickets will not be placed on sale simultaneously this year. In place of this plan Mr. Mattson placed on sale Aug. 1 season boxes accepting orders by mail addressed to E. L. Mattson, Administration building, Fair Grounds, Hamline, Minn. Entire boxes for single performances can be secured by mail Aug. 10 and on Aug. 20 Mr. Mattson will place on sale in both Minneapolis and St. Paul locations all unsold grandstand reserved seats. The places from which these seats will be sold will be announced in a few days.

These innovations have been decided upon only after much study on the part of the treasurer's department, and Mr. Mattson believes that it will now be possible to care for the grandstand crowds without discomfort or misunderstanding.

NIELSVILLF FARMER PUTS BULLET THROUGH BRAIN

Thorvald Mogdal Killed Himself And Leaves Tragic Message. Supposed To Be Case Of Unrequitted Love.

From Monday's Daily—

Some time yesterday forenoon, unable longer to bear his real or imaginary troubles, Jacob Mogdal ,a young farmer 26 years of age walked to a clump of cottonwood trees near the house on his farm 3 1-2 miles northeast of Nielsville and sent a bullet crashing thru his brain.

Coroner Chesterman went down yesterday in Bjoin & Carlson's automobile and discovered it to be a clear case of suicide. Deceased was 26 years of age and owned a quarter of section of land. He resided about one mile from the farm of his brother Mikkel with whom he boarded most of the time. He has another brother in Montana and two sisters. He used a 45 calibre revolver to end his life with.

He had been insinuating that something of the kind might happen for some time past, but had never made any direct threats of suicide. It is understood that the girl he loved was married to another man about a week ago, and this is believed to have been the cause of his awful deed.

Deceased came to Nielsville in 1895 from Norway. The verdict of the coroner's jury was temporary insanity.

The body was found shortly before noon by Thorvald Stromstad, a young man who helped him work the farm, and who was a very close friend. On the oat bin in the stable was a note stating where the body would be found and lying near the body was the following tragic note written on wrapping paper:

> Dear Thorvold—I have now lived to see the last glimpse of hope and what is now done can never be done over. Thor you think this awful but you remember I vowed ——— be on it late, dark to start in on my barn. Now you see you take half of the crop as usual and my work shall be acknowledged and time is too gruesome so I cannot do any more and so I thank you all for your kindness.
>
> And my last words shall be Father forgive me and let me out of my misery and with a heart that was true, I will be waiting for you in a shade of a cottonwood tree.

GRAIN YIELDING WELL QUALITY IS EXCELLENT

The progress of the harvest in the Red River Valley has been splendid. The weather has been ideal, and the bulk of the wheat crop is now in the shock. Next week many threshing machines will start the season's run and two weeks more fair weather will see the great bulk of the crop beyond the reach of damage by rain. Crop reports are varying so much that yields cannot be determined with any degree of accuracy till the threshing starts generally.

THRESHING IN THE RED RIVER VALLEY

Some Thresher Returns

Julius Wagner, near Fisher yesterday threshed a field of barley which went 61 bushels per acre.

Jos. Jarvis north of Fisher has threshed a field of winter rye which averaged 42 bushels per acre and some winter wheat which averaged 35 bushels per acre. A fine sample of the latter has been brought in for the state fair exhibit.

Peter Thygeson north of Fisher threshed a field of wheat yesterday which went over 25 bushels per acre.

A sample of winter wheat threshed near Rindal which yielded 37 bushels per acre was brought in today for the state fair exhibit.

Swenson Threshing

Martin Swenson pulled his rig into the field on his own place this morning and is threshing out his crop. Needless to say that the yield is big as Mr. Swenson is one who has diversified farming the last 25 years and his crop was never known to fail.

Fine Progress Northwest

I. J. Corry the well known elevator superintendent who has been touring the wheatfields between here and Grand Forks states that the harvest is progressing nicely and many farmers are entirely thru. Threshing operations have started in that direction, and before the last of the week every machine in that territory will be humming. Mr. Corry looks for a good average crop, and with ideal weather conditions the grain will be in fine shape as to grade.

Wentzel's Machine Humming

Bert Cochrane has his crop all threshed except some flax that is not yet ripe. His crop was mostly barley this year and it went 30 bushels to the acre. Charley Wentzel's threshing rig did the job in a very satisfactory manner. Mr. Wentzel's rig will be kept busy in that vicinity all fall. He started yesterday morning to thresh J. W. Barlow's crop and will be kept busy with his machine in that section all fall.

The Tale of the Bountiful

John Quirk of town of Bygland is in the city with the usual story of crops well gathered in to the shock and the hum of the busy thresher grinding out the golden grains that fill the bushels that command the high prices.

95 Per Cent Grain Cut

A. W. Bowman of the Fargo Forum came up this morning and proceeded to Blackduck where he will spend a week's vacation looking after his farm He says that along the Halstad line fully 95 per cent of the grain is in shock and several threshing machines are at work pounding out the golden grain .

Harvest Finished

Arthur Monson is in from South Euclid today reporting their harvest all done and some stacking done. The plows will at once be put at it turning the stubble.

Well Along

Wm. Senske of Buffington is in the city today reporting harvest well along and all the farmers in the most optimistic frame of mind.

40 Bushel Wheat

Threshing operations will start on the Louis Johnson farm west of the city next week if the weather remains good. They anticipate a yield of 40 bushels per acre of wheat, the crop being an exceptionally fine one, tho the acreage is small.

Harvest Progressing Well

Lionel Snelling was in the city over night from Angus and states that harvest is progressing rapidly up north. The crop is spotted there, the early grain being good and the late grain very light. The bulk of the wheat will be cut before the harvesters stop clattering this evening.

MUST NAME OVERSEERS

UNCONSTITUTIONALITY OF ROAD INSPECTOR LAW MUDDLES THINGS UP

COUNTY ATTORNEY MAYBURY GIVES SOME VALUABLE ADVICE AS TO PROCEDURE

From Monday's Daily—

Since the law passed in 1907 providing for county and township road inspectors was declared unconstitutional a few days ago by Minnesota supreme court, County Attorney Maybury has been asked for advice by many town boards and others who do not know what to do under the circumstances. The Journal called on Mr. Maybury today and secured the following statement as to what town boards should properly do.

"The Supreme Court of the State of Minnesota in the case of Anton J. Hjelm and E. M. Patterson has just decided that Chapter 458 General Laws 1907 is unconstitutional. The decision of the District Court of St. Louis County is thus affirmed, and the old law providing for road overseers is again the law of the State. This law is found in Revised Laws 1905, Sections 1224 to 1228 inclusive.

No More Inspectors

"The law declared unconstitutional is known as the law abolishing road overseers and providing for the appointment of road inspectors in their place. The meaning of this decision is that town road inspectors and their assistants are no longer legally qualified to act as such. The law providing for road inspectors is wiped out, and the road inspectors and their assistants go out with it. This makes a vacancy in the office of road overseer in every road district in every township which has heretofore had a road inspector.

"General Laws 1905, Chapter 70 provides as follows: "If for any cause no highway overseer is elected for any road district, at such annual town meeting, the town board at its first session following such town meeting shall appoint a highway overseer for such district for which no overseer was elected. (See Revised Laws 1905, Section 679. Booth's Township Manual, Section 198, 19th edition.)

Duty of Town Roads

"It is now the duty of the town board in every township having a road inspector to appoint a road overseer for each district in the township. This should be done at once. Under the old law the township was annually divided into districts by the town board. The town board may appoint a road overseer for each of these old Districts. If a regular meeting of a town board is about to occur, make the appointments then, otherwise, a special meeting of the board should be called for the purpose.

Appoint Present Officials

"It will probably be found best, as far as possible, to appoint as road overseers the present road inspectors and their assistants, providing they have proved satisfactory. This will make it easier for the work to be done by the road overseers from now on, and they can begin the work just where they left off. In any event, we think it is the best business policy for each town board to require the road inspectors to make their reports and settle their accounts up to date with the town board.

Use Same Blanks

"The newly appointed road overoverseers may use the same blank forms as those in use by the road inspectors, by simply changing their title from "Road Inspector" to "Road Overseer." If the same person is appointed road overseer who was a road inspector he may continue his work and make his reports as overseer of roads under the law as it was before the Road Inspector Law was passed.

"Before entering upon the discharge of his duty the newly appointed overseer of roads should be notified in writing by the town clerk of his appointment.

"He should, within ten days after being notified, accept the office, if he intends to do so, by filing his written acceptance thereof with the town clerk."

Grit—That's Us

That is why America leads the world in athletic sports. It isn't the much talked-of mixture of races; it isn't the climate, for we have every variety of climate in the United States and our champions come from every part of the country. It is the national spirit that makes determination, dash and grit; and then too, some people are of the opinion that it is due to daily use of a good malt tonic such as golden grain belt beer. This delicious table beverage has won a dignified place in the American home by reason of its pure, wholesome qualities. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Our Winneshiek Traction Engines and Separators are in use in every state in the Union where threshing is done, by the most successful threshermen in the United States. Experienced threshers know them and respect them.

The many patented features of both Engine and Separator make the Winneshiek outfits by far the simplest, most durable and most economical that can be bought at any price. The Free Book fully illustrates all these labor-saving and grain-saving patents.

10% to 15% More Grain

One single patent—our Oscillating Device—puts 10 to 15 per cent more grain into your bins. This amount is wasted—carried out unthreshed in the straw with other separators. This device works on the principle of the old-fashioned flail, 250 strokes a minute. It gets out every kernel of the grain. Flax is not crushed and timothy seed is not hulled. What would it mean to you in dollars to get 10 to 15 per cent more grain each season? Yet this is but a single patented feature of the famous Winneshiek Separator.

How to Save $850.75

On the outfit illustrated below you would save $850.75 on our plan over an inferior Engine and Separator of equal capacity. This will give you an idea of what our Free Book and our Wonderful Offer means to you. Sit right down now, before you forget, and write us for this book. It means so much to you in dollars and cents that you can't afford to put it off. Get a pencil and write a letter or postal card NOW.

LOSES FINGERS IN ACCIDENT

JOHN E. PETERSON OF THIS CITY HAS DISTRESSING ACCIDENT

CARS PASS OVER HAND CRUSHING THREE FINGERS AND PART OF THUMB

From Monday's Daily—

John E. Peterson of this city who was a member of the G. N. bridge crew rebuilding the bridge at Georgetown on the Halstad line, suffered the loss of three fingers last Saturday.

It appears that Peterson was working on the bridge being installed and a train was on the structure at the time. In moving from the trestle to the scaffolding Peterson placed his hand on the rail supporting himself. Just at this time the train started and several wheels passed over his hand.

He was immediately taken to St. John's hospital at Fargo where it was found necessary to amputate the first and second finger at the hand, the third finger at the first joint and part of the thumb had to be taken off to properly dress the wounds.

Mr. Peterson is well known in this city, where he resides with his father August Peterson, 507 Stewart Avenue. His brother Erick S. Peterson is a member of the well known firm of Peterson and Booth.

Crookston People have Absolute Proof of Deeds at Home

It's not words, but deeds that prove true merit.

The deeds of Doan's Kidney Pills,
For Crookston kidney sufferers,
Have made their local reputation.

Proof lies in the testimony of Crookston people who have been cured to stay cured.

John Dunn, Sr., of 336 Central Ave., Crookston, Minn., says: "It is more than five years since I first recommended Doan's Kidney Pills, but I can endorse them just as highly today as when I gave my first statement in their favor. Before I used them I had suffered for about ten years from pains in the back and about the kidneys. The kidney secretions were also disordered, being too frequent in action. Doan's Kidney Pills procured at the Wallace's Pharmacy, removed every symptom. The gratifying results have proved of a permanent nature, and I have been recommending Doan's Kidney Pills ever since."

AN ELOQUENT REMONSTRANCE

EASTERN VINELAND SETTLERS OPPOSE DIVISION OF TOWNSHIP

FILE REMONSTRANCE WITH CO. COMMISSIONERS—A HEARING LATER ON.

From Monday's Daily—

There is blood on the moon in Vineland Township, owing to a movement on foot by the residents of the western portion of that rich subdivision of Polk county to have the township divided. The farmers in the eastern the division and in a remonstrance filed with the commissioners today part of the township are opposed to state their grounds of resentment in eloquent language. The remonstrance was filed with the board today by Chris Steenerson, a pioneer of Vineland, and who is also the first county superintendent of schools of Polk county and also clerk of court in the early days. The remonstrance follows and needs no further explanation:

Declaration of Dependence

To the County Commissioners of the County of Polk:

Whereas a petition has been circulated to be presented to this board praying for the division of the Town of Vineland,

And whereas such division is to run north and south through the Town on the section line between sections four (4) and five (5) Township One hundred forty-eight (148) of Range forty-eight (48).

This will create a western Town wealthy, thickly settled, well improved and amply provided with churches schools, ditches, grades and bridges

The eastern part will be largely an unimproved waste and the undersigned few settlers left with the swamps speculator and state lands.

For twenty years and more most of us have suffered privations and burdens without complaint, paid our annual taxes and otherwise voluntarily contributed to public improvements.

These have invariably by a despotic majority vote been placed in the western and favored region, while we like Siberian exiles have been left singly and alone to struggle against annually recurring destructive overflows. We have endured with patience. We have indulged in the illusions of hope that when the time came and which has now come, when there should be no more improvements needed and western Vineland would be the garden spot of Polk county, our time would come.

But deaf to the voice of equity and justice these petitioners now propose by this secession to cast us off, to be impoverished by taxation and floods. Half a dozen of us who live in the southern portion on the dry Sand Hill border have for thirty years contributed from our abundance to the improvements of western Vineland while the other dozen scattered among the swamps of eastern Vineland have been almost totally ignored and left to our fate. For these reasons we the undersigned earnestly remonstrate until the necessary relief in ditching and grading has been granted and performed by county and state. Very respectfully submitted. Signed,

CREAMERY FOR HILL RIVER

STRICTLY MODERN CREAMERY BEING INSTALLED IN PROGRESSIVE POLK

FARMERS NORTH OF FOSSTON TO ENGAGE IN DAIRYING MORE EXTENSIVELY

From Monday's Daily—

M. J. Cort, the "Creamery Sage" has just returned from Hill River township where the Hill River Creamery Association has been organized and work started on a new creamery of the very latest type and to be fitted with the most modern creamery machinery made.

The farmers north of Fosston have paid considerable attention to dairying for some time past, but decided on a creamery of their own as the quantity of cream produced was too great to cart to other creameries or to Fosston for shipment.

O. J. Matson is the president of the Hill River Creamery Association and A. J. Matson the secretary. Both are progressive farmers and many others are members of the association and intend paying more attention to their dairy herds than ever before, and increasing them as rapidly as possible.

Secretary A. J. Matson is just completing one of the finest barns in that section of the country, costing $1500 and in addition to horses and other stock special arrangements have been made for the accommodation of 25 dairy cows. This is an illustration of the wonderful progress that is being made by the up-to-date farmers of Polk Co. Mr. Matson says he is certain of big returns from the investment.

HEADED FOR NORTH DAKOTA WHEAT FIELDS

A freight car containing several teams and a dozen or more men left Cass Lake last Tuesday for the wheat fields of North Dakota where thousands of men and hundreds of teams are wanted to help secure one of the best crops Dakota has ever grown. John Lunney is major domo of the car and Dick Stoeffler is chief cook and bottle washer. A dozen or more strong-handed fellows accompany them and they expect to make the wheat bundles fly into the stack and machine so rapidly that Dakota's harvest season will soon be over.—Cass Lake Times.

Illinois Man Say[illegible] Minn. Beats World

C. H. Wallace says he will live to see his Valley Land bring $100 per Acre on Open Market.

"I have travelled all over Colorado Texas, New Mexico several of the western states and Wisconsin, in fact I have been traveling more than anything else the past few years, and after looking the conditions and possibilities over everywhere, I believe Minnesota land the best investment I know of at present prices.

"Nowhere that I know of will the land stand such excessive moisture or excessive dry weather during the growing season and still produce such crops as this state. Despite the exceedingly dry weather that has prevailed in this section this summer, I have seen some of as fine wheat crops as ever grew. Red River Valley soil if properly cultivated and with proper conservation of soil energy will produce a good crop every year. The drainage system is rapidly nearing completion and will take care of all moisture during years of abnormal rainfall and cultivation will produce crops be it ever so dry."

The above statement was made yesterday by C. H. Wallace of Homer, Illinois, and land owner and money loaner, who has been here for the past few days looking after 400 acres of the Sykes farm in Farley township which he purchased a few years ago. He is expending $2,000 on improvements this year and says land which he bought at $30 per acre will sell for $100 per acre before he is an old man.

"The damage to crops in spots this year is not alone the result of hot winds or other natural causes and that the worst damage on all kinds of land has followed where slipshod methods of cultivation have been employed.

"Land that was not plowed sufficiently deep and grain seeded sufficiently early or put in in a hasty and unfarmerlike manner, has suffered the worst. To prove that crop damage on certain fields that show the worst aspects is not due to the country, the weather or the soil, but principally to poor farming, any one can see good crops in the immediate vicinity of a poor one. On one side of the road will be found a good piece of grain, on the other, grain that is either choked down by weeds and foul seeds or burned up.

"In the Red River Valley where it is claimed that hot weather has done any considerable damage, a large percentage of the grain is choked by noxious weeds, while adjoining fields will present a fine, luxuriant stand of grain, with every promise of a big yield.

"This shows that it is the fault of the hasty cultivation rather than the soil or the weather. The same old truth applies this year with greater acreage well cultivated and properly seeded, will bring better returns than a larger acreage put in in a hurried and businesslike way. Those who blame the country and the weather for loss may do well to look to their own lack of enterprise first."

VISITS BROTHERS AFTER 36 YEARS

JOHN L. OLSON ARRIVED THIS MORNING FROM LINCOLN, NEBRASKA

HAS BROTHER AT FOSSTON AND ONE AT CLIMAX—WILL SURPRISE BOTH

From Tuesday's Daily—

John L. Olson arrived this morning from St. Paul, and left on the Duluth train for Fosston where he will visit his brother, Anton Olson who farms 10 miles east of Fosston near Cross Hill P. O., whom he has not seen for 36 years, and will later visit his brother Otto Olson who farms near Climax, neither of whom know he is in this part of the country.

Mr. Olson came from Christiania, Norway to St. Louis in 1873, and went to Lincoln, Neb., the following year, where he has made his home ever since. His brothers did not come to this country till 15 years afterwards and they have never seen him since and were not aware that he intended to visit them.

John L. Olson is a harness maker and shoemaker, and has two sons established in that line of business at Lincoln where they make shoes, etc., and vote for Bryan. Mr. Olson displayed an interest in Minnesota politics at once, and asked what Johnson's chances were for a third term. He stated that much was heard of Gov. Johnson in Nebraska and it is safe to assert that he will get one more vote as a result of the arrival of Mr. Olson.

Mr. Olson will remain here for some time and will engage in business if he can find a good opening, as he would prefer to be near his brothers in his declining years.

WAR AMONG WHEAT BUYERS

WITH A RESULTING SCALING DOWN OF MARGINS BY THE COMPANIES

AND HIGHER PRICES REALIZED BY THE FARMERS AT EAST GRAND FORKS

A lively war is in sight among the E. G. Forks wheat buyers, with resulting increased returns for the farmers of this section. It was stated yesterday that the agents of one of the big companies have received instructions as a result of the brisk competition which will in effect scale down the margin of profit to the extent of about 10 cents per bushel which will mean considerable to the farmers of this section. W. V. Williams, who represents a Duluth house, has already purchased and shipped eighteen cars of the new crop and the elevator companies apparently do not consider that they are getting their share of the wheat coming in. The average yield of the wheat thus far threshed is about 15 bushels per acre and most of it grading No. 1 northern.

SOW THISTLE A NOXIOUS WEED

FARMERS SHOULD WATCH FOR IT TO PREVENT ITS SPREADING

E. T. Frank brought in a few thistles Monday of a variety that he said was threatening to take many of the best fields west of town. It has a yellow blossom and is known in common parlance as the sow thistle. It has numerous branches, spreading much more near the base than some other kinds of thistles, and is said to be one of the most dangerous of the noxious weeds with which the farmers of this section have to contend. The work of eradicating it should be entered upon as soon as it puts in its appearance in a field and before it has had an opportunity to gain a foothold. Warren Register.

"BOB" WOODS OF FELTON MANGLED BY TRAIN

Was hit by Winnipeg flyer at Felton Saturday. Did not expect trains to pass there.

From Monday's Daily—

R. M. Woods of Felton an old-timer of Clay County was killed by a Great Northern train at the Felton depot just about midnight Saturday a short time after he had reached his place of business on his return from Moorhead.

The Winnipeg flyer, north bound, and the south bound train on that line usually pass at Averill, midway between Glyndon and Felton, but last night the trains were ordered to pass at the latter station and the south bound train pulled in first. Mr. Woods was at the depot to receive a consignment of goods for his fruit and candy store, a part of which was ice cream shipped from the Crookston Pure Food Co., of this city.

Leaving the express office he started to cross the tracks and before he cleared along came the north bound train and he was run over by the ponderous engine in a moment and cut all to pieces. People at the depot say that there was not a second of time for warning and that the killing of Mr. Woods was purely accidental, that he unconsciously stepped in front of the approaching train which he never expected to be there.

Coroner Vincent of Moorhead decided than an inquest was not necessary.

Mr. Woods was among the early settlers of Clay county, but had been careless in his life's affairs and twice had been called upon to pay severe penalties. He had been deprived of his liberty for offenses in his own state and also in North Dakota for terms of years. Late years he has been a good citizen and made a living in his declining years from the proceeds of a little store at Felton. He was a big-hearted fellow and despite his past shortcomings, people were always ready to help him and his untimely end will be greatly regretted by his fellow townsmen. It is said that he was a single man.

CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR OPPOSED TO CO. OPTION

MAYOR DAHLMAN OF OMAHA CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR OF NEBRASKA ANNOUNCES THAT H E OPPOSES COUNTY OPTION—HE DECLARES THE LAW WOULD BE AGAINST THE PRINCIPLES OF LOCAL SELF GOVERNMENT

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 24—Mayor Jas. C. Dahlman has announced that in his race for the gubernatorial nomination he will take a stand against "county option" and strongly in favor of a law providing for a gua anty to bank depositors. Dahlman declares county option law is against the principles of local self government, which anticipates that the purpose of organizing municipalities is to control affairs within their corporate limits. He says country citizens would be able to control churches, schools and saloons interest, advantage and convenience alike in towns adjacent to them with a co-option law.

When we remember that cities and villages are created mainly for the of the locality and its people, and that counties are created as instrumentalities of the state, and not for the regulation of the local and domestic affairs of a compact community, the consummate viciousness of this un-American doctrine and the enormity of its attack upon home rule and the sacred right of ballot, must be apparent to everyone. County Option means County Prohibition through a nullification of the ballot of those who under the express provisions of law, have been created municipal corporations for the interest, advantage and convenience of their respective localities and people. It disregards the fundamental principle that laws ought to be attended closely by the sanction of the groups or units for which they are made.

CLEARWATER CO. SUED FOR $31,000.00

Beltrami county has filed suit against Clearwater county for $31,000 alleged dues since the time of division. It has been a contested question since 1902, between the respective county commissioners, but heretofore no action has been taken. This question ought to have been settled a long time ago, for nothing is gained by prolonging a matter of this nature. Clearwater county don't owe Beltrami a cent, if any dues are coming it is Clearwater County that is entitled to the same, as under that regime we more than paid our share of the taxes and received nothing in return worth mentioning in the line of road work, bridges and public improvements which directly or indirectly has or will prove a public benefit in any way shape, form or manner, and defy them to point out or locate improvements in our county which will in any way justify their claim of $31000 alleged due them since time of division.—Olberg Journal.

Judge Parker Says Bryan is Sure to Win

Former Candidate For President passed Through Crookston Enroute to Duluth after a Tour of the West.

Judge Alton B. Parker of New York was a Crookston visitor yesterday enroute from an extended trip west, where he has been since the Denver convention, to Duluth from where he will make a trip down the Great Lakes to Buffalo. Judge Parker looked the picture of health and stated that the trip had been a very pleasant one. Asked as to the political outlook Judge Parker said to the Journal representative:

"The Democracy was never in a more healthy condition in the west than at the present time. From every indication there will be a much bigger democratic vote cast than for many years. The industrial conditions are such that the western people want a change and they will vote the democratic ticket to get it.

"There is more general interest in politics among the laboring classes than there has been in years and I believe very strongly that there will be some surprises in the west in the line of democratic gains. The campaign is just getting under way. It promises to be a vigorous one and Democracy has all the best of the argument, and has every opportunity to make big gains in many Republican strongholds. Personally I am not certain what I shall do. I am in the hands of the committee ready to do any work assigned me.

"William Jennings Bryan will be the next president of the United States. I have travelled thru the western states since the Denver convention and find the democrats well united while nearly everywhere there are republican fights which will mean democratic success. Conditions are very hopeful in New York. Tammany is a unit for Bryan and there will be no doubt about his carrying the state.

"Conditions are ripe for a democratic victory. The republican full dinner pail is empty, union labor is with the democrats and the conservative element will support him.

Hearst's League a Frost

"While the republicans may carry California, Bryan will surely have Oregon and Washington. The Independence league, founded by Hearst, is not making much headway out on the coast or elsewhere. The socialist ticket will get more votes in San Francisco than the league.

"In New York the democrats elected Hughes two years ago but that was because they did not want Hearst This year it will be different."

Judge Parker was accompanied by Delancey Nicol a leading lawyer of New York City. They had a colored man to look after their luggage and act as valet.

SKELETONS ARE FOUND

PRIESTS FIND REMAINS OF CANADIAN MISSIONARIES KILLED BY INDIANS

MEMORY OF LONELY TRAGEDY SOLEMLY PRESERVED BY CATHOLIC PRIESTS

On June 8, 1736, Jean Baptiste de la Verandrye, 20 years old, son of the great explorer Sieur de la Verandrye, Father Aulneau,a Jesuit missionary and nineteen French Canadian voyagers, were murdered by Sioux Indians on an island in the northwestern angle of the Lake of the Woods. The memory of this lonely tragedy has been solemly preserved by the Roman Catholic church throughout the long years that have passed away, and since then periodical attempts have been made to identify the scene of the massacre. On Aug. 7, last, a party of priests of St. Boniface college, Winnipeg, accompanied by Judge Prudhomme, discovered the site of Fort St. Charles built in 1732 by Sieur de la Verandrye on the northwest angle of the Lake of the Woods. They also discovered the skulls of the nineteen voyagers and skeletons of Father Aulneau and Jean Baptiste de la Verandrye.

For many years past the Roman Catholic church has made efforts to locate these remains but until the present month all efforts to do so failed.

HUNTERS WILL BE GIVEN WARNING

MUST NOT SHOOT RING NECKED PHEASANTS UNDER HEAVY PENALTY

The Polk county Game and Fish Protective Assn. is having some big cards printed warning all hunters to beware of the law against killing ring necked pheasants which were placed in various parts of Polk County by the State Game and Fish Commission and several hundred more which were hatched from eggs bought by the Polk county association and the signs will be placed about all the farms where the game birds were planted. Hunters should be very careful not to disturb any of these birds which cannot be shot for several years.

BOOMING ON BORDER

STEEL INTERESTS SAID TO HAVE ACQUIRED INTERNATIONAL FALLS WATER POWER

PAPER AND PULP MILL ON AMERICAN SIDE—HUGE FLOURING MILLS OPPOSITE

From Tuesday's Daily—

The Minneapolis Tribune contains the following regarding the waterpower at International Falls:

"The Backus-Brooks interests at International Falls have sold their water power holdings at "the fall" to Eastern capital, and it is understood that the development hereafter will be by capital furnished by the steel interests.

"W. H. Cook president of the Duluth, Rainy Lake and Winnipeg road has sent word to the Minneapolis lumber interests to the effect that work would begin at once by the use of 600 men, looking to the completion of works that would produce 30,000 horse power within a year. This, it is understood, will be followed by the quick completion of some new railroad lines in that district.

"It is understood by those who have followed matters in that locality that the Backus-Brooks company will concentrate its efforts upon the completion of a mammoth paper and pulp plant on the American side at International Falls. Pulp wood is plenty in that locality and the mill is to be finished by the time the power is ready to be delivered. The plant will have a capacity of 500 tons of paper a day.

"The advices also claim that to offset the huge paper mill on this side the Ogilvie Milling company, of Winnipeg, is to build a flour mill with a capacity of 20,000 barrels a day at Fort Frances on the Canadian side of Rainy river. Elevators will be built and wheat ground in transit. All these developments are some of the things that led the Minneapolis real estate board to take its trip to the Rainy lake country in order to investigate the situation and see what could be done toward making that market tributary to Minneapolis."

PENNED AND PILFERED

The editor of the Detroit Quiver spiels on the recent automobile accident in that city in the following humorous vein:

The Hawley base ball boys come to Detroit and have the softest snap ever with "our" aggregation of properts, but when it comes to scorching their gas wagons outside the street deadlines, any old telephone pole can make them sit up and take intimation beforehand.

At least that was the case last Sunday evening when Johnson's machine honked at a telephone pole to get out of the way.

The driver may have taken Mr. Pole for a Fargo girl clad in a Detroit lake directoire bathing suit, but such was not the case. The tall cedar refused to move, the auto now refuses to move, and the Hawley men moved up so close to the pearly gates that they distinctly saw stars in the day time.

A Prominent physician was recently called to his telephone by a colored woman. In great agitation the woman advised the physician that her youngest child was in a bad way. "What seems to be the trouble?" asked the doctor. "Doc, she done swallowed a bottle of ink!" "I'll be over in a short while to see her, said the doctor. "Have you done anything for her?" "I done give her three pieces of blottin' paper, Doc," said the colored woman, doubtfully.

The lady who gently tapped her husband on the shoulder at the social the other evening and tenderly said, "Love, it is growing late; I think we had better go home," is the same pious lady who, after getting home, shook the rolling pin under his nose and said, "You infamous old snaggle-toothed scoundrel, if you ever look at that mean, hateful calico-faced, cackerel-eyed old thing you had your eyes glued on tonight. I'll burst your cocoanut wide open for you."

NEGROES OBJECT TO RED PEPPER

CLAIM RESTAURANTS DO NOT WANT THEIR TRADE AND PUT "DOPE" IN FOOD

Altho Grand Forks is pretty far north the color line is drawn rather closely. In a large share of the restaurants negroes are given to understand that they are not wanted as patrons. Some of the colored men think they are as good as anyone else, and the result has been some wordy mixups. In some of the restaurants the negroes claim that red pepper was placed in their pork chops, and they were overcharged. They are rather ugly over their grievances but there has been no dangerous outbreak yet.

In many of the East Grand Forks saloons the color line is drawn and the bartender fails to see a negro if he puts in an appearance at the bar. Usually the negro realizes what he is up against and leaves promptly. One protested loud and long recently, but was informed that he might as well keep quiet.

"If Springfield can handle thousands of niggers, East Grand Forks ought to be able to handle a few," remarked the bartender significantly.

FINE HUNTING IS PROMISED

CONDITIONS WILL BE IDEAL FOR THE CHICKENS THIS SEASON

MOST OF GRAIN WILL BE CUT AND SUPPLY OF BIRDS BEST IN YEARS

From Thursday's Daily—

The pursuer of the festive prairie chicken is assured the best sport this year that has been enjoyed in the past seven or eight years. The hunting the past three years has been very poor owing to weather conditions. Last year the harvest was so late that little grain was cut the forepart of the season. The spring was also so wet that many farms were not seeded at all and grew up to weeds. This with the tangled mass of grass in the low lands gave the chickens such good cover that they could not be ferreted out, as a hunting dog could not work but a short time and then the rank weeds made their work only passable. As a result fewer birds were bagged and consequently more were left to breed the following year.

This year the harvest was started exceptionally early and by the first of September practically every field will be cut and thousands of acres threshed. The dogs will have splendid running and there is an abundance of birds reported in all directions. Farmers state that not in many years have they seen the number of chickens. The conditions are also more favorable for the hunters from the Twin Cities and Duluth. Last year it was so wet that the farmers had two or three days a week during haying and harvest when they could not work, and consequently they hunted, and many coveys were broken up before the city sportsmen got a crack at them. This year the farmers have not had their work interrupted for a single day since harvest began, and the birds will not have been disturbed.

This means that the hunters from the city will get all the best of it this year, and will return with full game bags to recompense the mfor the indif ferent sport that has been afforded them in the Red River Valley during the past few seasons.

KEEP LABOR DAY SAYS GOVERNOR

GREATNESS OF NATION DEPENDS ON MEN WHO WORK IN THE SHOP, MINE OR FARM

ADVISES GENERAL CELEBRATION WITH GOOD CHEER AND ENJOYMENT

Governor Johnson today issued his Labor day proclamation which is as follows:

"Under the laws of our nation and state, Monday, Sept. 7, 1908, is designated as a holiday in honor of the men and women who toil in the nation's workshops.

"It is typical of our twentieth century civilization to set apart a day in which all the people may acknowledge their debt to that great army of toilers whose industry has made our civilization possible. The nation leans on the shoulders of labor. Upon its strength, its health, its domestic happiness, and economic wellbeing depends the peace and the prosperity of the people. We must look to the man in the workshop in the mine, and on the farm for those qualities of manhood and citizenship—integrity, loyalty, industry and thrift—which make for the greatness of our nation and the perfection of its institutions.

"We, in Minnesota, are proud of the advancing morals, intellectual and social attainments of labor. With the future developments of the vast resources of our great state, these acomplishments will make Minnesota labor more indispensible than ever before. In opening avenues for permanent employment, we will not forget the government's duty to its citizens in protecting their lives and their liberty and in aiding them in the pursuit of happiness. Labor Day carries the message of a oneness in purpose of the two mighty factors in industry—capital and labor — and therefore it is eminently fitting that on this occasion we should lay aside our accustomed employment to join in a proper observance of the day.

"Now therefore, I, John A. Johnson governor of Minnesota, do hereby designate and set apart Monday the 7th day of September, as Labor Day.

"Let there be a proper celebration of the purpose of the day, and let social meetings of friends lend cheer and enjoyment. (Signed)

"—John A. Johnson,
"Governor."

He is a typical miner and has many interesting tales of camp life to tell. He will make an extended visit here with his brother.

While passing the Minot flour mill at a fair rate of speed the touring car became unmanageable and before Mr. Winney could grasp the emergency brake, was on the edge of the 20-foot rock lined embankment of the Mouse river. Messrs. Winney and Ginsberg who accompanied him jumped to save their lives and barely escaped as the car crashed over the embankment and into the river.

Mr. Winney sprained his foot quite severely and Mr. Ginsberg landed on his hands in such a manner as to inflict very painful gravel bruises which will bother him for some time. The big car landed in the bottom of the Mouse river right side up with care, but with several axels and a good bit of the interior mechanism ripped out.

A team of horses, a diver and several additional men were put at work at the scene of the accident endeavoring to extracate the machine all day and were successful by means of block and tackle in landing it on terra firma. The auto is in a bad shape from its precipitous drop into the waters of the Mouse and Mr. Winney will return to Lansford by train. It will probably cost $500 or more to put the machine in shape for use again.

"U." PROFESSOR A SUICIDE AT BEMIDJI

BODY DISCOVERED IN BEMIDJI LAKE — IS UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR A SUICIDE

The body of Arthur Upson professor of English at the state university was found in lake Bemidji Tuesday. It was not positively identified until yesterday, and all indications are that he committed suicide. Prof. Upson went to Bemidji recently to recreate and boarded at the Markham. His absence was first noted last Sunday.

The reason for believing this is the fact that Upson attempted to take his life by jumping from the bridge at Tenth avenue south Minneapolis, some time ago and was rescued.

Upson was thirty-five years of age and had a fine position at the State University. He was a writer of some small fame and has been looked upon as a coming author by his friends. He had several of his efforts published and planned upon some excellent work, which he hoped to produce while sojourning in Bemidji.

The causes leading to the action of self destruction are a mystery to all acquainted with the deceased.

JOHN R. MASCALL'S SWEET CORN TREAT

OWNER OF SECTION 1, IN LOWELL ARRIVES WITH A BIG FEED

John R. Mascall, the owner of Section 1 in the town of Lowell arrived yesterday from Cambridge, Ill., for his annual stay of several weeks to look after his property, and this morning when his trunks arrived one of them was packed with scores of ears of the finest sweet corn that was ever seen in Crookston. It is a rare variety Mr. Mascall having secured the seed in the east ,and he will be petitioned to send up a few bushels of seed next year for this section of the country. Mr. Mascall peddled his corn among his friends this morning and they all had a feast of roasted ears for dinner which just struck the right spot.

Mr. Mascall visited his farm last evening and finds conditions better than they have been for several years Last year he leased it to Reitmeier Bros., for a term of 5 years, and their high grade manner of farming it is already very evident. Mr. Mascall will remain here several weeks attending to business and visiting his host of friends. He is one of the best boosters the Red River Valley ever had. He is well satisfied with his investment, and it would take several thousand dollars more than he paid to get a deed to his land, which is as good as can be found in the Red River Valley.

Honesty pays in the end—but you must be at the right end.

NORTH'N LIGHTS WERE BEAUTIFUL

NIGHT HAWKS OF CROOKSTON TREATED TO RARE PHENOMENA DURING LAST NIGHT

HEAVENS GORGEOUSLY ILLUMINATED IN VIOLET SHADES OF AURORA BOREALIS

Crookston people who are in the habit of waiting for the owl cars were treated last night to an exhibition of natural phenomena which is seldom seen in the heavens of this latitude and which for grandeur and spectacular effect beats any Paine firework display ever gotten up.

Since last Monday night when the phenomena first became apparent to casual star gazers the Aurora Borealis of the northern heavens has at some time during the night hours cut loose in a manner to make simple minded and superstitious folk believe that their last hour and the end of the world had come.

The rays of violet and purple light which have filled the heavens flitting from zenith to horizon is undulating waves of beauty have held spectators spell bound.

Fine Weather For Farmers

Never in the history of the Red River Valley have the farmers ever had better weather for their harvest and threshing, and splendid progress is being made. While there is still a great deal of grain standing, the bulk of it has been cut and considerable threshing has been done.

Practically all the threshing machines are now humming, and every day means hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain threshed which has not seen a drop of rain since the harvest started. This means a much better grade of grain and in addition a great saving in time for the farmer as well as the expense of keeping a crew of men about eating him out of house and home.

But this is not all the advantage gained by fine weather for the harvest and threshing. It means that plows will be started and thousands of acres of early plowing done, which is almost as good as summer fallowing. The wet falls of the past few years have made it impossible for the farmers to get their plowing done, and what was done in many instances was rushed thru just before the ground froze up, and experience teaches that as a rule crops from such extremely late plowing are poor.

This year the farmer who keeps his work well in hand will have all his plowing done early, and his land in splendid shape for the seed the next spring.

A Little Object Lesson

Many people in this city, and others in this vicinity are chagrined that St. Hilaire secured the next meeting of the Red River Valley Dairymens Assn., which Crookston wanted, and are disposed to grumble and find fault.

This is the wrong spirit entirely Crookston had the convention last year, and should have had it this year all else being equal, but all things else were not equal, and right here is where the officers of the dairymens Assn did perfectly right in giving St. Hilaire the meeting, and had they done otherwise they would have acted unfairly.

Last year the dairymen met here—and they received a measly $25 in cash for their pains from the city, or from the soliciting committee.

This year the Commercial Club Committee offered the executive committee $100 in cash if the meeting was held here. St. Hilaire offered $175 After Crookston became aware of what St. Hilaire had offered, the Crookston bid was raised to $300.

Could the executive committee have given Crookston the meeting and acted honorably? Indeed not.

St. Hilaire has the meeting and the people of this section do all in their power to make the gathering the biggest success ever. St. Hilaire farmers have set the pace for dairy progress in the Red River Valley and while Crookston would be much more central place for the gathering, and more convenient for nine tenths of those who attend, still there will be an attendance of at least 200 or 300 dairy farmers from the immediate vicinity at St. Hilaire at the meeting who could not have attended here.

Crookston lost the meeting because they did not bid high enough. It is a meeting of vast importance to the entire valley. Crookston could afford to give $500 for such a gathering easily. We didn't do it and as a result have no cause to feel sore because a little village gave twice as much cash as Crookston offered.

Crookston was just a little too cheap to land the priz. It will be a pretty good object lesson for the future, if Crookston proposes to pose as the convention city of Northern Minnesota.

How Parents Can Assist Teachers

The Crookston public schools will open Monday next, Aug. 31 and as far as possible parents should see that their children start the first day, and this suggests the thought that a closer relation between parents and teachers is to be desired if the best educational results are to be achieved. If teachers knew parents better, they could understand many of the peculiarities of children and how to deal with them. No one but a teacher appreciates how helpful is a word or two of encouragement from parents. Interest taken by parents in school work is sure to bear fruit a hundredfold.

Parents are advised to talk with the teacher about the traits, characteristics, etc., of their children, for the better the teacher understands the children the better will she be able to teach them. There is another point for the parents' consideration; a child that is well-disciplined and well trained at home rarely needs correction at school. It is too often the case that the schools have to do the things which should have been done at home. Schools are not reformatories. They have to do with the formation of the pupil, not with his reformation.

Parents are urged to get in closer touch with the school methods and aims. There is a natural tendency of parents to side with a child when it comes home with complaints of teachers, studies, and school, and this encouragement fosters a spirit of rebellion which not only makes trouble for the teacher but injures the advancement of the pupil. Were the parents familiar with the methods and the work mapped out it would give them an inkling of the trials of the teacher, who, after all, is only human.

It is the exceptional child who does not complain of the restraints and demands of school life and the wise parent gives these complaints the small consideration they usually deserve.

How many people know what their own street looks like? In these days of cheap and easy photography and rapid printing the picture postal card has an important place. There is scarcely a town or hamlet in which some view has not been photographed for postal card work. And there is scarcely a place so small or so prosaic in appearance that there may not be found in it many bits of beauty which would serve this purpose and serve it well. And every day people look at the pictured presentment of some familiar scene and not with surprise that it is really beautiful. They have seen the same thing in nature a thousand times and never noticed it. Really we go thru the world with our eyes shut most of the time. We do not see half of the things about us that are worth looking at. The great book of nature is spread before us all the time, and we are too busy to read the lines or study the pictures. If the picture card causes us to take a little deeper look into some of the things that we have been slighting it will have fulfilled a splendid mission. —Grand Forks Herald.

An old farmer tells us he has completely killed out weeds along the roadside around his farm. Three years ago he scattered timothy and clover in the weed patches. Now the weeds are all gone—choked out—and this year he made several tons of fine hay where they once stood.

N. D. DAIRY COMMISSIONER WARNS THE FARMERS

State Dairy Commissioner Flint has warned the farmers of North Dakota against being hasty in making deals for the construction of co-operative creameries. Some of the promoters of such enterprises are using a form of subscription that proves to be a note for a share of the cost of the plant. The commissioner suggests that where farmers are intending to build such a creamery that they correspond with his department and that full information and plans will be sent them.

Noel Herbert(carpenter, of 338 Hunter St., Crookston, Minn., says: "My back pained terribly and totally unfitted me for any exertion, there being times when I had to be helped about. I at last heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and immediately procured a box at S. A. Wallace's drug store. I started using them and it was not long before I noticed that my back was gradually getting stronger. My trouble son entirely left me and I have not felt a vistage of it since. Doan's Kidney Pills are a most valuable remedy and I give them my endorsement with the hope that others may be convinced of their merit."

The above statement was made by Mr. Herbert in 1898 nearly six years later Dec. 2nd, 1904 he added:

"Doan's Kidney Pills so completely relieved me of kidney trouble six years ago that there has been no return of it. It is a pleasure to again endorse them."

ON TO WASH. — Commissioner Wessel spent a short time in the city this morning, going out on one of the branches. The duties of a member of the game and fish commissioners do not weigh very heavily on the genial Joe. He is just as jovial as ever. While here he received notice of his appointment as a delegate to a national meeting at Washington, D. C. This meeting will be attended by delegates from every state. Mr. Wessel will attend.

Quite a heavy rain fell in this section beginning at about three o'clock this morning. It was not a general rain, only extending south as far as Halstad, after which no rain fell till Fargo was reached.

At Fargo early this morning a pelting hailstorm prevailed for some time, some of the stones being as large as walnuts.

FALSE REPORTS ARE NAILED

HON. LEWIS C. SPOONER SPEAKS HIGHLY OF HOLTON'S GOOD

RECORD IN THE MINNESOTA STATE LEGISLATURE

Morris, Minn., Aug. 15th, 1908.
Mr. Norman Hanson,
Fertile, Minnesota.

Dear Sir:—

I acknowledge the receipt of your letter of inquiry of August 11th, in regard to Hon. John Holton, and answer the same as follows:

(a) House File No. 5—the redrafted bill for the law authorizing the manufacture of binders, harvesters, mowers and rakes at the State Prison, at Stillwater, Minnesota, used largely for the purpose, convict labor at present, and hitherto, sold to others at no profit, or at the best, at but little profit to the state, was first voted on in the House of Representatives, February 21st, 1907: (see journal of house page 396), and the Hon. John Holton, and exactly 80 others voted for the passage of the bill—while exactly 23 representatives voted against the passage of the bill—that day.

(b) The bill as passed that day was subsequently passed in the Senate—with a slight amendment and as amended, in the Senate, it was returned to the House, for the concurrence of the House, and came up again in the House to be voted on, March 13th 1907, when Mr. Holton and exactly 74 others voted for the re-passage of the bill—while, this time, but four voted against the bill—and the balance did not vote. (See journal of the house page 641).

(c) The information contained in the foregoing should be quite sufficient to put a quietus on the story you say is in circulation in Mr. Holton's district to the effect that he was not present when the bill referred to was voted on and that he did not vote for the same.

I do not desire to be regarded as meddling in the affairs of your legislative district; but I know and cheerfully and definitely say, that there was no more faithful, nor any more honest member of the 1907 legislature than the Hon. John Holton who sat next to me, and very much assisted me, during the entire session and whom I hope I may have the good fortune to have sit next to me during the next session of the legislature.

Very truly yours,
—Lewis C. Spooner.

Discontent

When discontent seizes upon the mind it is like the deadly cancer, reaching out with its tentacles for sound flesh to feed upon. The caustic of self arraignment must be unsparingly used, and the salve of commonsense liberally applied. As a preventative we suggest the daily use of golden grain belt beer which, if taken regularly at meal time will contribute to the health of both body and mind. BOLD HOLDUP AND ROBBERY

CHRIS CHRISTIANSON VICTIM OF AN ATTACK BY TWO HIGHWAYMEN

BOLD CROOKS GET BUSY AT EAST GRAND FORKS — ONE IS CAPTURED

From Wednesday's Daily—

Chris Christianson a laboring man who has been at work on the railroad surfacing gang, was attacked by two highwaymen just after midnight yesterday morning at East Grand Forks, pounded severely, choked almost into insensibility and robbed of $1.65 in cash and a time check for $4 The holdup occurred near the Duluth elevator and as Christianson was on his way home.

When attacked Christianson yelled lustily for help and he probably owes his life to his exercise of lung power One of his assailants finally succeeded in stopping his noise by choking him. Fortunately his cries were heard, however, by Officer Gordon who rushed to his assistance and arrived in time to find one of his assailants holding the victim by the throat while the other was going thru his pockets. The officer effected the capture of one of the men, who gave his name as James Kelly. The other made his escape and has not yet been located. Christianson altho badly bruised by his assailants will recover. Kelly will be given a hearing this afternoon in the municipal court.

"COLONIAL JACK" MAKING TRIP AROUND BORDER OF THE UNITED STATES

WENT TO SCHOOL WITH CROOKSTON PEOPLE AT ST. PETER

From Wednesday's Daily—

"Colonial Jack" who is walking around the borders of the United States on a wager will arrive in Crookston next Tuesday. "Colonel Jack" whose real name is J. A. Krohn started from Portland, Me., on June 1, and is at the present time 250 miles ahead of his schedule, having traveled 2,000 miles when he reaches here on Tuesday.

Mr. Krohn is a native of Minnesota having been born and raised at St. Peter where he went to school with Attorneys H. W. Stark and Albert Chilgren of this city, and was well acquainted with Mrs. D. D. Clark.

Mr. Krohn will lecture in the Auditorium Tuesday night. His wife may be here as she is accompanying him, travelling on the train, and passing him every day throwing off a letter as she whizzes past to encourage her husband. At Cloquet, however, she was taken very ill and was in the hospital yesterday and may have to remain there for some time.

He is not only walking the entire distance of 9,000 miles which he must cover to win the wager but he is pushing a small wheelbarrow in which he carries his wearing apparel and other necessary articles. According to the wager, Mr. Krohn must complete his trip in 400 days and to prevent him from riding part of the way he is required to go to every postoffice along the way and have the postmaster stamp a card with the date of his call. In order to complete the trip in the required time he must travel 22 miles daily. The longest day's walk he made was 44 miles, which he made in western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio.

Since starting on the trip Mr. Krohn has lost 21 pounds in weight. In the course of his trip he will of necessity meet with many adventures and it is of these adventures and a description of the country through which he walks that Mr. Krohn intends to write and pay the expenses of the walk.

Mr. Krohn is a newspaper man a former employe of Gov. Johnson at St. Peter. He rests on Sunday observing it strictly. He is a theatrical manager by profession and he is merely undertaking the walk as a means of recreation from labor.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS INCREASE

NEW COURSES BRING BOYS TO HIGH SCHOOL. INSPECTOR AITON FINDS

BOYS ARE INCREASING MUCH FASTER THAN GIRLS IN ATTENDANCE

From Monday's Daily—

Minnesota is getting its boys back into high school as a result of the industrial courses.

The sum of $35,228 was expended for industrial work last year, while only $23,453 was used for the same work the previus year.

While boys and girls are gaining in numbers in the state schools, the boys are coming in much faster because of manual training.

George B. Aiton, state inspector of high schools, finds in his complation for his annual report that the attendance of girls last year increased only 287, where the increase the year before was nearly a thousand.

But the boys in high schools increased 623, where the year before the increase was 556.

The total number of high school pupils enrolled last year was 24,530, an increase of nearly 1,000. Of these 3,314 graduated, a gain of 200.

The high schools employed 992 instructors, a gain of 64.

STANTON REDDICK OF ALBANY NEW YORK MAKES FIRST VISIT TO VALLEY

IS GREATLY INTRESTED IN PROGRESS OF BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD

From Wednesday's Daily—

"I am wonderfully impressed with the Red River Valley. In many things we in the east are 50 years behind you, while in very few particulars do I find the people of this section behind the east. You have one of the greatest agricultural sections in the United States."

The above statement was made last evening by Stanton Reddick, who holds a high position with the New York Central railway and who resides at Albany, N. Y. He was called to Northfield, Minn., on official business and came up to visit his brother, M. H. Reddick of Grand Forks, and the two with a party were going to Maple Lake where Mr. Reddick owns a beautiful cottage and is otherwise interested.

This is Stanton Reddick's first visit to the Red River Valley and he was enthusiastic over the progress made in the development of the great resources of this section. He had not expected to see such farms nor such up-to-date and progressive cities.

When he returns to New York this section will receive some high class advertising.

Senator Schaller was very much pleased with the outlook in the crop line in this section of the state.

The Senator is one of the few democratic officials in the state, and holds the office thru his personal popularity and ability. He is very optimistic as to the future of his party and their success at the polls this fall.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON IS RENOMINATED

Gov. Johnson Stands By Views Regarding Third Term But He Sees No Good Escape.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET.

For Governor—John A. Johnson of St. Peter.

For Lieutenant Governor—Julius J. Reiter of Rochester.

For State Treasurer—P. H. Nelson of Hibbing.

For Secretary of State—R. T. Lamb of Slayton.

For Attorney General—M. E. Matthews of Marshall.

For Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners—H. P. Bjorge of Fergus Falls, Robert Mee of Faribault.

Minneapolis, Aug. 21.—Gov. John A. Johnson, in one of the wildest political demonstrations ever witnessed in the state, was nominated as a third term candidate for governor of Minnesota at the state Democratic convention held in the Minneapolis Auditorium yesterday. The governor up to a late hour last night would not give out for publication what he would do in the matter, but the fact that he wanted to "think it over," in the face of his previous declarations that he would not accept the nomination, indicate that his attitude has changed somewhat and the general opinion is that he will respond to the call made upon him by the party.

> "I have given this matter my closest thought for past 24 hours and my first opinion that a third nomination is unwise and against the principles of the party, is unchanged, yet I cannot see how I can get away from making the race without putting the party in the hole. I regret this action and wish it never had happened."

The above are the words of Governor Johnson to the newspaper representatives at the state capitol late yesterday.

The remarkable incidents that lead to the nomination of a man positively against his will, will ever remain vivid in the minds of those who attended one of the most remarkable conventions ever held in the state.

Mayor Lawler Starts It.

"He would be a hard speaker, indeed, who would waste much time in placing before this convention the name of the next governor of Minnesota, because there is but one name in the minds, in the hearts and in the mouths of the Democracy of the State of Minnesota, and that name is John A. Johnson—"

That was as far as Mayor Lawler got with his nomination speech for more than an hour.

P. McDonnell of Duluth, chairman of the St. Louis county delegation, led at that psychological moment one of the wildest demonstrations ever witnessed in a state convention in the Northwest. Jumping to his feet he grabbed the banner of the St. Louis county and waving it above his head he shouted:

"Hurrah for Johnson! He's a winner!" and started on a run for the stage. He was followed by every delegate in the hall, shouting: "Johnson! Johnson! He's a winner!"

The nomination was then made by acclamation amid the wildest enthusiasm. The rest of the state ticket was selected by a committee of nineteen, chosen from the judicial districts, and their work was indorsed by the convention.

The Platform.

The platform indorses the national platform adopted at the Denver convention and pledges the hearty support of the Democrats of Minnesota to the ticket there nominated. The administration of Gov. Johnson is indorsed and it is declared that in every emergency he has been equal to the occasion and has brought honor to the administration and to the state. The enactment of a tonnage tax is favored. A non-partisan judiciary is advocated. The party is pledged to the enactment of the initiative and referendum. Popular election of United States senators is demanded. Extension of the direct primary law so as to include all state officers is favored. The administration is commended for its efforts to enforce the railroad rate law. State guarantee for deposits in state banks is favored. An employers' liability law is demanded.

Called to Order by Day.

The convention was called to order by Frank A. Day, chairman of the state central committee.

"I won't say now," said Mr. Day, "that I am about to lay down my badge of office as chairman of the state central committee for all time." He arraigned J. F. Jacobson, the Republican candidate for governor, for his Duluth speech and for his alleged alliance with the "interests." He lauded Bryan and praised the Johnson administration and said:

"Gov. Johnson does not want a nomination at your hands to-day, and I hope you will respect his wishes."

This statement was met with shouts of "No! No! We want Johnson. He's the man!"

On the floor Hennepin and Ramsey counties were on their feet shouting for Johnson, other delegates joined in and the demonstration continued for several minutes.

Farrington for Chairman.

Senator R. G. Farrington of Big Stone was chosen temporary chairman. In his speech on taking the chair Senator Farrington said:

"Never has there been a time when the Democratic party, state or nation, has faced so important a situation. We are on the verge of a great campaign—a campaign to be tried out on the issue of 'equal rights for all, special privileges for none.'"

Chairman Farrington paid a high tribute to Gov. Johnson and followed it with a blow at the Republican party for the nomination of Jacobson, who, he said, could not have got the nomination but for the support of the interests.

To Pick Candidates.

At the suggestion of Frank A. Day a motion was carried for the appointment of a committee to draw up a list of candidates for other places than governor on the state ticket. The committee was composed of a representative from each judicial district.

Committees on resolutions, credentials, permanent organization and credentials were then named and the convention took a recess until 2 o'clock. At the afternoon session the business of the convention was completed as reported above, and the convention adjourned sine die.

CONGRATULATIONS FROM W. J. BRYAN

Nominee For Preident Pledges His Snpport Democratic Campaign In Minnesota.

St. Paul, Aug. 22. — Gov. John A. Johnson has submitted to the will of his party. He has accepted the nomination for a third term, given him Wednesday at Minneapolis by the Democratic state convention.

"There is no other way out of the situation," said the governor this morning. "Win or lose, I will accept the nomination and will make the very best fight there is in me."

Bryan Sends Congratulations.

The governor was busy at the capitol yesterday morning receiving visitors who thronged the executive chamber, while telegrams came pouring in extending congratulations. Included among them was that of William J. Bryan, in which Mr. Bryan pledges the support of the national committee to the Democratic campaign in Minnesota.

Gov. Johnson had apparently considered his decision well during the night and upon reaching the capitol yesterday morning announced that he had decided to accept his own kidnapping by the Democratic party.

Bows to Will of Party.

"I feel," he said, "that there is nothing else for me to do. I sincerely have not sought this nomination, but the party thought otherwise. Of course I appreciate the high compliment that has been paid me in this third nomination, but the party gave me no chance to withdraw. Had they sent a committee to me, I would have declined so positively that there could have been no further doubht as to my position. But without giving me a chance to speak there is only one thing for me to do, and that is to accept their decision in preference to my own."

BIG LOG DRIVE HAS ARRIVED

DRIVE CONSISTS OF 16,000,000 FEET THE LARGEST IN TEN YEARS

4,000,000 FEET BELONGS TO THE CROOKSTON LUMBER CO., BALANCE TO FORKS

From Friday's Daily—

The rear end of a monster drive of 16,000,000 feet of logs has reached a point about a mile above the city and the crew of 40 "river hogs" is busy sorting and scaling them as they reach the sluiceway of the Crookston Lumber Co. The drive was brought down by a crew under the direction of River Boss Pat Sullivan, one of the oldest men in the business on the Red Lake and Clearwater rivers who has been in charge of the drives for the Grand Forks Lumber Co., since their big mill was first constructed at East Grand Forks.

About 12,000,000 feet of the logs belong to the Grand Forks Lumber Co., and 4,000,000 will be boomed and held here for the Crookston Lumber Co., and with the stock already on hand will be an abundant supply to start the mill up on next spring after one year's idleness.

This is the biggest drive that has been brought down the Red Lake river in ten years and has been brought down under great difficulties because of the extremely low stage of the water, and were it not for num erous dams which were opened to flood the rear end millions of feet of the drive would have been stranded high and dry along the flats enroute, where the river spreads out. It will take a couple of months to sort the logs here and get the tail end of the drive started for Grand Forks, and the drive from here down will be a difficult feat unless heavy fall rains start in within a month or two.

The Red Lake river is so low above here that in places it is possible to wade across. There has not been a rain which would effect the stage of water in the river for the past eight or ten weeks. The "Jacks" were paid off yesterday and the business men of Crookston notice a decided increase of loose change in circulation as the "Jack" has to have his little "time" when pay day comes and the opportunity presents itself.

RING NECKED PHEASANTS

THAT WERE TURNED LOOSE FOR BREEDING PROPAGATION IN VALLEY

HAVE DONE WELL — HUNTERS CAUTIONED TO NOT MOLEST THEM

From Friday's Daily—

It will be recalled that hunters of this city and vicinity contributed to the purchase this spring of two hundred and fifty eggs of the English ring-necked pheasant, a game bird. These eggs which were turned over to various farmers in the neighborhood hatched out several weeks ago and one hundred and forty-three live healthy young birds is the result of the venture. Having attained a considerable growth and being able to fly short distances, these youngsters have now taken to the brush and are gaining their own livlihood.

Now that the hunting season is nearing, hunters are cautioned to refrain from killing these pheasants, which are protected by law until 1910 two years hence. The fine for killing each bird is from 10 to 60 days in jail and a fine of from $10 to $50.

As these birds breed rapidly nesting from two to three times each season, they should make splendid hunting by two years from this fall —Thief River Press.

TWO RESIDENCES WERE BURNED

HOUSES WERE OCCUPIED BY BURKE AND KNOPKE FAMILIES

NO WATER AVAILABLE — FIRE PROBABLY STARTED IN THE WOODSHED

From Friday's Daily—

Last evening about 9 o'clock fire was discovered in the residence occupied by Geo. Burke on Euclid Ave., South Crookston and in a very short time that residence together with the adjoining one occupied by Julius Knopke were a heap of ashes. The department made a good run, but there was no water available and the firemen devoted their efforts to protecting the school house across the street.

The origin of the fire is unknown but some one is supposed to have entered the woodshed back of the Burke residence and dropped a match but this is mere supposition. Mr. Burke was on his regular run on the Fargo passenger train as brakeman, and Mrs. Burke was attending the Lyceum theatre.

Not a single article was saved from the Burke residence the contents being totally destroyed. The loss on the contents is about $1000 with $500 insurance. The loss on the house is $900 with $600 insurance.

The house occupied by Mr. Knopke a G. N. fireman and his brother, Wm. Knopke, a G. N. engineer, is owned by C. P. Hughes. It was valued at $1200 with $800 insurance. The Knopke's saved all their furniture and other belongings, having plenty of time. They even took the doors and windows of the house out, moved the sidewalks and carried the woodshed at the rear to a place of safety. They had intended to move in a few days so will not be put to a great deal of inconvenience.

The shock of suddenly finding her home all in flames and many things in the house that were family treasures, burning, that cannot be replaced at any cost, so effected Mrs. Geo. Burke that she was overcome by it all, and it was necessary to call a physician to administer restoratives. However she is resting quietly today at the home of Mrs. George Hunt where she was immediately taken.

LANDED A POACHER

TERREBONNE BLACKSMITH IS FINED $20 AND COSTS LAST EVENING

GAME WARDEN MUNCH MADE THE CAPTURE IN AN OVERLAND DRIVE

From Friday's Daily—

Yesterday afternoon Deputy Game Warden Munch drove from Mentor to Terrebonne where he arrested Wilford Gervais the blacksmith at Terrebonne, charged with shooting prairie chicken, Gervais was taken to Red Lake Falls where before Judge A. P. Toupin he entered a plea of guilty to shooting one prairie chicken and was fined $20 and costs amounting to $2 He was arraigned at 10 o'clock last night, and paid his fine promptly. It is such summary arrests and fines that have a deterrant effect on others and it can be stated that there is very little infraction of the game laws going on.

STEENERSON AT THIEF RIVER

GIVES GOOD WHOLESOME ADVICE IN SPEECH AT RED LAKE COUNTY FAIR

COMMERCIAL BODIES SHOULD CO-OPERATE WITH NATIONAL GOVERNMENT

From Friday's Daily—

Thief River Falls Press: Congressman Halvor Steenerson addressed the visitors at the fair grounds last Friday, giving a forceful address along non-partisan lines. Mr. Steenerson always has some good sound ideas to impart and none can listen to him without gaining in knowledge both of a national and local character He is especially impressed with the need of the counties in this end of the state of securing more actual settlers on the land, and advises the commercial clubs to get into connection with the commissioner of immigration who is willing to send immigrants to towns that can give them good openings either in the way of land on easy payments or labor. Mr. Steenerson believes that in this way the problem of securing actual settlers could be solved.

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

All will be in readiness for the dedication of Stephens Hall September 17 Ladies' hall has been entirely

Renovated and everything will be in splendid shape for the opening of the school for the year's work Oct. 13.

From Saturday's Daily—

A visit to the agricultural school reveals the many changes and improvements that have been going on since the school closed last spring. The industrial building is fast nearing completion. The dormitory, Stephens hall, has been completed and will soon receive the furnishings. The former boys' dormitory and class rooms have been turned over to the girls and in future will be known as Ladies' Hall. Superintendent Robertson has moved into his residence which has been completed.

The farm residence building that has been used as the ladies' hall, will be used for the farm help. The farm shop building that has been used for blacksmithing will be moved over to the poultry barns for storage purposes.

New Industrial Building

The new industrial building that was started on July first is already inclosed the shingles on the roof being laid today. This building will have on the first floor for student instruction and practice purposes, a blacksmith shop, a carpenter shop, a dairy room and a stock room where the animals are brought and kept during experiments and lectures.

The second floor will comprise four class rooms. The industrial building will be completed for the school opening.

New Dormitory

The new dormitory completed this summer is known as Stephens Hall. It will have a capacity of sleeping 150 boys and if they were crowded, as it was last year, 300 could be accommodated but it is not thought this will be necessary. The dining room in this building can accommodate 200 students at one time.

Ladies' Hall

The former boys' dormitory and class room will be used exclusively by the girls, it has a sleeping capacity of 25. The old kitchen and dining room will be used for domestic science and laboratory work. The office and main reception room will remain in this building as well as two class rooms. The building has undergone a complete renovation during the summer. The walls have all been calsomined in many tasty colors in the various rooms. Every piece of woodwork has been painted and varnished, so that the entire enterior is new. Miss Woodruff will have charge of this building and will undoubtedly need an assistant this year.

School Opens Oct. 13.

School will open on Tuesday October 13. Supt. Robertson feels assured that the term will open with a good attendance as already many letters have been received by him from prospective students stating their intention of attending.

The old students will all be back and as many of them have already had two years there will be a

Graduating Class

The coming year being the third year of the school's existence, advanced work will be taken up by the third year students so that a graduating class will go from the school next spring. The multiplying of the classes means an increased amount of instruction and necessarily more teachers will be required. There will be at least two new instructors, beside the matron for the new dormitory.

Fires Destroy Timber.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 22.— Forest fires at Misery Bay, southwest of here, have destroyed several million feet of standing timber and upwards of $10,000 worth of cut logs, owned by the Houghton Lumber company. The dry spell of the past several weeks has resulted in many bush fires in this region.

ARREST LAD AGAIN.

Waseca, Minn., Aug. 21. — At the hearing of "Ownie" Davis, the boy charged with putting paris green in Fred Frank's lunch, Judge Murphy released the lad. The evidence against young Davis, the state alleges, was strong.

OSCAR SALL BRUTALLY MURDERED IN ALASKA

Victim of Tragedy was Brother of Chas. Sall, of Garnes Township and Visited here Last Fall.

From Friday's Daily—

Has Oscar Sall, brother of Charles Sall, of Garnes Township, Red Lake County adjoining Louisville township Polk county, been murdered at Valdez, Alaska?

His relatives believe so, and his brother Charles was here from Garnes yesterday to retain Congressman Steenerson who will sift the mystery to the bottom.

Oscar Sall has spent the greater portion of the past ten years in Alaska. He owned valuable mining properties and was interested in one worth $200,000 located near his other properties about 200 miles east of Valdez, Alaska.

During July Oscar Sall was taken sick and was stopping at the Miners' Hotel at Valdez, Alaska, but disappeared from there about July 25th when he was last seen in a bowling alley. No trace of him has been found since and recently C. G. Wulff a close friend of the missing man wrote Chas. Sall the circumstances, believing a foul murder has been committed.

Congressman Steenerson will conduct an investigation at once, and the case will probably necessitate a trip to Alaska later on.

Oscar Sall visited his mother and brother at Garnes last fall, but later returned to Alaska.

THREE CURES OF SEVERE ECZEMA

Michigan Woman Tells of Her Brother's Terrible Suffering with the Disease—Grandchild and Another Baby also Permanently Cured.

CUTICURA REMEDIES PROVED INVALUABLE

"My brother had eczema three different summers. About the same time each summer it came out between his shoulders and down his back, and he said his suffering was terrible. He used different kinds of medicines that were said to be good for that disease, but nothing seemed to do him much good. When it came on the third summer, he bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and gave it a faithful trial. Soon he began to feel better and he cured himself entirely with Cuticura and has never been bothered with eczema since. He also used Cuticura to cure a bunch over his eye and a terrible corn which was so bad that he could not wear his shoe. A lady in Indiana heard of how my daughter, Mrs. Miller, had cured her little son of terrible eczema by the Cuticura Remedies. This lady's little one had the eczema so badly that they thought they would lose it. She used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and it cured her child entirely, and the disease never came back. Mrs. Sarah E. Lusk, 67 Peckham St., Coldwater, Mich., Aug. 15 and Sept. 2, 1907."
